SERVIANS TRYING HARD TO EXTERMINATE THE BULGARIANS

Thousands of Refugees Are Left Starving and Unshetlered in the Mountains

New York, July 21.—A private message received by the Rev. Dr. Henry Otis Dwight, secretary of the American Bible Society, from an American missionary now making his way from Scutari into the devastated regions of Albania, says that the Servians are engaged in what is there believed to be an attempt to exterminate the population of several of the Albanian districts.

Guards from the Servian army, the message says, are patrolling territory definitely assigned to Albania at a distance of as much as 15 miles from the boundary to prevent any one getting out or going into the region. Thousands of refugees are in the mountains without shelter or food, expatriated and starving, feeding on roots, grass, bark and twigs.

Three Nations Ravage Country.

"I found near Leah," said the missionary, "and all the way from Scutari, a great many villages burned, and few fields planted. The country has been ravaged by the Servians, by the Montinegrins and by the Turkish army under Essad Pasha, who thus punished the inhabitants for refusing to help him save Turkey. At Kroya we heard of four women and forty-eight men who had been wantonly hanged, shot, or cut to pieces with swords by the Servians."

BULGARIA NOW CRIES "QUIT" TO THE POWERS

London, July 21.—The new Bulgarian Cabinet, under the Premiership of M. Radoslavoff, formally notified the European powers to-day of its readiness to order the cessation of hostilities immediately if the powers could induce Servia and Greece to take a similar course.

PREFERRED PRISON TO LEAVING IN COMPANY OF MINISTER

Assistant Deputy Archibald Makes an Attack Upon Rev. J. D. Morrow

Toronto, July 21.—That he would rather see a man go to prison than be allowed to leave the court in company with a minister of the gospel, was the amazing statement made this morning by Assistant Deputy Archibald. Rev. J. D. Morrow was the gentleman attacked by the court official and it is quite within the range of possibi,ity that a complaint will be made to the Commissioners regarding his conduct.

The "Athletic Parson" is one of the very few clergyman who go into the police court in an attempt to rescue members of his own congregations charged with minor offences and for years he has done splendid work in this way. Many West End families can trace the redemption of the husband and father or son to Mr. Morrow's kindly efforts.

This morning he was there in the interests of several unfortunates who had run foul of the police over the week-end and his kindly offices resulted in the discharge of the two men.

Mr. Morrow Had Left Court.

Just as he had left court Mr. Archibald made his attack.

"No civilian should be allowed to appear, on behalf of a prisoner in court, the way J. D. Morrow is doing. I would sooner see the prisoner in jail than handed over to that man's care," he declared.

"I don't understand, why Inspector Archibald should make such an attack on me," said Rev. Morrow afterwards. "I know these men's families and am only too familiar with their frailties.

"It is criticism such as Mr. Archibald's that is so noticeable in the modern church. The men who take up the collection at our services very often do not live the lives they ought to through the week and yet they are the harshest when it comes to an affair of this kind." he concluded.

Speaking of the matter after court Magistrate Ellis said: "I will allow a respectable citizen to take care of a prisoner who has not been drunk too often, at any time, so long as he will guarantee to look after the man."

CLOUDED BRAIN.

Clears Up On Change to Proper Food

The brain cannot work with clearness and accuracy, if the food taken is not fully digested, but is retained in the stomach to ferment and form poisonous gases, etc. A dull, clouded brain is likely to be the result.

A lady relates her experience in changing her food habits, and results are very interesting:

"A steady diet of rich, greasy foods such as sausage, buckwheat cakes and so on, finally broke down a stomach and nerve that, by inheritance were sound and strong, and medicine did no apparent good in the way of relief.

"My brain was clouded and dull and I was suffering from a case of constipation that defied all remedies used.

"The 'Road to Wellville,' in some providential way, fell into my hands, and may Heaven's richest blessings fall on the man who was inspired to write it.

"I followed directions carefully, the physical culture and all, using Grape-Nuts with sugar and cream, leaving meat, pastry and hot biscuit entirely out of my bill of fare. The result—I am in perfect health, once more.

"I never realise I have nerves, and my stomach and bowels are in fine condition. My brain is perfectly clear and I am enjoying that state of health which God intended his creatures should enjoy and which all might have, by giving proper attention to their food." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CITY'S MFG. COMMITTEE IN SESSION LAST NIGHT

The City's Manufacturers' Committee met last evening, Chairman Ald. Duffus presiding. There were also present Aldermen Gordon, Gillespie, Langford, McIntyre, Duncan, and J. J. Turner, Jr., from the Board of Trade.

The Chairman offered that the present stringency of the market is affecting applications from American industries for factory sites in Canada. Several advertising schemes in American mediums, grouped and otherwise, were discussed, but no action taken.

The question of a new sign advertising the advantages of Peterborough as an industrial centre, to be erected on the island north of the C.P.R. bridge was discussed, but left in abeyance. The scheme for this sign as submitted by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, would cost '97, to be maintained by the firm for a period of three years. While all approved of the sketch submitted for this sign, some members offered that advertising by such means should be distributed at different points.

HAS RARE MUSICAL GIFT AND GENIUS

Miss Dorothy Allen Pupil of Great London Master

Miss Dorthy Allan, baughter of Mr. John Allan, organist of St. Paul's, who has been in London, Eng., for the last two months, and will be for another month studying with Signor Giovanni Clerici, teacher of Caruso, John McCormack, and many celebrated singers, is returning to Peterborough the end of August. Signor Clerici, from whom Miss Allan is taking an hour's lesson every day, is delighted with her voice and says she "has the true musical temperament necessary to every good singer and without which the voice is a mere machine." He said "She had been very well taught, and he had nothing to undo, only develop and perfect that which already had been accomplished."

This is a great compliment to the method and training of Mr. Allan, who has been his daughter's sole teacher as at the time Signor Clerici said this he was not aware who was her teacher. Miss Allan hopes to give a vocal recital shortly after her return to Peterborough.

Mrs. and Miss Allan are managing to combine a good deal of pleasure along with iwork. They enjoyed hearing a fine debate on the Irish Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons, when they heard Mr. Asquith, Bonar Law, Winston Churchill, Austin Chamberlain. Lloyd George, Kier Hardie and several others, and saw many more notables. Tickets for the ladies' gallery were kindly sent them by Sir Henry Craik, M.P. These are keenly scrutinised on account of the Suffragettes distrubances, and it is much more difficult to gain admittance now than it was a few years back.

They had also a most enjoyable day at the Royal Academy, where the exhibition of pictures this year is exceptionally fine. A large crowd is always to be seen in front of what is considered the finest picture of the year: Hon. John Collier's "A Fallen Idol," which for strength and tenderness and rich though subdued coloring, would be hard to surpass.

ORANGE DELEGATES FOR NEWFOUNDLAND

Yesterday morning Worshipful Master W. Noftall, of Lodge No. 80, left for Newfoundland, representing the County of Peterborough, to attend the Supreme Lodge of Orangemen. Bro. Joseph Brown of Lindsay, also left to represent Victoria County and also Bro. Joseph Beatty of Omemee to represent the township of Emily. Mr. Noftall, who is a traveller for Messrs. T. Kinnear & Co., will be accompanied by Mrs. Noftall and six of his family. The Times hopes that the delegates will have a most enjoyable trip and a safe return.

GEN. HAMILTON HERE YESTERDAY

With Hon. Col. Sam Hughes Inspects Local Armouries and Sees City

Yesterday quite a number of the local soldiers gathered at the C.P.R. depot. They included Col. Clegg and Major Hall of the 57th and other officers of "horse, foot and artillery." The occasion was a welcome to General Ian Hamilton. The General was tendered a hearty reception, including music by the 57th Regiment band. He was conveyed to the local Armouries, which he inspected and highly praised. After the inspection he was given an auto ride round the city. Later on he left for Lindsay in an auto, with Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, where he will, as noted in yesterday's Times, lay the foundation stone of the new Armouries there.

CITY MAY BUY A REID INCINERATOR

Price $10,000 to Include Building---Property Com. Will Recommend its Purchase

The City's Property Committee met last night, Chairman Ald. Geo. Duncan presiding. There were also in attendance Aldermen Gordon, Langford, McIntyre and Duffus. Also City Engineer Parsons.

Committee will recommend the construction of a Reid Incinerator plant at a cost of $10,000. This style of incinerator is highly recommended by the City Engineer, and also by the City Fathers who saw one in operation in Toronto. It is odorless and practically requires no fuel, the dry portions of refuse and garbage to be burned being sufficient to start it going. It is agreed that any unit to be added in future can be built by the city at 10 or 5 per cent. patent royalty on the total cost of construction. Unless this contract with the Reid people, of Toronto, is concluded shortly the price for such a plant will advance. The company are anxious to put a good plant into Peterborough at once for inspection by the authorities of other towns contemplating. With this object in view the company is giving Peterborough a considerably cut rate. The purchase price of $10,000 includes both incinerator and building. The incinerator to be erected is a twenty ton unit. There is but two to three per cent. of ashes from any charge of garbage, etc., consumed.

The City Solicitor will be requested to prepare an agreement for the purchase of this plant, and submit to council a by-law authorizing its purchase.

Plumbing Inspector Thompson was given two weeks holidays.

MRS. PANKHURST THE NOTED SUFFRAGETTE IS NOW CAUGHT

Outwitted London Police on Saturday But Ran Foul of Them To-day

London, July 21.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, who succeeded in outwitting the police on Saturday, was really arrested this afternoon when she was entering a hall to attend the weekly conclave of the members of the Women's Social and Political Union. It was said she intended at the meeting to issue another defiant challenge to the Government.

Detectives pounced on Mrs. Pankhurst with dramatic suddenness and before many of those surrounding her were aware that the suffragette leader had been seized, she had been whisked into Shaftsbury avenue and bustled into a taxicab.

A few of the women accompanying Mrs. Pankhurst, however, made an attempt to rescue her and in doing so vigorously trounced the detectives with their umbrellas. Half a dozen of them were arrested.

How Mrs. Pankhurst Got Away.

London, July 21.—The police are still watching the flat supposed to be occupied by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, and will arrest her if she attempts to leave. The police are much nettled over the fact that they were fooled in arresting a woman who left the house last night in the belief that it was the militant leader. It was another woman, impersonating Mrs. Pankhurst, whom the police captured in a taxicab, and took part of the way to Scotland Yard. Then they discovered their mistake and liberated the prisoner.

GAS FAMINE IN BERLIN

Berlin, Ont., July 21.—There was a gas famine on washday here between seven and ten o'clock this morning. It was caused by a pipe between the gas tank and the city main becoming blocked with napthaline, the refuse from manufactures of coal gas.

The Printers' Picnic, on Aug. 2nd, promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season. Keep the date open.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—West and south-west winds fair and a little warmer.

NEW YORK AND LONDON ARE MODERN SODOMS

So Says Rev. John McNeill, of Toronto, in Sermon to New Yorkers —He Rapped the Rich.

New York, July 21.—Condemning the idle wealthy, declaring that there are too many persons in New York who eat four meals a day and do nothing, and saying that if Christ came to New York snobbish society would not take him into their houses, the Rev. John McNeill, of Toronto, yesterday rapped the New Yorkers from the Central Presbyterian church.

"If Christ came to New York this would happen all over again," said Rev. Mr. McNeill. "The good religious people would rub their eyes and look him over to see if he had the society marks, and not remember he might have spent the night in heaven with angels and archangels veiling their faces from his glory. The cut of clothes the Saviour of the world wore when on earth would not let him pass."

The Rev. Mr. McNeill compared New York and London to Sodom, and said that these two great cities had too many persons who were full of dread and abundance of idleness.

"Millionaires, I am told, don't sleep," he said. "I don't know, because I was never troubled that way. Christ slept in the boat that night because he was honestly tired from an honest day's work."

PORTUGAL GOING BAD TO WORSE

Administration Under Republic is Merely Elaborate System of Organized Corruption

(Special to The Times.)

Lisbon, July 21.—The present Portuguese government is becoming uneasy, as the outlook for the future is bad. Some think the Republic is doomed, and even its friends are becoming frankly pessimistic.

When the monarchy was overthrown the world was informed that a new era was about to be inaugurated, that purity of administration would be introduced, the finances of the country would be placed in a sound footing, and that even-handed justice would be distributed to everybody. Not one of the assertions has been realized. Take, for instance, the administration of justice. The gaols are full of prisoners, some of whom are friends of the monarchy, and some of whom are friends of the republic. The former are in gaol because the republic is afraid of them and does not dare bring them to trial, because they would be acquitted. The latter suffer the same fate, because having set the republic on its feet they looked to personal benefit for themselves, and when they adopted the role of the importunate widow the authorities decided that they were much better inside the walls of the prison than outside.

There they have been for eighteen months, and there they are now, and while the Dowager Duchess of Bedford in her recent visit championed the pathetic case of the monarchists she did not take up the equally hard lot of the republicans. The republicans defend the conditions of the gaols by saying they have always been as bad as they are now. Possibly, but then they used not to be so crowded.

FINANCE NO BETTER.

Let us pass to the finances of the country. In this respect there is no improvement whatever. There is no one who understands finance, and the amateurs who are now experimenting in government on a large scale were drawn from professional classes and while they may have shone in their own pursuits they know nothing more than the experience they thereby gained. Consequently now taxation is developing into an organized system of thumbscrew work applied to political opponents.

As for purity of administration, it frankly does not exist. The monarchists may have been corrupt, but the republicans beat them out of the field. Everybody is out for jobs, everybody exploits the position he holds. There may be a few honest men, but they can hardly exceed the total which Lot found in Sodom and Gomorrah.

ESPIONAGE RAMPANT.

Espionage is rampant in the country. The government employs the carbonarios who are a form of Pinkerton tough evolved under Latin conditions, to break up gatherings of those suspected of sympathy with the monarchy, to invade the barracks and the warships and watch the soldiers to see whether they are being tampered with, and more particularly the officers in case they may not be quite the perferid republicans they ought to be. Such a system is subversive of all discipline in the army and navy, though there never was much—as much perhaps as there is of genuine military ardour. Indeed, had the monarchists possessed any real military backbone, they would have ousted the republicans long ago. but put two forces of Portuguese face to face, and they will spend all their time in pirouetting round in a

SEES OWN ARMS CHOPPED OFF BY MACHINE; KEEPS NERVE

James Dryden, Employe in Montreal Sausage Factory, Displays Astonishing Pluck After Feeling Member Chopped off by Power Driven Knives

Montreal, Jply 21.—His right arm held by a sausage machine after he had seen and felt it ground and chopped from the ends of his finger tips to the elbow, James Dryden took chloroform where he stood at his regular work-spot, and submitted to the surgeon's knife in order that he might be released.

The chopping knives had crushed and gouged almost to the man's elbow before his fellow workers had turned the power off.

They improvised a tourniquet with a stick and a piece of rope, and kept the mangled, agonized man conscious until a doctor arrived.

MASKED BANDIT HAS KILLED BRANTFORD BOY IN COLORADO

Albert P. Whithead, Clerk at a Summer Hotel, Shot When He Tried to Fool Robber

Brantford, Ont., July 21.—Albert Pollard Whitehead, an old Brantford boy, night clerk at the Cliff House, Manitou, ten miles from Colorado Springs, was shot and instantly killed while on duty in the hotel, a fashionable non-liquor summer resort by a masked bandit, whose identity has not been discovered. Mr. Whitehead was on duty, when about one o'clock in the morning a masked man advanced through the group of guests in the outer lobby. He advanced into the hotel lobby, and flashing a revolver ordered Mr. Whitehead to go behind the counter, to order him to then open the safe and give him the contents. Instead of obeying the command Mr. Whitehead took a course which he thought would foil the bandit, making a break for a side door. Though the movement made was unexpected, the bullet beat the flight of the clerk, striking him in the head and killing him instantly. The shot aroused all the guests, and the bandit becoming frightened, made no further attempt to get the valuables from the safe, but escaped through another side door and was lost in the darkness.

A posse was hurriedly gathered together, but so far as is known here the murderer escaped.

SAY SLANDER, WANT $10,000 I.B.S.A. DELEGATE DEFENDANT

Altercation at "Ex" Grounds Yesterday Afternoon Results in Writ Being Issued--"Wife Was Lured Away"

Toronto, July 21.—The International Bible Students' Association has been in convention only one day but already it is the indirect cause of a writ for $10,000 damages for slander being issued at Osgoode Hall to-day. The plaintiff is J. H. Alexander, 606 Lumsden Building, and the defendant is Thomas Agar, one of the delegates to the convention.

THE CLAIM MADE.

Here is the claim as lodged to-day. "$10,000 for slander uttered by defendant when the plaintiff had stated his opinion of Pastor Russell and the damning effect of his teachings and life upon many who follow him, and on stating the fact that Russell stands charged with fraud, cruelty and immorality, and has not met the charges."

Mr. Alexander stated that his wife and daughter were lured from his home through the influence of Russell literature. "When I was from home on business," he said, "they sold the furniture. Fortunately I was able to intercept the money. My life was made a hell for me and I attribute it all to the Russell influence."

TOLD A POLICEMAN.

"Last night," he continued with a reference to yesterday's episode. "I was outside the Convention Building at the Exhibition grounds. I was talking to a policeman and some others, telling them what Russellism had done for me and warning them that it was a fake, when Agar came forward and said: 'Don't believe that man; he's a liar.' I went and issued a writ first thing to-day."

Alexander and Agar both come originally from Lucknow, Ont. Now they reside in Toronto. Mrs. Alexander also resides in Toronto, but separated from her husband.

The International Bible Students' Association are not likely to get it all their own way during their week in the city. Mr. Philip Sidersky, who has been hot after Pastor Russell for years, has been brought here at the expense of five local laymen to endeavor to "expose" Pastor Russell and his teachings.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Sidersky and a number of others went out to the Convention hall and erecteh a large sign measuring six feet each way, and on this were placarded many statements that Russellites must have considered positively insulting. "Russell's Blasphemous Claims," "The Teaching of Demons," were two of the posters stuck up right in front of their door. A few delegates objected to the sign being allowed to remain, but they met with stout resistance at the hands of Mr. Sidersky and his followers. The police were summoned and asked by the Bible Students to have the sign removed, but the guardian of the law refused to interfere. The sign is not in its place to-day.

PLANS PUBLIC MEETING.

Mr. Sidersky interviewed the Controllers this morning. He proposes to hold public meetings to protest against the claims and teachings of the convention present yesterday at Riverside Park, to witness the game between Ottawa and the Petes. The weather was all that could be desired for baseball, and the boys were in the pink of condition, and put up a good game of ball, not one error being placed to any player's credit during the whole game. The visitors played a ragged game and the fans were continuously asking the question of how the Shaughnettes had got so near the top while putting up a game like the one played yesterday.

Heavy hitting and excellent fielding was the feature of the Petes end of the shovel, Hilliard taking a good many pills during the afternoon, while Peggy Swartz got all that came his way. Brant just couldn't help scoring, they could not fan him and when he didn't hit, he walked out of five times to bat he had four hits and one walk, two runs being chalked up against him. Davie Rowan also put up first class ball, and in fact the whole team played to the limit.

Tracey did the twirling and got the best of them swinging, they just couldn't make connections with the pill at all, and when they did hit, it was generally into the mit of Hilliard or Swartz.

The visitors opened the game with Lill in the box, but he was removed before the innings was out being replaced by Kubat, who didn't do much better. The Petes scored five runs in the first innings and two more in the second, and lastly they got two in the fifth. The Petes had 18 hits to their credit, while the visitors got nine.

Umpire—Daly.

FARM FOR SALE

THE UNDERSIGNED offers for sale one of the best farms in the County of Peterborough, being west half of lot No. 7, and northeast quarter lot No. 6, in the second concession of the Township of Dummer, containing 150 acres, more or less. There is on the property two good dwelling houses, first class outbuildings and four never-failing wells. The soil is clay loam, and the farm is in a fine state of cultivation, with the exception of about 25 acres of bush. There is a good sized orchard and several fruits on the farm. This is a splendid opportunity for any one desiring a first class farm in a splendid locality, as it is only 2 miles from Warsaw.

PINE TAR CORDIAL

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are socalled Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaprilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 386 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

THIS ANARCHIST A MILLIONAIRE

(A True Detective Story).

Scotland Yard differs on many subjects amongst itself, but it is agreed upon one point, and that is that the most dangerous, slippery, and remarkable "crook" it ever had to deal with was George Ferdinand Springmulh von Weissenfeld.

They nicknamed him the Anarchist millionaire, partly because he devoted a considerable proportion of the money he acquired by a life of crime to furthering the Anarchist cause, and also because many of his chosen associates, both men and women, were revolutionary Anarchists of a pronounced type.

He came of a good family, and was exceedingly well educated, having graduated with high honors in science, medicine, and literature at one of the principal German universities. But he was a born criminal, and a dangerous one; a throw-back to the aboriginal savage.

A little matter of forgery and attempted murder made his native land too hot to hold him and he fled to England. This was in 1880, and it did not take him long to blossom forth into a professional blackmailer and swindler of a peculiarly odious type.

He'd Never Be Taken Alive

Once he found himself in the clutches of the law, and received a well-merited sentence at the Old Bailey of twelve months' imprisonment with hard labor. His temper was not improved by this one taste of oakum-picking, and he vowed that he would never do another "stretch" (year's imprisonment), no matter what came. After this he always went armed.

His specialty about this time was bogus company promoting, and he did remarkably well out of it from his point of view. From one concern alone he netted $300,000. Another yielded him $225,000 in six weeks. He opened more than one hundred different banking accounts in as many different names, and he kept an album in which he entered his different aliases side by side with his own proper signature. This album is now preserved as a curiosity at Scotland Yard.

As has been intimated, he swore that he would never be taken alive, and although as a result of his colossal frauds half the detectives in Europe were presently searching for him, it looked as if he would beat them all.

His cunning was almost superhuman, and he took no chances. He employed a small army of private detectives to shadow the Scotland Yard detectives who were trying to shadow him. He rented a fine house—in an assumed name, of course—near Wembley Park, and spent thousands of pounds in constructing subterranean passages leading to secret exits through which he could escape, if need be, when hard pressed.

Scotland Yard heard of the existence of this den, and raided it, but the bird had flown. Next he was heard of at another place near London, where he was engaged in printing and issuing vast numbers of books of a kind about which the less said the better.

Secret Chambers and Dark Tunnels

This house also was raided, but once more the wanted man had disappeared. The detectives found, however, evidence of his many-sided enterprises in the shape of six of the newest and most expensive kinds of linotype machines, together with many thousands of objectionable books, all newly printed. These were destroyed on a magistrate's order.

The search for the master criminal was continued, and at last he was located in a large mansion in Cambridgeshire, known as "Edenfield." This house, which stood in its own grounds, had been chosen for its seclusion, like the one at Wembley Park, and, like it, too, it had been fitted with an elaborate system of sliding panels, secret chambers, and subterranean passages.

All this was known to the Yard, and it was known, too, that an armed and desperate man lurked within. Consequently, it was determined to send three of the best men available to enter the house and effect the actual arrest, while other plain-clothes officers were detailed to watch the various exits in the grounds outside.

The officers told off for the dangerous part of the job were Chief Inspector Arrow (afterwards appointed Chief of the Barcelona Police), Detective-Inspector Sweeny, and Sergeant-Inspector (afterwards Inspector) Badcock.

These were experienced men, and they laid their plans well. One went up to the door, disguised as a tradesman's assistant, and knocked. The other two were in hiding in the shrubbery near by.

At the knock the door was opened ever so little, and before it could be closed again the three detectives were inside. Instantly a shrill whistle was sounded from within, and when the house was searched the Anarchist millionaire was apparently nowhere within it.

There were plenty of servants about of both sexes, but they one and all professed to know nothing. The detectives searched high and low for nearly two hours, but their search was in vain. Yet that the wanted man was somewhere within the building was certain. Every exit was being watched by their colleagues outside, and these had made no sign.

Bearding the Lion in His Den

At length, just when they were on the verge of despair, a secret panel was discovered, and this, on being forced open, revealed a passage just broad enough to admit one man. It was pitch dark within, but out of the darkness came the sound of suppressed breathing.

Here, then, was their quarry. But which one of the three detectives was going to risk almost certain death by bearding him in his den now he was at bay?

The question in reality admitted but of one answer. It is an unwritten law of Scotland Yard that the post of danger shall be given to the junior, for that way lies promotion, and promotion is, of course, the most ardently to be desired thing amongst all branches of the Police service.

So to Sergeant-Inspector Badcock was assigned the duty of entering the secret passage so luckily discovered, and dragging thence into the light of day the worse than wild beast that lurked within.

Quietly, without the least trace of bravado, he accepted the mission. Stepping from the room into the cavern-like passage—being a tall man he was compelled to adopt a stooping posture—he called to the wanted man, telling him that he was a police officer, that the game was up, and that he had better surrender himself quietly.

The Fight for Life

No verbal answer was returned, but out of the darkness came the sharp click of a revolver being cocked. Badcock felt that life or death was a matter of moments only, and bounded swiftly forward, still keeping bent nearly double, both because the height of the passage did not admit of a perfectly erect posture being maintained, and also because by so doing he stood a better chance of not being shot if his assailant aimed high, as men firing when greatly excited usually do.

The passage ended in a door, and Badcock could hear his man fumbling at the handle inside. But he could not get out that way, for it had been locked from the outside by Inspector Arrow's orders prior to the raid.

Realising this, the hunted man faced about, pointed his revolver at his pursuer, and tried to pull the trigger. But Badcock gripped his wrist with fingers of steel, and the weapon dropped with a clang on the stone floor.

It was a pitiful figure of a man that was dragged out into the light of day a few seconds later. His face was livid, his features were working convulsively.

"Water!" he gasped. "Give me water!"

A servant ran and fetched some, but the glass slipped from his nerveless fingers, his jaw dropped, and a moment later he fell dying to the ground.

A coroner's jury said it was apoplexy. But was it?

The Anarchist millionaire, who was also, it must be remembered, a doctor, and a skilful chemist, had long had in his possession a gold signet ring in which was hidden a powerful poison.

When he was arrested this ring was on his hand, but the secret receptacle behind the seal which had contained the poison was empty.

Anyway, he was dead, and the world was well rid of him.

Had he stood his trial, there would have been revealed the most remarkable criminal romance of modern times.

THE CANADIAN MILITIA

General Sir Ian Hamilton, inspector-general of the overseas forces, and second in command of the British army has completed, last week, an inspection of the Canadian militia from Victoria to Halifax. While the inspection was made in record time, thanks to the energy of Col. Sam Hughes, minister of Militia, it was none the less thorough. General Hamilton reviewed over one hundred units, visited every camp, and inspected the fortifications at Quebec, Halifax and Esquimault. A most efficient soldier, with a career of achievement in the battlefields of the Empire second only to Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener, his inspection cannot but be valuable, and his recommendations will be awaited with interest.

General Hamilton is a thorough democrat who can adapt himself to any circumstances. He has made himself exceedingly popular with both soldiers and civilians wherever he has gone. He has evinced the deepest interest in Canadian affairs, industrial and commercial, as well as military. It was a happy thought of Col. Hughes to invite him to inspect the Canadian forces, for he has no official authority in the self-governing dominions. The visit of the most distinguished soldier who has ever inspected the Canadian troops and the better understanding which will naturally follow between the military authorities of Canada and the Motherland, will still further strengthen the imperial bonds.

A HOME RULE SNAG.

The action of the House of Lords in refusing to vote on the Irish Home Rule Bill apparently forces Mr. Asquith and his ministry to do one of two thingt—to resign and go before the people for a general parliamentary election on the issue of Home Rule, or to get King George to name 400 or 500 new Liberal peers who will dominate things in the House of Lords. The first is more likely to happen than the latter, though once before the wholesale creation of new lords has been held over the heads of the present Lords to accomplish a desired reform.

Under the Parliament Act, which took away much of the old-time power of the House of Lords there is no provision for a definite term within which the House must act on measures other than those carrying money. Thus while the House of Commons can enact into law any measure which the Lords have twice persisted in vetoing, there is no way to hurry the Lords into taking their veto action. In this inttance the Lords have once turned down the Irish Home Rule, the Commons have passed it a second time, and are ready to pass it a third time and make it a law as soon as the Lords give their second refusal to pass it. But the Lords suggest that the whole matter go to the people and a new House of Commons be elected on this issue. It is shrewd politics, for the Lords have nothing to lose, and there is always the possibility of a second House of Commons unfrienoly to Home Rule.

So it remains for the Government to resign and to appeal to the people, or else create half a thousand new Lords of its own political allegiance. Of course, it is only a snag in the way of Home Rule, and it is not likely that it will long delay the triumph of the cause. But it creates a decidedly interesting situation in British politics.

Stomach Always Baulked, Had Constant Indigestion

Smell of Cooking Made Him Sick—Billious Two Days a Week.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Clemmons' experience is not unusual. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better if not cured next morning.

"My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P.Q. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would do great stunts. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition, advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a live man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. 25c per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

HATCHERIES SOLVING FOOD FISH SUPPLY

An Average Sized Fish Will Propagate From 35,000 to 40,000 Eggs

"How soon will our supply of food fish last?"

This is one of the questions of the day. Fisheries in the Great Lakes that were once very prolific are gradually diminishing in quantity each year. The whitefish and the pickerel are very important food fishes, and respond so readily to artificial propagation that there is no reason for not enlarging the scope of the present hatcheries, and quadrupling the number of fry planted in the Great Lakes each year. The method in practice at the hatcheries is decidedly interesting. The whitefish eggs are taken in November, and those of the pickerel in May. The Bay of Quinte, and the fishing grounds near Killarney on the Georgian Bay furnish most of the eggs of the whitefish, while the pickerel eggs are obtained from Lake Huron and other well known fishing resorts.

As the fish are taken from the nets the females are deftly taken in the gloved hand, held against the body of the operator, while with the other hand he skilfully presses out the eggs, which are temporarily deposited in a pail or tub. They are then fertilized by the milt of the male fish, and the mass stirred up with a bunch of stiff feathers.

As an average sized fish will yield from 35,000 to 40,000 eggs, one can soon become lost in the almost uncountable number handled each season.

After a day's catch of eggs has been gathered, they are treated to a number of washings, then transferred to glass jars in the hatchery. These jars have a capacity of 150,000 whitefish and 250,000 pickerel eggs, and are arranged on shelves. Each jar has a bell-mouthed glass tube reaching to the bottom, through which water is running constantly. This water is first pumped into an overhead tank and falls from there by gravity into each of these jars. The action of the water entering at the bottom and escaping at the top keeps the eggs in motion. If the water was to cease running for an hour it is claimed that the eggs would merge into a mass and so become spoiled.

The eggs are attended to night and day by those in charge of the work, who, with a syphon and a feather separate the bad eggs from the good, the former being easily distinguished by their whitish color.

At the end of five months, in the case of whitefish, the fry break from their tiny shells and are allowed to escape into a large tank, where they sport for a week or ten days, or until there is an opportunity of placing them in the lake. Pickerel eggs hatch out in six weeks, and the process of catching and caring for them is the same.

The "planting" of the fish in the Great Lakes calls for good judgment, for were the small fry dumped in an unsuitable place they would soon become prey for every larger fish in that vicinity

The number of fish incubated in the various hatcheries each year is enormous. The hatchery at Point Edward has a capacity of 600 jars, which are used twice each year, and are capable of hatching 150,000,000 pickerel and 90,000,000 whitefish during their respective seasons.

Others at Sandwich, Wiarton, Newcastle, and Port Arthur are working to their capacity, and aiding in every way the fishermen who depend on the product of these waters for their living.—The Star Weekly.

AGE OF THE EARTH

Greek Church Estimates 7,511 Years—Germans Differ

The inscription of the number of years that the elders of the Greek Orthodox Church believe to be the age of the earth on the commemoration tablet that was unveiled recently in the Russian memorial church in Leipsig and the arrival of the new year have set the German encyclopædists discussing once more the age of the earth.

It cannot be said that they have been able to impress the laymen that the question is within distance of definite solution, but there is no doubting the interest of the curious collection of dates and estimates that the historians have brought with them into the debate.

If one of the earliest calculations were accepted that the world was 5,871 years old at the beginning of the Christian era, the world would be 7,784 years old. There is a reckoning of the Septuagint that makes it a few years younger, however, 7,647 years. And then there are the estimates of the Greek Orthodox Church, 7,511; of the Alexandrine calendar, 7,421; and of the Antioch calendar, 7,[illegible]. But there are other estimates in reserve; 6,636 years, 5,931, 5,390, 5,397, 5,674 (the Jewish estimate), and there is the reckoning of 2,692 years since the Olympiad, and 1,331 years since the flight of Mahomet.

Canada Fine Country

"I have visited practically every country in the world and I can honestly say that if I were younger, I would rather settle in Canada than anywhere else."

This was the opinion expressed by Robert Bickersteth, a member of the William Dawson & Son company, of London, England. Mr. Bickersteth pointed out that there are several countries which might appeal to many, to him there was none like Canada where the climate offered a little of everything, and there were innumerable opportunities for a man to get on.

THIS CANADIAN BOY PILED UP A FORTUNE

Ovide Colombe Was Known in the Klondike as "Blowback"—Has a History

A young French Canadian, Ovide Colombe of Spokane, Wash., and Calgary, Alberta, who is familiarly known in the West as "Blowback," has an interesting history. In 1896 when he was but 14 years old, he ran away from his home in Quebec City and landed at Vancouver, B.C., where he joined a party that went up into the Klondike. He remained in Dawson City about two years and came out with a small-sized fortune, which he lost in a very short time in Seattle. Blowback was game, however, as he went back into the old country again, traveling over three thousand miles by dog train, and young as he was he established a freighting business, having generally about thirty dogs, which were worth anywhere from $150 to $300 each. He made money rapidly, and at the expiration of four years' time hauling freight with his dog teams, he came out with [illegible] hundred thousand dollars. This he retained, investing nearly all of it in Spokane, and Calgary.

NO OPERATION FOR GALL-STONES

No operation will be necessary for Gall-stones, Kidney-stones, or Gravel—SANOL, the German remedy discovered by a great German scientist, will surely relieve the agony of the sufferer from these complaints. It will also cure with equal certainty and promptness kidney trouble, lumbago, and all other diseases caused by the presence of uric acid in the system. It is also most valuable as a preventive for these diseases and will often prevent a serious illness if taken when the first symptoms appear.

Save the pain, danger and cost of an operation by using

SANOL

Relief will be rapid, the deposits will pass off rapidly and without pain. We have addresses and strong testimonials—some written from residents of Winnipeg, to the number of 300. We have 27 testimonials from one small Alberta town. We have a most convincing testimonial from one Winnipeg lady who passed several large gall-stones, after taking one bottle of SANOL. We are willing and anxious to furnish you with the addresses of these people.

DIRECTORS:

J. S. DOUGLAS, Merchant, Winnipeg.
W. F. TALLMAN, Street Commissioner, Winnipeg.
A. B. WOOLDRIDGE, Gentleman, Winnipeg.
D. W. McKERCHAR, Barrister, Winnipeg.
V. A. TALBOT, Real Estate Broker, Winnipeg.

The above Company has purchased from the Excelsior Coal and Brick Co., Ltd., their whole plant as a going concern, the purchase price to be taken in shares of the new Company, and it is the intention of the Directors to equip the plant to make it one of the largest in the West.

The plant is situated in that rich tract of mineral producing country surrounding Estevan, and is near the town. It comprises 640 acres of the best clay and coal to be found anywhere.

The shaft of the coal mine has been sunk to a depth of seventy feet to reach a seam of the best lignite coal, and there are enough entries and passages to enable an output, at slight expense, of 200 tons of coal per day. Other mines in the district are producing less and making considerable profit. A conservative estimate of the profit on each ton is $1.00, but from Government borings near the property it has been shown that there is a seam of coal 650 feet from the surface which is similar to the Lethbridge coal, and which could be sold f.o.b. the mine for at least $5.00 per ton, netting the Company $3.50 per ton. It is to reach this seam and further equip the brick plant that the issue of stock has been made.

There is a constant and ever-increasing demand for brick. At the present moment the price for common brick all over the West is from $12.50—$13.00 per thousand. The clay on our property is of the finest, and makes a brick second to none. We can make bricks for about $4.00 per thousand, so that the profit on the product is considerable. It is the intention of the Company to increase the present brick plant to allow of an output of from 75,000—100,000 common bricks per day, and at least 25,000 pressed bricks, which retail at $25.00 per thousand and cost about $7.00 to produce.

Under the coal there is a strata of fireclay, which is extremely scarce in Canada, and commands a high price. It is intended to instal a machine for the making of fire brick, which is being almost entirely brought from the United States and Scotland; also to manufacture sewer pipes and hollow tiles. Firebrick and hollow tiles command the high price of $40.00 per thousand, and we can make them for less than $8.00.

Coal and brick run in conjunction is probably the finest profit-making combination known. It has been proven over and over again that with competent management such a proposition is a success from the first.

The Directors have insured the success of the new Company by engaging the services of one of the most expert brick men in the West, who will supervise the laying out and working of the new plant.

It is with unbounded faith in the future of this western country that the Directors have decided on offering to the public a share in its development and wealth. The man who invests in this proposition makes a two-fold investment. He invests and aids in the development of his country, and at the same time puts his capital to profitable use.

Racial Pigmentation

Investigations with reference to the effects of tropical light on the white man have led to the conclusion that the pigmentation of the skin in dark races affords protection against the effects of too much sunlight, and that its absence in the light races is a bar to their survival in hot and cloudless lands.

It is pointed out that where the Northern races have survived on removal to lighter countries, it has been in cloudy localities.

THE OAR.

Discussing the criticism by Percy Illingsworth, M.P., in connection with the selection of the Leander crew which recently defeated the Toronto Argonauts for the grand challenge cup, Harvey Pulford, captain of the Ottawa Rowing Club, made the suggestion that an all-Canadian eight be selected to go over and row for the trophy, providing, of course, the Henley stewards would waive their present rule and consent to the plan. He thinks that a first-class crew could be selected from the Ottawa Argonaut, Winnipeg and Vancouver clubs.

"That is the only way Canada will ever win the grand challenge cup," added the Ottawa captain.

Coach Rice thinks the better plan would be to wait until 1916 and then send a Canadian eight in quest of the Olympic honors at Berlin, Germany.

BASEBALL.

Chicago, July 21. — Mrs. Rosalie Chivington, wife of Thomas McK. Chivington, of the American Association of Baseball Clubs, won a decree of divorce here today. She will receive $5000 alimony, $1000 of it immediately and the remainder in semi-annual installments of $500.

Mrs. Chivington, who formerly was a school teacher, named several women in her original bill, but this was amended, making the charge desertion, and on this charge the decree was awarded. Chivington did not contest the suit.

Chicago, July 21.—The round-the-world tour of the Chicagi Americans and the New York Nationals became a certainty when Charles Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, posted a forfeit necessary to assure transportation. The teams will sail from Vancouver, B.C., on November 19, after making the trip to the Pacific coast in a special train.

So far six Giants and six of the White Sox have announced their intention to make the tour. John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has posted a guarantee for twenty-five persons and Comisky for twice that number.

BOWLING

Cardiff, Wales.—The Reading Observer, in commenting on the opening game, says:

As bowlers the Canadians did not strike one as being so good as the Australians who were over here last season, but when it came to the question of enthusiasm "they lost them." No one could accuse the Canadians of taking their pleasures sadly, for they were as keen as Scotchmen, as excitable as Irishmen and as demonstrative as Frenchmen.

The life and soul of the team was the Rev. Dr. Pedley. His musical voice, resonant with the familiar American twang, could be heard all over the green, and he absolutely refused to let matters to quiet down. When his colleagues seemed wrapt in thought he would burst out, "Get excited, boys! There's something doing here."

RING.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—Jack Dillon, local middleweight star, has signed to meet Tony Caponi for a scheduled 12-round battle to be staged before the National Sporting Club, of Winnipeg, Aug. 8.

BASEBALL.

E. Brown, Billiken twirler, for whose contract Brooklyn has offered $4000, had a no-hit game for himself against the Crackers until the ninth inning, when the Smithies punched four safe drives.

Southpaw Somers was given a terrible bombarding by the Sea Gulls, fifteen hits being the damage. Chattanooga dispatches say the sidewheeler threw indifferent ball, and if he keep it up, good night Kid Dibergeld.

Every time baseball critics spin a column yard that he is "all in," Eddie Plank wins a game for himself. He scattered nine hits for the Tigers and won without extending himself.

Cincinnato hit Mathewson safely eleven times yester, but "Big Sox" only allowed two scores, depending upon his mates to get seventeen assists.

George Stalling used fifteen men in the hope of trying to stop the Pirates but failed. McQuillan, "comeback" twirler, was taken out in the ninth for pitching-hitting Honus.

New York, July 21.—It is apparent from his behavior at the Polo Grounds and E bbetts Fields that Johnny Evers, manager of the Cubs, needs a tight rein.

Evers seems to regard each umpire as a common enemy. He kicks on decisions at the slightest provocation. He was fined $50 for abusing an umpirt in Chicago last Sunday and was banished by Rigler at the Brush stadium last week. In addition to his loud criticism of Quigley Evers openly berated his battery. Cheney and Bresnahan, for allowing Smith to hit a ball "in the grove" in the eight innings, two runs being the result.

FAMILY OF FROGS HAS ONLY ONE EYE

Intended for Snake Food, Their Cyclopean Deformity Saved Their Lives

Way out in the valley of the Humber River, Ontario, where silence mostly prevails through the bulrushes and the lowhanging willows, there was discovered a new colony, which is known as the family of One-Eyed Frogs. Ostracised by their double-eyed brethren, they dwelt in a pool of their own, back in the swamp from the Humber River, where the pond lilies winked one eye in sympathy. In many ways nature has contorted herself in an effort to be mystical, but perhaps the most useless joke of all was played upon these little green, amphibious animals of the ge. . Rana. The little creatures were discovered late in the fall, and, destined originally for no higher ambition than food for snakes, this shortage of nature prolonged their life and made them a curio, to be preserved by Mr. William James, Toronto. Mr. James has had a naturalist's leanings for some time, his plans being to keep a black snake as pet through the winter. To keep the reptile, a store of frogs must be provided, and Mr James in search of fodder for his pet, penetrated the marshes of the Humber and there discovered the Family of One-Eyed Frogs. He was first astonished at the ease with which several of these usually elusive animals fell captive, and examination showed the reason. They were built with one Cyclopean eye placed askew.

The remarkable part of Mr. James' searchings was that while all the frogs in the neighboring ponds had been duly equipped by nature with two eyes, all the denizens of this isolated pond had but one.

Cleaning Iron

TEACH BOYS CARE OF CLOTHES

To keep the coats and other wear from wrinkling, be sure to have plenty of hangers, which may be had very cheaply, two for 5 cents, at many stores; but it pays to get good ones. To remove the dust, keep a small cane or rattan beater, and whip them thoroughly; then lay the garment out smoothly on a table and with a hard bristle brush for mud spots, and a soft brush for ordinary use, go over the garment thoroughly until all mud and dust is removed. If the garment could be hung in the hot sun for a few hours before doing this, it would make the cleaning easier. Begin at the top of the garment and brush down.

If the elbows and knees of the trousers are baggy, and out of shape, lay a damp cloth on them and fold them up for an hour or two; then lay them on the ironing board, or slip a board used for the purpose inside, smoothe with the palm of the hand, until they lie flat; cover with a cloth and press with a hot iron until dry. Do not iron the garment, but press it; there is a difference. If the collars and elbows are shiny, sponge with a damp cloth and press until dry. If boys were taught to care for their clothes while at home, instead of leaving it for mother or sister, they would find the expense of looking well dressed much lessened when they are thrown on their own resources away from home.

strenuous effort to avoid each other at all costs. Of course, the services of these toughs have to be paid for, and one handy way seems to be to give them roving commissions of investigation in Portuguese colonies. They are not asked to do anything but to draw their salaries, and so long as they draw them, nothing happens, but sometimes the slary is not there to draw, and in that case trouble arises. These spies are all over foreign countries in Europe, where the monarchists are suspected of forming plans. There are lots of them in London, where they spend their time in watching King Manuel and his friends, and it is pretty well understood that, another band of pies is watching the spies, on the principle of Swift's dictum:

"So naturalists observe, a flea has smaller fleas that on him prey;
And these have smaller still to bite 'em;
And so proceed ad infinitum."

WESTERN CANADA

A Bumper Wheat Crop

THOUSANDS OF MEN REQUIRED
This Year's Harvest promises to be the largest in THE HISTORY OF CANADA

According to present indications the wheat crop of 1913 will be the greatest ever harvested in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, thus requiring the farm laborers of the East to assist in harvesting the world's greatest bread basket.

The Governments of the respective Provinces state that many thousand men will be required for this year's harvest. These will have to be principally recruited from Ontario, and the prosperity of Canada depends on securing labor promptly. The Canadian Pacific, on which Company will fall practically the entire task of transporting the men to the West is already making special arrangements for this year. Excursions from points in Ontario to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be run and special trains operated, making the trip in about thirty-six hours and avoiding any change of cars or transfers. This will be a day shorter than any other route. Dates, rates and conditions will be announced in a few days.

M. A. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Canadian Pacific Railway.

WAS DUKE'S ORDERLY

Fifty-Two Years Spent as Soldier and Gate Keeper of Park

Gatekeeper John Burrows, one of the best-known of the Royal park-keepers, who is retiring after having served his country as soldier and park-keeper for fifty-two years, was practically the whole of his 106 days' foreign service the selected orderly of the Duke of Connaught, who was commanding the Brigade of Guards in Egypt.

Mr. Burrows is the possessor of the Egyptian medal, with a bar for Tel-el-Kebir, the Khedive's star for the same campaign, the medal for long service and good conduct, and the Coronation medal of King George. He had been a soldier for twenty-two years before he saw active service, having volunteered for the Egyptian campaign at the opening of the war in 1882.

"On arrival at Alexandria," he said in an interview, "I was appointed the Duke of Connaught's orderly, an appointment I held all through the campaign. When Sir Garnet Wolseley came out to Alexandria he found that Arabi Pasha had some troops near Ismailia, and we were re-embarked at Alexandria for that town, which was on the Suez Canal, and went up the desert after him.

"I was on the field with his Royal Highness during the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, but was never able to get into the fighting line. Next day we went to Cairo, and there the cavalry captured Arabi.

"We returned home in December, 1882. Without any loss of time I obtained my discharge and received the appointment of park-keeper at Regent's Park in 1883. After a time I was sent to Kensington Gardens; from there I went to Queen Anne's Gate, and finally they transferred me to Buckingham Gate, giving me the Prince of Wale's Gate lodge, at Hyde Park, for a residence." Mr. Burrows intends to spend the remainder of his life with his sister near Nottingham.

THE ARCTIC PRESS

Papers of the Northerns Printed Just Once a Year

There exist several journals that make their appearance only once a year. These are published within the confines of the north polar circle. The Eskimo Bulletin, for example, is edited near Cape Prince of Wales, on Behring Starit.

Here, in a village inhabituted by Eskimos, the English missionaries have established a school, and as only one steamer lands at this place, and that only once a year, that news that it brings is consigned to a sheet of paper printed with the mimeograph. Its size is eight by twelve inches. The paper is very thick and only one surface is used.

This Eskimo Bulletin in a subhead claims to be the "only yearly paper." This, however, is an error, for there is an annual sheet published in Godthaab, Greenland, where a small printing office was established in 1862, whence news sheets and lithographic prints have been issued. The journal in question is entitled Atnagagdliutit, nalinginarmik Tusaruminasassumik, that is "Something for reading; accounts of all sorts of entertaining subjects." The language is that of Greenland, a dialect of the Eskimos.

MEN OF NERVE

Most Structural Steel Workers Are of Irish Blood

It is a curious fact that most of the structural steel workers engaged on various huge structures in Canadian cities are of Irish blood. In fact, the Irish and Swedes, or "square heads," as they are called, have almost a monopoly of this dangerous trade. The Irish will take more chances than the men of any other nationality, but the Swedes are not far behind, and how they divide the honors was illustrated recently. Two steel columns for the top storeys of a skyscraper had just been set in place at the corners, and stood starkly up fifty feet above the nearest cross girder. Each column was about eight inches square. When the news spread that a photographer was about to take a picture of them, two workmen "shinned" up the columns and stood on the top. The man at one corner was an Irishman, the other was a Swede. Sometimes these structural ironworkers lose their nerve. Why it happens, or how, they do not know; but sometimes a sudden panic will overwhelm a man. Then, if he knows his business, he will shout for help, for he cannot help himself. Now and then a man gets a mad desire to hurl himself from the roof, and if he is not restrained he will go as surely as though a great magnet were drawing him down to the earth. Oddly enough, one terrible fright rarely causes a man to give up the business. He gets back his nerve in a few days and becomes as daring as ever. It is said that an ironworker who goes to a new job when a building is already high in the air has not the nerve of a man who has been on the building from the ground up. Accidents are more likely to occur while the first few storeys are under construction than later on, for the men take more chances, forgetting that a 40-foot fall is about as deadly as one twice as long.

Why London Was Chosen

The proposal to hold the Turko-Balkan peace negotiations in London appears to have emanated from the Porte, which, besides desiring that they should take place on some neutral ground, also wished to enjoy the advantages of Sir Edward Grey's advice.

The British Government agreed to the suggestion, and expressed gratification at the confidence shown by the belligerents. The Bulgarian Premier, M. Gueshoff, was especially pleased at the choice of meeting place and in the course of an interview said:

"I spent my youth in England, and studied at an English University, and learned to love and admire the English people."

WALKED 5,000 MILES

Through Africa From Capetown to Cairo on Foot

Amid thronging dangers a historic walk of 5,000 miles across Africa was accomplished by Emil Lund, a Rhodesian settler, thirty-six years of age.

Lund walked from Cape Town to Cairo, not in fulfilment of a wager, or without money, or to test a system of diet or training, but simply from love of adventure. He has been a soldier and scout since he was seventeen.

"My wish," he said, in telling the story of his great walk, "was simply to be the first man to accomplish the feat. I am proudest of having walked across the Nubian Desert. That was the hardest tramp of all."

Until he left Elizabethville, in the Belgian Congo, he had a comparatively easy time, for he could obtain supplies, good food, and good water, but beyond that point he had a very trying time. He had no porters, carrying all his own baggage which weighed about 70 pounds.

During most of the time Mr. Lund was obliged to be a vegetarian, but he always ate meat when he could get it.

"Sometimes," he said, "I shot a buck; but I could only eat the liver, which I broiled in the ashes of my fire. Having no salt, I cannot say that I enjoyed my food. In passing through the great forests I camped on the ground, lighting a large fire to keep off the wild animals. I had to be very careful to keep this going throughout the night.

"At early dawn I renewed my march, tramping continuously till about eleven o'clock. After that I used to hunt round, collect wood, and cook my one daily meal. Then I slept till sundown.

"Lions and other carnivora do not usually attack in the heat of the day. They are asleep, and it is only when night falls that they set out in search of prey."

He met with a good many lions, but was never attacked by one. The idea that water will protect one from lions is, he says, erroneous, for lions are excellent swimmers.

In the Katanga district he was bitten by a black snake, and would probably have died, but he reached a native kraal, and was treated by a woman, who applied a decoction of herbs to the wound, and cured him.

One of the worst troubles with which Mr. Lund had to contend was the venomous flies and insects which swarm in tropical Africa.

He was bitten near the eye by a certain kind of malignant tick, and for a time was nearly blind.

In the course of his walk he fell in with the Baluba and Valeasi cannibals. When they have a cannibal feast the victim is usually a man accused of some crime. In such a case the man is offered a draught of a poisonous decoction.

If he takes a long drink the poison is inoperative, producing merely nausea. But if, from timidity or guilt, he drinks but a small portion, the effect is almost immediately fatal. Women are excluded from these feasts.

Reaching Khartoum after crossing the Nubian Desert, Mr. Lund went into the hospital to patch himself up for the last stage of his journey which he completed without further mishap.

OUR WATERWAYS

Their Development of Great Interest to all Parts of Canada

The development of Canada inland waterways should be proceeded with. A pamphlet lately issued by the Great Waterways Union deals with the problem in a comprehensive and convincing manner. Transportation we are reminded, is the most important material and economic question before the people to-day. Transportation by water on a firstclass shipway is not only cheaper than by rail but often much quicker. According to the United States Interstate Commerce Commission, the average cost of moving freight by rail in a recent year was 7.48 mills per ton per mile. For the same year the cost of moving freight by the Sault Ste. Marie Canal route was .54 of one mill per ton per mill, or one-ninth of the average rail rate. The average cost of handling freight by the various water ways of the United States is one-sixth of what it is by the railways. All money spent on the improvement of American waterways has returned to the people of the United States dividends of 100 to 300 per cent. annually in reduced freight rates.

From Lake Superior Westward

In European countries where the people own and operate the railways, the most is made of natural water transportation for the benefit of trade and the general public. In countries, however, where railways are operated chiefly by private corporations, natural advantages are more likely to be neglected. The result of this neglect in Canada is to be seen not only in the inadequate development of water connection from Montreal to the Upper Lakes. It is quite as noticeable in the failure to provide water transportation from Lake Superior to the Western Provinces via the Lake-of-the-Woods, Lake Winnipeg, the Saskatchewan and other rivers. Were this route developed, not only would it provide for an enormously increased volume of traffic, especially of grain and coal, but it would result in a great lowering of the freight charges by the railways.

Bessie's Mistake

"Take care of it, Bessie," her fond mother said.

"All right," said Bessie. On coming out of school Bessie found out to her dismay that it was raining heavily. Hastily rolling up her treasured coat and tucking it under her pinafore, she ran home as fast as her little legs could carry her.

"Why, whatever is the matter, you silly girl? Why ever did you not put your waterproof on?" said her astonished mother.

"Y-o-u to-told me to ta-take car-care of it, and I was-was fr-frightened of ge-getting it wet," sobbed poor Bessie.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts Price, $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

REAL SPEED BOY WAS AMOS RUSIE

Harry Davis Picks Him as the Superior of all Throwers of the Present Day

A number of Cleveland ball players were talking recently about the speed marvels of the diamond. Most of the younger men touted Walter Johnson as the king of all speed boys. Johnson was accused of not throwing the ball to the batter, but shooting it.

Then broke in the chieftain, Davis, who, by virtue of his numerous years in sundry wild struggles for pennants, and acknowledged power to sift the strong from the weak pitchers in his day, drew the right to venture first opinion and to have that opinion go on record as a fact.

"Yes, Walter is a marvel," chirped Davis. "Glancing back over two score years that I have been real active and another score that I will only partly be active in professional baseball, I can find only a few, yes a very few, whom I would compare with Walter.

"Now, there was Amos Rusie"—Harry clubbed against little Amos as he has often clubbed against Walter—"there was Amos, Rusie," said Harry, "and how he could pilot them up and beyond you! The first year he was not as great a luminary as Johnson.

"There were plenty of green things about me. One of them cropped out soon after my arrival from Pawtucket, R.I. Rusie was pitching. 'Twas my lot to be playing on first. I saw a little smoke when he warmed, but not enough to become alarmed.

"Shortly one of the enemy was at my section for some reason or other—whether it was the result of a safe poke or a pass, I don't know. He was there and took liberties. Amos winked and then shot. He didn't have the power of a toy pistol nor a .44 calibre revolver. I thought it was one of those 13-inch guns shooting at me.

"The ball passed to the far beyond. When all was peaceful again I sauntered up to the manager.

"'Mister Manager,' says I, 'this is no place for a man of my build and complexion. I believe it is time for me to take my grip and bustle back to Pawtucket. I hear the folks calling for me. I want to hear them call some more. I don't enjoy the sensation of having them walk slowly behind my casket and say, "Yes, he was a fine boy, and, ah, so good to the children."'

"The manager only smiled. 'Hang on, kid,' he advised. 'Your eyes are troubling you. Wait a few days and they will be well again.'"

HABITANT FARMER

Victor Sylvestre is a Leader in His Community

In the parish of Clairvaux de Bagot, near the western boundary of the Eastern Townships, Quebec dwells a habitant farmer whose career is particularly interesting for the reason that he appreciates the importance of the application of science to the practice of agriculture. Born and raised in Quebec, amid surroundings typically "habitant," which inspire progressiveness in very few youths, Victor Sylvestre, upon attaining his majority and assuming manly responsibilities resolved to break loose from many of the customs of his fathers and farm his land according to the most approved methods of which he could learn. He is now thirty-one years of age, and, though only a comparatively short time actively engaged in farming, he is hailed as among the first breeders of live stock in the St. Hyacinthe district, as well as the possessor of a well-conducted holding. Apart from his progressive nature, which is the subject of common discussion, not always complimentary among his fellow parishioners. Victor Sylvestre is an interesting character. At a young age he insisted upon an education, and his father, yielding to his demands, sent him to the Seminary of St. Hyancinthe and Ottawa University. He made good use of his time spent at these halls of learning, and, to-day he is able to parade the decorations of B.A. and B.Sc., conferred by Laval, after his name. With such a fund of learning it is a matter of universal amazement among his neighbors that Sylvestre persists in remaining upon the farm. "I love this life better," was the reason he advanced when I asked him why he had not taken to the city. Not only is Victor Sylvestre considered a leader in agricultural affairs in his parish, but he is also active in the social and political life of the community.

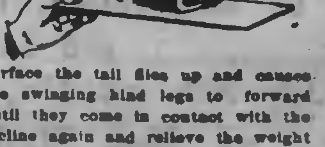
A JUMPING KANGAROO

A Mechanical Toy That May be Made Easily

The newest kind of mechanical toy, according to the toy dealers' bulletin is a jumping kangaroo that jumps without the aid of a spring or any sort of inner works—simply utilizing a well known section of the law of gravity. Any one clever enough to carve rude figures in wood can make one.

The large hind legs of the beast are fastened immovably on an axle or pin and are attached, one on each side, so that they will swing together. Then the kangaroo is placed on a slightly inclined surface.

When the figure falls forward so that the front legs touch the inclined surface the tail flies up and causes the swinging hind legs to forward until they come in contact with the incline again and relieve the weight from the front legs which go up and then come down again by force of gravity, the operation being continued as long as the surface is inclined and the kangaroo moving forward by little leaps and bounds throughout the operation.



Adjust the weights in the body carefully—or at least the weight of the body, so that the proper balance is obtained.

A TENDERFOOT'S WOOING

—BY—

CLIVE PHILLIPPS WOLLEY

(AUTHOR OF "GOLD, GOLD IN CARIBOO," ETC.)

Supplied Exclusively in Canada by The British & Colonial Press Service, Limited.

"Leave Miss Clifford's name out of the question, please. I'm very much obliged to you for what you suggest, but there are some things you don't understand. I'm going, and there's an end of it."

"When?"

"When I am ready," Anstruther answered, and left the room.

"Pretty rough on them kiddies, ain't it, Jim?" said Al, when Anstruther had left the room, "and she's dead stuck on him. But I guess he's right."

Whatever Al was going to say was lost, for at that moment the call sounded from the upper story. The rifles were wanted at the windows! With a rush the two men went to their places, and for the next twenty minutes they had their whole attention occupied by what they saw from their posts.

A cloud of dust was coming towards them at railroad speed, and at first they flattered themselves that Horseley and his specials had broken the cordon and were coming to their relief. But the riders who emerged from the cloud were Chilcotens, reckless whooping devils, painted as none of the white men had ever before seen Indians painted in British Columbia, their greasy locks powdered with swansdown, and eagle's plumes drooping from their heads to half way between their shoulders.

At break-neck gallop they rode to within a hundred yards of the house, and then like a flight of starlings they diverged, following their leader in single file in a wild circuit round the building, brandishing their weapons and discharging them in mid career.

In spite of the pace at which they came several bullets struck the house, and one was so well-aimed that it smashed through a chest of drawers behind which Rolt was kneeling; but one of the Indians' horses pitched on its head, and before its rider could extricate himself, several bullets found him.

"Only the canter past, I fancy, Al," said Rolt, coolly, blowing the smoke out of his barrels. "Where is Anstruther?"

"I seed him go into his room as we came upstairs. He hasn't been up here to see the show. He's up to his neck in them trunks of his, I reckon."

"What?"

"Kinder sortin' out his dude and gettin' good and ready for his passear."

Jim glanced quickly through the window and saw that the Indians were already loping back to their lines. Then he put his rifle up against the wall and left the room quietly.

Al noticed him and seemed about to follow him, but thought better of it, and muttering "Let 'em settle it themselves. It ain't my funeral," kept his place at the window.

Anstruther's door was wide open, but from where he stood Jim could not see into the room, neither could he hear anyone moving in it, but to prevent accidents he sat down and took off his boots, and then with them in his hand, stole quietly along the passage and peeped through between the door and the jamb.

Anstruther had gone, but the room could not be said to be empty, for the floor of it was covered with mountains of clothes, as Jim had never dreamed of, piled pell mell in a great heap, whilst, as he said afterwards, there were "boots enough for a battalion, and coats like blankets at a potlatch."

As he looked he heard the horses stamping in the kitchen.

"Going, is he? I blanked if he shall!" he muttered, and without stopping to think, he ran down into the kitchen.

But the sight which met him there staggered Jim Combe, so that he stood gaping with his boots still in his hand.

Anstruther in full hunting costume—pink coat, immaculate leathers, top hat, and gloves—turned and faced him. His horse, looking enormous alongside the weedy country breds, was standing as still as a sheep in the middle of the room, facing the window, from which Anstruther had contrived to take the sashes.

"What in—"

"Going to bed, Jim?" asked Anstruther easily, interrupting him and looking with a grin at Combe's boots. "Sorry to bother you, but before you turn in you might put those up again for me," and he pointed to the sashes.

"But—"

"Say I'll be back soon. So long!" and, before Combe had realized what was happening, Anstruther swung cleverly into his saddle and put his horse at the window.

Combe saw Anstruther touch the great horse with his heel, heard his "Up, boy," as they came to the low window sill, and then the beast's great quarters were gathered beneath it and like a cat or, to be more exact, a well-broken Heythrop hunter, Ruddy-gore reared and popped over into space.

The little cramped jump would have done more to unseat Combe than the worst buck, but the man from Piccadilly sat as if he was in a rocking-chair.

So quietly had Anstruther made his preparations, and the Indians' feint had served him so well, that, with the single exception of Jim Combe, no one had any idea until they saw him from the windows, trotting quietly towards the Indians, who had just returned to their lines, their horses a trifle pumped by the wild gallop they had indulged in.

For a hundred yards he trotted quietly, and then stopping unconcernedly, as if he had been at a meet in his own country, he turned and uncovered to the ladies, smiling and calling a message to them, the words of which they could not catch.

Considering the probability of a volley, it was very gallant fooling, and worthy of the good sportsman he looked, and at any rate it was better and more merciful to Kitty than a tearful leave-taking.

Perhaps he meant it so, but Anstruther was never one of those who parade their good intentions.

Replacing his hat and waving his hand to them, he turned in his saddle, and at a quiet trot rode steadily towards the Indian lines, the great horse reaching at his bit and showing plainly how good the turf felt under his feet after so many days on a boarded floor.

"Great heavens! The boy has gone mad!" cried Rolt. "Can no one stop him?"

"Best let him play his own hand now, Boss," growled Al, whose eyes were beginning to glitter with excitement and understanding. "He knows his long suit. None of us do. Maybe he's going to play peace-maker."

This may have been the idea which kept the Indians quiet, though that could hardly have been Al's reading of the riddle, or the old man's thin nostrils would not have been working so nervously, and though such an attire as Anstruther's would have been in keeping with the traditions of old time Hudson Bay factors when going to a solemn meeting, he carried no white flag or other wilfully misleading emblem.

But he rode unarmed. Except for his horn-handled hunting crop, he carried nothing, and in this fashion, restraining his horse to the steadiest trot, he advanced with the utmost unconcern to within fifty yards of the wondering Chilcotens without a shot fired or a word spoken, whilst his friends watched him with their hearts in their mouths.

At fifty yards from the Indian lines, a dozen voices challenged him, but he rode on as if he had been deaf, without haste as without pause.

Then there was a clank of Winchester pumps, and a rifle went up to a redskin's shoulder. Before the butt touched flesh, in the last second of grace, Anstruther spoke to his horse and touched him with his spurs, so that the gallant beast, unused to such treatment, sprang madly forward on the instant, whilst its rider bent over its shoulder and rode it headlong into the volley which belched out to meet him.

"Give 'em hell! Oh, give 'em hell!" screamed old Al at the window, losing all control of himself, his face working with excitement. "Didn't I say the colt was clar grit? He's through 'em, I tell you. Miss Kitty, look. Don't shut your eyes, lassie. Your man's clear through 'em."

And he was.

A beast coming at you is the hardest mark to hit. A man in deadly earnest is even harder, especially when you don't expect him, and calculating upon this and timing his dash to a moment, the man from Piccadilly had ridden right over the nearest group of Chilcotens, knocking one down with his horse, and breaking old Khelowna's head with his riding-crop as he passed, and now he was going "lickety brindle," as old Al would put it, on the far side of the enemies' lines, whilst they scrambled to their horses instead of stopping to shoot.

So far he had done well, but in a glance his friends realized that his gallant effort had been wasted. Instead of turning to his left and making for the road, in which case he would have had a clear course and two hundred yards' start, he was heading for Soda Creek as the crow flies.

"He has forgotten the canyon," groaned Jim Combe.

"He hain't done no such thing," contradicted Al. "That's what he's a-playin' for."

"He can't do it. No horse could."

"He can. A buck couldn't. A horse couldn't, but he's a goin' to. Great Scott! See that!"

Perhaps half a dozen Indians followed directly in Anstruther's footsteps like a pack of hounds running in view, but the main body of them, realising their quarry's mistake, skirted, making for the dip where the road went through, to which they imagined he must eventually come, if he would cross the canyon.

For half a mile the going was good, firm, grass-covered cattle land, and over this the red coat sailed, going two lengths for every one covered by his pursuers. But beyond this for several hundred yards the land was boggy, and when Al spoke, Anstruther slipped out of the saddle and ran by his horse's side, whilst the Indians seeing this, made desperate efforts to overtake him, and played their horses clean out.

Once through the little bog, he was in the saddle again, cantering easily until, to those watching him, he seemed on the very brink of the canyon, with the broken pine close on his right.

Then he shook his horse together, crammed his hat on his head, and went at his death hands down.

To five people still alive, there is one second in their past lives which was more than a day long.

When it was over, a fair-haired girl sank quietly to the ground, and for the first time in her life Mrs. Rolt did not move to help a sister in trouble. She could not. Her great eyes were wide with the hunger of seeing; her little hands clenched and her parted lips white; and when Al, speaking as if he were in church, whispered, "I take it all back about them dude. There ain't no flies on fox-hunting," the others burst into hysterical laughter which was perilously near tears, for the red coat had cleared the canyon, "Jomped it, by gum; jomped it clar!" as the old song says, and was sailing away, a dim pink spot, straight as the crow flies for Soda Creek.

Does the story want finishing? Before Anstruther had ridden for a couple of hours, a large posse of men came over a rise and were startled by the vision of a white-faced madman riding across the Chilcoten country in the uniform of the Vale Hunt; moreover, the madman was so mad that he could barely speak intelligibly, and he appeared to be swooning from pain, though on him was no trace of a wound.

They brought him back with them to the ranch, from which, at their approach the Chilcotens vanished like the mists of morning, and it was Horseley, the leader of the posse, who, a month later, talking to Jim Combe over a pipe, said:—

"Like will to like, Jim. She'd never have made a wife for you, old chap. You'll have to plug along same as we all do until you find another Mrs. Rolt—if the world holds one."

The End.

LADY WARWICK'S PETS

She Has a Great Fancy for all Kinds of Animals and Birds

Among the many things for which the Countess of Warwick is famous is her collection of pets at Warwick Castle. The countess has every opportunity to gratify her love for animals, as the estate has special advantages for the care essential to the different species. The birds have almost the freedom of a forest home. The Avon River, which separates just about the castle, surrounds a little island on which kingfishers and wild ducks mingle together.

Perhaps the best beloved of all her pets is the famous white peacock, which was presented to the late earl by Lord Beaconsfield some fifty years ago, before that having been the property of the author of "Lothair." It would thus seem to be quite an old bird, yet judged by peacock standards it is not yet middle aged, for a companion bird, also belonging to the aristocratic breed of white peacocks, which never mate with any but birds of their own feather, is established as being more than a century old, though by how much there are no authentic records to prove.

LADY WARWICK

A very old family servant remembers it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood, while his father, who died a very old man, remembered it as having been a vigorous bird in his childhood. It is still hale and hearty, though it is losing its feathers and generally beginning to look aged.

"Mother could never go about in disguise," says Lady Marjorie, the countess' daughter, "she would always be known by her dog."

Lady Marjorie is also fond of pets, and many pictures have been published showing her on the lawn with strange assortments of rabbits, lambs, terriers, collies and the favorite donkey. Lady Warwick is one of the best judges of a horse in England, and loves horses as only those who really know and understand 'hem can.

CONSERVING FISH SUPPLY

Canada Interested in Investigation of Fishing by Steam Trawlers

The Governments of Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States will conduct an investigation into the effects of steam trawling on the adjacent ocean fisheries. This destructive method of fishing has ruined many important fisheries off the British and European coasts, but there seems to be little hope of preventive measures owing to the recognized freedom of the high seas beyond each nation's three-mile limit. The speed of a steam trawler is about ten knots an hour. It hauls a gigantic purse net along the bottom by two wire cables, one from either side. A square of boards is so fastened on each cable as to strike the water at an angle and spread the net. The strain on the wires tells when the purse of the net is full, and it is then hoisted aboard. The scouring of the ocean's bed spilled out on the deck is an indescribable mess. All kinds and all sizes of fish, spawn, weeds and the varied forms of aquatic life are heaped and matted together.

Such a method must be highly destructive. Defenders say the spawn and fry escape, but that is only at the outset of each haul. When there is a mass of fish in the purse everything in the way is scooped in, held and killed by the accumulating pressure of the increasing haul. There are generally large quantities of dead and crushed fish in an immature state shoveled overboard with the worthless fish of every haul. The lines of baited hooks which the hand trawlers set on the bottom are frequently destroyed by the steam trawlers. There is naturally a strong objection by the men who see the good fishing grounds being depleted and ruined and their lines occasionally destroyed.

SKELETONS OF SEA MONSTERS

Rare Specimens of Prehistoric Creatures For The Victoria Museum at Ottawa

Visitors to the Royal Victoria Museum at Ottawa, shortly will be afforded the pleasure of gazing on mounted skeletons of the ancient Mosasaur, a giant reptile which flourished five million years ago, and before the Rocky Mountains had reared themselves from the foam of ocean waves; the titanotherium, another prehistoric monster bearing some resemblance to the rhinoceros of the twentieth century, and Portheous Molosseus, a mammoth fish of the cretaceous era in the development of the world's crust.

Interesting specimens of these long extinct species have been purchased by the authorities of the Geological Survey from Mr. Charles H. Sternberg, a renowned fossil hunter of Kansas. The Mosasaur was found by his son, Mr. George F. Sternberg, and the titanotherium by himself. The former comes from the state of Kansas; the latter from Wyoming.

The skeleton of the Mosasaur, which is being put up on a long panel, is that of a reptile 30 and a half feet long with four powerful paddles, and a row of teeth in the roof of its mouth as well as on each side below. Three types of this reptile are found in Kansas. The Mosasaur lived in the deep sea, and the fact that its skeleton was found in Kansas 2,000 feet above sea level is proof that the western continent reared itself from the ocean.

In appearance the titanotherium is more interesting. It is nearly 12 feet long and stands 6 1-2 feet high. It came before either the mastadon or the elephant, and bears more resemblance to the rhinoceros, having two long horns on the end of its nose, four toes on the front feet and three on each of the hind ones. It will stand in a glass case, and will present much the appearance that it did in actual life.

The third specimen, also found on the plains of the west, is that of Portheous Molosseus, a fish fourteen feet in length, with a skull shaped like that of an English bull dog, powerful fangs, and fins three feet in length.

Mr. Sternberg, through whose agency the specimens were found, has given his whole life to the collection of fossils, which he had sold to museums throughout the world.

TO STOP DRAFTS

How to Keep the Wind From Beneath the Door

When the wind is whistling under the doors there is more or less trouble in keeping drafts out of the house. This is especially true in case of a house where the floor is a little out of plumb through the uneven settling of the house. A strip nailed on the door often projects too far down to allow the door to be opened wide, because the floor rises slightly away from the sill.

This can easily be cared for by fastening a strip of wood three-quarters of an inch thick and three inches wide, with one screw to the inner edge of the door and making a small bracket to go on the outer edge into which the wooden strip is placed. Then when the door is opened the strip simply rises with the unevenness of the floor in the manner shown in the sketch.

DRIVEN FROM ENGLAND

By Free-Trade, Noted Lace Manufacturer Starts Factory in Hungary

A well-known lace manufacturer of Nottingham, England, in the person of Mr. A. Metheringham, who resides at Chilwell, near Nottingham, has left for Roob, Hungary, where he is transferring the whole of his machinery in order to get inside the tariff walls. In the course of an interview just prior to his departure Mr. Metheringham declared in a most emphatic manner: "I have been driven abroad by Free Trade. Under present conditions in this country I haven't much faith in its future. We find ever-increasing difficulties in getting our goods into a foreign country, owing to the prohibitive tariffs, whilst the competition from abroad in the home and neutral markets becomes keener every year."

Mr. Metheringham's factory is a huge three-story building capable of housing 24 of the latest type of lace machines, 250 inches in breadth, accommodating a staff of 400 hands in making lace, bleaching, dressing, and finishing the article from beginning to end. The site, however, which the Hungarian Government have given is capable of accommodating six mills equally as big. In addition to making a substantial cash grant towards the expenses of removing the machinery from Nottingham, they have freed the new mills from local taxation for ten years and Imperial taxation for fifteen years. Not only that, but, as a start, the Hungarian Government have offered Mr. Metheringham a very large order for certain lace used as antimacassars in the carriages on the State railways. The only proviso they make is that after two years a substantial percentage of Hungarian workpeople shall be engaged in the industry.—Draper's Record, London, England.

POULTRY RULES

A great source of contagion is in the drinking troughs.

Remember, if roup should make its appearance in your poultry house.

In place of "tonics" drop a nail into the drinking trough and allow it to remain there. It will supply all the "tincture of iron" required.

If you feed whole corn place it in the oven and parch it occasionally and feed smoking hot. The fowls appreciate it in frosty weather.

A little linseed or oil meal given once a week in the soft feed will promote laying. This will not come under the heading of "dosing the fowls with medicine."

Do not throw your table scraps into the swill barrel, but give them to the chickens.

One of the most important points in the keeping of ducks is to give them clean, dry quarters at night. They are very prone to leg weakness in cold, damp quarters.

Fat hens or pullets are not good layers. The latter is just what you want when the eggs are 28 cents or more per dozen.

Fowls over three years old are not as a rule good breeders. The males are unable to properly fertilize the eggs for hatching while the stock is usually weak. Four years is generally a ripe old age for a fowl.

Liver and intestines are an excellent food to make hens lay.

Keep an abundant supply of lime where the hens can easily get it if you desire your hens to lay well.

Always clean the nest well and put in fresh straw before the hens begin to sit.—H. J. K.

SOME ROWING HISTORY

Amateur Sport Flourishes But Professionalism Almost Past

The Toronto Rowing Club, the oldest of existing clubs in the Queen City, was formed in 1865. Some five years later the New Dominion Rowing Cub was formed. The New Dominion was later known as the Bayside Club. In 1872 the famous Argonaut Club was formed by members of the Toronto Rowing Club who felt that there was room for another aquatic institution.

These clubs held regattas every year, and, in addition, there was frequent trips to Brockville, Hamilton, Ottawa, and Montreal.

About 1880 the Amateur Association of Oarsmen was formed, and the line drawn against professionals. A good deal of whitewashing had to be done by the registration committee to secure any members at all, so prevalent was the practice of competing for purses. In the first year of the new association R. Tinning and J. Douglas were the double scull champions, Percy Galt's Argonaut crew were on top in the fours, and Joe. Lang won the single sculls, and set up a record for the mile and a half course on the Bay that stands to this day. In 1889 Joe Wright, the famous captain of the Argonaut Club, came to the front by stroking the fours to victory at Troy, New York. The following year his crew made a clean sweep of every event they entered. Argonaut crews have been doing that more or less regularly ever since.

Since then amateur rowing on Toronto Bay has held its own, but the professional game has declined. The introduction of eight-oared shells some six or seven years ago had a stimulating effect on the sport. The annual Canadian Henley Regattas at St. Catharines, the first of which was held in 1906, have helped to keep alive the interest of the public. Professional sculling, however, is almost dead. Apart from Durnan there are no professional scullers still active in America, of any note.

WHY RIGHT-HANDED

British Professor Says Because Our Ancestors Fought in Certain Way

One of the professors at an English college has figured it out that if you are left-handed it is a sign that your ancestors were not good fighters.

"Most persons are right-handed," says he. "Only one in every twenty is left-handed. Why are people right-handed? They may have been born that way, it is true; but why?

"Away back in the beginning the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick action required by the hand and arm which did the fighting soon developed that arm. It also developed the nerves and the half of the brain that governed the right side of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting their heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient."

New Treatment Now Advocated For Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapor that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRHOZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size, 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Ctarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The Times has received intelligence that the thrilling and intensely interesting story entitled: "The Isolated Continent," has been secured for this journal. This will be its first publication, in serial form in Canada. The opening chapters will shortly be presented in these columns.

Lindsay Man's Body Found.

Post: The body of the late Howard King, formerly of Lindsay, the other victim of the drowning fatality which occurred off the submerged wharf near the Kingston water works a week ago Wednesday evening, was found floating in the vicinity of Kingston Shipbuilding company's wharf on Friday afternoon, shortly after two o'clock.

Lindsay Ladies' Scrap Settled

Lindsay Post: "The case of the two women charged with fighting which was to come up this morning, was settled out of court. The encounter took place over whether one had the right to enter a certain berry patch and from a tongue lashing developed into blows." In this fight hair and false teeth flew, and one received a black eye.

Former Local Singer Here.

Mr. Victor Loftus of Toronto, whose fine tenor voice delighted thousands of our citizens when he sang, some two years ago at the Royal Theatre, was in the city, with Mrs. Loftus and their child. The party are guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Pappas, George street. Mr. Loftus is now travelling manager for the Canada Bread Co.

Our Local Taxes.

$250,000.00 in taxes should be paid by August first if citizens are to profit by the discount allowed for promptness. Those who pay 25 mills on the dollar, and the tax payers include both rich and poor of Peterborough, who will kindly wear a pleasant smile as they "cough up" their money. The poor man, however, is aware that owners of vacant lots must sell the latter even if the poor man pays the piper.

Examiner Coins New Word.

The Examiner of last night gives a graphic account of the capture of a young fox at Little Lake by Mr. James Goselin. Our esteemed contemporary says, in part Mr. Goselin cornered LEONARD, but before he caught it the fox bit him on the wrist. It is a young red fox about three months old. Mr. Goselin intends to rear it up. We always had an idea that the nom de plume of a fox was "Raynard."

Turners' Big Sail.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have received a letter from Mr. George Plunkett, of Cobourg, who in acknowledging the arrival of the large sail made for one of his freighters, says "I cannot help but admire your good workmanship." Mr. Plunkett also asked for information regarding a mainsail for one of his other boats and one of the firm's representatives went to Cobourg this morning.

Coming Bishop of Peterborough.

Rev. M. J. O'Brien, the Bishop elect of the diocese of Peterborough, has received a papal bull, naming the date of his consecration to be Wednesday, September 24th. At the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday, Rev. Dr. O'Brien announced that his Excellency, the most Rev. P.F. Stagni, apostolic delegate to Canada would officiate.

Yesterday's Police Court.

At yesterday's police court. Magistrate Hary Rush occupied the rostrum. The first case called was that of Patrick Doomer, who pleaded guilty to having been drunk. $2. Frederick Bradley also paid $2 for the same offence. William Baker pleaded guilty to being a vagrant and not supporting his family. He said he had dislocated his shoulder and could not do hark work. He was remanded for a week but must report every night, with a promise of 6 months if he does not get to work.

He Lost Her Stockings.

A young man living on Bolivar street, on Friday night, talking with his best girl, quite innocently ? and incidentally asked his sweetheart what sized shoes she wore. The unsuspecting girl told him. Within an hour the young man went to Cressman's and bought two pairs of silk stockings for a birthday present for his girl. Yesterday afternoon he went to a drawer of his dressing case and looked for the hose. They were not there. His sister had found and put them under her ban, or, possibly petticoats. This story, as an Irishman might say "barring" the street, is an absolute fact.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with ocal treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars nad testimonials.

Address: F. C. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Memory Lingers.

Those who attended the Printers' Picnic of last year were loud in their praise of this annual event. This year, the committee in charge of the affair are striving to make this event even better than ever. A grand list of sports are being prepared and no expense will be spared in making for the comfort and enjoyment of those attending. The date of this excursion is fixed for Saturday afternoon, August 2nd, down the river to Victoria Park and Jubilee, per steamer Stoney Lake. Keep the date open. Boat leaves George St. Wharf at 1.30 sharp.

New Proprietor Grand Hotel.

An E. E. C. of last night has found, in referring to the Grand Hotel, said, "that all the rooms will be furnished." We always had an idea that both Mr. Nixon and his follower in that popular caravansary, had all the rooms furnished. Possibly an Examiner reporter looking through a bedroom missed one of those things (we don't know its name) used for elevating a cork from its glassy binder. However, the new proprietor, Mr. E. O. McCrehan, is a thoroughly practical hotelman and will bring the long-time success of the Grand Hotel to a brilliant future.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Mr. A. A. Fobert.

Mr. Abel Alphonse Fobert, aged 37 passed away Sunday at the residence of his father at Chemong Park. The deceased was well known in this city. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fobert, a sorrowing wife, and one daughter, are left to mourn his demise.

The funeral will take place this afternoon to Young Point cemetery.

James Harrington.

Jas. Harrington, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Harrington, of Ennismore, passed away on Sunday at his father's residence, after a short illness.

The funeral will be held from the family residence this morning to St. Martin's church and St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

THE SEASHORE.

The Seashore Express that leaves Bonaventure Station every night at 8.30, with electric lighted Buffet Sleeping Car and the day train, leaving Montreal at 8.30 a.m., with Parlor Card and Dining Cars reach the unsurpassed districts of Long Island Sound that are environments of New London, Conn., where the attractions are—warm surf bathing, fishing, sailing, driving or tramping.

Block Island, Watch Hill and Fisher's Island are three charming spots for the summer visitor and are swept constantly by ocean breezes—the temperature rarely rising above 75 degrees. A week at any of these places will do as much good as a sea voyage.

There is splendid Hotel and Boarding House accommodation at prices to suit all pockets.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS VANISH LIKE MAGIC

(Beauty Culture.)

A thick paste made of powdered delatone and water and applied to any hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off, takes the hairs with it. The skin should then be washed to entirely remove the delatone and it will be absolutely free from every trace of hair or fuzz. This is an easy, inexpensive method of removing hairs and is entirely devoid of pain. Using the delatone will in no way mar or injure the skin.

Thick, glossy eyebrows and long, silken, curly lashes add greatly to personal beauty. Frequent applications of pyroxin to brows or applied at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger will produce the above results, but care should be used to not get pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

PRELIMINARY HEARING ALLEGED RAPE CASE

GEN. HAMILTON AND COL. HUGHES HAD A BUSY DAY AT LINDSAY

Laying of Corner Stone of New Armouries Brought Out an Immence Throng

Special to The Times.

Lindsay, July 22.—The laying of the corner stone of the new Government Armouries in Lindsay this afternoon was graced with the presence of a number of prominent men from outside points, including the following: Dr. Galloway, of Woodville; Capt. Bottum, of Bobcaygeon and officers; Dr. Ross, of Kirkfield; Col. Bick, and officers of Cannington; Dr. R. M. Mason, M.P.P., of Fenelon Falls; Dr. Vrooman, M.P.P., of Lindsay; J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls; Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, who has been inspecting the system in the vicinity of Campbellford; Major Smith, M.P., and officers, of Colombus, Ont.; Jas. R. Mark, of Kinmount; Michael Brown, of Minden; Geo. Potts, of Haliburton; Major Sam Sharpe, M.P., of Uxbridge and officers; Col. John Hughes, of Newtonville and officers of 46th, Durham; J. H. Sexsmith, M.P., of East Peterborough; W. H. Bennett, M.P., of Midland; Capt. Anderson of Fory Hill and officers; R. H. Baker, Minden.

Among the local speakers were John Carew, Dr. J. W. Wood, G. A. Jordan, Mayor R. M. Beal, R. E. Bottum, Warden of Victoria County, G. H. Hopkins, K.C., Col. Hopkins and Major Havelock Fee, of the 45th Regiment.

The Armouries are located on Victoria Park, and at the present time the cement walls, and their two layers of large stone, are in place, while the brick work is in progress.

Speaking took place from a platform around corner stone position. The building and park were gaily decorated.

Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton arrived in town Monday evening from Peterborough and was the guest of Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. He was escorted with a guard of honor to Victoria Park, consisting of men from the 45th Regiment. The 45th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Roenigk, turned out in uniform.

The ceremonies in connection with the laying of the corner stone commenced at 4.30 sharp, the stone being placed by Gen. Hamilton. It is 3 feet long by 2 feet wide, and a 14 inch face, bearing the inscription, "July 22, 1913, Laid by Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, G.C.B., D.S.O."

Addresses were made by Gen. Hamilton, Col. Hughes, other members of Parliament, Mayor Beal, members of the town and county council and prominent citizens.

HON. SAM HUGHES

Between 5000 and 6000 of Lindsay's citizens and residents of the county gathered round the new armouries.

Sir Ian Hamilton, Inspector General of British Overseas Forces, who laid the corner stone, after concluding his speech was cheered to the echo on arising. His address was eloquent and every word breathed patriotism to the Motherland and her colonies. He referred briefly to the benefits of public armouries. He also spoke of the advantages to be attained by young men getting a military training. The General congratulated Canada on her choice of Col. Hughes as Minister of Militia, and mentioned that gentleman's many eminent qualifications for that high office.

Col. Hughes, Minister of Militia, was hailed with continuous roars of cheers, demonstrating the confidence his constituents have in him, as well as Canada at large. He replied briefly to the eoomiums handed by General Hamilton, and, in a way of turning the compliment, noted that the honorable scars received by the General in South Africa. The Minister also spoke of the benefits of military training for young men and of the immense strides made in temperance and morality in Canada's training camps.

OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY'S QUALIFICATIONS WELL TOLD

Mr. W. C. Fleming, of this city, whose big show will have its winter quarters here, has probably traveled as much as any man of his age, who claims this as his home. He has made many friends, and he was reminded of one of these recently by a letter that he received. It was from a man in the West and it had to do with the adventures of his old pal "Jimmy" Case. A short time ago Otto Folot of the Denver Post inserted an advertisement in various papers for an assistant sporting editor. Among the letters that he received was one from a friend who recommended "Jimmy" Case. The letter as a sample of slang and the language of the underworld is a classic. To the uninitiated the reading of the letter would mean but little. The person to whom it was addressed having been connected with sports knew its contents but there are many hundreds of thousands who might read it and be entirely at sea as to its meaning. The letter in part is as follows:

"Dear Sir: I understand you are in need of a bright, young energetic assistant sporting editor, and I would like to recommend Jimmy Case for the position. I have known Jimmy for some time. He has been in my employ for years, has never been found asleep at the switch, and has always been Jimmy at the rat hole at all times and all stages.

"He is known as "Cold Slaw Jimmy," and is one wise little Heiney. Any Geek who has anything on him must be a wise old catfish. Jimmy has mastered all the mysteries of skull-duggery, is a pet at fanning people's pockets, and can get his [illegible] through the eye of a needle without touching either side. (The report that he couldn't get his mitt in Fairmount Park is false and misleading.) He is there when it comes to prowling, can use a jack, jim [illegible] and at upstairs work has all the other guns and kanucks [illegible] to a fare you well. He has been known to get three storeys high without using climbers. He is a great outside man and stall, a shiller away from a bull, [illegible] or a fake board with the best of them. At dealing he is the kale. He can high low, work the bottom, do four deep [illegible] and at dealing [illegible] he is a [illegible]. On a circus lot or fair grounds he can bust more twists than any grafter in the business, and the way he can pick out the yellow clocks from the white ones shows he is hep to the knowledge. He is an artist at palming with both hands, can tail a bull a mile off, and no one can touch him at the panel, badger or creeping game.

"He has 'Seldom Seen Kid' and the "Wise Cracking Kid" chained to a hedge fence. No matter if he is boosting for the mitt, steering for the shang, plugging for the pins, capping for the nuts or stalling for the dipi he has it on every operator in this section.

"He can handle the spuds, lay down a crenk piece of paper or pass queer note in a way that will defy detection. At stripping a damper or blowing a gopher he is so smart that the swellest peter mobs in the land have appropriately named him the 'Candy Kid.' He has never been mugged and if there is a dollar lying out of doors, either hard or soft he can cop it off without mussing his hair. He can nick a finger for his harbor light and make his quick getaway in a masterful manner. As a gamester, he is there, through and through. He has never done a jolt in the stir, never held a rumble and never turned on a pal. Any person needing a good honest young man with a kind heart and an open countenance can do no better than hire him.

"Trusting you will find room for him and should you desire any further guarantee as to his qualifications I will furnish you with more convincing evidence.

"Yours very truly,
"F. F. MEREDITH."

HOMELY AND AGED FACES NOW EASILY BEAUTIFIED

(Aunt Sally in Woman's Realm.)

I have seen the plainest women made beautiful and the complexions of good looking women improved—I've seen wrinkled faces made young and pretty, blemished and weather-beaten faces made spotless, white and satiny—in less than two weeks, by a very simple and harmless process that acts almost like a miracle. This is all there is to it: Ordinary mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce will do), is applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off mornings. This gradually peels off the lifeless particles of surface skin, permitting the underlying skin to show itself. The newer, fresher skin, when wholly in evidence, forms a complexion which for beauty and youthfulness is incomparable with one produced by other means. A complexion so natural, so free from artificiality, no one guesses the secret of its acquirement. You'll not regret trying this really marvellous treatment.

Equally wonderful is the famous saxolite formula for removing wrinkles. One ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in a half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this immediately erases the finer lines. Gradually even the deeper furrows and crow's feet vanish completely.

SAD ACCIDENT BY WHICH CHILD DIED

The funeral of the little girl, Mary Ngeante, aged 7 years, daughter of Mr. George Ngeante, better known as George Keyes, who resides on Lansdowne street, who was fatally burned on Monday night, was held yesterday afternoon to St. Peter's cemetery.

The little girl in company with little Willie Winch, was in the garden gathering some weeds and grass to burn. Her mother was in the house at the time, and did not know anything of the fire till she heard the child's screams, when the little girl was lighting the bonfire. The flames caught on her dress.

She was terribly burned about the legs and body and when Dr. Gallivan was summoned, he saw immediately that the chances of surviving were slight. She was hurried to St. Joseph's Hospital, where she died at about nine o'clock.

HON. MR. COCHRANE INSPECTS CANAL

Motors to Lakefield and Thence by Boat to Lake Simcoe

Yesterday the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, who arrived from Ottawa on the early C.P.R. train, spent a few hours in the city. He was taken to the C.G.E. works, where he was shown through, and also to the Quaker Oats premises, which he also inspected. The Minister was later over the Lift Lock, after which the party motored to Lakefield, where they boarded the Government steamer Bessie Butler, and proceeded through the waterway to Lake Simcoe. The Minister was accompanied by Mr. W. A. Bowden, chief engineer, Mr. Grant, local superintending engineer, Mr. Ferguson, M.P.P., J. H. Burnham, M.P., E. G. Patterson, W. H. Denham and one or two others.

It was intended to run down to Lindsay and take part in the laying of the corner stone of the new armouries, a report of which appears elsewhere, but time would not permit.

The Minister seemed to be greatly impressed with the waterway, and its value when completed as an artery of commerce.

The party will reach Lake Simcoe to-day, and after thorough inspection of the works on the canal in that section, the Minister will proceed by rail to Toronto, before returning to Ottawa.

MORE PEERS FOR ONTARIO

Toronto, July 22.—Ontario fruit-farming may have yet another recruit from the British peerage, and this time it is a young Irish Lord.

Viscount Glentworth, the eldest son of the Earl of Limerick, was in Toronto this morning on his way to the Canadian West.

He called on the deputy minister of agriculture and obtained some information as to the farming conditions in Ontario. On his return he may take up fruit farming here.

He was accompained by Mr. Cyril Fitzgerald, head of the Oxford House School, who is at present on a tour in Canada and is writing a book on the country. He had a consultation with Dr. Colquhoun, the Deputy Minister. Viscount Glentworth is nineteen years of age.

EYE WITNESS TO ALLEGED DEED HERE

It will be remembered that recently the local press devoted some considerable space to the alleged bad treatment, by two Dominion Immigration agents of an insane Scotch girl, named Beatrice Hoad, whom they were deporting, and that during the journey from Toronto to Montreal she was handcuffed without any provocation, several commercial travelers and other passengers on the same coach related their stories, and requested that the affair be thoroughly investigated by the newspapers. The stories told were to the effect that the girl was taken to Montreal on the early train a week ago yesterday, and that during the journey she received so little attention from her custodians that a great deal of adverse comment was made by their fellow passengers. It was further alleged that one of the officials paid practically no attention to the unfortunate prisoner, and that her suffering, and weeping was pitiful in the extreme.

The facts have been laid before the proper authorities and three official inquiries are now being made into the matter. These are being conducted by the Dominion Immigration Department, the Toronto General Hospital, where the girl was taken from, and by the Toronto Humane Society.

In reference to the above, it might be noted that Mr. L. J. Whitmarsh, of Chicago, who was on the car where the alleged outrage was perpetrated, called at the Times office and stated that one of the men in charge of this poor girl, whom he described as attractive looking but plainly clad, was evidently under the influence of liquor and that a bottle of whiskey was found in his pocket.

Inspection of Convents

According to "The Protestant," a widely read and well conducted periodical, a society has been formed in Australia, called the Australian Enlightened Society. It is composed of Australian Roman Catholic men and women protesting against the political activities of the Roman Catholic heirarchy. This society proposes to issue a monthly magazine for the special purpose of arousing the public conscience in regard to the inspection of convents.

CANADA IS TO GAIN AT COST OF THE U.S.

Washington, July 22.—Senator Smoot to-day resumed his argument against the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. He discussed first the agricultural schedule.

"The provisions of the House Bill" he said, to admit meat, hides wool and so forth free, while imposing a duty on cattle and certain other live stock where so clearly an attempt to deceive the farmers that the majority in the senate is to be congratulated for seeking to make the provisions more consistent. In doing this they have, however, added to the injury already provided for by the House and instead of making meats and so forth dutiable, the bill now adds live stock to the free list. It will help concentrate the control of those products in the hands of what are known as the beef barons and will help kill off small dealers and their competition. The expence of feeding and the shrinkage of carcasses are eliminated in transporting beef, hence a large corporation with facilities for importing dressed beef can save a good deal in labor, feeding and so forth. When no duty is imposed it will be a discrimination against the farmer and others raising live stock in this country.

IMPROVEMENIS TO OUR LOCAL BOWLING GREEN

The Peterborough Bowling Club has decided to make a number of changes and improvements in their grounds next season. At a largely attended meeting, a committee was appointed to deal with the matter.

The west part, now occupied as a tennis court, will be coverted into bowling grounds as will also a portion of the eastern part. A couple of tennis court will be laid off in the eastern part.

In addition to this, a new system of lightning will be installed which will be much superior to the present lights. It is also suggested that a ladies club will be formed, which will have the privileges of the green, and, it is expected that quite a number of ladies will become active members, as, in all the larger cities and towns, the fair sex is now taking an active interest in bowling.

AMERICAN PLANTS COMING TO CANADA

Debate of Reciprocity Brings Boston Industry and String of Elevators

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, July 22. — The Toronto Globe, which wanted reciprocity so as to give the farmers of Canada a market for their produce in the United States, seems to be just waking up to the fact that the greatest and best market of all is the home market in the industrial centres which have been built up by the National Policy. So great is this market that the farmers of the Dominion are unable to supply it. Canada is now even classed amongst the butter importing countries. According to the trade figures for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1913, there was shipped into Canada no less than 5,990,936 pounds of butter.

Globe Sees It.

Commenting on this fact The Globe supplies the strongest possible argument to those who were opposed to the reciprocity pact. The Globe says:

"New Zealand now supplies butter to the Canadian market. According to a despatch from the Canadian Trade Commissioner in New Zealand 71,062 boxes of butter were shipped to Vancouver from Aucland during the fiscal year 1912-13. Cold storage companies from several points in Canada it is said, are endeavoring to get in touch with New Zealand shippers, so the imports of this commodity will go on increasing until Canadian farmers in the West wake up to the possibilities of the home market.

Seems Extraordinary.

"With a rapidly increasing population and constantly extending industries, it seems extraordinary that in a land so richly endowed by nature with the means of supplying food to the consumer, Canadians should have to go so far afield as New Zealand for dairy products. Canada should be able to supply all the butter and other produce required were the soil put to its natural use and the principle of mixed farming more generally adopted. Ontario alone is capable of supplying all the wants of Canada in this department were farming conducted on strict business principles, not only in regard to production, but also as to marketing. Mixed farming, co-operation and improved transport facilities would go a long way to hold the Canadian market for the farmer. Small countries like Holland, Belgium and Ireland are growing rich and prosperous through the improved business methods adopted by the farmers and the intelligent foresight, displayed by them in relation to the market value of farm commodities in industrial centres.

HON. FRANK COCHRANE.
Minister of Railways and Canals

All Important.

"This question of the supply of cheap and wholesome food is closely bound up with the prosperity of Canada. For the manufacturer, the farmer, and the consumer, it is all-important. Great Britain built up her industrial supremacy largely owing to her ready access to the food markets of the world. And it is no exaggeration to say that Britain, during this period of industrial growth, also helped to lay the foundations of prosperity in several European States by her large purchases of food and raw material. Other countries have since advanced, from being purely agricultural communities, to challenge the British manufacturer in the home and foreign markets.

Adds to the Cost.

"This means a great increase throughout the world in the number of consumers who are not food producers, which in turn adds to the cost of the prime necessities of life, and directly affects the cost of production to manufacturers. In the United Kingdom it is now felt that something must be done to stimulate the output of food products from the soil, and legislation will be initiated before long to enable the farmer and the agriculture laborer to enter the untilled fields held up by the large landowners.

CHINESE EMPIRE FACED WITH TROUBLE, YUAN HATED

Whole of South Boiling Mad Against Provisional President of Republic

Canton, China, July 22.—Trade throughout Southern China has been dislocated by the proclamation of the independence of the province of Kwang-Tung, which has created a feeling of great anxiety in this city as to the outcome of the situation. Stores have been closed and many of the merchants have telegraphed to shippers not to consign goods here for the present.

A great many people have left the city in junks and others have gone to the North on foot. Thousands more have flocked into the Portuguese colony of Macao and into Hong Kong among the latter being officials who have retired from their posts, carrying with them millions of dollars in silver and paper money.

Yuan Still Big Chief.

There is a strong feeling of resentment throughout the Southern provinces against the policy of Provincial President Yuan Shi Kai, but it is felt in most quarters that it will be impossible to resist him for long, as he commands a large trained army, possesses money and has the support of the great powers.

The fact that the merchants of Hong Kong do not sympathize with the independence movement is regarded among foreign observers as a sign that the revolt will be short lived.

It was not expected here that the province of Kwang-Si would follow the example of Kwang-Tung. A false rumor, however, was circulated that the Governor of Kwang-Si had fled to Hong Kong on board a British vessel.

SHOOTS SELF AND WIFE

Kansas City, Mo., July 22.—"Kiss me good-bye, and I'll go away and never bother you again." With this request, Albert Snider, 36 years old approached his wife, Olivetta G. Snider, to-day, as she was about to enter a down-town store where she was employed as book-keeper, threw his arms about her neck, and fired a bullet into her forehead. He then fired a bullet into his own brain. At the hospital it was stated the recovery of either was doubtful. Recently Mrs. Snider instituted proceedings for divorce.

MAGISTRATE WAS HOT "FAN" AND HOLDS COURT AT GAME

New Liskard Court Sentenced Man Charged With Intoxication While Baseball Contest is on

New Liskeard, Ont., July 23.—Climbing down out of the grandstand while a baseball game was in progress between Haileybury and New Liskeard, Magistrate Wilson held court in a booth on the baseball grounds and got back in time to miss only a part of one innings.

Chief McColl found Jim Hobbs embracing the sidewalks in town so he took him up to Magistrate Wilson at the ball grounds.

The Magistrate: "One dollar and to miss the game, but compromised by holding court in one of the booths on the grounds.

It was over in a few seconds.

The Chief recited the charge.

The Magistrate said: "Do you plead guilty?"

Hobbs said: "Yes."

The Magistrate: "One dollar and costs."

ITALIAN HELD FOR MURDER.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 22.—Tony Strandos, an Italian, 26 years of age, died at the hospital here this morning from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by Tony Paulo in a shooting affray, which occurred at the south end of the city on March 17th. Paulo has been in jail since the shooting, awaiting the outcome of his victim's injuries. He will be brought here from Welland and charged with murder.

OTTAWA TAKES THE SECOND GAME FROM THE PETES, 10-5

The Petes went down to defeat yesterday to Ottawa, but at that they did not play ball. At one time it looked as though the Petes were going to repeat the dose they handed the visitors in Monday's game, but Manager Shaughnessy, after trying out "a" couple of pitchers, put Mr. Rogers in the box to do the twirling, and would you believe it, he really had the motions of a real good pill-shooter. Mr. Rogers was here, there and everywhere and we believe he could have got along fine without any of the others at all.

Anyway, he held the Petes down for the balance of the game, and Manager Shaughnessy's broad smile could be heard even in the 10 cent stand, when the ninth innings had faded into history and the score stood 10 to 5 in Ottawa's favor.

Belting did the twirling for the Petes, while McNeal kept Umps Daly company behind the bat.

On account of the high southeast wind, many foul balls found their way to the river, and the same wind had a bad effect in the field with the players.

To-day's game promises to be one for gore and the Petes to a man will work to their limit.

Cosy Dolan had just five hits yesterday, and had the nerve to get ready to make another, only the side was retired.

Quite a large number of the fair fanettes were out yesterday, and, truly, they boosted. Cheer after cheer was heard from their quarter in the main stand—"Hit it Chap!" "Smite it Peggy!" and so on. One young lady came down from a back seat to the front, so Belding could hear her boost.

Davie Rowan could be seen kicking himself, after he let a hot one go by him. It was thought that Davie was going to try and stop it with his teeth—but he used "bad judgment," and the ball knocked a mosquito off his ear.

The Printers' Picnic, on Aug. 2nd, promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season. Keep the date open.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 326 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

SOLVING A PROBLEM

Rich Young Bachelor Regains Health and Finds a Wife at Strange Resort.

By WALTER JOSEPH DELANEY.

"Lungs inactive, heart insipid, brain torpid," reported Dr. Philetus Derringer, and he tapped his patient, Thomas Maltby, three times and made a mental note of a fifty dollar bill for his advice.

"Humph!" observed the wealthy old bachelor—"generally lazy, eh?"

"Worse than laziness, my friend," responded the notable physician gravely. "Your late suppers, lack of exercise and indolent ways generally have stored your system with poisons."

"Then get rid of them," suggested Thomas.

"Nothing but exercise will do that," was the serious response. "I do not wish to alarm you, Mr. Maltby, but if you want to shorten your life twenty years just keep on in the idle, useless career you are now living."

Thomas Maltby's face shadowed a trifle. No one realized more fully than himself that his life was profitless and wasted. He was the best natured, best-hearted fellow in the world, but he had money and no definite aim in the world.

A good many times of late his head had grown dizzy and there had been twinges of the gout. Then he had got so he could not go to sleep without the aid of a sedative. Functionally he was still all right, the doctor said, but his little ailments were warnings he must attend to.

"You speak of exercise, doctor," said Thomas. "What do you mean—golf, walking, baths, dieting?"

"They all help, but you need additionally a spur, changed conditions. Get your mind clear as well as your body. See here, did you ever hear of Prof. Septimus Gregg and his great 'youthful reorganization' system?"

"I never did," confessed Thomas.

"Well, one month in his hands and you are pretty nearly born again. Then if you go back to your old regime you're past hope. Want to try him?"

"You advise it?"

"Strongly."

"All right then," said Thomas.

"You will come back with your youth renewed. Then, if you take my advice, get married and home life will do the rest."

Then it was that two mornings later Thomas Maltby was introduced to Prof. Septimus Gregg at the doctor's office. He found the latter to be a great, fierce, bearish old fellow.

"Tommy Maltby, eh?" he spoke. "Well, Tommy, if you're ready, toddle along with me. I've a few purchases to make and you can carry the bundles."

Thomas stared. He got ready to resent such familiarity. Then he remembered that the doctor had told him that the professor was an eccentric, and had exacted a promise that he would obey his directions to the smallest detail.

Thomas stared still more strangely as the professor entered a department store and purchased: (1) half a dozen shoofly kites; (2) as many humming tops; (3) a dozen bags of marbles; (4) a box of bubble pipes.

"You must have a lot of children to provide for, professor?" ventured Thomas.

When they reached a walled-in country place at noon that day, Thomas Maltby wondered if he had entered an asylum. A dozen men as old or older than himself greeted their arrival boisterously. Some of them were barefooted. All of them wore knickerbockers. They capered around like boys on a vacation. Eagerly they scrambled for the doctor's purchases. Then they hooted and frisked about like mere kids. They played marbles, blew bubbles, spun tops, flew kites.

"Now then, make believe you're a boy again. Forget everything for one month but just that," said the professor, and Thomas was escorted to a room with a trundle bed, and emerged from it wearing a juvenile costume like the others.

Thomas grinned and then laughed outright as he got onto the scheme. He was to play boy for a month. He was hailed as "Tom" on the playground. When he got hungry, he went around to the kitchen and was given a great slice of bread and butter. By nightfall he had really got interested in games of marbles, and ran himself out of breath chasing a runaway kite.

"It's great!" he chuckled, as he rolled onto the trundle bed that night, healthily tired out for the first time in ten years.

Inside of a week Thomas Maltby had forgotten the club, late dinners and his automobile. The "boys" went fishing, swimming. They played one old cat, mumblety-peg, hi-spy. They got up big healthy appetites. Thomas cherished two "mibs," a glass alley and a "falsie" agate with more pride that he had a $1,000 profit on the stock exchange.

"It's famous," he told an august comrade, an astronomical student, for the time being a frisky, delighted lad. "No more dizzy spells; I can run like a whitehead and eat—why, that molasses cake and those flapjacks take me back 30 years and make life worth living."

On one side of the resort was a high brick wall. Strolling near it one day Thomas caught a tennis ball that came over its top. There were feminine cries of distress. Then a ladder top appeared. Peering over it was a fair, mischievous face, half hidden in a quaint childish sunbonnet.

"Do you see the ball, Mattie?" asked a voice below.

"Here, you, boy," called out the roguish Mattie to the astonished Thomas—"toss that lost ball over here, will you?"

Then Thomas found out that the brick wall enclosed the domain of Mrs. Prof. Gregg, who superintended the "girls' department" of the juvenile rejuvenation system. He got to thinking constantly of Mattie. One day he climbed a tree to view over the fence half a dozen "girls" attired in tasteful tennis dress, with flowing headgear, skipping rope and playing with dolls.

Thomas hovered many a time outside the walls of that feminine paradise. He got to writing poetry. Once he saw "his Mattie" through a barred gate. He flushed like a conscious schoolboy. She smiled bewitchingly and waved her pretty, slender hand at him in a girlish, tantalizing way.

"Here, You Boy!"

"They have a regular party here once a month," a "boy" friend told Thomas next day. "There is music, dancing and a supper."

"Ladies, too?" inquired Thomas hopefully.

"Yes, Mrs. Professor Gregg and her flock. The old life togs for tonight, you know. Very formal and dignified."

Thomas never enjoyed himself as he did at the function announced. There were friendly introductions and a pleasant time all around. Despite the conventionalities, however, ruddy cheeks, the glow of health, gay boy and girl laughter made the affair delightful.

Of course Thomas met Mattie. She was a city stenographer who had taken the cure, to come out bright and vivacious and restored to health.

When Thomas returned to the city he sought her out. He called on her twice, but only had he to tell her his love to win her complete acceptance of his suit.

Returned from a year's tour of Europe, one day Dr. Philetus Derringer chanced to meet Thomas. The latter, smiling, brisk and happy, hailed him with a healthy handshake that made the physician wince.

"It is plain to see that you took the juvenile cure," said the doctor.

"Yes, and won a splendid wife and a comfortable home through it all," declared Thomas. "We live next door to a glorious family with 11 children, and we're all just like kids. Going home now to fly kites for them."

"You have certainly solved the great problem of health and happiness," proclaimed the delighted doctor.

Fattened by Cannibals.

Guy de Villepion, a former teacher at San Francisco Academy, returning from the west coast of South America, told a tale of having been fattened for a feast by cannibals while attempting to cross from Ciudad to Buenos Aires. He escaped after many adventures and found his way to Callao.

"They were a strange people," he said, "and appeared to be half man and half ape. I have no doubt that they meant to eat me. I was mystified by all their kindness until I saw that it was all directed to the one end of getting me fat. Then I thought I had better leave, and I did."

Wilson Plays Santa.

When Charlie Conroy of East Orange, N. J., 8 years old, got up Christmas morning he found that the letter he sent to "Santa Claus, State House, Trenton," had been answered by Governor Wilson. Charlie asked for a sweater, a pair of gloves, a necktie, a cap, two books, a train of cars, a box of blocks and some candy and fruit.

President-elect Wilson was so impressed that he had one of his stenographers send Charlie all the things he asked for.

Five Hundred Cuss Words.

The next month will probably contain more wasted time for more human beings in this country than any other period of the year. It is vacation time and it will be wasted, not because it will be for so many an intermission of the regular routine of business, but because a large proportion of those who are free to take one, two, or three or more weeks away will not have had sufficient imagination, strength of mind, or foresight to so employ it that it shall profit them mentally, physically or morally. This may seem too sweeping a statement. But many, if they frankly recall their own experience, will be forced to admit that it is too often true.

Most frequently failure to enjoy vacation comes because in this country too few people have learned to be independent from the society of others. Cluttered up with other human beings during most of the year in offices, street cars, and even homes. It is to great a break of mental habit for them to cut free from human society so long relying upon themselves; and the never failing interest of nature to supply them enjoyment. Consequently the majority of people fly to summer places already overinfested with other hectic seekers for pleasure. Instead of enjoyment they find but a forced gayety, the result of self-deception and pretence.

Vacation should be a time when the society of others, except of a few of one's closest family or friends, is dispensed with, when one should relax and enjoy to the full the wind, the sea, the woods, streams and the fields. Nor can these be fully enjoyed unless one is free from the demands of the multitudinous acquaintances or companions.

Try it, you who are free. Go off alone, or with a few chosen companions. Walk, sail, paddle or climb. You can learn to dispense with that you believe are comforts, and find more real rest in providing for yourself than you ever dreamed possible. Learn the joy of freedom from the thousand things that others do for you in daily life. Such is the cheapest vacation, it is within the reach of almost all, it will repay you a thousand fold, and hold no disappointments.

Your Bad Taste In the Morning Is Due to Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapor form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is affected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Rob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size, 50c.; sample size 25c. all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.; and Kingston, Canada.

LONGEVITY IN MEXICO

It is an interesting fact that the most remarkable instances of longevity among the inhabitants of the New World are chronicled of the aborigines. This holds good both of North and South America. Especially great are the ages attained by Indians dwelling in the highland tropics, a fact noted by the observant Baron von Humboldt and by scores of other travelers and explorers.

About two decades ago General William Palmer of the famous Palmer Sullivan combination who built the national railroad from Laredo to this capital, discovered in the State of Vera Cruz an Indian peon working in the field, who gave his age as 135 years. Some years ago President Diaz during a visit to the State of Jalisco encountered a veteran of the War of Independence, a man of Indian blood, who fought under the patriot Morelos, and was at the time when General Diaz met him 127 years old. He had much to tell the President of those early campaigns.—Mexican Herald.

THE APOLOGY OF AN ARCHBISHOP

Bruchesi Knuckles Down to the Leader of the Montreal Bar—Expresses His Regrets to Desaulniers and Says it Was a Misunderstanding—But, Then, it Was After a Conversation With His Grace, That Lawyer Referred to Archbishop's Flagrant Intolerance.

(From the Orange Sentinel)

Montreal, July 12.—The clash between Archbishop Bruchesi and Gonzalve Desaulniers, K.C., leader of the Montreal Bar, has resulted in a victory for the latter. Although the angry lawyer had declared that the archbishop's refusal to let him speak at the recent service in Laval University was "the most flagrant piece of intolerance this country has ever seen," his grace has swallowed his pride, and apologized to the lawyer. He evidently saw that Mr. Desaulniers was prepared to fight and considered, in view of the latter's prominence and influence, it would be better to placate him for the time being. But let Mr. Desaulniers beware!

It has been understood that the principal reason for the archbishop's action was that Mr. Desaulniers had dared to edit Le Pays in the absence of Godfroy Langlois, M.P.P., the great educational reformer and pet aversion of the Roman hierarchy and particularly, that he had allowed certain criticisms of Laval University to go into the paper. Mr. Desaulniers, by the way, says he did not write the articles in question, but that he fully approves of them. Mr. Desaulniers also appears to have been a member of the famous Emancipation Lodge. In spite of all of which Mr. Desaulniers said he refused to believe the university belonged to the archbishop, and denied him the right to "cast a slur on my honor."

Lecture Course Too Liberal

The Montreal correspondent of the Christian Guardian, however, puts a new light on the situation. He says:

"Why should the church discipline one of her most brilliant sons in this way? The answer seems to be that M. Desaulniers, as president of L'Alliance Francaise (of which I have the honor to be a member), has permitted too wide a scope, too great a liberality of thought in the course of lectures held under the auspices of the society during the past season. Are we forced to conclude that the Roman Catholic Church, having lost so much ground in other parts of the world, is clinging desperately to its sovereign power in the Province of Quebec? It certainly looks like that, for THE OCCURRENCE JUST RELATED, THOUGH TRIVIAL IN ITSELF, UNDOUBTEDLY HAS A DEEP, UNDERLYING MEANING. Note the French Congress at Three Rivers, which opened on Saturday last, when George H. Baril, of Laval University, Montreal, defied the leading principles of the congress in regard to education as: First and foremost, absolute and unquestioning submission to the church, and its right to control in moral and religious education; secondly, the assertion of the parent's duty to watch over the child (no one would question that clause); and lastly, the exclusion of the government from the sphere of education. The church, he said, has the sacred right to direct the education of its youth, and to see that none of the books of instruction are allowed to contain anything in the least injurious to the doctrines of the Catholic Church. It is the business of the state to give protection and financial assistance, but not to take charge of national education.

"Could anything be more retrograde than this. How are we to have a united Canada; how are Canadians to know one another, and to respect one another, if they are kept apart, in separate schools, during all the formative years of childhood and early youth? WHAT WE NEED IN CANADA MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE IS A NATIONAL SCHOOL SYSTEM AS BROAD AS THE COUNTRY, WITH COMPULSORY EDUCATION IN EVERY PROVINCE. Does that mean godless schools, as the hierarchy here are so fond of asserting? By no means. Let us have the deepest and broadest religion inculcated in our children—the religion of the Sermon on the Mount; the religion of the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians; but let it be absolutely undenominational. Then the children can be educated side by side. The French now form 28 per cent. of the total population of Canada (80 per cent. in this province), but other nationalties are coming in all the time; it would be ridiculous to suppose that each could claim separate schools.

"Another echo from the French Congress at Three Rivers tells us of a proposed Catholic political party that shall know neither Conservative nor Liberal, but shall unite purely for the defence and aggrandizement of the RoKan Catholic Church."

The Archbishop's Regrets

But, to get back to the incident: His grace, in a letter to Mr. Desaulniers, has expressed his regret, and Mr. Desaulniers has replied that he hopes the incident will be forgotten on both sides. The archbishop's letter to Mr. Desaulniers is as follows:

"Montreal, July 2, 1913.

"Mr. Gonzalve Desaulniers, Montreal

"Dear Sir,—Items published in many local papers in regard to the incident of the seance given at Laval University on the 24th of June last, by the St. Jean Baptiste Society, seem to demand a word on my part, and it is to you in person that I address that word.

"The university hall had been placed at the disposal of the St. Jean Baptiste Society for the soiree, but the university authorities were in no wise concerned in the matter of the programme, which had been decided upon by the organizers. IF, ON BEING CONSULTED BY TELEPHONE BY THE ORGANIZERS WHILST IT WAS AT JEROME, ON RETURN FROM A PASTORAL VISITATION, I GAVE THE DIRECTION WHICH YOU KNOW, SUCH DIRECTION WAS ISSUED ON ACCOUNT OF INCOMPLETE INFORMATION. When, a few hours later, you made your personal representations to me, I replied that you were at perfect liberty to recite the verse which had been requested of you. Discretion does not permit me to enter into further details."

It Is To Laugh!

"The incident is a disagreeable one. It is explained by the circumstances and the misunderstandings on which it was based, but, reduced to its proper proportion, it certainly does not warrant the conclusions which have been drawn from it.

"ACCEPT, SIR, THIS EXPRESSION OF MY SINCERE REGARD.

"(Signed) Paul, Archbishop of Montreal."

THE REPLY OF MR. DESAULNIERS.

"Montreal, July 3, 1913.

"His Grace Archbishop of Montreal.

"Monseigneur,—I thank you for your letter, and I would desire to keep in mind particularly one of its features, the regret which you feel concerning the incident which you have described as disagreeable.

"This incident, I trust, will, like all dead things, glide into oblivion, without bringing about any change in our relations, which have ever been of a cordial nature.

"Please accept, Monseigneur, the expression of my highest esteem.

"(Signed) Gonzalve Desaulniers."

A notable fact is that the archbishop and the lawyer had already had a telephone interview with one another, and the archbishop had explained the reasons for his actions, when Mr. Desaulniers, over his own signature in the daily press, declared that his grace's conduct was the most flagrant piece of intolerance this country has ever seen. The statement stands.

AN EXPLANATION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As Mr. Huffman has bought his groceries from us for several years we take for granted it was us Mr. Gray meant in his article in your paper last week. We wish to say that we have not known of his family wanting for any necessary provisions during this time.

Yours truly,
W. H. Byam & Son.

For the Guest Room

A special calendar for the guest room will prove a godsend to many a hostess. This calendar consists of an eleven by fourteen inch panel of red morocco, mounted in easel manner and fitted with a small daily calendar which may be replaced at will, and below this is printed in good sized and perfectly legible gilt lettering "Breakfast," "Luncheon," "Tea," "Dinner," "Last Mail Leaves," and "Special." Directly opposite to each one of these legends is a space fitted with a sheet of white celluloid, on which may be inscribed the times of the meals and the departure of the last mail and any special item of information which should be brought to the guest's attention.

Admires Canadians

In the comparison of the numbers of millions of population our country is so far ahead of what we call Canada that the figures are never used in relation to respective advancement. We think not so much about the increase of population up there as upon the magic development of vast stretches of plains; the rapid opening of a new country. And those who have had opportunity to observe with their own eyes must admit that our neighbors in the north-west, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia, have been doing things in a few years past to satisfy our pride in them as neighbors and relatives. They show vigor, enterprise, daring and the nerve for great expenditures.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hawk as a Flyer

It is on record that a goshawk, belonging to Henry of Navarre having its Royal owner's name engraved on its golden varvels, made its escape from Fontainebleau in 1574, and was caught twenty-four hours afterwards in Malta. It had negotiated 1,400 miles, and must have sped through the air at the rate of sixty miles an hour—supposing it to have been on the wing all the time. As a hawk never flies by night, it must be computed, if credence be given to the story, that the bird winged the enormous distance at a rate not less than 100 miles an hour.

Polishing with a soft rag is all that is necessary to keep a brass bed looking bright.

RING.

Eddie Graney, the San Francisco referee, has given out a list of the world's greatest fighters. Graney has refereed or been connected in some other way with scores of the most famous fights on record.

Here is Graney's classification:

Greatest heavyweight fighters—Peter Jackson and James J. Corbett.

Best Welters—Joe Walcott and Tommy Ryan.

Best lightweights—Jack McAuliffe, and John Herget.

Best featherweight—George Dixon and Terry McGovern.

Greatest bantam champion—George Dixon.

Most successful managers—Billy Britt and Billy Nolan. Britt getting more publicity for his fighter than any other manager; Nolan more money.

By Robert Edgreen.

He was the greatest of bantamweight fighters, and it was through a feeling of affection that the great public called him "Little Chocolate." Everybody liked George Dixon—even the men he defeated in the ring. He was a dark skinned boy, but clear white inside. His generosity to all others, open handed, undiscriminating generosity, was his greatest fault. Because of that he died poor, with neither house nor home, with hardly clothes enough to cover his back, and was buried by strangers.

The career of Dixon, a world's champion, through ten hard-fighting years might point a hundred morals. But I shall leave you to draw them for yourselves when you have read his story.

Away back in 1889 Tom O'Rourke went with a friend, Mr. Blanchard, to see some bouts in a club in Cambridge. At that time O'Rourke was proprietor of a cafe in Cambridge, near the navy yard. He weighted about 140 pounds and was known locally as an oarsman. He dabbled in athletics and kept a gymnasium, where he trained a somewhat indifferent "stable" of boxers.

YACHT.

Camden, Me., July 22.—Seventeen sail yachts started today on the racing run from Christmas Cove. Some went across the line stern first because the tide was stronger than the wind. The run, however, was accomplished in fairly quick time, with the southwest breeze gradually increasing in strength to the finish off Negro Island. Tomorrow at 11 a.m. the pretty harbor at the foot of the Camden mountains will be practically deserted. To-night it shelters more than 100 pleasure craft, more than half flying the Boston flag. The fleet has been augmented at every port of call, and is one of the largest ever taken East.

The flagship Shawmuth, several sloops and a handful of power craft will keep on informally to Bar Harbor. At 11 a.m. the ocean race to Marblehead, distance 138 miles, will be started if arrangements are carried out. Entries will probably be the Vera III., Edjacko II., Leohane, Evangeline and Norma II.

When the regatta committee boat Totem was well up Mosquito Island, a speed boat named Echo with several women and men aboard was sighted in a helpless condition, the supply of fuel having been exhausted. At request of the Echo's owner the lame duck was passed a line and the Totem hurried her into port.

BASEBALL

Adrian, Mich., July 22.—Battle Creek and Adrian, the leading teams in the Southern Michigan League, today played 20 innings to a tie, each scoring one run before darkness ended the struggle.

Both pitchers showed wonderful control. Loomis of Adrian, a right hander, struck out 19 batters and issued one pass purposely, in the 19th inning. McDonald, a south paw, fanned 16 men and passed no one.

ONTARIO FOX FARMER

Twenty years ago, Mr. L. Borrowman of Wyoming first conceived the idea of raising silver grey foxes. In his business as a fur dealer he saw the possibilities in breeding fur bearing animals and after long thought he finally secured, at great expense, two pairs of "silver-greys," which had been dug out of their den when they were puppies. The history of Mr. Borrowman's success is a story of pluck and perseverance. "I spent thousands of dollars," said Mr. Borrowman, "before I achieved results. Twelve years passed before I came upon the secret of successful fox raising and during all that time my neighbors laughed at me, said I was 'a fool with more money than brains,' and other things, not of a complimentary nature. Now they no longer make remarks of this kind.

"My trouble was in placing too many foxes together. I used to have two pairs in the same pen. The females are very jealous of each other and if given a chance will destroy their young. In order to conceal the little ones, the mother foxes bury them in the ground. They do this with the best of intentions but of course the puppies smother. The first year I tried putting each pair by themselves, I got nine puppies and I have been raising them ever since." At the time when Mr. Borrowman's stock consisted of three pairs of foxes a Wyoming paper stated that his farm had netted him at the close of the season, ten thousand dollars in cash. Mr. Borrowman's stock now consists of ten pairs of foxes and at the present times foxes which formerly sold for $1,000 now bring from seven to ten thousand dollars. At these advanced prices, it can readily be seen, that Mr. Borrowman's farm represents a large amount of money.

OLD MARRIAGE RECORDS

Conducted in Prince Edward County From 1802 to 1823

Some seventy-six manuscript records of marriages conducted in the county of Prince Edward from 1803 to 1823 were received by Deputy Registrar-General of Ontario. The marriages were conducted by Stephen Conger, who was sworn into the office of Magistrate at Kingston on July 12, 1803, and in his own handwriting the records are engrossed. Among the number many well known names in the country are found, one of which is the record of the marriage of Richard G. Clute and Sarah Ann Goldsmith, under license from his Excellency Francis Gore, Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, dated March 8, 1810. The marriage was solemnized on the 12th of the same month. Compulsory registration of marriages with the Registrar-General was not known then and was not introduced until 1869. These records were in the possession of the widow of the late Nelson Conger, 221 Major street, Toronto, and were secured for the department through the instrumentality of Mr. Geo. A. Kingston, K.C., whose wife is a great-granddaughter of Stephen Conger.

Beet Sugar

When sugar first was made from beets it took about 20 tons of beets to produce a ton of sugar; now it requires but six tons, due to scientific breeding of the beets.

The exhibition of motion pictures showing the dangers from insect pests has led to a large increase in the demand for sticky fly paper in the interior towns of Mexico.

Rome's Population

Italy's last census gave Rome a population in excess of 538,000, an increase in ten years of more than 75,000.

A Strong Cutter

An electrical machine for cutting umbrella covers in a New York factory cuts 350 thicknesses of fabric at once.

New Coal Deposit

An extensive deposit of coal said to be equal to the best American steaming coal has been discovered in Venezuela.

Safe Dirigibles

One of Germany's numerous dirigible baloons has made more than 100 journeys with passengers without a single mishap.

Prehistoric Cemetery

The discovery of a prehistoric cemetery and crematorium at Gors Goch, Wales, led to an examination which showed that the inhabitants of the uplands of Cardiganshire in the earlier part of the Bronze Age cremated their dead. Medical men pronounced all bones found to be human bones. A number of circular cavities opened at Gors Goch, which contained charcoal, but no vestige of bone, are a mystery. It is possible that these hollows were receptacles for food for the departed.

King's Gift for Tropical Medicine

The King sent a donation of $500 to Mr. Austen Chamberlain, for the fund opened by the Lord Mayor for the London School of Tropical Medicine, which his Majesty notes owes its inception to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. Mr. Austen Chamberlain wrote: "His Majesty's interest and approval encourage us to make a renewed effort to secure the $500,000 for which we originally asked. We have already secured nearly half that sum."

FAT IS NOT STRENGTH

Exercise and Moderate Eating Necessary for Health

Don't load the body down with fat. Eat according to your needs; not according to your likes. Outside of "looks" which are sometimes in and sometimes out of fashion, obesity is a hindrance to the enjoyment and comfort of life.

When a person grows fat, each organ gets its portion. The consequence is often serious if these fatty deposits grow so large as to interfere with the normal action of the organs. Shortness of breath, palpitation, bronchitis and other unpleasant and unnecessary difficulties are occasioned. The two great causes of obesity are too much food and too little exercise. Strong, able-bodied persons with a moderate amount of time should make it a duty to take enough exercise in the open air to regulate their weight.

Persons who are obliged to sit or stand all day should endeavor to eat strengthening foods—but not fat-producing foods. It is particularly necessary that persons who are disabled should take great care in choosing their diet. Fat is not strength.

TRACES HIS ANCESTORS SEVERAL GENERATIONS

A Canadian Seaman Relates His Experiences During an Adventurous Career

Captain W. Wilbur, a native of New Brunswick, and an owner of tugboats in Vancouver, traces his Canadian ancestry back for five or six generations.

Born in Albert county, New Brunswick, Captain Wilbur was only fourteen when he took service as a boy aboard a coasting vessel at $3 a month. In the course of the years which followed, young Wilbur held every position on board ship from cook to commander. At the early age of 22 Captain Wilbur was given his first command, and with this cargo he voyaged to the French port Havre. During the years that followed he commanded bigger vessels and he knows all the notable English ports intimately, as well as some of the inland towns. He brought the second load of rails from Cardiff to St. Stephen, New Brunswick, for the Grand Southern Railroad.

"One experience," he said, "I had about four miles from where the Titanic sank may interest you. Just there we ran into the iceberg zone one night shortly before dark. There was a thick fog, a light wind and slight rollers. We shortened the ship down to lower topsails and foresails. I stood on the topgallant fo'castle all night and the roaring of the icebergs filled the air all the time. The sea sort of rolled.

We just wiggled on all night. I had all our boats slung out ready to take to them any moment and my wife and kids fully dressed and with everything packed. We expected to take to the boats any moment, but we weathered the night and early next day the fog cleared. As far as the eye could reach there were icebergs everywhere, some as large as good sized islands and others higher than the ship's masts. So strong was the suction from some of the icebergs that the ship would turn right round. There was a long narrow lane of water through the ice in one direction, so we got out the boats and pulled the ship into the lane, set sail and eventually got out safely."

Little Chinese Cadet

In connection with the competitions in military drill in the Toronto schools the judges chose from each company one boy who was especially noticeable for his neatness and his soldierly bearing. In one of the schools the boy chosen was a Chinese boy, who showed up the jdugcs thought, with the best in the city.

NO OPERATION FOR GALL-STONES

No operation will be necessary for Gallstones, Kidney-stones, or Gravel—SANOL, the German remedy discovered by a great German scientist, will surely relieve the agony of the sufferer from these complaints. It will also cure with equal certainty and promptness kidney trouble, lumbago, and all other diseases caused by the presence of uric acid in the system. It is also most valuable as a preventive for these diseases and will often prevent a serious illness if taken when the first symptoms appear.

Save the pain, danger and cost of an operation by using

SANOL

Relief will be rapid, the deposis will pass off rapidly and without pain. We have addresses and strong testimonials—some written from residents of Winnipeg, to the number of 300. We have 27 testimonials from one small Alberta town. We have a most convincing testimonial from one Winnipeg lady who passed several large gall-stones, after taking one bottle of SANOL. We are willing and anxious to furnish you with the addresses of these people.

OLDEST EXISTING GAME

Tennis Made Its Appearance in Europe in the Middle Ages

Most people, when they speak of "tennis," refer to lawn tennis and not to the far more ancient game which was the forefather of the modern adaption. Tennis proper is perhaps the oldest of all existing ball games. It is also one of the most difficult games to learn, on account of the number and intricacy of its rules, which, however when learned make it one of the most interesting.

It has an additional interest also, owing to its historical associations. Tennis first made its appearance in Europe in the middle ages, when it was played in open courts and in the parks belonging to the feudal castles of France and Italy.

The name of tennis is suggested to have sprung from the exclamation "Tenez," which was used by early French players when serving the ball. In France the game was called jeu de paume. It would seem from this that originally the ball was struck with the palm of the hand only. Afterward the players wore a glove. Strings and cross strings were next stretched upon the glove to give a greater impulse to the ball, and from this to the addition of a short handle was an easy transition.

The game was much improved by the building of closed-in tennis courts, at first with walls only, then with both roofs and walls. In France they still play it, sometimes in the open and in Italy a rough version of it, called pallone, can still be seen. In England there are 27 courts, and there is one in Dublin.

BAKING PAN LIFTER

Wire Frame Slides Through the Grooves on Side of the Pan.

An ingenious little cooking utensil that will save the cook a burned finger or two has been designed by a Massachusetts man. It consists of a baking pan with a lifting attachment by which it can be carried about without touching the hot pan, even under the protection of a cloth. The opposite sides of the pan are turned down to form grooves. A piece of strong wire is bent into a handle and the two ends form long prongs that can be thrust through the grooves on the sides of the pan. The prongs are bent slightly downward at the points so they will not slip out too readily, but will afford a purchase on the grooves when the pan is to be drawn out of the oven. Even with a cloth for protection it is sometimes difficult to get hold of the pan when the bread or cake has risen to the edge.

PROUD OF HIS NEW CLOTHES

Rhodesian Native, Returning From Mines, Was Scandalized By Unclad Relatives and Friends.

A town in Rhodesia is not generally a town, declares Mrs. M. L. Woods in "Pastels Under the Southern Cross." A few scattered shops, a broad road deep in red dust, down which a sudden miscellaneous herd of blacks occasionally pours, constitute a town. Of these natives, Mrs. Woods gives the following description:

They are collected from all parts of Rhodesia, from Portuguese territory, even from Nyasaland. Dressed in anything and everything, they come pell-mell, grinning and chattering, some like young colts bounding into the air as they go. These happy fellows are probably rejoicing because they are being sent to some mine where certain of their friends and relations are already working.

This is the native as he appears entering on his term of service at the mines. I once saw a group of black men who had completed their term of service and were on their way home. They were serious, dignified, conscious of clean and complete costumes, consisting of shirt and trousers and a hard straw hat. Each had his neat bundle and his gaily painted wooden box.

We were once appreciative witnesses of the homecoming of such a miner at a wayside station. A party of relatives and friends had come from the kraal to meet the returning one, all innocent in their nakedness and rags. The plutocrat surveyed them with a scandalised eye; coldly he waved their salutations and endearments, obviously too shocked and pained to appreciate them. Then he withdrew from the platform to the foot of a neighboring tree, and beckoned his bewildered friends to approach. In a few minutes, before the eyes of the passengers in the train, he had clothed his whole party with decency, and greatly, in their eyes with splendor. Then, and only then, did he condescend to return their greetings; and, exceedingly joyful, all marched off together in the direction of their kraal.

COOKING APPLES

Peel them and take out the core; fill up the hollow with currants and a clove. Dredge them well with castor sugar, and bake in a moderate oven.

FOR SUPPER

Boil whole as many [illegible] Spanish onions as required. When done, drain them, and put each on a slice of toast. LOTS OF BIG GAME IN SOUTH AFRIC

Buck Are Raised in Thousands For Sport and the Market—Pays Well Both Ways

The average person, no doubt, regards the springbok, wildebeeste, and blesbuk as rare specimens of South African game. It will no doubt come as a surprise to know that there are still thousands upon thousands of these game in existence, and, in fact, in some parts of South Africa farmers derive huge incomes from their game alone.

One farmer goes in almost exclusively for breeding game, and during the season he shoots some hundreds of buck and sends them to market. On his farm there are about 15,000 head of game, consisting mainly of wildebeeste and blesbuk, with a few thousand springbok. The farm is about 10,000 acres in extent and one portion of it is reserved as a sanctuary and as soon as the buck go on to this portion they are perfectly safe as never a shot is fired at them while in their special reserve.

This reserve is only divided from the rest of the farm by a road or cart track, and it is really wonderful how the buck know they are safe there. On other parts of the farm they are so wild that it is difficult to get within rifle range of them whereas in the sanctuary one can ride within a hundred yards of either the wildbeeste or blesbuk.

The method usually employed of shooting buck for market is as follows: A couple of men who are good shots hide behind antheaps or mounds of earth at a distance of about 400 yards from a fence, not far from and leading to the sanctuary. Knowing that the buck as soon as they are frightened immediately rush for their reserve, a couple of native boys, well mounted, are told off to round up the buck and drive them so that they gallop along the fence to the reserve. As soon as they draw level with the hidden sportsmen these start firing, and before the buck are out of range each man will have fired nine or ten shots, accounting for perhaps a dozen buck. They go through this manœuvre a few times during the day, and as soon as there are sufficient shot to make a good waggon load they are dispatched to Johannesburg or one of the principal markets, to grace the tables of both poor and rich, who all regard venison as a special treat.

The farmer mentioned seldom makes no less than $7,500 during the six months' shooting season. The bulk of this amount is derived from shooting and sending buck to the market, but he has other ways of making his buck a source of profit. When the buck have young he always catches a few pairs and rears them by hand, later selling them at a big price to zoological gardens or to private individuals who want to stock their farms with buck.

Shooting parties are permitted to shoot on this farm at a fixed price of so much per head for each variety of buck shot, and it is no unusual thing for a party to spend as much as $250 for a few days' shooting.

These sportsmen have a more arduous, if less effective, method of shooting, as they drive over the veldt until they get within range of the buck, and then jump out of the cart quickly and fire a few shots, usually at a long range. If successful in shooting any they tie a white rag around the dead buck; this serves the double purpose of marking the spot where the buck lies and also frightens off vultures, which would soon attack the carcasses.

CANADIAN GIRL CYCLIST WON FIRST 6 DAY RACE

Now that six-day bicycle races are being boomed, not only in Canada and across the border, but also in Europe, it is interesting to note that the first six-day ride ever done on this continent was made by a Canadian girl—Louise Armaindo, of St. Anne, near Montreal. She rode a high wheel bicycle six days, twelve hours a day at the Guards Armory in St. Louis, Mo., and she rode 760 miles on a track 14 laps to the mile. That was the first time any bicycle rider on this side of the Atlantic had ridden 100 miles inside of 24 hours. On a later occasion Louise was one of the three starters in the first six-day and night race in the world. This was at Minneapolis. Louise was only to ride 1,000 miles during the week, but she finished her 1,000 miles on Friday night and got Tom Eck to pay her $2,000 more to ride until Saturday night and she was in the best physical condition of the three riders at the end of the race. She made over 1,300 miles in six days and nights on a high bicycle. Schock won the race, covering 1,421 miles, a world's record at that time.

WIVES FOR WESTERNERS

Ontario Young Women off to Prairie Provinces—Do Their Own Courting

The eighteen prospective brides who left Toronto in a party for the West, are only the first of a large number of Ontario girls who will shortly go to the prairie provinces to find husbands, according to Mr. A. E. Duff, District Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway. Mr. Duff has had numerous letters from G.T.R. agents throughout Ontario stating that there are many girls in the country desirous of taking a chance in the matrimonial market, and he expects that parties of fifty will soon be the order.

Mr. Duff stated in an interview that it must not be supposed that he was playing the part of Cupid; he was merely acting as lieutenant for the little fellow with the darts. The girls who had not been able to satisfy themselves with the choice of a husband in the East were given a special rate on the railway and packed off in parties to the wider fields of the West, in charge of a competent woman. They then entered domestic service and cast about for a suitable young man. "They have to do their own courting," said Mr. Duff. "All I do is get them out where wives are wanted and young women are few, and the census returns show that there is a preponderance of [illegible] married men in the West."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

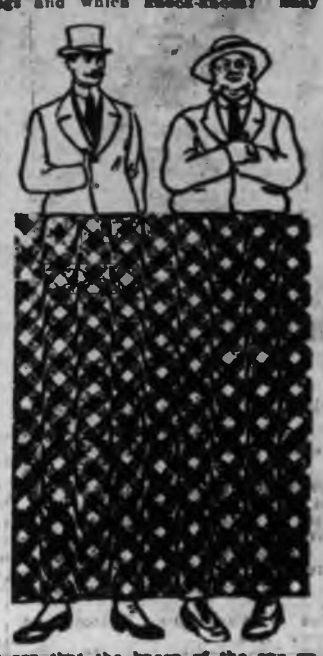
DO YOU BELIEVE ALL THAT YOU SEE

You May Not Always See What You Think You See

Did you ever think a person lied because they told something about a thing you both saw—but which you didn't see as he told it? Be careful about doing that sort of thing. You might not have seen what you thought you saw.

Which one of these figures has bow-legs and which knock-knees? Easy to see that the knees of the one on the right incline toward each other, while the other gentleman carries his legs on a gentle outward curve?



Easy, is it?

Well, it so happens that neither of them is knock-kneed or bow-legged. In fact, the legs of both of them are perfectly straight. Take a ruler and prove it. It's just simply a case of the eyes being deceived. An optical illusion and a very common one.

There are a lot of things like that. No two persons see the same thing alike when a thing is made with intent to deceive, as this was, it would take an expert to discover the deception.

Actors take advantage of this fact in their makeup on the stage and dressmakers are known to use it. For instance, a short, stout woman wearing a dress with horizontal stripes will look still shorter and fatter and a tall thin woman wearing a dress with perpendicular stripes will look taller and thinner.

THREE MILES IN AIR

Aviation Has Plenty of Thrills Even For a Professional

This is the way Garros, the French aviator, describes how it feels to climb 16,400 feet up in the air with an aeroplane:

"According to the diagrams of my two barometers I reach 6,500 feet in less than ten minutes. A 9,840 feet I have the impression I am being driven back from the coast, although my machine is making over seventy miles an hour. At 13,120 feet there is no longer any doubt. I am being carried backward by the wind.

"Four thousand six hundred again! The machine begins to waver. I note my supply of oxygen won't last out. Here is 15,744 feet, the height of Mont Blanc! I have not a mouthful of oxygen left, and my motor misfires so frequently that I climb no longer. But I shall stick to it till the motor gives up. I try to find a more favorable air current and call upon all my resources, those of an old acrobat. At last the diagram shows again a slight ascent. Breathing is now very difficult, but here is 16,400 feet.

"An alarming shock and a great noise! I am rather astonished not to feel my wings part company from me in the air. With a movement quicker than thought I cut the ignition and start planing down.

"Every turn of the propeller shakes the whole machine violently, and I do what I can to come down as slowly as possible in order to spare my wings, which have already been too severely tested. Evidently some important piece, probably a valve rod, is broken in the motor.

"But gradually the vibrations diminish, and at last the propeller sticks fast. Thus I glide down with the stay wires whistling more or less shrilly, according to my speed. I am still 4,500 meters up, but I have the conviction that I am out of danger. I pass through the clouds again at 1,500 meters and see with joy beneath me the most beautiful pasture land. Finally I land in safety."

Moscow Survivors.

That soldiers—once they escape the risks of war—are long lived is shown by Russia's finding four or five survivors of the Moscow campaign, the centennial of which is now being celebrated.

After the 20 years of war of the Napoleonic era, of the 36 marshals of France, 26 survived. Of the 10 who were gone, only two died of disease; three fell in battle, one was drowned, one was assassinated, one was a suicide and two were executed.

The survivors reached an average age of 72 years, 10 of them dying as octogenarians.

Many other generals have reached extreme old age. Marshal de Richelieu was 94 years old when he died in 1788. Two years before his death he married a girl of 16, who was able to say to Napoleon III. in 1852: "Sire, Louis XIV asked of my husband—"

She was then 82 years old and lived two years longer.

AN IDEAL VACATION TRIP VIA GREAT LAKES STEAMSHIPS

At this season of the year when so many are planning their vacation trip the question "Where To Go" naturally arises—What could be more delightful than a Great Lakes trip, where the air is pure, the sun shines and cool refreshing breezes blow?

Few people realize with what ease and speed a trip from the East to Fort William and Winnipeg, can be made via the Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Express Steamships. You can leave Toronto 12.45 noon Tuesday or Saturday and arrive Winnipeg 9.40 p. m. Thursday or Monday. Fifty-seven hours from Toronto to Winnipeg: twelve hours faster than any other service. For those who wish to leave on different days in the week, and have a little more time on the water, the trip can be made leaving Toronto 12.45 noon Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, arriving in Winnipeg 11:40 a.m. Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

If you are contemplating a trip, don't let this slip your memory. Canadian Pacific Steamships make the fastest time, have the best of accommodation and the table is unexcelled. Full particulars, and reservations on trains and ships, at every Canadian Pacific Ticket Office.

BEAUTIFY THE HANDS

Much Care is Needed to Keep Them Plump and Pretty

Nothing is uglier than an uncared for hand, with broken blackened nails and yellow, dried skin, to say nothing of knuckle and wrist bones that are poorly clothed with flesh. Many maids and matrons will spend many minutes daily fussing with their complexions and hair, with never a thought to their hands, except a casual and hurried cleansing once or twice daily. This is not the way to obtain beautiful hands.

To begin with, it is of the utmost importance that the hands should be kept immaculately clean. You can not scrub and scour them too much. Remember that once every day she who desires smooth hands must fill up a basin with hot soft water, and, seizing upon a cake of soap and a stiff bristled nail brush, proceed to give her hands a tip-top cleansing. Rub and scrub until you feel that every bit of grime has been dislodged.

The next thing for you to do is to dry the hands. This is something most women fail to do. They think they dry them, but in nine cases out of ten a great deal of moisture remains on the skin. The result of this imperfect drying comes later, when the hands prematurely begin to age; to grow brown and rough and wrinkled. The moral of this is that you must friction your hands, after they have had a bath, with a dry towel for three or four minutes. Do not stop until every bit of water has been absorbed.

No woman likes to possess knuckle and wrist bones with hardly a shred of flesh on them. The southern way of procuring plump hands is to soak the hands for 15 minutes in a bowlful of water as hot as can be endured. When the time is over the hands must be taken out of the steaming water and put in a cream bath. What is this? A bowl filled half full with some good hand food, and thinned with warm sweet almond oil. Into this beautifying mixture plunge the hands, and keep them immersed for full 10 minutes. If this treatment is taken often and the cream is allowed time to sink into the pores of the skin, the hands will soon grow plump as plump can be. Here is a dainty hand cream:

Cotton seed oil	15 ounces
Spermaceti	2½ ounces
White wax	2½ ounces
Oil of lavender flowers	12 drops
Rosewater	7½ ounces

Blunt tipped fingers are never pretty, so why not try to make them shapely? Begin lightly pinching the ends of your fingers, pressing the sides of the fingers between the thumb and second finger. The girl in the picture knew just how this pinching operation was done. You cannot expect results for many months, but if you continue squeezing your blunt fingertips, eventually they will have to succumb to the inevitable and taper.

A daily massage for the hand that chaps easily is imperative, as only in this way can the skin be kept smooth as satin. After you have kneaded and rubbed and frictioned your hands for several minutes at night with cream-smeared fingers, coat the skin lavishly with cream. Then draw on a pair of gloves, two sizes too large. When this treatment has been taken several nights in succession, your hands will come to be rough and scaly.

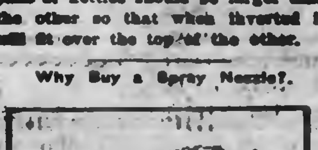
CAMP OVEN MADE WITH TWO BAKING PANS

pans or kettles should be larger than the other so that when inverted it will fit over the top of the other.

Why Buy a Spray Nozzle?



A nozzle for garden hose that throws only a straight stream can be made to spray by the attachment of a triangular piece of wire netting to the end. The base of the triangle is made long enough to permit the ends to meet around the nozzle just below the outlet. This will cause the apex of the angle to bend over the outlet, but at an angle and the angle is sufficient to deflect the water in a fine spray. The netting is attached tightly to the nozzle with wire.

IN THE GARDEN

Keep the hedges clipped.

Thin the apples and plums if too heavily loaded.

Keep the cultivator and weeder going. They not only kill weeds, but conserve moisture.

Keep the sweet peas picked. It is better for the plants, and the house can be made more attractive by their use.

Keep the new strawberry bed clean cultivated until the runners are matted too much to permit the cultivator to go through.

If the strawberry plants are vigorous, and the bed not too weedy, it may pay to renovate it for another year. Mow the plants close to the ground, rake off the foliage and burn it. Plow a furrow, cutting out all but about one foot of the row, and then go through and take out the weeds and diseased plants in this row. Fill the furrow with thoroughly rotted manure and cultivate the soil back. Keep up a thorough cultivation of the soil all the season.

SHANTYMEN OF CANADA

A Splendid Virile Type That Has Not Changed in Seventy Years

Of all classes of laborers, the Eastern Canada shantyman—particularly the French-Canadian woodsman of Quebec Province—is the most strenuous, while at the same time the most genial of workers.

Skilful in all that pertains to logmaking and the use of the axe, which he has learned to handle from early childhood, he is ever at home in the forests and wilds. Like the Indian, were he unable to find his campground before nightfall, he would assure that it was not he, but the camp, that is lost, for he is at home everywhere in the forest, while cold and hardship have no terrors for him, since he can usually make himself comfortable in spite of the worst conditions imaginable.

Tracing the history of the shantyman through romantic legends, the impression is gained that those of the early lumbering days were of the toughest and most formidable character—physical giants with whom the shantymen of the present day would be but miserably contrasted. From truer, though less romantic sources, it is found, however, that those old bushwhackers could not chop more logs in a given time than the present day lumbermen. In fact, the whole system of log-making in Eastern Canada is, with few exceptions, the same today as it was sixty or seventy years ago.—British Columbia Magazine.

BAGGED A HUGE LION

Member of British Parliament Has Close Call During African Hunt

Captain P. H. Glazebrook, M.P. for South Manchester, had a thrilling escape from a lion whilst shooting in the wilds of Somaliland.

The story centres round the lion's fight against the rifles of Captain Glazebrook and his companion, Lieut. George Wilbraham. The honors ultimately rested with the sportsmen, and, as the firer of the first shot, Lieut. Wilbraham was able to bring home the largest lion that has fallen to the gun of a western sportsman.

The lion made a night attack upon a donkey that had been used for baggage purposes by the travellers. Lieut. Wilbraham was in waiting in the zareba, and, seizing his heavy rifle, which was lying handy, he sent three shots into the beast. There was a terrible roar, followed by silence. Captain Glazebrook and his companion approached cautiously to where they believed the brute to be hiding. When five yards distant they halted, and the Somali attendants, from behind the sportsmen, tried the effect of throwing stones at the lion, but it was too cunning. It still made no move. Thereupon Captain Glazebrook, believing that it was dead, approached still nearer.

The lion saw his opportunity, and leaped. The sportsmen however, maintained an admirable nerve. Both emptied a rifle into the angry beast, with the result that it rolled dead six inches from the foot of the member for South Manchester. Lieut. Wilbraham's shot pierced the heart, whilst Captain Glazebrook's entered the mouth, and passed through the head, smashing the skull into five pieces. The total length of the lion before skinning was 10 feet 6 inches, or an inch longer than the previous record lion.

MIXED FARMING

Vice-President Bury is Much Interested in the Subject

Vice-president Bury, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, while in Calgary returning from a trip to the Coast, said the company is very much interested in the question of mixed farming, and will do everything in its power to encourage the farmers to engage to a greater extent in this branch of agriculture. He believed that more mixed farming was essential to the welfare of the country and it is astonishing to find so much agricultural produce being imported. "On this trip," he said, "I was served with butter from New Zealand, mutton from Australia, fruit from the United States, marmalade from England, and potatoes from Virginia. At Vancouver I noticed a shipment of twenty-five carloads of condensed milk from Eastern Canada being loaded on a vessel for export. All these articles should be produced in Western Canada."

AGRICULTURE AT COAST

Development of the Farming Industry in British Columbia

Agriculture is more and more giving promise of becoming to British Columbia what it has already become to the Provinces of the prairies—not only the staple, but the leading industry. This Province produced in the year 1911 agricultural products valued at $21,641,928, an increase for the year of $7,242,828, or 50.3 per cent. This sum of nearly twenty-two millions was made up in large part as follows: Milk, $3,295,000; fruit and vegetables, $5,084,241; hay, $4,912,566; grain, $3,160,227; eggs, $255,112; honey, $25,172. These figures are official and are from a bulletin issued recently by the Department of Agriculture at Victoria. To their total one must add the year's share of the ten million dollars' worth of live stock held on the farms and ranches of the Province. This would bring the value of farm products for the twelve months within easy distance of the output of British Columbia's two greatest industries, mining and lumbering and would place it far in the lead of fishing, the next industry. The mines of the Province yielded in 1911 $23,211,816; the forests, $24,822,000, and the fisheries, $11,000,000.

GIRLS AS HUSBAND HUNTERS

Experience Proves They Don't Want Much Help in Choosing a Life Partner

To the many fads of vocational training in the public schools a new one was proposed at the recent Teachers' Institute in Cincinnati by Doctor Holmes, a psychologist of the University of Pennsylvania. He says, "All teachers should teach their girl pupils how to distinguish a real man from an imitation one. When a girl marries she is married to the family of the man for four or five generations back. If his grandparents were deficient she will have to expect trouble with her children."

There is a certain sex partiality in the inference that the proposed instruction be given only girl pupils, remarks the New York World. Surely, on equal grounds, boys should be taught to know a real girl from an imitation one. A boy may not have to marry a girl's family five generations back, but he certainly has to accept the old folks, and if he has been careless he will have to expect trouble with his mother-in-law.

But waiving the issue of partiality and considering only the vocation of the girl as husband chooser, very little reflection will bring out the well nigh hopeless absurdity of the proposed education. Nearly three thousand years of experience recorded in tales and histories proves that the more a girl is taught and educated to marry a particular man the more she doesn't do it. And who shall decide between what is a real man and what the imitation? Can any school teacher do it better than the school girl of marriageable age?

GENERAL DECREASE IN THE LAND VALUES

The Globe's Correspondent Indicates What is Taking Place in Free Trade England

"It is learned that among the farms ranging from 2,000 to 10,000 acres less than 5 per cent. have shown an annual profit in the last ten years. One writer in The Daily Mail goes into details in regard to a Midland farm of 2,100 acres, valued at £13,772 under the Finance Act, but which ten years ago could have been sold for three times that amount. The receipts from this farm amounted in 1912 to £1,322 7s 10d, and the expenditure to £22 5s 5d, plus that amount.

Owing to the general fall in the value of land the landlord has lost a large capital sum since he came into possession. It is calculated that in England the capital value of land fell by over £100,000,000 or $500,000,000 within a generation, and his due proportion of the national loss has fallen on this landlord. If put into the open market the estate would probably not fetch nearly £30,000, but if it sold at half this price the landlord would be richer than he now is by several hundreds of pounds a year.

"One need not go into his reasons for holding, but it is clear that at present he acts as a sort of agricultural credit bank to the estate. Whatever requires capital to be done he does. When the farmers were in a bad way he reduced the rents to a minimum. In the eyes of both farmers and laborers, schoolmaster and parson, who complete the population he is regarded as the pivot of the organization. Without his capital there would be chaos, and without his personality much less confidence, which is the moral side of credit."

BOON TO THE BALDHEADED

The bald-headed are likely to take an interest in what the Budapest papers describe as the sensational invention of Dr. Szekely.

The doctor recently explained to the Society of Hungarian Physicians his method of implanting hair in a bald scalp. He ties together an extremely thin gold wire and sterilized hair, implanting the latter by means of a thin injection syringe in the scalp where it is fixed with small hooks of gold wire. He states that in this painless way he can implant 300 to 500 hairs per hour. Of course the hair will not grow, and the transplantation only produces a new kind of wig.

Dr. Szekely presented to his colleagues three men wearing these wigs, which could not be distinguished from natural hair.

A SHINING EXAMPLE

"He must forever shed lustre on our young nation," says Hon. James Young, biographer, in giving his impression of the late Hon. Edward Blake. He adds:

"I have known a considerable number of distinguished statesmen and other eminent and other men, and so far as my judgment goes Mr. Blake possessed at once the most powerful, most acute, and most cultivated intellect of any person I ever had the pleasure to meet. He was the soul of honor. He would never even overstate the argument against an opponent, but this rather strengthened his supremacy as the most powerful and effective parliamentary debater heard within the ornate walls of our Canadian House of Commons. He was popular both in the House and in the country, won many supporters wherever he addressed the people, was a constructive statesman of a very high order. That he did not accomplish all that he had intended in his heart to do for Canada, gives a touch of pathos to Mr. Blake's life and career. But he did enough to prove himself the greatest of all native Canadians and his remarkable gifts as a jurist, a statesman, and a patriot, coupled with all the graces of a Christian gentleman, must forever shed lustre on our young and furnish a shining example for the youth of Canada to admire and to follow."

TABLOID INFORMATION REGARDING BALKANS

The population of Turkey consists of an extraordinary mixture of races. In European Turkey, the Turks are about 2,000,000, the Greeks and Bulgarians, 1,300,000, and the Albanians 1,500,000. In Asia the Turks are about 7,000,000, the Kurds 1,000,000, the Greeks 1,000,000 and the Armenians over 2,000,000; while the rest is made up of Servians, Jews, Persians, Gipsies, Tartars, Circassians, etc.

The Balkans is the name given to the Balkan Peninsula, which includes the following countries: Turkey in Europe, with its possessions, Macedonia and Albania; Bulgaria, with Eastern Rumelia; Servia; Montenegro; and Greece.

Servia is an agricultural country, where almost every peasant cultivates his own freehold. There is no pauperism in the sense in which it is understood in the West. There are a few poor people in Belgrade, the capital, but neither their poverty nor their number has necessitated an institution like a workhouse.

Bulgaria is a very small country, with a total population of only a little over 4,000,000, or rather less than Ireland, which it only slightly exceeds in area.

EXCLUSIVE JOCKEY CLUB

Duke of Connaught and Son Prince Arthur Both Members

All Royal princes who desire to become members of The Jockey Club—England's most exclusive sporting organization—are elected without ballot. At the time when the prince, who was to become King Edward VII., was elected, the only other members of Royal blood were the King of Holland and his son, the Prince of Orange. The King of Holland was a generous contributor to the English turf, and gave many rich prizes to be run for, principally at Ascot and Goodwood. This will explain the "Orange course" at the latter. It took some doing, as it was very little short of three miles.

Another Royal Prince was elected to the Jockey Club at a recent meeting of that body. This was the popular Prince Arthur of Connaught, whose father is also a member. The present King was made a member after the accession of his father to the throne in 1901. There is no other instance beyond the Duke of Connaught of "father and son" who are members of the club. Lord Derby had a seat in the Jockey Club during the lifetime of his father, and so had the Duke of Richmond.

It is something for the Scots Greys to say that they are the only regiment to supply to the Jockey Club one of its members—a real soldier actively engaged in soldiering. H.R.H. is a major in that regiment.

Other kings and princes that have been members of the Jockey Club than those we have mentioned are the Emperor of All the Russias, the King of the Belgians, the Grand Duke Michael, the Grand Duke Vladimir, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge, the Khedive, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

The Girl Who Thinks.

"My estrangement, if you can call it that, from my mother, dated from the moment I began to think," says a writer under the title of "My Mother Didn't Tell Me," in Harper's Bazar. "I had been very much a 'mother's girl.' My mother and I planned my frocks, we sewed a great deal together, we chatted together, we read poetry aloud together, and also a good deal of modern fiction. My mother was very fond of books, and kept abreast of the times. Our companionship was of a very beautiful sort and still is—as long as I keep within those prescribed limits and as long as I do not venture into any question that has to do with the life or thought of the country today. My mother is as much interested in my frocks today, now that I am twenty-seven, as she was when I was seventeen. She still has that interest in books, nor does her dislike of the tendency of modern thought extend very far into literature."

Busy German Women.

In Germany there is a total number of 11,000 women filling honorary positions in cities and on charity boards. In 155 municipalities seven thousand women are in active service for the care of the poor and of orphans. In 115 towns there are women serving on school boards.

COST COLUMBUS $7,200

Ledgers recently discovered at Palos, Spain, contain interesting facts concerning the outlay made by Christopher Columbus on his expedition to the New World. The armament of the little fleet cost 14,000 pesetas. The personal expenses of Columbus and his officers were about 3,000 pesetas, and six pesetas a month sufficed for each of the crew, so that 22,050 pesetas, or about $4,400, were spent for the eight months that the voyage lasted. The sum total whereby America was discovered was 36,000 pesetas, or about $7,200.

HORSE WAS SHOCKED

A farmer tied his horse to a telephone pole, about the base of which hoop-iron bands had been placed as protectors and the end of a telephone wire had been tied. The latter crossed an electric wire and the horse putting its nose against the post where the iron bands and the telephone wire met became a conductor for the electricity, and lost two teeth, and was put in to dreamland. Two men who came to the rescue received lesser shocks, but managed to pull the animal away and save its life.

Squirrels in Siberia

Last year 4,825,000 grey squirrels, 1,500,000 white hares, 200,000 ermine, and 12,250 sables were killed in Siberia to provide various garments of fur.

BOILING WATER FOR FROST BITES

Dr. J. M. Johnston Claims it is a Real Cure in Spite of Popular Fancy

Frost bite, frozen ears, noses and fingers may be cured without any ill effects by boiling water, according to Dr. J. M. Johnston, Toronto. The doctor stated that in spite of the popular fallacy to the contrary boiling water was the best remedy which could be used. He had said, used it himself and on his patients, and it always gave perfect results. Dr. Johnston told of experiments on rabbits, which were carried on in Germany. The ears of a rabbit were frozen, one of which was treated with boiling water, and the other with various other cures. The result, he said, was always the same. The boiling water cure worked while the others were quite inadequate, and often brought on serious complications.

Diagnosis Wrong for Once.

"It's a dangerous thing," said the physician, "to jump at a diagnosis before getting all you can of the patients' personal history. I knew a doctor who while still a young man had attained considerable repute as a specialist in nervous diseases. One day a man visited him with a tale of woe, and after listening the physician leaned back in his chair, joining his finger tips with the true professional air, and said:

"'What you need, my dear sir, is a broader vision. You have got into a rut. You ought to read more. Get the opinions of able writers on the current topics of the day. Your mind has become stagnant. It has been dulled by the petty commonplaces of your own little sphere. Read the newspapers. Get familiar with what is on in this country—in the world. By the way, may I ask what is your occupation?'

"'I'm an exchange editor,' replied the patient with a melancholy smile."

Did Boy Steal Canoe?

A Juvenile Court was held yesterday morning, with Magistrate Rush presiding. A boy of about 14 years of age, was charged with stealing and selling a canoe. The boy claimed to have found the canoe floating on Little Lake. The case was enlarged for one month.

Local Baseball News.

Manager Shaughnessy of the Ottawa team yesterday released Pitcher Lill, who started Monday against Peterborough. He will go to the Brantford Club, who are sadly in need of pitchers. The Ottawa twirling staff has been augmented by the arrival of Pitcher Kane, of Zainsville, and some one had to go.

Snow in Victoria County.

Lindsay Post: Heavy hail storms are reported to have occurred Sunday at many places in the district. Dunsford, Downeyville, and Janetville all were visited by heavy storms of thunder, rain and hail. Many report the hail stones to have been exceptionally large. Janetville was visited by both hail and a little snow.

Brakesman's Narrow Escape

Lindsay Post: On Saturday the G.T.R. granite train operating on the Coboconk line met with a mishap. A collision occurred between cars during shunting operations, and a couple of "battleships," (coal cars) were upset. The black diamonds were scattered about and a brakeman was completely buried in the material. He escaped unhurt.

Prominent Railway Man Here.

The Times had the pleasure of a call yesterday from Mr. J. J. Rose, Canadian Passenger Agent of the Union Pacific System, and Mr. Burton H. Bennett, General Agent, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway. They spent the day in the city, returning to Toronto in the evening.

A New Cop.

To replace P. C. Bullied, who has resigned, Chief Thompson has secured the services of W. Tupper, a native and resident of Anstruther township. Tupper is now a regular member of the police force of this city. Tupper is about 25 years of age and of husky build, and will no doubt "make good."

Fire Near the Ball Grounds.

Yesterday at about 2 p.m., the fire alarm rang up "34." The number is located at the west side of the city. However, the Brigade was quickly on the scene of the fire which was located just south of the ball grounds. A chemical soon put out the blaze of grass and underbrush, which had it not been for the prompt and efficient efforts of the gallant boys in blue, might easily have set fire to the baseball grandstands.

Another Blacklister's Fairy Tale

At yesterday's police court, a young man of the city, a blacklister, pleaded guilty to having been drunk. The defendant, in the witness box, examined by License Inspector Stewart, said he got his liquor from a shantyman, whose name he did not know. He was fined $1.

Lindsay Banker's Close Call

Lindsay Warder: What came near being a drowning fatality occurred on Sunday at Sturgeon Point, when a young local banker took cramps while in swimming. It appears that a number of Lindsay young men, including four or five young bankers, were in swimming in the vicinity of Mrs. Walkey's restaurant. Wilson, teller in the Bank of Montreal, was among the number, and being a good swimmer, ventured out a considerable distance. On swimming in towards the shore he was suddenly seized with cramps and he was quickly rendered hors de combat. Fortunately his friends noticed his predicament and Mr. O. Sharpe, of the Standard Bank went to his assistance in a canoe.

Sanitary Inspector on Job.

Sanitary Inspector Spence was on duty at an ungodly hour yesterday morning. Mr. Spence had warned the boarders of two Italian boarding houses that the Ontario Health Act must not be infringed. Mr. Spence had given warning and then he followed up by a midnight visit. In a house on Victoria avenue, there was nothing seriously wrong, except that five men were sleeping in one room, which was scarcely large enough for two, and the windows were closed and chimney holes were stuffed with old clothes. The room contained a very high percentage of carbonic acid gas, and the supply of oxygen had been exhausted several hours before. He also visited other places, and found unhealthy conditions.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. C. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Patrick Fitzgerald.

The death occurred yesterday morning in Otonabee, of Patrick Fitzgerald, aged 57. The deceased was highly respected throughout the community.

The late Mr. Fitzgerald had only been ill a few days and his death was a shock to his many friends.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife and six children, three sons, Joseph, Vincent and Raymond, of Otonabee, and three daughters, Mary Kathleen and Loretta.

A sad feature of Mr. Fitzgerald's demise is that his brother, William of Indian River, passed away on Sunday morning and was buried this morning.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning.

FOR THE NEWLY WEDS

Try to avoid the too common mistake of making an unwise effort to "begin where the parents ended."

Try going a step further, and visit the homes of the suffering poor when secret dissatisfaction is liable to spring up.

Try being perfectly independent from the first, and shun debt in all its forms.

Try to co-operate cheerfully in arranging the family expenses, and share equally in any necessary self-denials and economies.

Try to be cheerful in the family circle, no matter how annoying may be the business cares and the housekeeping trials.

FIGHT WITH FISTS

Fine for One and Black Eye for the Other

The story of a duel, with the hand and heart of a girl as the prize, was told in a Chicago court. It was not a French duel, with toy pistols or rapiers, nor an Italian duel with the deadly stiletto, nor an Irish duel with shillalahs, nor a German duel with sabers, but a modern duel with doubled fists and hard knuckles for weapons.

Accompanied by two blackened eyes and a crestfallen look, Pete Jonson stood before the bar of justice and told Judge Gemmill the story. He pointed to Miss Ada Christiansen, who stood beside Axel Anderson.

"You see, we both went to see the same girl," he said. "I went up to see Miss Christiansen at her home Sunday night and found him there. We fought it out to see who should stay, and you can see what he did to me."

"I certainly can," said Judge Gemmill, "and I am going to fine him $1 and costs." But Jonson still wore his crestfallen look when Miss Christiansen left with the victorious duelist.

Glove Hints

It is bad style to have the long mousquetaire glove too tight, making the arm look wooden. It should have any number of folds, and because of this, they should be made of the very finest kid, otherwise they degenerate into wrinkles. Even in evening dress it is correct to have the shoes and gloves matching each other in color, whether cream, pink, blue or pale yellow.

EXCELLENT SERVICE TO MUSKOKA LAKES VIA CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Fast Muskoka Express leaves Toronto 11.50 a.m. daily, except Sunday, carrying parlor car, cafe-car and first-class coaches, arriving Bala 3.40 p.m., where district connection is made for all points on the lakes. Improved facilities for passengers at Bala Wharf.

Everyone should endeavor to visit this delightful resort, especially those subject to hay fever, as the atmospheric conditions offer immunity from this malady.

VOL. XL, NO. 172 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1913 PRICE TWO CENTS.

THE NAVAL TEST NOW ON CHURCHILL IS IN THE FRAY

Follows Fleets in Admiralty Yacht--Either Side Could Capture Him

London, July 23.—A mimic naval war which promises to settle some vital problems of Empire defence began yesterday. The whole assemblage of 347 ships divided into a "red" or attacking fleet of the enemy, and the "blue" or defending fleet. The latter is the stronger, consisting of 24 battleships, three battle cruisers, 27 heavy ships in all eight cruiser squadrons, two light cruiser squadrons, a squadron of mine layers, five destroyers, flotillas numbering 100 boats, and four submarine flotillas.

The Problem.

The problem to be solved is whether an enemy, such as Germany, with this greatly inferior strength, can land troops in sufficient force to paralise British credit, intimidate public security, and impede oversea food supplies without which England would starve in three weeks. Nothing transpired in connection with Government's numerous ships to give a clue to the exact locality where the antagonist may first make contact or where the landing likely will be attempted. The bulk of the enemy's fleet, with the exception of some torpedo craft yesterday were at Nore while the main defending force was distributed between Scarpa Flow and Cromarty, with some smaller vessels further south.

Mr. Churchill in Danger.

It is more than likely before "war" begins the fleet will take up certain specified positions at sea, unknown to one another. Probably a raid upon the telegraph or signal stations will be essayed, the capture of Poldhu and the destruction of the wireless station there would be a great disaster to the "Blues" and most advantageous to the enemy. It is understood Mr. Churchill issued orders from the Admiralty directing operations.

BIG CHANGES IN BRITAIN'S EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM SOON

Asquith Government Will Rise Compulsory Age, Feed Needy Pupils, Provide Playgrounds, and Inspect private Schools

London, July 23.—The Asquith Government is planning an educational revolution. Rt. Hon. J. A. Pease, Minister of Education, yesterdayforecasted a scheme to be introduced next year by which the local authorities will retain control, the big boroughs having complete autonomy and the rural districts being supervised by Provincial Councils with administrative powers.

The compulsory school age is to be raised above fourteen. Elementary schools are to provide effectively for the physical well being of children. They will feed needy scholars on Sundays and holidays, besides school days. They will provide baths, playing fields, nursery schools, and medical supervision. They will have the power to prosecute parents for cruelty to children. The secondary examination will be made within the reach of all, every authority being compelled to provide acomplete system of progressive education within its area. The Government evidently contemplates assuming the oversight of private schools, which Mr. Pease severely criticised.

The new policy will admittedly be enormously expensive. The present limit of the local education rate will be removed and substantial exchequer grants provided. Mr. Pease described the scheme as large and costly but declared that the Government is prepared to force the bill through.

The religious issue is avoided, save that provision will be made to remedy the grievances of the Nonconformist children in single school areas, where voluntary schools are to be retained for the present.

MEN HELD ON $25,000 THEFT REGINA POLICE SCENT SCANDAL

James Wreford Put on Trial for Taking C. P. R. Funds --More Arrests in Prospect--Sensation is Foreshadowed

Regina, July 23.—Sensational developments were expected to-day as the result of the trial of James Wreford, held on a charge of stealing $25,386 from the C.P.R. Four other charges are to be laid against Wreford at the conclusion of the present hearing. When arrested Wreford was found to have several trunks containing goods valued at several hundred dollars which are said to have been stolen. More arrests are in prospect and those in close touch with the case state that one of the gravest scandals in the history of Canadian railroads likely will be unearthed.

COUNTY JUDGES WELCOMED IN CITY

The Board of County Judges for Ontario commenced its customary sessions in Judge Huycke's Chambers yesterday morning, this being the second time that they have convened outside the legislative building in Queen's Park, Toronto. The members of the Board are His Honor Judge McDonald, of Brockville, the Dean of the Board; Judge Chadwick, of Guelph, Judge Huycke of Peterborough, Judge Hardy of Brantford, and Judge Harding of Lindsay. Mr. J. Bruce McDonald, Inspector of Division Courts, is also a member, and is present with Mr. T. Locke, of Toronto, secretary of the Board.

As a deputation from the Bar Association there were present Messrs. R. E. Wood, E. L. Goodwill, S. T. Medd, W. H. Moore, K.C., Daniel O'Connell, G. N. Gordon, etc.

Mr. R. E. Wood, on behalf of the Bar Association of Peterborough, welcomed the Board of Judges to the City of Peterborough.

PETERBOROUGH AFTER ANOTHER BIG FACTORY

Lindsay Post: A gentleman from Peterbotough who visited Lindsay to-day informed a Post reporter that the Electric City was very much interested in the outcome of the vote on the Cole-Burger by-law on Thursday.

If the by-law was defeated here, negotiations, he stated, would at once commence with the firm with a view to having them locate in that city. They were prepared to offer Cole and Burger tempting inducements, as inquiries had been made regarding the possibilities of the new industry, as well as the extent of the demand for the goods manufactured.

When asked by a reporter if Peterborough considered the industry a valuable one for any town, he remarked, "Peterborough only gets after the best of them, and that is why we are anxious to negotiate with Cole-Burger. We are not going to try and steal it, but if Lindsay don't want it, why pass it along."

The Peterborough man was greatly taken up with Lindsay's permanent roadways, and felt that Peterborough should adopt the same system.

TWO WIVES CLAIM MAN NOW HELD AS SLAYER

Montreal, July 23.—"I married him in New York in 1899, and intend to take him back home to California with me."

"I married him in Napanee, One., in 1904, and have lived with him ever since."

Such are the claims of Pasquale Ferratta's two "wives" one of whom arrived here yesterday from California; and the other who has lived in Montreal for some time. Ferratta is behind the bars of the jail charged with the murder of an Italian named Patillio, who was killed in Fresno, Cal., in 1904.

That the case will be fought out in the courts of Ontario was made evident this morning when the two women, each accompanied by a brother, sought the advice of Judge Basin. He told them that the courts of Quebec could have nothing to do with the case.

Gionvanni Patillio came here from Napanee to-day to be at his sister's side. This morning he sought a warrant for bigamy against the man charged with murder, but could not get it. The California wife has in her possession a license which she claims demonstrates that Ferratta married her.

The Napanee wife also has a wedding certificate and three children.

MR. COCHRANE'S TRIP UP NORTH

Is Delighted With the Waterway--Sees Several Deputations

"I want to see Peterborough as well as the Canal," said Hon. Frank Cochrane. "I have been told a good deal about your needs and your outlook, and I would like very much to see what you are like." That was the Minister's rejoinder to the question: "How long will you be with us?" The Minister arrived unexpectedly at 7 p.m. on Monday evening from Heeley's Falls by motor and put up at the Oriental. After dinner those desirous of interviewing him were introduced by Mr. Burnham.

Mr. Denham, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Munro and the Mayor wanted to know what the policy of the Government was going to be regarding conservation. The Minister made it clear that the Dominion Government's end of it would be well looked after. Mr. Duignan and Mr. Crane represented the lumbermen who also wanted to know.

On Tuesday morning, as already stated in yesterday's issue of The Times, the party was driven to the C. G. E., and the Quaker Oats works both of which the Minister expresed a desire to see. He was impressed with their extent and requirements.

Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., who had come up from Havelock on Tuesday morning, went on to Lindsay, to the laying of Col. Hughes's corner stone, while the party composed of the Minister, Mr. Bowden, Chief Engineer of the Department, Mr. Ferguson, M.L.A., Mr. Irwin, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Patterson and Mr. Burham, motored to Nassau, where the dam is to be immediately re-placed by a new one.

Mr Shook and Mr. Davidson laid the Dickson Company's request before the Minister at Lakefield, respecting the new dam to be erected at Lakefield. "We will give nothing any more for nothing," said the Minister. "The people are all entitled to a share in the good things and our natural resources must be administered accordingly."

The Minister expressed a desire to see what the tourist traffic was like, and the cruise was extended through Stoney Lake, which did itself proud from every point of view. "This beats the St. Lawrence and the 1000 Islands," exclaimed the Minister. At Burleigh the new dam was inspected and commended. When the new lock is built the water will be raised at least four feet at Burleigh. This will mean a greatly increased power and extensive conservation.

At this point Mr. Burnham recited the wrong done the people when Burleigh power was handed over to a private Company. "We'll see about that," replied the Minister. "I don't think it is too late by any means to have this great asset restored to its rightful owners. You know the Ontario Government has a good deal to say about some of these things and should be waked up. I am glad to see you are trying to get things into clear and definite shape, order out of chaos, you know."

At Buckhorn the party inspected the celebrated Buckhorn dam. Mr. Cochrane again denounced the alleged bargain of the late Minister with the County Council as having been made wholly without payment for it of any kind. "Now, Mr. Cochrane," said Mr. Burnham, "You clearly said that you would carry out that bargain if I could get the late Minister to say what he meant. After a whole year's toil I got the first record on paper of the matter ——" "Well, we'll see, we'll see, but it never should have been done," said the Minister.

The deputation to consider the flooded Harvey road and the Gannon's Narrows bridge, consisting of W. T. Elliott, William Clarkson, David Weir and James Weir boarded the Bessie Butler at the Minister's invitation and accompanied him to the Narrows. They laid all their plans before him. "That's one of the best and most sensible deputations I ever met," the Minister told Mr. Burnham afterwards. "Our people are all like that," was the reply. "Is there any hope for Dominion help for the bridge?" "There certainly is. Those men were very fair and candid about it. The day is gone by for humbug, I hope, at least, in our business affairs," replied the Minister.

From Bobcaygeon, Mr. Kendry went to Orillia with the party, the others returning to Peterborough over roads that need improvement badly. Are the days of the corduroy coming back? It looks like it.

BIDDING WAS LIVELY ON THE CHEESE BOARD

The Bidding.

Mr. Watkins opened at 12¾c; Mr. Kerr made it 12 15-16, and Mr. Gillespie raised to 13c. Mr. Cook bid 13 1-16c, and Mr. Kerr made things interesting by going to 13⅛c; Mr. Cook came back with 13 3-16c, and called Westwooh, Selwyn, Villiers, Ormonde, Norwood, and offered 13⅛c for further selections.

Mr. Kerr offered 13⅛c for the balance of the board and Mr. Cook made 13 3-16c for selections. Mr. Kerr then offered 13 3-16c for the balance of the board and secured the following:

Keene, Warminster, Shearer, Central Smith, Warsaw, Oakdale, Daisy D., Myrtle, Lang, Indian River, East Emily, Trewern, Bensfort, (Peterborough inspection), Young's Point, Killarney, Fleetwood.

The cheese will be shipped this week, as it is a three weeks' make that was sold this morning. The Board adjourned for two weeks.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Showery at first, followed by clearing weather.

MR. HAY GIVES REASONS FOR BIG COST OF SEWER

Nicholls Hospital Connections Not Built on the Plans for Which He Estimated--Ald Johnston Thinks Church Grounds and Parks Should be Watered During the Day Time

The City's Board of Works met last night. Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Anderson, Gordon Johnston, McIntyre.

Ex-Mayor Morrow was present and offered that it would be advantageous to build 400 feet of concrete sidewalk westward along the north side of Weller street, parallel with the south facing of the new west ward school.

Mr. W. H. Moore asked that the construction of a concrete curb in front of the Little Lake Cemetery Company's office, on Crescent street be permitted by the city. City Engineer Parson's recommendation that this request be not granted in the ground that the construction of a curb at this point would narrow Crescent street to about 15 feet, was adopted.

Mr. Moore's request for a light (cluster if possible) at the Little Lake cemetery entrance was sent along to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Another Foreman.

Cost of Nicholls Hospital Sewer.

The chairman reported the reasons given by Mr. Hay for increase of $1000 above estimate in cost of construction of sewer connection with Nicholls Hospital. It appears that Mr. Hay's estimate of $375 was for an ordinary connection from the Sunnyside sewer. No plans were furnished by the hospital board. When the work was started the architect, Mr. Blackwell objected to Mr. Hay's plan of procedure on the grounds that the sewer would not be of sufficient depth to serve the furnace and elevator pits. Then, at the hospital board's own request Mr. Hay built the sewer twice the depth and length originally intended, connecting by way of Argyle street, and thus paralleling an existing sewer for the hospital's exclusive service. Mr. Hay, when consenting to this, told the hospital authorities that the work would cost considerably more than estimated. Additional expense was also incurred by reason of big boulders having to be dug out, the hospital board not allowing blasting operations for fear of disturbing the patients. Another unexpected expense occurred through the gas mains being accidentally damaged to the extent of sixty odd dollars through this sewer construction.

The Mayor and Chairman will further report as to if any mutually satisfactory settlement for paving of this work can be effected with the hospital board.

Bridge Over Raceway.

The matter of repairing London street bridge over the raceway was referred to the Mayor and Chairman to interview Mr. Denham, manager of the Quaker Oat's Co., whose property the raceway is. Mr. Denham had written, asking whose property the bridge is and who is really responsible for its upkeep. The City Solicitor advised that this question seems one for joint action on the part of the Quaker Oats Co. and the city.

Use of City Water.

Ald. Johnston offered that the Water Commissioners should make some regulations by which parks and church grounds could be watered during present prohibited hours. It is difficult, he said, to have such work done in the evenings when men are off duty. It is not fair to expect men, after working all day, to return at night for two or three hours.

The Mayor, Chairman and Ald. Johnston were named a committee to wait upon the Water Commissioners with a view to getting permission for church grounds and public places watered in the day time.

In this connection the suggestion that the Commissioners' regulations concerning the use of water for sprinkling purposes is in the interests of all, and should be adhered to, elicited a warm retort from Ald. Johnston to the effect that the Commissioners should not discriminate in enforcing their regulations. "They say they will make examples of all violating their regulations; then why not do so, and not make an example of some poor beggar and permit his wealthier neighbors to use the water as they please?"

THEY WILL NEVER KNOW HOW MANY LIVES THAT FIRE COST

Best Estimate So Far Places Number in Building at 111--Twenty Six Remain Unaccounted for--Forty-Six Were Saved

Binghamyon, N.Y., July 23.—The exact number of persons who perished in the fire in the overall factory of the Binghamton Clothing Company yesterday may never be known. The list of employes is in the company's safe in the ruins, only half a dozen bodies recovered have been identified and many of the missing are unaccounted for.

A rough estimate to-day places the number of those in the building at the time the fire started at 111.

Of these:

Six dead have been identified.

Seven injured are at the hospitals.

Eleven have been reported by relatives as missing.

Forty-six, several of whom were more or less injured, are known to have been saved and twenty-six are unaccounted for.

City officials estimate the death toll to be at least 50, but admit it may reach 60 or more. Physicians expressed the belief that the bodies of several of those lost in the centre of the building would never be accounted for.

District Attorney Meagher announced to-day that a thorough investigation would be made at once as to the cause of the disaster, and to determine the responsibility, if any, for the loss of life.

SARNIA'S REAL SCANDAL

Sarnia, Ont. July 23.—Two married women of Sarnia, accompanied by married men, also of this town, were arrested in a resort in Port Huron last night. The two couples crossed early in the evening and were trailed by the wife of one of the men, who informed the American immigration office, who in turn informed the police. One of the women is the mother of two small children, and she was allowed to return home. The others will stand trial.

START CUTTING FINE CROP

Winnipeg, Man., July 23—Harvesting the 1913 crop in Western Canada commenced to-day, when binders started on the Miller farm at Rose Isle to cut a splendid crop of rye. A start will be made with barley cutting next week. The wheat will be ready for the binder by August 15th.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 75c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 75c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 185 George St., directly opposite Croxman's store.

A TELEPATHIC CLOCK

Here is a strange yet absolutely true story, according to the Liverpool Post, in which a clock plays a mysterious part: It was a small timepiece which stood on a mantel-piece in a sitting room in a Liverpool builder's home. At 11.30 one morning the timepiece fell from the mantel-piece to the floor. When picked up it was found to be quite uninjured and still going, as if nothing unusual had happened. There seemed to be absolutely no reason why it should have fallen, but an hour later when the builder came home to his midday meal he remarked that at 11.30 he fell from the top of a building, but happily without sustaining any injury. His wife then described how the clock had fallen at the same time and the couple ponder in vain over the curious and utterly inexplicable coincidence.

MORMONS ARE ACTIVE

Two Hundred Converts a Day, According to Salt Lake Man

An interview of extraordinary interest was given a Montreal newspaper man by Mr. J. Alton Robb of Salt Lake City, who was on a visit to that city. Mr. Robb studied the Mormon question at first hand over a period of ten years, during which he came into contact with the Mormons in every possible way.

"Seriously and without a single degree of exaggeration," said Mr. Robb, "I have come to the conclusion that the Mormon problem presents features of such grave consequences that it promises to become a national menace to the United States and, I may add, to other countries in a future by no means remote. The success which has attended the great missionary campaign inaugurated by the Mormons three years ago is remarkable. This cult is now firmly entrenched in twenty-four States of the Union and is adding to the lists of its proselytes at the rate of 200 a day throughout the United Sates alone, according to confidential statistics to which I recently gained access."

Rural Delivery

Canadian people are catching on to the advantages of the system of rural mail delivery. Many applications are being received by the post office department, especially from Ontario. There are now 850 rural deliveries 250 of them having been added in the past year. The greater number of applications come from Ontario where most of the routes are now located. Twenty-five thousand delivery boxes have been erected.

MEN-YOU NEED NERVE

Wonderful Nervous System

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

Urging Mixed Farming

Mayor Nelson, Medicine Hat, in the course of an interview in Toronto said that the farmers of the west are just beginning to realize that wheat raising alone cannot compare with mixed farming when it comes to making money. Eggs and butter never go below 75c the dozen and pound in a large section of the west, and now threaten to reach the dollar mark. The cities of the west are now endeavoring to bring this point home to the western farmers, and an organized effort will be made to encourage mixed farming in preference to wheat only. The main argument that is being used in this regard is the fact that bigger money and in shorter time can be made in this way than would be possible from the same effort in wheat.

Four Great Sauces.

A Frenchman has declared that "man has created the culinary art! he does not eat like an animal—he breakfasts, dines and sups."

The French are particularly eloquent on the subject of sauces. Among their famous chefs are recognized four great sauces: Spanish, Veloute, Bechamel and German. The Spanish and Veloute were known as far back as the seventeenth century. In the eighteenth they were modified by the masters of cookery, particularly by Careme, who was called "the Raphael of the Kitchen."

The Spanish sauce is composed of juices extracted from a mixture of ham, veal, chicken and pheasant. Veloute is similar, but is not colored. Bechamel is Veloute to which cream has been added, and the German sauce is Veloute plus the yolks of eggs.—Harper's Weekly.

BIRTHPLACE OF ASTORS

Famous Old House in Montreal to be Torn Down

In the course of demolishing old buildings to make way for modern structures in Montreal there is to be pulled down an historical building.

It is the house in which the Astor family had its birth; that is, so far as the laying of the foundation stone of the fortune of the family is concerned. The original Jacob Astor lived in this house, which looked out upon the river, before the view was obscured; counted his skins in the basement; counted, also, no doubt his profits, as one of the originators of the fur company, which proved a formidable rival to the Hudson's Bay Company and made Montreal its headquarters.

MAN-MADE LIGHTNING A GOOD HAIR DRIER

"I've just had my hair washed and can't do a thing with it." One of the reasons there can't be a "thing" done with hair that has just been washed is that it has not been dried properly. When it is dried before a fan or in the wind it becomes tangled, and in getting out the tangles the owner of the hair fluffs it up so that it is just a flying mass. An electrician who has studied the matter somewhat has devised a means for removing at least a part of the trouble by designing an electric drier. He has combined with a metal comb an ordinary curling iron that can be used either as an iron or a comb. The tines or teeth of the comb are heated by the electric current and dry the hair thoroughly in combing it out.

A Dual Duct

A subway to carry the mails and serve as a duct for underground wires is planned to relieve London's congested streets.

THE STAMP OF PUBLIC APPROVAL

PUBLIC approval of the light beer is most emphatic.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Our idea of a dull town is the one in which there is nothing new except the date of the month.

Because these are dog days may explain why there is so much growling about things in particular.

All of us could stand the dog days much better if they were not so closely connected with the cat nights.

Gow that women are to have trousers, the burning question of the hour is whether they are to button up in the back or in the front.

There is some tall lying going on in the Balkans just now. The imaginative individual who flourished in Shanghai during the Japanese-Russian war, and who was known as the Shanghai liar, must be spending his time between Athens, Sofia and Belgrade at present.

Boston Herald: The rusty nail still gets in its deadly work—as shown in the death of a Waltham boy from lockjaw, and in the return of a veteran from Gettysburg with a serious wound received from a rusty nail on the field where he had fought three days fifty years ago without receiving a scratch.

There may be something in that immortal theory after all. A Chinese doctor, aged 149 years, recently landed at New York. The case of that man says something for the learned profession of medicine as practised in the Orient. But it may be that a century and a half of experience has taught the Mongolian medicine man to partake sparingly of his own pills.

A contemporary says: "A lawyer in a court room may call a man a liar, scoundrel, villain or thief, and no one makes complaint when court adjourns. If a newspaper prints such reflections on a man's character there is a libel suit or a dead editor." This is due, of course to the fact that the reputation of an editor for telling the truth is better than that of a lawyer.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier fears for individual liberties and the fate of popular government. But all of us can afford to be calm and remember that when a man has held office for fifteen years and gets bounced back into private life it is perfectly natural for him to spend much of his time accumulating a bunch of fears.

IDLENESS NO HAPPINESS

A forced lesson in the human nature which rules us all may be gathered from the experience of the young man, who, inheriting a large fortune, was wise enough to realize that no man, rich or poor, can find happiness except in work and accomplishment.

This man, while still in college, fell heir to several millions but tired of the futility of an experience in which there was no element of difficulty left his home and college, obtained employment on the construction line of a railroad, rose on his own merits to be a section boss and now reports himself thoroughly happy.

His action was futile and foolish for one who might use the power of wealth for his pleasure and others' good, it may be said but it shows that he realized the real unhappiness of those who try to be happy without the stress of work, be it self-imposed or necessary for self-support.

No men are more unhappy than those from whom circumstances have removed the pressure which requires hard work, and who have not had either the willingness or foresight to force themselves to tasks which call for their best and utmost endeavour. Often, indeed, it may be seen than nothing would be pleasanter than a life of luxurious idleness, but one has only to see the victims of such living to be disabused of this delusion.

In this country the privileges and responsibilities of great inherited wealth have been but recently experienced, and the very newness of such possession has led many to waste their lives in the futile quest of pleasure. Luckily to-day more and more of the sons of rich men have grown to understand that they can lead a satisfactory existence only if they live much as others do, using their wealth rather to enlarge the results of their work than to escape its call.

It was not, perhaps, the best course for one who had given him the possibilities inherent in large means to divest himself of the responsibility of their disposition and management, but at least it is worth while for any one in this position to learn the lesson of competition, and to realize the rewards that only come from real effort.

Then he can undertake, as the man we have referred to says he yet will, to assume wealth and try to use it for good purposes.

If Breathing is Difficult If Nostrils Are Plugged You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy that already has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestions—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone, which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarrhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharged a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from Catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action results. The large size costs $1.00, begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

SELF-RELIANCE

The farm is the greatest training school in the world for self-reliant men. The farmer and the farmer's sons simply have to do things themselves. There is nobody else around to do them. The farm boy early in life learns to do things, and if he can't accomplish the thing which has to be done one way he casts about for another until he finds out how to do it. This makes him resourceful. It develops in him the ability to find a way out of the difficulties about him. This training follows him all through life, and for this reason he is more apt to be able to take care of himself in almost any situation than the man who has never had to rely on himself. It is this sort of thing which develops manhood. Unfortunate is the boy who is surrounded by luxury conveniences and wealth, for he has little opportunity to learn to depend on himself.

ALMOST TWO HUNDRED UNITED STATES FIRMS IN EASTERN CANADA

Long List of Business Concerns With Branches in Quebec and Ontario--Total Capitalization is Over $230,000,000--Do Not Show Any Fear as to the Commercial Future of the Dominion.

Although certain financial interests in the United States have been leaving only the very smallest stones unturned in their efforts to persuade those of their fellow-citizens who were thinking of emigrating to Canada that blue ruin and financial chaos were just one jump behind the Dominion, United States capitalists do not seem to have been seriously impressed by the arguments presented.

In the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, there are 195 business corporations whose head offices are in the United States, but which have been organized to manufacture goods in Canada for the Canadian and the export trade.

More than half of these companies have been organized in the last five years.

Their total capitalization is $230,000,000, which does not look as though the American investor who is looking for safe as well as remunerative opportunities to place his money was very much afraid of what the commercial future of the Dominion had in store.

When this amount, devoted to manufacturing, is added to the total which the farmer who moves across the border to an Alberta or Saskatchewan wheat ranch brings every year to the country, the expression of confidence in the stability of Canadian investments is as conclusive as it is comprehensive. The Immigration authorities estimate that between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 in cash is brought into the country every year by the farmers who emigrate from the United States.

A partial list of the manufacturing companies whose head offices are in the United States but which have established branches in Eastern and Central Canada is as follows:—

HEALTH HINTS

Avoid needless friction and subsequent worry. Organize yourself as well as your work. Do what you have to do without expending any unnecessary energy.

Don't hurry, either in pleasure-making or at work! The habit is likely to half spoil your pleasure and to make your work slip-shod or incomplete. It does not benefit your physical condition or your mental equilibrium. Give each thing its time. It is possible if you plan it. It is one means of preserving strength.

"Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise" is the old saying. But it has the same significance and is just as true as ever.

Snoring is caused by the flapping of the palate. When two currents of air, one through the nose and the other through the mouth, meet at the edge of the palate this curtain-like appendage flaps backward and forward. The harm of snoring comes from the mouth breathing.

Worry is one of the chief wears on the human body. Don't wear out valuable nerve tissue worrying. Work out your problem to the best of your ability; act in so far as you can. Then wait developments. It's the most healthful way to do.

DO YOU

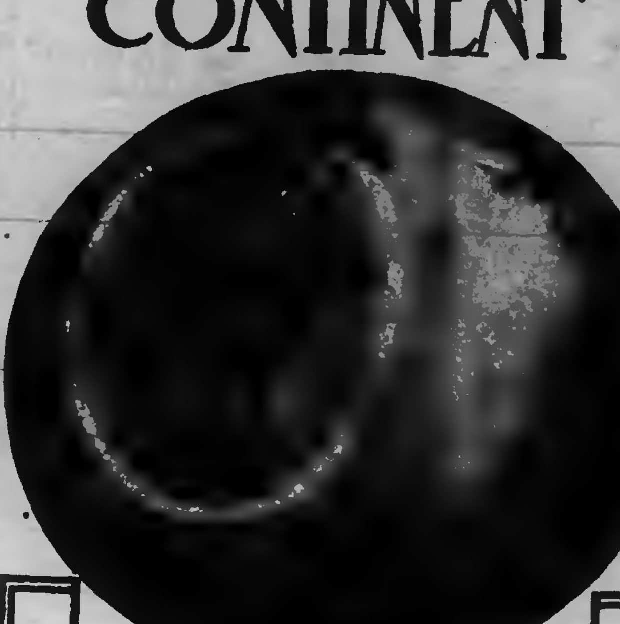
The ISOLATED CONTINENT



By Guido von Horvath and Dean Hoard

CAN you imagine the Republics of America combined under one government as the United Republics of America with a woman as president; when airships travel at the speed of a thousand miles an hour with ease? Although today but a dream, they are not beyond the range of possibilities as described in the new serial we have secured.

A Remarkable Romance of the Future

This fascinating work of fiction takes you to the time when wonderful forces as yet undiscovered are utilized in international warfare and to maintain universal peace. If you want to read a story that surpassed the wildest dreams of H. G. Wells, the famous novelist, don't fail to read

Walnut Creams

Rub half a pound of icing sugar through a sieve, slightly whip the white of an egg, add enough of it with vanilla essence to make a firm paste knead it smooth, divide into two parts coloring one pink or, if liked, into three, making the other green, and if preferred, each one may be differently flavored. Form into a thin roll, cut off half inch pieces, roll into little balls, and press firmly between two halves of walnuts. Smooth the edges and, if liked, brush the cream edge with white of egg and roll in colored sugar, desiccated cocoanut, or chopped pistacio nuts.

Simple Freckle Cure

Two simple but quite satisfactory bleaches and freckle cures for the skin are, buttermilk and sweet cream. These should be used several times a day, being patted on the skin and allowed to dry. Every time you come in from a long out-door jaunt wipe off your face and neck with a piece of old linen soaked in the milk or cream. After a time wipe the coating off with rose water. If you find this too expensive you may substitute water containing a little tincture of benzoin, twelve drops of the latter to a pint of water.

SEVEN THOUSAND MEN WOULD BE REQUIRED TO MANN NAVY

If the Liberal Policy Regarding Two Fleet Unites Prevailed

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, Culy 23.—The Liberal press has devoted a great deal of declamation to the manning of the Canadian warships. They have talked of "empty Dreadnoughts," and have poured scorn on the idea that any of the seamen on the Canadian vessels should be other than Canadians. The Laurier navy recruited only 341 men and boys, about enough to man one light cruiser; but that makes no difference to the Liberals; they must have all the ships manned by Canadians.

What It Would Mean.

Before we quite agree it would be a good idea to ask how many men of the Laurier policy would need. We remember that the Laurier amendment of last session called for the building in Canada, at a cost of about $140,000,000 for plants and ships, of two fleet units. Two fleet units would mean two Dreadnoughts, six light cruisers, twelve destroyers and six submarines.

What They Require.

Each Dreadnought, if of the latest, or "Queen Elizabeth" type, would need rather over 1,000. The "Lion," with eight 13½ inch guns has a complement of 980 men. The "Queen Elizabeth" has eight 15-inch guns and the greater weight of the armament, and the greater size of the ship, would call for more men. Thus the two Dreadnoughts call for over 2,000 men.

The light cruisers presumably would be of much the same type as the "Bristols." Each of these vessels need about 350 men, exclusive of officers. The six others would need 2,100 men.

The destroyers now under construction demand 100 men each. The dozen would require 1,200 men.

The submarines probably would need about 200 men. Crews must be changed frequently, "mother-ships" are needed, and the demand for men can hardly be put lower.

Over Five Thousand

Thus our sum works out thus :—

Two Dreadnoughts	2,000
Six light cruisers	2,100
Twelve destroyers	1,200
Six submarines	200
Total	5,500

And Still More.

Thus to give our two fleet units one crew apiece and no more would call for 5,500 men. But a navy must have more men than one crew for each ship. There must be recruits under elementary training; there must be trained men taking advanced courses of instruction; there are numerous shore duties; and there must be a reserve if losses occur. In the British navy only about two-thirds of the men in the navy are afloat at any one time. If we allow a margin of 50 per cent. as the British navy does, we should need 2,750 additional men, or 8,250 all told. Let us, however, allow only 1,500 additional men, and we see that we should need 7,000 men. We hardly could get on with fewer.

Twelve Thousand Yearly.

Under the Laurier Naval Service Act a man is to serve for seven years in the Canadian Navy. At first sight, if we enlisted 1,000 men each year, in seven years we should have the whole 7,000 and from that time on should have the exact number. This presupposes, however, that there is no "wastage," that not one man dies, loses his health, buys his discharge, or deserts. In practice there is wastage, which has been found to amount to about 5 per cent. a year. Allowing for this, we find that 1,200 men must enlist every year for seven years to keep a force of 7,000 up to strength.

Not So Easy.

Thus the Liberals are clamouring for the enlistment of 1,200 men a year. They themselves enlisted 350 men in two years. The Australians who really have tried, have got about 1,400 recruits in four years. The Canadian Permanent Force needs about 1,000 recruits a year, and get only about one-fifth of the number from the native-born Canadian population. The Royal Northwest Mounted Police need about 200 or more recruits a year, and find it so hard to get them in Canada that the Commissioner at the present moment is in England trying to get recruits there.

Ask the next Liberal speaker you hear saying that Canada should man the ships how he will get 1,200 Canadians to enlist yearly.

LIGNITE CAN BE UTILIZED

Vast Deposits of Power Production at Coal Centres of Saskatchewan

That large quantities of workable lignite deposits in the province of Saskatchewan can be utilized at the coal centres for the production of power and its distribution in parts of the province was the gist of a report made by A. O. Wynn-Roberts after an investigation into the lignite deposits of southern Saskatchewan and their possible utility for powers and fuel purposes.

The report stated that a careful investigation showed that the generation of electrical power is a practicable and commercial possibility. It also stated that the manufacture of lignite gas at the coal fields is practicable and that such gas would be of considerable value for power and heating purposes.

DON'TS FOR WIVES

If a wife or prospective bride wishes to have a happy married life, she may rest assured that her desires will be gratified if she bears in mind the following "don'ts."

Don't marry a man for a living, but for love. Don't over-dress, or the reverse. Common-sense is better than style. Never, when married, get the idea that the way to run a house is to run away from it, or ... t it is right to lecture your neighbors on how to bring up their children, while you are neglecting your own.

Don't nag. Nothing is so likely to send your husband out of the house as that.

SUGAR THE CAUSE OF MANY OF OUR ILLS

Not Much Better Than a Slow Poison According to This German Investigator

Sugar is the cause of many of the ills to which flesh is heir, according to Dr. Robert Roessler, a German, graduate of the University of Berlin and a dentist by profession. He has drawn up an elaborate argument in support of his theory, going back to classic times for the foundation of his argument. Theofrast who about 350 B.C., wrote a book about plants, stated distinctly that sugar was only used for medical purposes. Sugar is neither mentioned in the teachings or diet of Greek athletes nor by the Spartans, although the Greeks knew of sugar. Dioskorides, a Greek physician, living in the year 50, mentioned the sugar as medicine in his Materia Medica. In the ninth century Arabian physicians used sugar (Arabic sukhar) as medicine.

"It is therefore clear that a former medical remedy has been within a century adopted as a food, and has become a great factor in the malnutrition of the people."

Coming down the centuries, Dr. Roessler traces the steadily-increasing consumption of sugar and with it the increasing number of diseases.

"The medical science at first denied," he says, "any injurious effects from the use of sugar, and only the good old public opinion advised against its consumption."

"If certain vegetables," he goes on, "really have a high percentage of nutrition, we must not overlook the fact that there are only a few, and the rest of the vegetables have only a use as a fuel. Primarily, for this reason, the importance of sugar as a food has really been criminally boosted."

The next step is to prove that sugar is really composed of a long row of acids, all crystallise. To do this the doctor analyzes a sugar beet and finds only water, acids, some salts, cellulose, and nitrogen composition. Hence, he declares, the sugar juice can be nothing but acid, and this "is very dangerous to the general welfare."

"It is therefore no wonder," he says, "that the modern manufacturing of sugar has brought about entirely new diseases and that most of these new diseases have been caused by the daily use of sugar. The loss of energy through the consumption of sugar in the last century and the first decade of this century can never be made good, as it has left its marks on the different races and nations.

There are wolves in the field, too, Dr. Roessler has found wicked men who prey upon the weakness of little children for the awful sugar and find their profits therein.

"No wonder," he says bitterly, "that a certain candy manufacturer has spent $1,000,000 for the cause of temperance, since he expected an increase in the consumption of candy.

"The highest civilization already bears the elements of degeneration. Over-civilization adopted the sugar for the significance of good taste, and it has done its work. Health, energy, and power can only be acquired by partaking of proper food. Sugar is no food whatever; therefore sugar is an enemy to civilization.

"Everyone who wants to be an honest citizen and for the welfare of the race and for the progress of the country has to join to fight the big lie that sugar is beneficial."

Sanol's Blood Salt
This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion, such as DYSPEPSIA, GASTRIC CATARRH, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, ETC., and as an aid to digestion in wasting and nervous diseases.
This preparation is a mixture compound so as to resemble in essence and effect the salty part of the human blood which through disease or a wrong way of living might have been lost and not regained. In some cases of flatulence, a sense of fullness or pressure aver the region of the stomach, the blood salt has no equal, in fact there is no other remedy that can take its place.

AWFUL DEATH TOLL OF SNAKES IN INDIA

According to a report published in Simla the number of wild animals destroyed in India last year was 25,940, as compared with 19,282 the year before. This total included 1,426 tigers, 5,262 leopards and 4,251 wolves. Nearly 172,000 snakes were destroyed, more than twice as many as in any previous year.

This increase is largely accounted for by the offering of rewards by the Burma Government. That this action was necessary is proved by the fact that in one area the paddy fields were so snake infested that their cultivation was impossible.

Altogether 1,947 persons were killed by wild animals and 24,364 by snakes. The number of cattle killed by wild animals was 91,700, and by snakes 10,582.

With regard to snake bite of human beings it is said that the use of Sir Lauder Brunton's ancets is reported in a number of cases to have to have Lauder Brunton's lancets is reported As in previous years, however, the statistics relative to the successful use of this instrument can only be accepted with reservations.

Chivington Sees Time When Liquor Will be Banned by Ball Club

"The time will come in baseball when there will be a temperance clause inserted in every player's contract," said President T. M. Chivington of the American association in a talk to newspapermen.

"The sooner that time comes," continued the A. A. head, "the better it will be for players, public, and club owners. I would welcome the immediate adoption of such a universal rule by the magnates of the American association. There is absolutely no reason why an athlete in training should drink.

"I cannot see the force of any argument why any player should need to drink during the season. The supposed danger of going stale is foolishness. There is no necessity for drinking, and the sooner it is stamped out effectually the better. There are some men to whom a drink is no menace; to others one drink is a positive danger in stimulating their appetite. Temperance is of great value, even more to the players than to the club owners."

Splendid Gold Trophy

The trophy presented by Mr. E. W. Darnell, vice-president of the Royal Life Saving Society in Canada for annual competition is said to be the handsomest piece of work of its kind in the Dominion. The cup stands nearly three feet high and is of wrought gold of the finest workmanship.

Mr. Louis Rubenstein, of Montreal, the president of the Canadian branch of the Royal Life Saving Society, has charge of the trophy. Its value is estimated at over fifteen hundred dol-

In the Hatchery

A walk through the fish hatchery is a very istructive and interesting sight. The spawn, after being taken from the mother fish in the fall—and this is usually collected by the officers of the Fishery Department from the fishing tugs—is brought to the hatchery and distributed in trays, over which there is a constant stream of cold water running. It takes, on the average, 135 days for the spawn to germinate into living fish. It is very interesting to pick up the little round globes, which look like balls of gelatine, and holding them up in the light, see the eyes and the dim outline of the form of the minute fish inside. Only a small percentage of the spawn die. The dead cells are readily detected as they turn white upon the atom of life within becoming extinct. After the baby fish extricates itself from its globular cell it is fed for two weeks on grated beef liver. By this time it is not more than a quarter of an inch long, and is then taken out and placed in the spawning beds where the older fish always gather at certain times to foster the young and growing fry. Three years is the usual time taken for fish to mature

PROTECTING JUTE

A Canadian Industry Which Requires Adequate Protection

United States manufacturers of jute yarns, bagging and twine fear that the new Democratic administration will reduce the protection which they have enjoyed. Jute is a long vegetable fibre, the cheapest commercial fibre in the world, grown exclusively in India. It is used to manufacture bags, sacks, twine, carpets, etc., the chief centres of the industry being Calcutta, Dundee, Dunkirk, Hamburg, Vienna, Turin, Brooklyn and Ludlow.

The weaving of jute fabric has not yet been established as an industry in Canada, but jute yarn and fabrics are further manufactured here to such an extent that Canadian concerns supply the greater part of the home market. In the United States, the spinners and weavers of jute are protected by a tariff of 45 per cent. In Canada there is practically no duty on jute yarn and plain jute cloth.

Why should not adequate protection be given to spinners and weavers of jute by Canada, so that large industries, similar to those enjoying protection of 45 per cent. or more in the United States, might be established in this country?—Industrial Canada.

OLDEST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A Sketch of Historic Presbyterianism at Williamstown

Williamstown is the oldest Presbyterian congregation in Ontario, having been established in 1787 by the Rev. John Bethune, who had been Chaplain of a British regiment, the 84th, in the War of the Revolution. At the close of the war, this regiment was disbanded and many of the members settled in Glengarry, which was then unbroken forest.

Mr. Bethune remained in Montreal and got together the congregation of St. Gabriel Street Church, to whom he preached from March 12, 1786, to May 6, 1787, when he removed to Williamstown and started the organization of the Presbyterian church there.

The site of Williamstown was a grant from the Crown to Sir John Jhonson, and the village was so named in memory of Sir John's father, Sir William Johnson, who died in 1774, just before the breaking out of the War of the Revolution. The first church built at Williamstown, shortly after Mr. Bethune arrived there, was an unpretentious log building, the seats being planks laid on cedar blocks. During the week it was used as a school.

About 1809 a stone church was put up a little to the east of the present structure, but through some defect in the foundation it fell.

The erection of the present church was commenced in 1812, when the walls were put up and the roof put on. Little more was done till the close of the war of 1812-14, and it was not till early in 1818 that the church was completed.

Detroit Judge Tired of Hearing Divorce Cases of Windsor Marriages

According to a declaration made by Police Justice Stein of Detroit, much of the divorce business which has clogged the courts of Michigan, and particularly those of Dtroit, is the result of the Windsor "hasty marriage" system, and Judge Stein believes a concerted effort should be made to get rid of this class of "trade."

"So far as I am concerned," said Judge Stein, "I am going to throw out all these Windsor marriage cases from my court."

The Hohenzollerns.

The house of Hohenzollern, of which is the present emperor of Germany, had its origin in Thassilo, who built the castle of Hohenzollern about the year 800. In 1417 Frederick of Nuremberg, his descendant was made Elector of Brandenburg. The Prince of Hohenzollern abdicated in favor of the King of Prussia in 1849. Charles, son of Charles Anthony, was elected Prince of Roumania in 1866. His brother, Leopold, was nominated for the throne of Spain in 1870, but withdrew on account of the excitement of the time, brought on by the Franco-Prussian difficulty.

Tolerably Well.

The last pig-tail has disappeared from the Chinese embassy in London. It belonged to the majordomo of the Chinese ambassador, and it is now on its way to China as a present to that functionary's wife. A story is going the rounds that at an official reception recently a member of the Chinese embassy was presented to a well known lady.

"We no talkee Chinee velly well," she said.

"Never mind, your ladyship," was the smooth reply. "I can converse tolerably well in English!"

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Steel Pontoon Gate Lifter, Trent Canal" will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, July 29th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $1,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

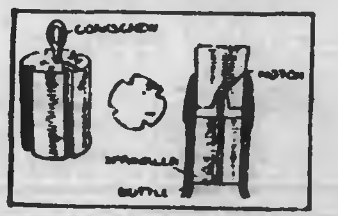
MAKING THE TELEPHONE LOOK AFTER THE BABY

A Frenchwoman was anxious to have baby sleep in the open air in its carriage, and at the same time she was too busy attending to her household duties to stay by the carriage and be on hand when the child awoke or cried. She secured an old telephone transmitter and connected it with the line running into her house.

She put the transmitter in the carriage so that the baby could not make a sound without transmitting the cry over the line to the house. Then the mother went about her regular duties, pausing once in a while to take down the receiver of her house 'phone to listen to baby.

If only the regular breathing was heard she continued her task; if there was a cry or a crow she was ready to go to the youngster.

Shaker Top That Fits Any Bottle



There are many times the cook wants to use a sprinkler bottle when she hasn't one. Shaker tops are very easy to make for any bottle. Two corks and a small corkscrew are all that is necessary.

Put the corkscrew into a cork that will go down into the neck of the bottle. Notch the cork so that there will be four channels for the contents of the bottle to flow out. Have the top of the bottom cork low enough to permit a top cork to fit in the neck.

The corkscrew is there for the purpose of pulling out the notched cork when it needs cleaning.

A CHEF'S RECORD

He Cooked Chops for Fifty Years for Hungry Londoners

Of very few men can it truthfully be said, "He has cooked a million chops." Yet "William" of Edwards' in Fishmonger Alley, Fenchurch Street, London, who will presently celebrate the jubilee of his professional career, is believed to have cooked a million and a half. About ten thousand of these he has eaten himself. The calculation was made on the table cloth by a distinguished statician, who was so shocked by the figures that he dared not go on to estimate the tons of steaks, the mountains of kidneys and the miles of sausages. "I wonder, William," he said, "that you are not ashamed to look a flock of sheep in the face."

USEFUL WILD LIFE

Student of Creatures of the Woods Urges Against Their Extermination

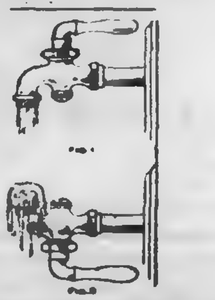
In an address at Ottawa, Lieut.-Colonel Wood, a well-known traveller and historian, made a most eloquent appeal for the preservation of wild life in Canada. Recent visits to Labrador and Newfoundland made him very familiar with his subject, which, indeed, he has studied all his life. Colonel Wood spoke of himself as "an animal man," and said that he had always been interested in the conservation of wild life in Canada.

There was no reason for war between man and wild animals, but as man was "getting there, he had waged it. But it was interesting to note that to get ahead of other animals, man had had to take the animal into partnership with him—the dog. He had been to Canadian Labrador, 300 miles of coast which few people ever knew existed. The only domestic animals there were dogs, and it was possible in the primitive state of such civilization to see the vast debt man owed to the dog. When the dogs, however, got hungry in the winter they went back to their wild state and ate men. He knew a case of nine dogs eating a family of five people.

After the stage of war came the stage of sport, and he had nothing to say against sport—but it was necessary to put certain limits upon the destruction of wild life.

West Newfoundland should be a paradise for wild animals, but it is a desert. And it was a mistake to imagine in any part of the country that because there was a plentitude of wild life that it would never disappear. This had been said of the buffalo and many other animals. On the coast of Labrador the population of 1,200 people relied for fresh food on the birds it shot, yet he knew of a millionaire who landed one day from his yacht and shot out a whole island.

The elder ducks about this part of the world were ruthlessly destroyed, and yet a very profitable industry could be built up on the St. Lawrence if they were preserved. The study of wild life developed progress, and he sincerely hoped that one small part of the world would be left, and in Canada, where man would have through the study of wild life an opportunity of re-creating himself.



Science has decreed that death lurks in the common drinking cup and that the only way to avoid the germs that are to be found in any vessel which two or more people use—is to discard the vessel and revert to the bubbling fountain. There is not a home in the country equipped with running water that has not a bubbling fountain if the householders know how to use it. Simply turn the faucet upside down and regulate the flow of water as one does with a regular bubbler.

MUMMY'S SPIRIT TOOK VENGEANCE

So Believes Only Survivor of Party of Five Who Removed Egyptian Priestess

During the course of a visit to Canada Dr. R. R. Craig of Manchester, England, told a weird story of a series of tragic occurrences with which he was closely associated.

Dr. Craig is the sole remaining member of that famous party of five young Englishmen who conveyed the mummy of the Priestess of the Amen-Ra from Egypt to England in the fall of 1884. He alone managed to escape the "hoodoo" which pursued those who had anything to do with the fateful relic of ancient Egypt.

"Magazines and newspapers exhausted their imaginative powers in describing the mummy and its history," said Dr. Craig, "but none of them gave an accurate account of the fate of the original party. Two brothers of mine were senior members. One of these was accidentally shot before the boat reached England, the other was crippled for life in a runaway. The third member of the party was an American by the name of Brown, who met a long series of financial reverses and died broken-hearted just three years after transporting the mummy.

"As for those who had to do with the mummy in England, there is nothing but one long tale of disaster. The man who drove the cart that conveyed the mummy to the museum, died mysteriously on the following day, and another who helped carry it into the museum had both his legs cut off in a cartage accident.

"The first man to photograph the dead object fell and broke his machine and hurt his face dangerously and to cap the climax the newspaper man that wrote about it was drowned the next week.

"Now all this may be mere coincidence, but I am inclined to think differently because I have investigated the matter and know that the above actually happened. Personally I think that there is an evil genius haunting the strange mummy. Tradition has it that the Princess Amen-Ra was a mystic who enjoyed extraordinary powers of second sight while alive."

THE COAST INDIANS

Gradually Taking to Agriculture—Valuable Tree Grows Wild

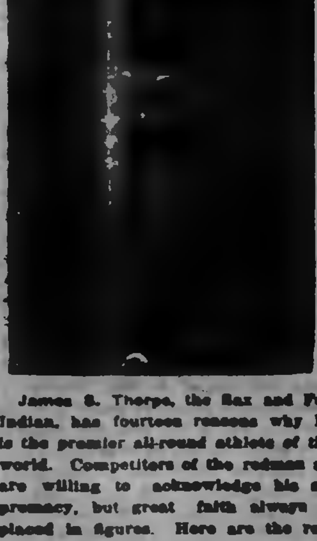
Mr. Thomas Wilson, Dominion inspector of Indian orchards and instructor in horticulture to the Indians, after a tour among his charges in British Columbia, said that although the progress of the tribes in fruit and vegetable growing does not appear to be very marked from year to year, yet it is in fact substantial and is quite noticeable if a period of ten years or thereabouts be taken for purposes of comparison.

Among some of the tribes little attempt is being made to establish agriculture or horticulture, because the Indians are making a good living in other ways. The Haidas of the Queen Charlotte Islands, for instance get as much as $60,000 a year from the canneries at Masset. They have a regular municipal government and light their village by acetylene. Tuberculosis and ophthalmia, however, are still making ravages among them and the Indians do not seem to be making much progress in learning how to combat these diseases.

Mr. Wilson recommended to the Provincial authorities that steps be taken to preserve the "bearberry" tree, from the bark of which the drug cascara is obtained. It grows wild in parts of the Province but could easily be cultivated so that an acre would produce about four tons of cascara worth $150 per ton. The American supply is becoming exhausted and Mr. Wilson thinks that timber leaseholders in British Columbia would do well to see that the "bearberry" tree is not destroyed when the land is logged over.

Of the possibilities of Queen Charlotte Islands, Mr. Wilson has a high opinion. The soil is very rich and will be excellent for vegetable production when it has been drained and the sourness has been mitigated. A band of wild cattle, descendants of some that swam ashore years ago when jettisoned from a Hudson's Bay Company boat, now roam about in considerable numbers.

FOURTEEN REASONS



James S. Thorpe, the Sax and Fox Indian, has fourteen reasons why he is the premier all-round athlete of the world. Competitors of the redman all are willing to acknowledge his supremacy, but great faith always is placed in figures. Here are the reasons why Thorpe tops the white, black and red races:—

100-yard dash—10 3-5 seconds.
120-yard hurdle—15 3-5 seconds.
220-yard hurdle—25 seconds.
440-yard dash—50 3-5 seconds.
Shotput—45 feet 1 inch.
Discus—122 feet 5 inches.
High jump—6 feet 3 inches.
Broad jump—23 feet 3 inches.
Hammer throw—122 feet.
Pole vault—10 feet 8 inches.
Football—All-American back.
Baseball—Star pitcher.
Lacrosse—Corking forward.
Basketball—Star guard.

UNTOLD WEALTH IF TESTS SUCCEED

Experiments With Cobalt as Substitute for Nickel in Steel Alloys—Product Wasted

An investigation which may reveal hidden fortunes in what are now the useless dump of cobalt oxide at the ore smelters and at Cobalt camp, and give to Canada a new steel alloy industry, is being conducted by the Department of Mines. Experiments to extend over some years will be made in the endeavor to discover a process which will allow of the substitution of cobalt for nickel in steel alloys, thus furnishing a market for a product which now in great part goes entirely to waste. The indirect value of such an increased market would be, of course, incalculable.

"It would not be surprising," said Dr. Eugene Haanel, speaking at Ottawa, "if cobalt could be advantageously substituted for nickel to produce a better grade of high grade steels, where toughness and hardness are desired; for automobile parts, steel tubes, gun steel, cranks and crank shafts, boiler plates, tires, connecting rods and axles; the nickel-iron wires with low temperature co-efficients of electrical resistance and expansion respectively and the variety of important alloys with non-corrosive properties, for coins, boat propellers, etc."

Canada is now practically the sole producer of cobalt ore. The cobalt content of the ores mined in the Temiskaming district exceed 2,000,000 pounds per year. The market for this at present depends altogether on its very limited use as a blue coloring substance. Hence there is a large accumulation of cobalt oxide at the smelters and at Cobalt camp. Under present industrial conditions the smelters refuse to pay for the cobalt and nickel content, consequently the miner receives nothing for this valuable constitutent of the ore. Yet cobalt resembles nickel in almost all its properties and it is considered that it could be substituted for that metal in steel alloys. As cobalt is almost essentially a Canadian product very little investigation has ever been conducted along this line.

AN IDEAL LANDLORD

A Good Name Better Than Riches—This Man Had Both

John Thomson, who died in Hamilton, Ont., was known as an ideal landlord, and was blessed by tenants who were living in his houses at rents of five and six dollars, while others were paying fifteen and twenty. He acquired the houses many years ago, and refused to raise the rents. His modest boast was that he made his profit out of the property, not out of the tenant.

Mr. Thomson was not a fussy philanthropist, and was not widely known. He seems to have been guided by simple, natural human impulses. He was good-hearted, unostentatious, and free from greed. He lived in comfort, and died worth $200,000; "worth" it in more than one sense.

Clock Saved Life

John Struat, night watchman at a London, Ont., factory was shot through the hand while on duty and saved from death only by an alarm clock which he was carrying. Struat, while going his rounds heard a window broken, and, observing a man outside, called to him. The marauder pulled a revolver and fired point-blank at the watchman's face. Struat raised the clock which he was carrying, and while the bullet penetrated his hand, his life was saved by his promptness.

THROWING A SHOE

A Survival of an Ancient Jewish Custom

The throwing of a shoe after a bride comes from the ancient Jewish custom of handing a shoe to a purchaser of land on the completion of the contract (Ruth iv. 7). Parents also gave a shoe to the husband on a daughter's marriage in token of yielding up their authority. The slipper in the East, being taken off indoors, is at hand to administer correction, and is used to signify the obedience of the wife and the supremacy of the husband.

Baked Apples

Not half enough use is made of the baked apple as a feature of the diet. This recipe calls for apples with nuts or honey as an adjunct. Peel the apples and core. Place in a deep pan, allowing a heaping tablespoon of sugar and half a cup of water to each apple. In the center of each apple, place a teaspoon of chopped nuts and strip of lemon or orange peel. Over the whole sprinkle cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake very slowly. The juice will become jelly-like. Serve hot or cold. Or fill the centers with a little honey and a little butter, preparing otherwise the same.

BACKWARD ALBANIANS

Like the Welsh in Britain and the Basques in Spain, the Albanians are a native stock. They speak the only original Balkan language. The Turks did not permit the Albanian tongue to be taught in schools. There is no literature, no agreement even as to how it shall be written. Of the few who can write, some use Greek letters, some the Roman. The Albanians themselves are nearly all Moslems, but 400,000 Greeks, Serbs, Vlachs and Bulgarians in their land belong to the Greek Church. The famous seven highland clans of the north, known as the Malissori, are Roman Catholic.

Blood feuds, lack of roads and Turkish misgovernment, make travel in the interior unsafe. One-quarter of all the deaths in the country are violent, either in clan warfare or in clashes with Turks. Much of the country is as independent as Montenegro. The Turk never cowed or taxed its rugged hills.

Of all fallow and backward races the Albanians have perhaps the greatest possibilities. Haeckel said that they have the best shaped heads in Europe and their natural ability is great.

HERMIT OF WOODS DANCED IN CAFE

His Feet Could Not Keep Still When he Heard "Bonnie Doon" Played

While groups of five o'clock tea parties were refreshing themselves in a Montreal cafe, and the orchestra was playing softly, a tall, muscular man, who had been sitting quietly taking tea alone, leaped from his seat, and with wild gestures began leaping about the room to the imminent danger of the tables.

"He's crazy!" cried the startled customers to each other, as they gazed at the man. Women became hysterical, and men started for the telephone to call the police.

The orchestra, which had been playing "The Banks of Bonnie Doon," stopped suddenly. No sooner had they ceased playing than the man concluded his weird dance and sank into his chair breathless but contented, and those nearest to him heard him whisper to himself: "Aye, but that was gr-r-and, mon!"

Strange Old Character

The one-time famous "Jock" MacDonald, of Inverness, was again in the limelight. Twenty years ago "Jock" was turnkey in the Inverness jail, and one of the most talked of men in the North of Scotland.

Left alone in charge of a party of Norwegian smugglers he single-handed overcame them when they attempted to escape.

It was not all smooth sailing for "Jock." His coy Highland lassie was fickle and Jock was jilted. So he came to Canada and plunged into the woods, building himself a "bachelor's palace" on the outskirts of the little village of Tacheville, on the Kaministiquia river. For two decades "Jock" was the "eccentric" of the Fort William country. Working at odd jobs—now in a logging camp, now fishing, now acting as guide to hunting parties in the "north country," Jock made his living in seclusion and quiet.

Wanted to See Home

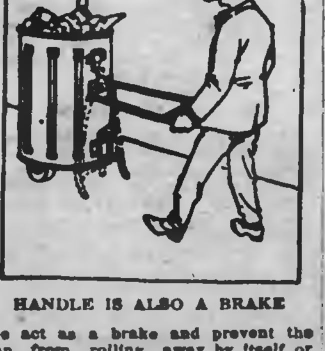
Then the fever for a change came upon him and he resolved to make for his old home. Then came a letter from his aged mother stating that she was on her way to Canada and wanted him to meet her in Montreal.

Never since he left home had this lonely wanderer heard the strains of instrumental music, and when the old familiar air of "Bonnie Doon" fell upon his ears he was beside himself with joy.

ASH CAN ON WHEELS

Can be Rolled Out to Curb Without Fuss or Soiled Clothes

It was a flash of genius that inspired a Connecticut man to put wheels on an ash can. And when in addition to this he affixed a handle, which also acts as a brake, he put the chore man almost out of business. For the head of the house can now roll his own ash can out to the curb, if he is not too proud to do so, without any trouble at all and without soiling his clothes. The can is mounted on a pair of small wheels and the handle is hinged to the side. A bolt at the bottom engages the cross bar of the handle and locks the latter in a vertical position when it is not in use as a pusher. Thus the ends of the handle act as a brake and prevent the can from rolling away by itself or from upsetting, as it would otherwise do with only two centered wheels to rest upon.



HANDLE IS ALSO A BRAKE

ROBBED SOLOMON'S TEMPLE

Sheikhs Who Are Accused Have Been Sent For Trial

The Sheikhs of the Mosque of Omar and other officials, including an Armenian, who are accused of aiding and abetting a party of explorers in the alleged removal of priceless relics of Solomon's Temple from the hill on which the mosque stands, have been sent, under an armed escort, to Beyrout to undergo trial by a special court. The arrests are in connection with excavation work by an English syndicate, at the head of which was Captain Parker, brother of the Earl of Morley, to find the treasures of King Solomon, which were supposed to have been indicated by a cryptogram in the Talmud. Rumors that sacrilege had been committed led to a riot and the excavations were abandoned. Captain Parker's work was carried on with the approval of the Turkish Government. The Englishmen emphatically deny that anything has been taken away.

Discussing the life work of the late General Booth, Commander Rees, the highest officer of the Salvation Army in Canada stated that the Army was officially started in the Dominion at Toronto in 1882 by a party of officers from New York. According to the latest figures there are 465 branches in Canada, 950 officers; 4,052 local officers; 1,206 bandsmen; 37 social institutions, and 42 day schools.

In one year as many as 44,000 immigrants have passed through the Army's hands in this country.

General's Childhood

Born in old-fashioned Sneinton, a suburb of Nottingham, on the 10th day of April, 1829, William Booth rambled as a boy among the Ruddington Hills and swam in the shimmering waters of the Trent. The house of his nativity still stands, but the neighborhood is greatly changed, as is the England of that day.

His boyhood was spent during one of the darkest periods of England's history; the nation was in the midst of the depression which followed the Napoleonic wars. Ignorance, intemperance, and disease had not yet been confronted by an enlightened public opinion; the dawn had not arrived, and in the darkness destiny was preparing one who would some day stand head and shoulders above his fellows in the amelioration of his race.

Physical Force Chartist

Early in life he was compelled to go out in the world and earn his own living, and the poverty and misery which he saw on every side filled him with a spirit of passionate revolt against constituted authority, and resulted in him becoming a physical force Chartist.

In 1848, Rev. Samuel Dunn, of Connexion, London, wanted the promising young layman to offer himself as a candidate for the Methodist ministry, and at last he consented to see the doctor for the necessary examination. The result was very discouraging; this gentleman promised the prospective preacher a lifetime of twelve months in such a career.

For several years he preached during the evenings, working during the day. When 25 years old he was made a local preacher. For two and a half years he was a traveling Methodist evangelist, visiting some of the principal towns of England. His success was so great that Conference reappointed him to regular circuit pastorates, much to his regret, and as he felt in violation of a very solemn arrangement.

After he had been traveling evangelist for nearly twelve months, he married Miss Mumford. Four years of submission to regular circuit work was sufficient for them. So in 1861 they left the Conference in order that they might devote their lives to evangelical work and the alleviation of the miserable lot of the outcast and poverty-striken. They immediately proceeded to Cornwall, and after being instrumental in the conversion of 7,000 souls there, settled down in Whitechapel, London, a locality notorious for its vice and misery.

Organized Army in 1878

He commenced work at Mile End Waste on July 5, 1865, and in spite of much opposition and persecution, the Salvation Army was organized ten years later. Denunciations hailed the work on all sides. The newspapers had all sorts of fanciful stories about the General and his family feathering their own nests, and by and by running away. But in spite of everything the work prospered. Mrs. Booth was her husband's mainstay during all the period of persecution, and in fact was his chief advisor even up to the time of her death in 1891.

The Army has branches in Scotland, Ireland, Wales, the United States, Canada, Newfoundland, France, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Japan, India, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, Java, South Africa, West Africa, Barbadoes, South America, Jamaica and Bermuda, in short to almost every country in the world. In 1886 the General made the first of five visits to Canada.

Artificial Method by Use of Electricity Highly Successful

A novel electrical method of treating timber is said to have given striking results in France and to have changed the greenest wood into perfectly seasoned material. A watertight tank of suitable size is required.

The timber is piled on a large lead plate at the bottom until the tank is full, when a second lead plate is placed on top of the pile and connected to the negative pole of a dynamo, the bottom connected to the positive pole. The space around the timber is then filled with a solution containing 5 per cent. of resin, 10 per cent. of borax and a trace of carbonate of soda.

On turning on the current, it passes from plate to plate, through the wood, driving out the sap, and the resin and borax takes its place in the cells and interstices. The process being completed the timber is taken out and dried, when it is ready for use.

Habit of Contradiction

One of the very worst habits to acquire—if we care for our own happiness and the happiness of others—is the habit of contradiction. Unfortunately, it comes easily, often unknowingly, and attains its growth before we are fully aware of the existence of the evil thing we have nurtured. Woman has no monopoly of this habit. It is as often seen and is just as bad in a man. Continual watchfulness over the unruly tongue is the only safeguard, the only remedy, the only cure. Consideration, one for others, should be cultivated if one would retain the love of friends.

Soda Peels Potatoes

Many housewives do not know that it will be much easier to scrape potatoes if they are soaked for a while in water in which a little soda has been dissolved. Add a little milk to the water in which they are boiled and it will improve the flavor.

Great Britain sold more than 1,000,000 incandescent lamps to other countries in the first six months last year.

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Boer War Who Lost Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Good Advice for All who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders

In his home at Waldegrove, N. S., no one is better known than Sergt.-Major Cross, late of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sergt.-Major writes "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sergt.-Major. It was perhaps owing to a continued diet of bully beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. I was in such a state that could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

At yesterday's police court, W. Darling pleaded guilty to having been drunk—$2. John McDonough was charged with having trespassed on the C.P.R. track—$5 or 20 days in jail. He took the meal ticket. A young man named Kenny was charged with vagrancy. He said he had only missed one day's work—$5 or 20 days. Officer Weller of the C.P.R. is certainly watching the interests of his company.

A Joy Rider in Court

At yesterday's police court, Dr. Pulkinghorn, was charged with driving his automobile on Simcoe street, and neglecting to sound his horn. Mr. Gordon, for defendant, pleaded not guilty. A young man, named Desautel, said as he came south on Rubidge street, on July 11th, riding his wheel. He heard no alarm from the auto, witness dashed into the pavement. Witness had seen Pulkinghorn and asked for damages to his bike. Tom Ellis, a boy, saw the accident. Ellis said Pulkinghorn did not sound his horn. Dr. Pulkinghorn, in the witness box said, he tooted his horn and Desautel seemed to lose his head. His car was not within 35 feet of Desautel. Judgment reserved.

Another Fairy Tale.

At yesterday's police court, W. LeRoy pleaded guilty to trespassing on the C.P.R. tracks—$2. Harry Mann, a blacklister pleaded guilty to having been drunk. An excursionist from Toronto got the liquor for him. He did not know the complacent stranger. Mr. Lytle a contractor, said Mann was working for him. He saw a local young man ask for Mann. The young fellow took Mann from work. Mann returned in 15 minutes. Mann was then very drunk. Mann held no conversation with any excursionist. He thinks the young man was paid for the whiskey. Mann was remanded for one week and the youths' case was enlarged. The Chief remarked "I don't believe a word Mann is saying and a week in jail may freshen his memory. After the court had adjourned the prisoner evidently got cold feet and confessed the truth as to whom supplied his whiskey. As it might handicap the police, no names are mentioned in this connection.

Mrs. John Edgar.

The Times extends respectful, but sincere sympathy to Mr. John Edgar of 577 Sherbrooke street, over the lamented demise of his wife, Eva Blatharwick, who passed away yesterday morning.

During her four years' residence in Peterborough she has made many friends, all of whom will doubtless miss her genial and kindly disposition.

She was an esteemed member of All Saints' Anglican church and Sunday school, having taught the infants' class in the Sunday school for some time.

She was a daughter of Rev. Mr. Blatharwick, of the Immigration Halls, Winnipeg, who with her mother, survive her.

Four children, Kathleen, Cecil, Francis and Jack, besides her husband, survive her. Also six brothers C. Blatharwick, of Scotia Junction; John and Harry, of Toronto; Frank of Montreal, and two in the North-West, and two sisters, Mrs. Swan, of Toronto, and Susie, of Winnipeg. Postmaster Edgar is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from 577 Sherbrooke street to All Saints' church, and thence to the Little Lake cemetery, where interment will take place.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SIMPLE TREATMENT FOR REMOVING HAIRS

(Modes of To-day)

A quick, harmless, painless way to remove unwelcome hairs is to make a paste with a little delatone and water. This should be applied to the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple treatment banishes every trace of hair or fuzz and leaves the skin without spot or blemish. No harm can result from using the delatone treatment, but care should be exercised to see that you get real delatone.

Frequent applications of pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger will make them grow long, silken and curly, greatly added to women's physical charms. Rubbing pyroxin on eyebrows makes them come in thick and glossy. Use care and don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

New Way to Trace

An excellent way to get the exact shape of leaves or ferns for sketching or tracing for ornamental work, is by taking a smoke copy. Butter lightly a sheet of writing paper, and hold over a candle until it is thoroughly blackened, but not burned. Lay the right side of the fern on the paper and press down the entire surface, especially the edges, with a pencil or something of the sort; then transfer it to a clean sheet, not letting it move after once being laid on, or it will "smudge"; place another sheet of paper over it carefully and press with the fingers, or a book. A perfect impression will be obtained, which can be traced, or otherwise copied, and those who do not draw sufficiently to outline the leaves of ferns, will find this the best way to do.

YOU CAN MAKE MONEY IN

Carmangay

"The Star of Alberta"

PAST The splendidly strategic site of Carmangay was discovered by a far seeing, shrewd railway engineer attracted to the district by the lure of the finest wheat in the Canadian West. He snapped up lands where the wide canyons of the Little Bow River narrows to a point. Here must all railways cross. The C. P. R. came and the shipping centre created went ahead by leaps and bounds.

PRESENT Carmangay today is a thriving incorporated town, with not less than 53 business places. Her up-to-date electric and natural water supply systems are owned and operated by the people. Carmangay boasts an eight-roomed schoolhouse, two banks and four big elevators, shipping over a million bushels in 1911 and 1¼ millions in 1912. Carmangay has coal mines operating, and the entire district is underlaid with coal of finest Galt quality.

FUTURE Carmangay grows as Alberta grows. That means a wonderful future. Four new railroads are heading for Carmangay. Four new elevators are trying to cope with the tremendous wheat yields of the district. The mines are opening up splendid prospects. Carmangay is being rapidly developed into one of the greatest towns in the Canadian West. YOU can just as confidently invest in Carmangay as her own people do, who are building in brick and stone for a tremendous future. Carmangay has her own supply of finest brick clay and stone right at her doors, and will soon supply her sister cities in Alberta.

RAID SUCCESS; TROOPS LANDED FROM CRUISERS

"Red Fleet" Representing the "Germans" Put Invading Force Into England

London, July 24.—Germans, represented by the "Red Fleet" in the annual manoeuvres of the British navy now in progress in British waters, raided the east coast of Great Britain this morning and landed troops in the neighborhood of the Humber.

After the warship escorting the convoy had engaged and defeated the defending fleet, four transports laden with soldiers ran the blockade which had been established and upset the cherished belief of the British Admiralty that the British Isles were invulnerable.

Vice Admiral Sir John R. Jellicoe commanded the fleet representing the enemy which made the successful descent on the coast.

The towns of Grimsby, Cleethorpes and Immingham were occupied by the enemy who routed the territorial forces.

More mystery than ever surrounded the plans of this year's manoeuvres.

It was known that one of the forces was to try and make a landing on the east coast, such as Germany would be expected to attempt should war occur between the two countries, and that another force, with the assistance of the volunteer army, was to prevent it if possible, but all the details were hidden from the public. Invitations to the press were restricted and naval attaches were barred.

BRITISH FLEET AT BERMUDA AGAINST OPENING OF CANAL

Following Completion of Present Manoeuvres, Most Comprehensive and Extended in History, Strong British Squadron Will be Kept in West Indies

New York, July 24.—According to a cable from London this morning, on the conclusion of the naval manoeuvres now in operation, a powerful squadron of armoured ships will leave for the West Indies to remain in these waters.

The force will be based at Bermuda, the ships returning to England only in the summer in order to partake in the annual naval exercises.

This development of the policy of the Admiralty is thought to be associated with the opening of the Panama Canal next year.

MISS BEEBE IS HOTEL SUICIDE

Daughter of J. Arthur Beebe Shoots Herself at the Touraine--Brother's Death Tragic

Boston, July 23.—Emily Esther Beebe the 30-year-old daughter of J. Arthur Beebe, of 199 Commonwealth avenue, committed suicide at the Hotel Touraine yesterday afternoon by shooting herself in the breast.

The sound of the single shot was heard by several persons but by the time they had reached the room and forced the door, the woman was dead. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary declared that she had died almost immediately.

SECOND SUICIDE IN FAMILY.

Her death was the second suicidal death in the Beebe family, her brother having killed himself at his home in 1899. It was attended by still further tragedy, for her father, hastening in an auto from the Beebe country home at Manchester, ran over a boy in Chelsea, and the lad died from a fractured skull.

The utmost secrecy was cast about the tragedy. Not even the police were notified, and officials of the hotel insisted on absolute ignorance of the affair until a late hour last night.

LETTER RECEIVED HERE FROM SOLICITOR GENERAL

Mr. J. H. Burnham has received the following letter, which speaks for itself from Hon. Mr. Meighen, the new Solicitor General of Canada, of whom so much has been said lately:

Portage La Prairie,
July 21st 1913.

My dear Burnham,

A little late, but most sincerely thank you for your kind letter received shortly after my recent appointment, also permit my acknowledgments to extend to a very generously worded letter in the World, written by yourself and forwarded to me. Indeed, I might well thank you for other courtesies of earlier date. I shall watch with great interest your work in the House and will welcome any opportunity to reciprocate and assist. With my heartiest good wishes, Very truly yours,

A. W. MEIGHEN.

PREACHER FREED AT DEATH'S DOOR

Convicted of Charge of Murdering Two Children; Girl Repudiates Story

Fort Smith, Ark., July 23.—Rev. Marion Capps of White Bluff, will be free today of the charge of murdering his two children, when Prosecuting Attorney Paul Little will appear in court at Greenwood and dismiss the case. This announcement was made by Little last night.

Capps recently was convicted and sentenced to hang on a charge that he burned to death his daughter, Priscilla, four years old, and Rose, two years old. The supreme court reversed the case and remanded it for new trial.

Prosecutor Little said he was forced to dismiss the case because his strongest witness, Bertha Capps, 15 years old, and Ellis Capps, 14, children of the defendant, had repudiated their former stories and would testify in favor of their father at a second trial.

The children told the jury at the first trial that they were tied in an oil-soaked bed. The girl said when she discovered the fire she saw her father leave their bedroom and lock the door.

Since the conviction of their father, the children have made affidavits that they swore falsely at the first trial. The girl says she testified falsely because her father opposed her marriage to a neighbor's son.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Westerly winds, fine and moderately warm.

FORMER PETERBORO' MAN WHO SUCCEEDED

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Nicholl, of Rochester, N.Y., who are going abroad, have come to Peterborough to say good-bye to their old friend Mr. John Green, the local barrister. Mr Nicholl, in his young days lived here, but his intimate friends of those days have all passed away except Mr. Green. Mr. Nicholl and his father were intimate friends of Col. H. C. Rogers, and the late Mr. H. Calcutt. His father whilst here, years ago, was County and town engineer, and, at one time in partnership with the late T. B. Clementi, D. L. S. A magazine called "Successful Americans," devotes several pages, including a full page portrait, to T. J. Nicholl's successful career.

POLICE MATRON SUES FOR $5,000 LIBEL

New Orleans, July 23.—Mrs. Mary E. Hanley, widow of Daniel Fleming, the matron of the Central Police Station, on Wednesday brought suit in the civil court against the Item Company, Ltd., to recover $5,000 damages. The suit is an echo of the sensational Musica hair swindle case.

Mr. Fleming, whose duty it is to search women prisoners in the Central station, recites the fact that in the issue of the New Orleans Item of March 20, 1913, in an article relative to the Musica case, published on the front page "with large and glaring headlines," it was declared that one of the Musica women had charged that Mrs. Fleming had robbed her of $5,000, while being searched in the station by Mrs. Fleming. She declares that the Musica woman made no such charge, that the publication was false, malicious and defamatory.

Mrs. Fleming says that she is 55 years of age, has lived in New Orleans all of her life, is the mother of a family of five grown children, and has always enjoyed the esteem and confidence of her neighbors.

By reason of the publication she declares that she has suffered great mortification and humiliation, she jury to her reputation. For the mortification and humiliation, she asks $2,000; for the injury to her reputation, $2,000, and for the malicious, wanton and reckless negligence of the defendant company, $1,000.

ILLINOIS WOMAN IS RIDDEN ON A RAIL

Chicago, July 23.—Sixteen women of Volo, Ill., a village near Chicago, are tremblingly awaiting arrest for riding Mrs. Minnie Richardson on a rail and dumping her into a mud puddle on the outskirts of the town. Mrs. Richardson declares she will prosecute her assailants vigorously.

"Their statements that I neglected my household duties and left my crippled husband at home alone while I went driving with Will Dunill, my brother-in-law, is a wicked falsehood.

"I always attended to my household duties and minded my own affairs. It was because I refused to attend their parties and expressed my opinion concerning such a waste of time that they seized me, tore off a part of my clothes and rode me on a rail."

MINISTER MILITIA DOING FINE WORK

Free Sites Obtained for Armouries Which Are Being Built

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, July 23.—The Liberal press have been devoting a great deal of criticism to the militia expenditures and have been particularly arraigning Colonel Sam Hughes for scattering drill halls all over the country. Under the impression that the same policy is being pursued as by Sir Frederick Borden, they imagine that the sale of sites for drill halls is a fruitful source of graft for political heelers.

Might Be Better.

The papers which make these charges are either ignorant of the facts or are wilfully mis-stating them. Col. Hughes on assuming office took the stand that a drill hall was a valuable asset to any municipality, and that the Department would only build armouries where free sites were presented. The Minister has stirred civic pride, and as a result valuable sites in all parts of Canada have been presented to the Government. Western cities in particular have vied with each other in offering free sites to the Militia Department.

Enormous Saving.

The saving by the policy which has been followed has been enormous. One comparison will illustrate. Under Sir Frederick Borden's regime a site for a drill hall at Saskatoon was purchased through political friends for $47,000. Moose Jaw under the Hughes' policy has given a free site.

Social Centres.

Col. Hughes has deviated from this policy only in the case of cities like Winnipeg where there was already a drill hall and the old site could be either utilized for a new building or exchanged or sold.

Col. Hughes believes that in building a drill hall in a municipality he is accomplishing more than establishing quarters for the storage of arms and the drilling of troops. He looks to the drill halls to be a social centre for the young men as a counter attraction to questionable resorts.

From Military Standpoint.

From a strategic military standpoint, there is much in the Minister's plan to be commended. The policy of accommodating the smaller units with cheap armouries is of importance from the standpoint of mobilization as the rural companies can store the full equipment which they need if called out for active service. It needs little technical knowledge to realize the advantage of having a corps able to outfit at its own local headquarters with having to requisition the larger places for stores.

YOUNG FRIEDMANN PATIENT IS DEAD

Boston, July 23.—Following closely upon the death of Judge Alford W. Cooley, one of those who had undergone treatment by Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, James Andrews Bower, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roy Bower of 307 School street, Waltham, who had also been innoculated with the German physician's turtle serum, is dead. He succumbed to tuberculosis at his home.

EMPRESS OF RUSSIA IN FEAR OF BOMBS

Brussels, July 23.—The Dowager Empress of Russia left her special train in Belgium when she crossed over to England—every one of the ten cars is bomb-proof and seven of them contain dormitories for detectives, police and soldiers. The empress thought herself tolerably safe travelling through Germany, but she told King Albert he had his socialists not so well under control as the kaiser.

In consequence she traveled through Belgium without touching at one of the big cities, doubling the hours of travel by seeking remote stretches of rails. Her train has two locomotives and would do excellently well for warfare. Yet this poor old woman calls it a train de luxe.

MILITANT WITH MATCH WOULD FIRE MANSION

Glasgow, July 24.—Two suffragettes, Margaret Morrison and another woman who refused to give her name, were arrested here to-day when on the point of setting fire to a large mansion in a suburb of Glasgow which was at one time the residence of the late Sir John Muir, a former Lord Provost.

The attention of the police was attracted to the house this morning and they entered. Inside they found a woman standing with a match in her hand in front of some piles of combustibles which had been banked against the doors. Shortly afterward Margaret Morrison descended a chimney in which she had been secreted. She was covered with soot.

STEFANNSONS SHIP HELPLESS ON SEA 36 HOURS

Nome, Alaska, July 24.—The gasoline schooner Alaska, the second ship of Vilhjalmar Stefannsan's Canadian Polar Expedition, for which fears were felt, because she had not arrived at Port Clarence, reached there safely yesterday after a trying experience in the storm which swept Bering Sea Sunday and Monday.

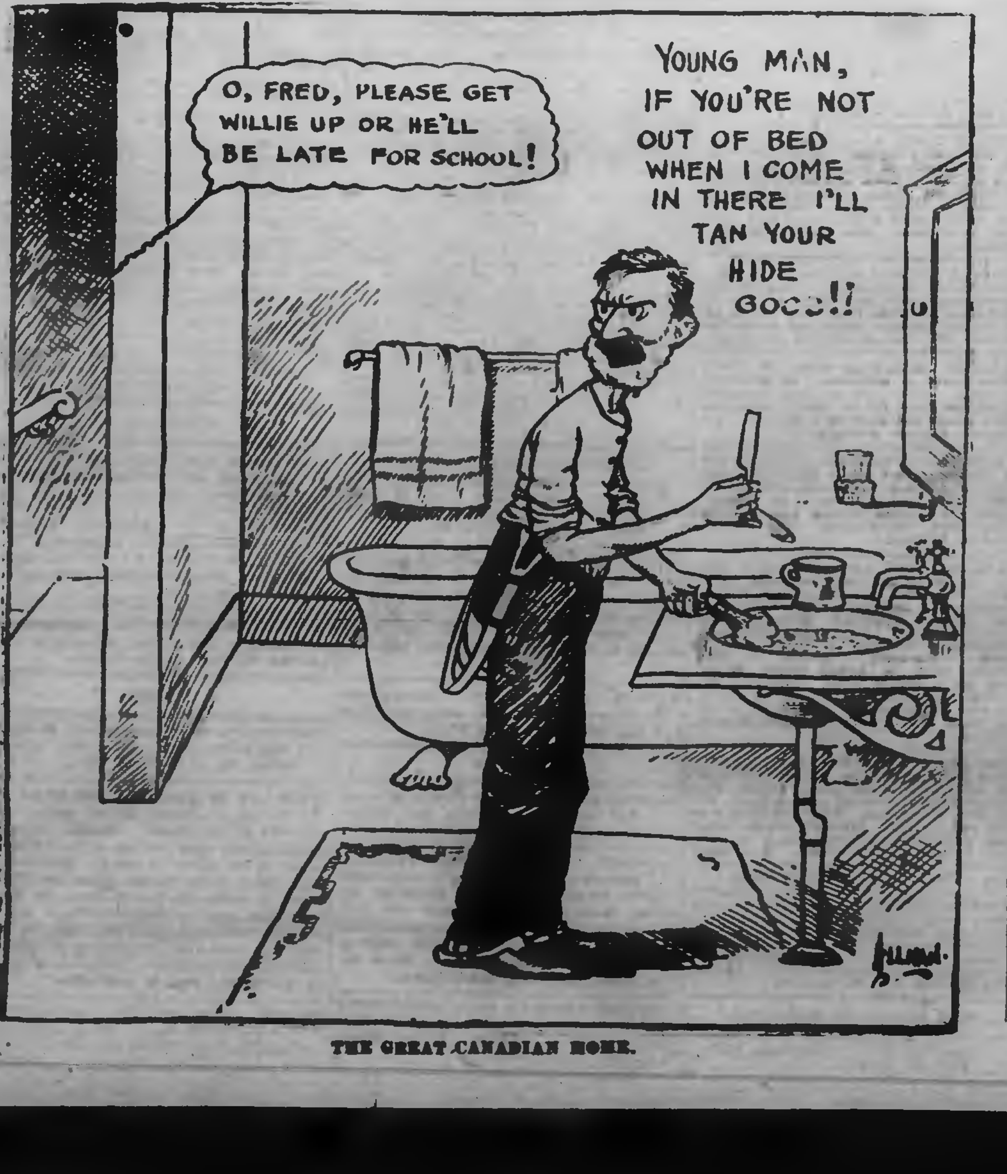
The Alaska was hove to behind Sledge Island for twenty hours, when Capt. Nahmans decided to run for Port Clarence 75 miles away.

After six hours steaming through the storm the engine broke down. The gale increased and the Alaska was again hove to under short sail, drifting for 36 hours toward Cape York. Temporary repairs were finally made to the engine and the Alaska made her way to Port Clarence. The break in the engine is not serious and repairs will not take more than two days.

VANCOUVER TO BUY OWN CIVIC BONDS

Vancouver, July 24.—"Recommended that his worship the Mayor be authorized to arrange for the issuing of $100,000 worth of local improvement bonds, carrying 4 1-2 per cent interest, in $100 denominations, the same to be offered locally at 90 cents on the dollar.

The foregoing recommendation was passed at a special meeting of the finance committee yesterday afternoon.



O, FRED, PLEASE GET WILLIE UP OR HE'LL BE LATE FOR SCHOOL!
YOUNG MAN, IF YOU'RE NOT OUT OF BED WHEN I COME IN THERE I'LL TAN YOUR HIDE GOOD!!

MANITOBA SENDS OUT A CALL; COME, HELP US SAVE THE CROP

British Columbia Asked to Send Men East, But Finds Right Kind Hard to Discover—Immigration Officials Say Harvesters Are Scarce

Winnipeg, July 24.—British Columbia has been requested to send men East to help in the Manitoba harvesting operation this year and a formal application to this end has been made upon the British Columbia government by the Manitoba department of agriculture and immigration.

There is a prospect of a shortage of farm hands at the present time, and hundreds of orders from farmers have been received within the last couple of weeks, which it is impossible for the department to fill. It is not because there are no idle men in the city, but because men capable of doing farm work are not to be had.

A report being current that there are too many workmen in British Columbia, the department has thought proper to wire the authorities there to know whether there is really a surplus of men, and if so, arrangements will doubtless be made to have these men return East to Manitoba for the harvesting operations.

It is expected a large number of men can be had from the old Country this year as the excursion of harvesters from there is not yet properly organized, and the enquiries made at the offices in Ireland and Scotland have elicited the information that the applicants so far are not numerous, so that other places must be looked to for this farm help for immediate requirements.

CROWD BLOCK POLICE FROM GIRL CLAD IN AIRY GOWN

Masculine Roar Caused Minions of Law to Keep Hands off Lass Robed Mainly in Mist

Rochester, N.Y., July 24.—Taking the Council's failure last night to consider further the moral efficiency resolution designed to regulate women's dress as a graceful withdrawal from an embarrassing position, Alicia Burnett appeared on Main street here this afternoon in a diaphanous gown of the latest Parisian style.

Miss Burnett was attired in filmy gauzy, spider-web-like material that seemed to cling as though she had been poured into it. While women held up their hands in horror, men twisted themselves into all manner of shapes trying to better view the young woman.

When four police zealots attempted to reach Miss Burnett, through the crowd, murmurs arose, and then a roar, which caused them to desist.

Several young men finally managed to place Miss Burnett in an automobile, and making a quick dash, succeeded in getting her out of the danger zone.

This Startler Confiscated.

Lima, O., July 24.—In the relic room at police headquarters to-day hangs the first and only slit skirt ever worn in Lima. Mayor Shook yesterday fined Mary Shedrick, the wearer, $25 and costs. He then ordered the skirt taken from the woman and directed that the garment, with the slash, be sent to the dry cleaners.

The condemned shirt came back today spick and span. Chief of Police Earnst ordered it hung in the relic room.

Many visitors at police headquarters this morning viewed dame fashion's one invasion of sedate Lima. Mayor Shook and Chief Earnst have placed a rigid ban on all gay Paree dress.

FOREIGNERS IN UNISON DEMAND END OF DR. SUN

Southern Army Well Officered is Made Up of Poor Men --Is Governor Slain?

London, July 24.—A Peking despatch to The Times says: The decision of the Nanking army to withdraw a hundred miles south to a position on the Hwai-Ho obviously is good strategy, although the abandonment of the more advanced position near the Shantung border is not likely to add to their prestige. On the other hand the arrival of 7,000 Hunanese troops at Yuchow, close to the Kiang-Su border is significant of the sympathies of Hunan, which, however, has not yet declared its colors.

Chekiang also actively sympathises with the revolution, although it has refrained from openly declaring itself.

Among unconfirmed rumors the most persistent reports the assassination of General Huang-Sing at Nanking.

Altogether the situation looks better for the Government, owing to the Southerners failing to secure preliminary advantages, which are vital to the successful advertisement of their cause.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Times says: Provided the navy's ammunition holds out, the result of the rebels attack on the arsenal is not doubted. The garrison consists of seasoned troops, and their defenses are admirably planned. The Southerners have good officers, but the troops are indifferent.

There is a general demand among the foreigners for the expulsion of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and other leaders of the rebellion.

WILL NOT SAVE GIRLS

Chicago, July 23.—Increased wages is not the panacea for moral difficulties of working women, according to Rev. William MacAfee, district superintendent of the Rock River Conference, who spoke today at the Desplaines Methodist camp meeting.

"Increase the wages of working women by 100 per cent to-morrow and if the hearts of these young persons are set on finery, theatres, late suppers and automobiles, the increase of wages will avail nothing," said Dr. MacAfee

BOOSTERS DAY GRAND SUCCESS PETES LOSE HARD FOUGHT GAME

Yesterday was a real Booster Day at the ball grounds. The fans turned out in large numbers, the main stand being well filled with the fair sex, who all through the game could be heard clapping and cheering the boys along. The 10 cent stand was also fairly well filled, while many took up positions on the rail and grass.

The game was an excellent exhibition of ball, but the Petes were in hard luck. They outclassed the visitors in every turn at the bat, and in every innings had all the chance in the world to score, two and three being on the bags each turn, but Bill Schaeffer, though pounded for 11 hits held the Petes "on the bags" Each innings it looked as though the Petes were going to break the game up, but although the bases were often full, no hit was forthcoming to bring the runners across the plate.

Fox, the new third sacker of the Petes played a brilliant game, as did also Thompson, the latter getting three hits in succession.

The first run was scored for the Prisoners in the fifth innings, and two more were tallied in the seventh. The Petes got their first and only run in the seventh innings, when Davie Rowan singled, Trout, was put out on a sacrifice, puting Rowan on second, Hilliard made a nice line drive to centre, putting Davie on third, Swartz fanned, and McNeal singled bringing Davis home, and scoring the only run.

The visitors had only four hits off Sterling, who pitched good ball and only allowed six men to reach base during the whole game, but these four hits were well placed.

The visitors had three errors to the Petes two. Schaeffer struck out 10 men, while Sterling canned 4.

FARM FOR SALE

THE UNDERSIGNED offers for sale one of the best farms in the County of Peterborough, being west half of lot No. 7, and northeast quarter lot No. 6, in the second concession of the Township of Dummer, containing 150 acres, more or less. There is on the property two good dwelling houses, first class outbuildings and four never-failing wells. The soil is clay loam, and the farm is in a fine state of cultivation, with the exception of about 15 acres of bush. There is a good sized orchard and several fruits on the farm. This is a splendid opportunity for any one desiring a first class farm in a splendid locality, as it is only 2 miles from Warsaw.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., [illegible] George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

JUDGE WILLING TO PLEASE

Protesting Prisoner Escaped With Light Sentence After He Had Put Up an Argument.

Judges were very considerate in the old days. Lord Brampton, in his "Reminiscences," relates a story illustrating this:

Baron Martin, a famous English jurist of the old school, whose native leniency and sense of fun often placed him at the mercy of the very men he was trying, was once about to sentence an old offender charged with a petty theft.

"Look," said the baron, with an assumption of severity: "I hardly know what to do, but you can take six months."

"I can't take that, my lord; it's too much," said the prisoner, respectfully but firmly. "I can't take it. Your lordship sees I didn't steal very much, after all."

The baron indulged in one of his low, chuckling laughs before replying:

"Well, that's very true; ye didn't steal much," he said. "Well, then, ye can take four months. Will that do—four months?"

"Nay, my lord, but I can't take that, either," was the reply.

"Then tak' three."

"That's nearer the mark, my lord," the prisoner said, approvingly. "But I'd rather you made it two, if you will be so kind."

"Verra well, then, tak' two," said the judge, with the air of one who is pleased to have done the right thing at last. "And mind, don't come again. If you do I'll give yer—well, it all depends!"

TOUCHING LOVE FOR DOGS

Queen's Tears Crystalized in Heroic Verse on Pet's Headstone

In the garden at Marlborough House there is touching evidence of Queen Alexandra's love for dumb animals. It takes the shape of a little cemetery where some of the Queen's four legged favorites are buried.

The inscription on the stones and the care with which moss is prevented from growing in the clearly carved letters prove that it is not only a cemetery, but one on which affection is still bestowed. Five pets of Queen Alexandra lie beneath. The inscription on the largest stone reads:—

Here, scarce a league from Paul's historic dome,
Where the broad elm trees shade a Royal home,
He lies. Like a true friend—to man or dog what name
Can more win love or more enhance his fame—

Through the parched desert and the midnight fray
Where his fond master led the glorious way,
He bravely followed, and with mute caress
Cheered both his labors and his idleness.

A miscreant slew him, none was near to save,
Let kindy tears bedew his honored grave,
And fairest fingers twine his funeral wreath.
A faithful comrade is at rest beneath

Boxer's master was the Duke of Connaught, who took his four-footed friend through the Egyptian campaign of thirty years ago and afterward gave him to the Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra.

SOME REQUESTS OF AN EMPLOYER

Rule 1. Don't lie—it wastes my time and yours. I'm sure to catch you in the end and that's the wrong end.

Rule 2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a day's short work makes my face long.

Rule 3. Give me more than I expect and I'll pay you more than you expect. I can afford to increase your pay if you increase my profits.

Rule 4. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt.

Rule 5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.

Rule 6. Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business of your own to mind.

Rule 7. Don't do anything here which hurts your self-respect. The employee who is willing to steal for me is capable of stealing from me.

Rule 8. It's none of my business what you do at night, but if dissipation affects what you do next day, and you do half as much as I demand, you'll last half as long as you hoped.

Rule 9. Don't tell me what I'd like to hear, but what I ought to hear. I don't want a valet to my vanity, but I need one for my dollars.

Rule 10. Don't kick if I kick; if you're worth while correcting, you're worth while keeping. I don't waste time cutting spots out of rotten apples.—Retail Lumberman.

Schools as Moving Picture Shows

Edison, the electrical wizard, is preparing to spend $3,000,000 and devote eight years of effort to the perfection of a series of educational moving-picture films for use in school-rooms. It is expected that moving pictures will in time become "an indispensable adjunct" of a school course, and one of the special advantages claimed for the plan is that it will "interest boys who hate school and cannot learn from books."

ORIGIN OF NAUTICAL TERMS

"Starboard" and "Larboard" Derived From Old Saxon Language

The words "starboard" and "larboard" are descriptive of certain parts of a ship. The word "starboard" is derived from the Saxon "bord," meaning shield. On the Viking ships each warrior hung his shield on the side opposite to him and above the apperature for his oar. The Viking held the steer oar, which was fastened to the right hand side of the stern, stern being in itself a contraction of steer oar.

The right hand side of the ship thus became the steer side, and as bord came to mean the whole side where the shields or bords were hung, the right side came to be the steer bord, starboard, side, and the lower or lurking side became larboard.

TO CLEAN THE CLOCK

Oftentimes when the clock refuses to work it may be clogged with dust. All it needs to make it as good as new is to place inside the case a bit of white cotton thoroughly saturated with kerosene oil. Let this remain two or three days or a week, and at the end of that time all the dust will have been loosened by the fumes of the oil. The clock will e be in good condition, while the cotton will be quite black with the dirt it has collected.

To Prevent Wrecks

An invention which, it is claimed, will prevent train wrecks from spread rails, and which will hold a broken rail in place, was patented by a Toronto man, Mr. S. Jagger. It is in the form of an iron tieplate, which holds the metals in a much surer grip than the present spikes. The invention has stood satisfactory tests.

CANADA'S LUMBER KING

His First Big Financial Stroke Was Purchase of Doubtful Railway

Canada's premier lumberman is J. R. Booth, of Ottawa. Among the friends of Booth there is a question whether he made his fortune in lumber or in railroading, but it is the general belief that his estate is about equally indebted to these two sources of revenue.

Booth was born in Ottawa, Canada, in 1841. His father was possessed of more than the average means, but before his death, which occurred when the present head of the family was a boy of 15 years, he lost all of his money and thus compelled his son to depend upon himself.

This enforced independence bought out all there was in him. He saved and worked, worked and saved, and at a comparatively early age built up a huge lumber business from a tiny sawmill on the Ottawa River. He did not capitalize but paid hard cash for all that he bought.

His first big stroke in the world of finance was when he bought the Canada Atlantic railroad, an indifferent sort of institution, with few visible assets and fewer prospects. Booth set about his task with the confidence and determination that have been his chief characteristics. The road extended from Montreal to Parry Sound, and covered a distance of about 450 miles.

Booth had no associates in this deal. Out of his lumber earnings, which had been reasonably large up to that time, considering the day and age, he attacked railroading on his own responsibility. Analyzing the situation with his peculiarly analytical mind, he put the railroad's stock in a vault in the Ottawa banks. He was peering into the future when the Grand Trunk railroad, then a struggling organization, would be compelled to buy him out. He kept the railroad stock in the bank, unpledged, for five years, when the Grand Trunk first made overtures for their purchase at a price many hundred times in excess of what Booth had paid for them.

No one knows how much Booth made on this deal, but it is believed that the amount gave him his long waited for boost toward great wealth.

WILL AMERICAN ARMY INVADE MEXICO?

Will Great Britain and Germany not only consent, but become active parties to the occupation of Mexico by the United States? The destruction of British owned property and the murder of German women by brigands in a recent seige of a Mexican town will do much to induce Europeans to sanction an invasion of Mexico by United States' troops.

Since Porfirio Diaz went out of power the state of affairs in Mexico has been confusion worse confounded. So chaotic have been conditions there that two weeks ago, the British Foreign office sent a protest to President Huerta, but the latter can do little or nothing to quell the risings of revolutionary looters in the various provinces and every week makes the situation more unbearable to English, German and American interests in that semi-barbaric country.

Nearly all the railway, mining and manufacturing enterprises in Mexico are carried on by foreign capital and foreign managers. Citizens of the United States alone have property valued at $1,300,000,000 which is worked by 75,000 Americans. It is said that these American interests are losing $1,000,000 daily owing to the disrupted state of the country.

The British capital also tied up in Mexico is enormous. Dr Pearson, a Canadian, is the head of syndicates whose investments in Mexico aggregate about $50,000,000. Naturally, Dr. Pearson is one of the most urgent advocates of American intervention, and is doing his utmost to bring pressure to bear on the British foreign office to back up his request.

Where there is such an enormous amount of capital at stake, it is difficult to understand how even an apostle of peace like Secretary W. J. Bryan can avoid yielding to the strenuous arguments of those directly connected. The majority of Mexicans entertain a bitter hatred for all Americans, but some of them are so disgusted with the present Huerta government and so despairing of the future that they are willing to submit to a United States protectorate. Governor Carranza, of Coahuila, a leader of one of the six or seven revolutions now going on, has even gone so far as to make an announcement to the effect that he and his soldiers stand ready to support American intervention.

All the signs of the times point to an American invasion of Mexico as the inevitable corollary of the Monroe doctrine. But if the republic does intervene, it will have a guerilla war on its hands which will rival that waged for so many years in the Phillippines.

A Bad Heart, Its Cause and Cure

Many, Firmly Convinced They Are Dying of Heart Trouble, Have Often the Strongest Hearts.

Sometimes you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and cause horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

Just read what happened to Isaac Malloux, of Belle River, Ont.:

WEDDING RING LORE

They Have Been Used For Ages and in Many Countries

Although the custom of being married with a ring is an ancient one it is by no means compulsory. The Quakers and Swiss Protestants never use rings at their marriage ceremonies.

In Germany and some other countries it is customary for bride and bridegroom to exchange wedding rings, and the same practice is occasionally carried out by Anglo-Saxons.

In Greece the ceremony of betrothal is as important as that of marriage and is conducted by a priest. Two rings are used on the former occasion, one being of silver and the other of gold. Both are consecrated on the altar, after which the gold ring is placed upon the man's finger and the silver one upon the woman's. But after the wedding service the best man reverses them.

In St. Kilda wedding rings are made of worsted.

Most of the women of the Upper Bayansi, on the Congo, wear wedding rings of brass around their necks. The wealthier the husband the heavier is the wife's ring, and in some cases it weighs as much as twenty-five or thirty pounds.

Hebrews in the past used some of the most wonderful wedding rings ever made, but plain rings are now generally worn by the married women of that race. According to their law it is necessary that the ring be of a certain value, and therefore it has to be examined and valued by the rabbi and other officers of the synagogue. On no account may it be a gift or obtained on credit.

It is hard to say where or when the association of rings with marriage began, but it may have come down to us from the Romans, who regarded the bridal ring as a pledge for the fulfilment of a contract.

It is on record that in England the earliest wedding rings were made of grass or rushes, and at one time, during the time of Cromwell, it was forbidden to use wedding rings at all, on account of the heathenish origin of the custom.

The plain gold ring is of fairly modern origin. When Queen Mary, who succeeded her brother, Edward VI., was married, the London City Council requested her to wear a magnificent creation inset with gems, but she refused and wore instead the first plain ring that ever adorned the finger of an English monarch.

Not a great while ago it was the custom that at every important wedding a number of rings similar to that worn by the bride should be distributed among the guests. At Queen Victoria's marriage rings decorated with the Queen's profile were given to the favored few.

CHILDREN AND TOYS

Costliness Adds no Value in the Youngsters' Eyes

There was a woman, rather prominent socially, who had a pet theory on which she always fell back. Her slogan was "sticks and stones for children." She believed in effect, that children could get along quite well without any toys save sticks and stones, that the fewer playthings they had the better off they were. She argued very convincingly. Of course, when you found out that she had no chick nor child of her own, but was moreover, a spinster, your faith in her theory perhaps was somewhat shocked. The theory was right, nevertheless, as you doubtless are forced to admit when you ponder on the happiness of the children you know. Without a question toys do not mean happiness.

When Charles the Second, King of England, was a child he "had a fondness for a wooden billet, without which in his arms he would never go abroad or lie down in his bed." This little stick of wood was his most prized possession as a baby. Beside it the beauty and wonder of all the toys in the royal nursery were as nothing.

Modern children are no more sophisticated than the royal Charles. Most of them leave pretty gifts willingly to go in search of some unlovely but not forgotten pencil end or broken doll or some other tattered remnant.

There are many things which an out-of-door-loving child can find to take the place of toys. Most children simply left alone in a garden or a field or the woods can find enough to amuse themselves without assistance. If they do need help teach them to look for birds and nests and butterflies and ant hills and wild flowers of as many sorts as they can find and pretty pebbles; teach them to weave baskets and dishes and plates out of grass and twigs and to build little houses of tree boughs and branches. They can be interested in making a collection of weeds, which is beneficial to everyone, for the fewer weeds left growing the better for the lawns.

USING WASTE PAPER

Many Ways in Which They Prove Valuable in the Home

Tissue and all soft papers are splendid for polishing windows. The texture is firm enough to stand a good deal of rubbing, and as the parts soil they can be thrown away. In this way a clean surface is applied to the glass throughout the operation. In using a duster the soiled part is rubbed again and again on the glass. This small point is worth considering.

Paper is the one great agent for cleaning the outside of frying pans and saucepans. A brisk rubbing with pieces of old newspapers will remove every trace of soot from the outsides of these vessels after using, then they can be washed readily inside and out.

The inside of a frying pan, too, readily yields its grease and burnt color if well rubbed with a piece of paper. When all the grease has been removed it can be washed in the usual way with no difficulty whatever.

Candlesticks, when made hot, will yield all their grease to soft paper far better than to a duster.

When grates and stoves are blackleaded the use of paper daily will keep up a high polish and remove all spots, thus saving more labor in re-black-leading.

Brass work and door plates will keep their lustre longer by being rubbed with paper than with a cloth.

Newspapers put down evenly and thickly under carpets not only make the carpet feel trebly thick and soft under foot, but moths, disliking the printers' ink exceedingly, will not lay their eggs near it. It is also said that moths will not molest furs if wrapped in newspapers when put away.

Shredded and finely cut paper makes a very good filling for cushions and pillows.

MONSTER HEADDRESSES

Gay French Queen Wore One Nearly Four Feet High

Marie Antoinette had a passion for extraordinary headdresses. One structure that she invented was forty-five inches in height and was composed of many yards of guaze and ribbon. From the folds sprang bunches of roses, and the entire edifice was surmounted by a waving plume of white feathers. It is recorded that when Maria Theresa received a portrait of her daughter wearing this headdress she exclaimed: "This is no daughter of mine! It is the portrait of an actress!"

The Duchess of Chartres determined to surpass the Queen and designed a headdress two inches higher. It was made up of many plumes waving at the top of a tower. Two waxen figures, representing the little Comte de Beaujolais (the brother of Louis Philippe) in his nurse's arms, were worn as ornaments. Beside them a parrot picked at a plate of cherries, and the wax figure of a black boy reclined at the nurse's feet. On different parts of the tower were the initials of the Duchesse's husband, her father and her father-in-law, made from her own hair.

At this time France and England were at war. In a naval engagement of the French frigate Licorne struck her flag, but the Belle Poule, another French vessel, crippled the Hector, an English man-of-war. As the Frenchmen were about to board two English vessels bore down to their consort's assistance, and the Belle Poule sailed away. The English fleet returned to Plymouth with two prizes, the Licorne and a French lugger.

The French, although they had lost a frigate, proclaimed a victory. The Queen and her women wore headdresses that represented the Belle Poule under full sail plowing a sea of green gauze in pursuit of the English frigate. This construction was known as the "coiffure Belle Poule."

The wife of an English officer living in Paris deemed the headdress an insult to the English navy and determined to resent it. At the next public occasion therefore she appeared carrying on her head five English line-of-battle ships, a French frigate and a lugger. An arrangement of silk and gauze represented Plymouth harbor, which the English ships, with their prizes, were entering. Each vessel carried a streamer that bore its name, and on the edifice at the back the word "Plymouth" appeared in glittering beads.

The audacity of the spirited Englishwoman struck every one dumb except the chief of police, who invited her to cross the frontier at her earliest convenience.

WORKERS FOR CANADA

Suggested They Stay Here Only for Summer—Vague View of Winter

That a partial solution of Canada's labor problem may be found in sending to the Dominion large numbers of workmen from Great Britain who would work during the spring and summer and return to the Old Country in the winter, is the belief of Sir Charles Hunter, M.P., as expressed after returning home from a trip to Canada.

The Canadian winter is still a bugbear to many people in Great Britain. Sir Charles is quoted saying that for five or six months the thermometer is down to 35 to 40 degrees below zero, and that the cold is almost intolerable, especially to women.

AFTERNOON PERILS

Mistakes More Apt to Occur When Body and Brain Are Weary

Late in the afternoon is the perilous hour for all day workers. Not only do statistics prove it, but there is an easily understandable physiological explanation for it. For it is toward the end of a day's work that fatigue comes on, and tired bodies and brains inevitably lead to mistakes and accidents.

"Bank clerks," says the Medical Record, "make most of the errors in the late afternoon; wherefore there is now early closing of these institutions, since bankers have found their employes' mistakes too expensive for the maintenance of longer hours. Every one now knows what dreadful calamity must be feared when railway men work too many hours through many days. As to druggists, to err (with perhaps fatal consequences) is the filling of a prescription is indeed human and hardly blameworthy in a clerk who must be attentively at his post almost two-thirds of thee twenty-four hours. Among industrial workers the desire for drink has often sprung from sheer physical exhaustion.

The 61 survivors of to-day's elimination round are eligible for the second half of the qualifying play to-morrow and the 32 holding low scores for 36 holes will compete in the first round match play tomorrow afternoon.

BASEBALL.

New York, July 23.—The New York American League club gas purchased Pitcher Watkins, a left-hander, from the Youngstown, O., club. Watkins will report to Manager Chance in the fall.

Auburn, N.Y., July 23.—Chairman John H. Farrell of the national board of arbitration governing minor baseball has given out the following orders relative to the sale and trading of players among major and minor leagues:

"All optional agreements must be exercised on or before Aug. 15.

"The sale or the release of players within 20 days of the commencement of the major league drafting period or within 20 days of the close of the season of the club disposing of the player is prohibited.

"The sale of a player's release by one national association to another shall be null and void against the selection by draft of the player by a major league club from the selling club unless he be in the actual service of the purchasing club for 20 days before the opening of the drafting season for major league clubs."

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 23.—Baseball is at last recognized as something worth telling posterity. In fact, it is going to be preserved in concrete for the benefit of unborn eyes to gaze upon. That is, if "Honus" Wagner, the "Flying Dutchman" of the Pirates, will consent to his part of the deal, namely, the tendering of his palmless glove and his uniform to the Carnegie Museum when he retires from the diamond. Dr. W. J. Holland, director of the museum, announced today that it was the desire of the institution to secure from "Honus" his baseball accoutrements when he has at last retired from the game, the same to be placed to the fore among the relics of other distinguished and skilful men who have gone before.

AUTO.

Glacier Park, Mont., July 23.—The American Automobile Association touring prize in the annual reliability run from Minneapolis to Glacier Park was awarded to the S. No. 20 Locomobile driven by Dr. J. D. Park, Duluth, which ended the run with a perfect score. The Glidden team trophy was awarded to the three Metz cars of Boston.

In the Anderson cup contest for runabouts, the three Metz cars, two Hupmobiles and a Krit car, all finished with perfect scores and in the draw the trophy was won by a Hupmobile.

ADVERTISE IN THE "TIMES"

LAUNDRY HELPS

When buying soap, get it in large quantities, as this usually means a considerable reduction in price, and also because soap improves in quality and durability by being kept.

An excellent hard soap can be made at home from these ingredients: Five pounds of clean grease, one can of potash, one heaping tablespoonful of borax, two tablespoonfuls of ammonia, and one quart and a cup over of cold water. Dissolve the potash in the water, then add the borax and ammonia, and slowly stir in the grease melted and lukewarm, and continue stirring until the mixture thickens; then pour it into a pan to harden, and when firm enough cut into cakes.

Towels that are very soiled and dingy will become sweet and white if treated in this way: Cover with cold water and set on the back of the stove. Add a little pure, white soap, shaved, and the juice of a lemon. Let the water come to a boil gradually. If very badly soiled repeat the process. Rinse in tepid water and then in cold water.

If a cupful of vinegar is put with the water in which colored clothes are washed, it will prevent the color from running.

To bleach handkerchiefs after washing let them stand overnight in water in which a bit of cream of tartar has been dissolved.

Wheat starch, which can be bought in packages, makes the fabric softer and more pliable than does cornstarch. Cornstarch requires about a quarter more water than wheat starch.

For starching lingerie use one teaspoon of starch, one quart of water and half a teaspoon each of borax and lard or wax.

A sheet of sandpaper on which to smooth the irons will be found useful in the laundry.

Keep a few dress-hangers in the laundry, and as soon as a frock is ironed put it on a hanger, so that it will not lose its shape.

NOT FITTED FOR MEDICINE

Eminent Austrian Counsels Women to Stick to Nursing

Prof. Hochenegg, the eminent surgeon, in an address to the Austrian Women's Association expressed the opinion that women were especially adapted to the profession of nursing.

He deplored the fact that their remuneration was small. The professor dissented, however, from the opinion of others in the matter of women doctors. He said the more he became acquainted with women medical students the more he was convinced that women were not fitted to become medical practitioners. He added:

"This is not meant for censure, but only a statement of fact. A doctor must judge independently and often act rapidly. His whole work demands qualities which are rarely found to be fully developed in the female sex. Despite the great industry and high intelligence shown by many of my women students, they are destined to succumb in the struggle, or at least not to be able to obtain a position corresponding to their work and their sacrifice of the joys of life.

"As nurses for the sick and wounded the conditions are entirely different. Here women nurses possess special power and fitness and are not subject to male competition."

Feathers on Shoes

Here is the feather fad adapted to footwear. And it's distinctly Parisian! Small tips are utilized for this purpose and of course should match or be in strict harmony with the dress worn. Two usually constitute the shoe ornament which is worn just as any buckle or bow would be.

Weight and Height

The ratio of weight to height is as follows: One should weigh from one pound and four-fifths to two pounds and two-thirds for every inch of height. Divide the number of pounds you weigh by your height in inches. If your weight exceeds two pounds and a half to every inch of height then reducing diet and exercise are to be considered.

Banana Sauce

If a banana is reduced to pulp and added to the milk or cream used as sauce over apple dumplings, a delightful flavor is imparted.

SCIENTIFIC LIST OF FAMOUS WOMEN

Queer Deductions Arrived at by Woman Who Carefully Studied Subject—Many Were Queens

Mrs. Cora Sutton Castle, Ph.D., of Columbia University worked with painstaking and scientific care for four years to compile "A Statistical Study of Eminent Women," containing the names of 868 women, whose eminence was estimated under the definition of the Century Dictionary, which says "high in rank, office, worth or public estimation, conspicuous, highly distinguished."

The first twenty women on Dr. Castle's list, arranged according to their eminence, are:

Mary Queen of Scots, Joan of Arc, Victoria of England, Elizabeth of England, George Sand, Mme. de Stael, Catherine II. of Russia, Maria Theresa, Marie Antoinette, Anne of England, Mme. de Sevigne, Mary I. of England, George Eliot, Christina of Sweden, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Mme. de Maintenon, Josephine of France, Catherine de Medici, Cleopatra and Harriet Beecheer Stowe.

"The race between Cleopatra and Harriet Beecher Stowe," said one reviewer, "to say nothing of Jeanne d'Arc coming in one lap ahead of Queen Victoria, is an interesting spectacle. Dr. Castle's list abounds in these curious juxtapositions. Marie Brinvilliers, for instance, whose chief claim to fame rests in the number of people she managed to poison, just precedes Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris. Charlotte Corday is one behind Charlotte Bronte."

Dr. Castle is convinced that eminence among women has been severely inhibited by lack of opportunity and points out that the eighteenth century furnished 24.5 per cent. of the total list of eminent women, while the nineteenth supplied 38.5, which means that 63 per cent. in all, were born during the last two centuries. "Of course, it is inevitable," she says, "that the work of contemporary and near-contemporary women should be recorded more abundantly, but that rule works both ways, for while the number of women recorded may be greater because the material is near at hand they are often underestimated and it will take many years for them to become adjusted to their proper places in the world's history.

"Forty-two nations produced the 863 eminent women, among which England stands first with 178, France second with 170, Germany third with 144 and America has 75.

"Twenty-nine different fields of celebrity are represented in this list of women, among which fields literature leads with 337 cases, marriage comes in as a rather distant second with 87, and religion, sovereign, actress, music, birth, mistress, scholar, political influence or ability, artist, philanthropy, tragic fate, heroine, motherhood, reformer, dancer, and immortalized in literature follow in order."

NERVY CUSTOMERS

Those Who Use Articles and Then "Take Them Back"

The millinery buyer had ordered several model hats from Paris, which were offered for sale at $300 each. One of the best customers of the store ordered two of these hats charged to her account and sent home. The buyer of this department was at dinner that night at the Hotel St. Regis. He saw the lady at a distant table wearing one of the hats. Next day both hats were returned to him. The buyer made an attempt to get the lady on the telephone. After importuning her several times she called in reference to the matter. He told her frankly that he could not take the hats back, as they had been worn. She denied it and appealed to the head of the house. The proprietor requested the buyers to take the hats back as a matter of policy. The buyer became furious and informed the owner of the store that unless the hats were taken and paid for he would resign. The proprietor told him to send the hats to the head office and he would do what was necessary. The buyer received a cheque next day for $300. It was signed by the proprietor of the store.

A lady called upon one of the leading Baltimore houses and requested that an evening wrap be sent to her home for approval. One of the selling staff of the store happened to see the lady at the theatre that night, wearing the wrap. To the surprise of the department it was returned to the store the next morning. The lady was requested to call at the store, which she did. She stoutly denied having worn the wrap. Many places showed where she had sat or leaned against it. She still persisted in her denial.

The firm decided to take the wrap back in obedience to the unwritten law of "policy." As the customer was leaving the store one of the young saleladies rushed toward her and said: "Madam, you have forgotten these," handing her a pair of gloves and a handkerchief that were taken from the pocket of the wrap.

A prominent pin-ticket house has devised a ticket which is fastened like an ordinary price tage to any prominent part of the merchandise, and cannot be removed without being mutilated.

By the adoption of this pin-ticket scheme a large department store reported that within one month its percentage of returns decreased by fully 50 per cent.

Crossing the Bar

(By Lord Tennyson)

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark;

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Sanol's Blood Salt

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion, such as DYSPEPSIA, GASTRIC CATARRH, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, ETC., and as an aid to digestion in wasting and nervous diseases.

This preparation is a mixture compound so as to resemble in essence and effect the salty part of the human blood which through disease or a wrong way of living might have been lost and not regained. In some cases of flatulence, a sense of fullness or pressure aver the region of the stomach, the blood salt has no equal, in fact there is no other remedy that can take its place.

WAR BULLETIN

The supposedly impregnable barrier of Z-Rays hemming in the United Republics of America has been penetrated! The European fleets of aerodromones are approaching, the foreign powers having solved the problem of our isolation. Napoleon Edison, who alone is capable of restoring the Z-Ray wall, has disappeared. Where is he? The integrity of the Western Hemisphere and the peace of the world depend upon his immediate return.

Black Always Good Taste

When a woman can have only one evening dress a season, unless black is exceedingly unbecoming to her, it would be very good judgment for her to select a gown of some sort of black material for it. The one shown above is charming, of black liberty satin, veiled in black maline embroidered with jet. The tunic is finished by two ruffles of accordeon pleated chiffon. Over one shoulder there is a cord of jet, which is finished with a tassel as it swings nearly at the bottom of the dress. The sleeves are of black maline. This sort of a gown is very beautiful for a young matron.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Cooling Jellies

To cool jellies stand the jelly mold in a bowl of water in which a handful of salt and the same of soda has been thrown.

Saves the Roller

If a piece of sheeting or blanket is sewn tightly round the worn roller of a wringing machine, it saves the clothes from being marked or torn.

Use a Cork Knob

Should the knob come off a pan or kettle, a screw can be slipped through the hole with the head inside the lid. Screw a cork onto the protruding end. This knob will not get hot and can be replaced.

Skim the Fat

After boiling a piece of ham or bacon, the liquor should be allowed to stand until cold and then skimmed for the fat. Press the water from the fat. It can be used for making pastry.

Coax Your New Kid Gloves

Before wearing new kid gloves, if they are laid between the folds of a damp cloth for an hour, they will be found much easier to put on. The damp causes the kid to become more pliable and to stretch to the shape of the hand without splitting or cracking. If rubbed with a piece of stale bread every time they are taken off, it will be necessary to send them to a cleaners much fewer times.

More Mills Needed

Western Canada requires more flour mills, biscuit factories, cereal mills and pickle factories, etc. There is plenty of wheat and other grain in the raw state of the finest quality ready to be manufactured into the finished product, but in spite of this tons of biscuits, breakfast foods and pickles are imported from Europe and the United States for the local markets.—From The Dominion

A certain New Brunswick clergyman had occasion to visit the Provincial Asylum in the city of St. John. Passing through one of the wards, he was accosted by a patient, an individual who could hardly lay claim to any but the most mundane cast of countenance, who gravely said to him, "I am St. Peter."

The reverend visitor expressed his gratification at meeting so famous a character, and passed on presently into another ward. On returning, a few minutes later, he was again stopped by his piously inclined friend, who surprised him by remarking, "I am St. Paul."

"But," exclaimed the clergyman, "you told me a minute ago that you were St. Peter."

"Ah, yes," explained the man, "but that was by my first wife."

Polecat Captured

A polecat was captured at Allimawr, Brecknockshire, Wales. This rare animal is better known in the county by its Welsh name, "Ffwlbart." The marten, which differs very much from the polecat, is supposed to visit the [illegible] Wood, in the vicinity, occasionally.

THREE I love, I say.
FOUR I love with all my heart.
FIVE I cast away
SIX he loves.
SEVEN she loves
EIGHT they both love.
NINE he comes
TEN he tarries.
ELEVEN he courts.
TWELVE he marries.

Apple Salad

Green or red uncooked apples may be scooped out and filled with pop corn, nuts, celery, and some other fruit. Mix this combination with the pulp of the apple and bind together with mayonnaise. Garnish with nasturtium, grape or other leaves.

Marmalade

Cook crab apples and sweet or wild plums separately till soft. Then rub through colander and measure. To each three quarts of crab apple allow one quart of plum. Mix and weigh and allow one pound sugar to each of fruit. Cook slowly and very carefully that this may not burn till smooth and thick. Place in marmalade pots. When cold seal as for jelly.

Apple Custard Pie

For one large pie use one pint of apple sauce and a tablespoon of butter, the yolks of three eggs, beaten well, with a pinch of salt and half a cup of sugar. Beat this into a pint of hot milk and bake in shallow tin or dish lined with crust. (Pastry must be baked before pouring in the custard.) Flavor with lemon or spice. When done spread over the top a meringue made of the whites of the eggs and a half cup of sugar.

Apple Pudding

Chop a cupful of suet to a coarse powder and stir into it 3 cupfuls of flour, twice sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. Add enough milk to make a dough that can be rolled out. Roll into a square sheet, lay 3 cupfuls of peeled and minced apples, strewn with sugar. Bring the four corners of the sheet over the fruit, and pinch the corners to gether in the middle. Tie up firmly with a piece of broad white tape passed twice around the pudding. Lay in a steamer and cook for 2½ hours. Remove the tape and serve the pudding with a hard sauce flavored with lemon juice and powdered cinnamon.

Apple Pie

Peel and slice tart apples and place in stewpan with just enough water to keep from burning. Stew till about half tender and unbroken. Sprinkle the bottom of a pastry-lined dish or pan with dots of butter and sugar and then fill with alternate layers of the apple and sugar and butter. On the top sprinkle flour and nutmeg or cinnamon or grated lemon peel. Pour over the whole three-fourths of the apple syrup or water and sugar. Place a pastry cover over the top and slash well. The pastry lining should be baked to a light brown before the apples are added.

Creamed Apple Pie

Pare, core and quarter sweet apples. Put them into a pudding dish with a few teaspoonfuls of water to prevent burning. Cover closely and cook until tender but not broken. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar to each cupful and let them get cold in the syrup. Then cut into thin slices or tiny dice. Roll out some puff paste quite thin; line a pie plate and sprinkle with flour. Lay on another crust and bake until brown. When ready to serve open the crusts, spread the lower one with the stewed apple, cover with whipped cream, put on the top crust and sprinkle that with powdered sugar.

Crab Apple Jelly

Make as for apple jelly, using a little more water. Do not pare or core the apples.

Another recipe for crabapple jelly: Wash and wipe the apples. Cut in half and place in crock on the back of the stove or the oven, setting in another vessel of hot water if there is danger of too great heat. When the apples are soft place in jelly bag to drain over night. Measure this juice and allow one pint of sugar to one of juice. Boil and skim the juice ten minutes before adding the heated sugar. Stir till dissolved, then boil eight or ten minutes. This makes a very tart jelly, stronger than many people like. Mint may be used to flavor this when served with mutton or lamb.

An Intelligent Dog

An interesting story of a black Pomeranian dog comes from a residence in the Chobham road, Sunningdale, England. The animal enjoys lying in front of the fire, and as he sleeps indoors has had opportunities of witnessing every morning the operation of fire-lighting. One cold morning the owner found the dog keeping guard on the hearth rug over some paper, a piece of wood, and a lump of coal, which he had fetched, piece by piece, from the coal box in order, apparently, to expedite the lighting of the fire that he might the sooner warm himself.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to five per cent (5 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

Trent Canal

Steel Pontoon Gate Lifter.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Steel Pontoon Gate Lifter, Trent Canal" will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, July 29th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $1,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

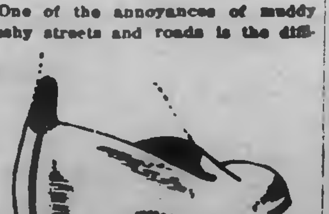
By order,
L. K. JONES,
Asst. Deputy Minister and Secretary.
Department of Railways and Canals,
Ottawa, 25th June, 1913.

Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.—44728.

KEEPING RUBBERS ON

Button Them to the Shoes by a Simple Device

One of the annoyances of muddy slushy streets and roads is the difficulty to be found in keeping overshoes on the feet. An old shoe might fit very well, but it also has a tendency to stick in the road when the ground is the least bit boggy. A good way to keep the shoes on is to fasten a small tongue to the back and have a button sewed on the shoe onto which this tongue can be fastened. If the button hole in the tongue is carefully made the tongue will last as long as the shoes.



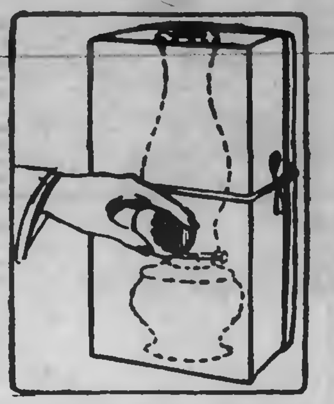
DISTINGUISHED COAL-HEAVERS

The learned English judge who recently set himself to break stones in order to test a case submitted for his judgment was, after all, only copying the excellent example set by Judge Moss, who on one occasion travelled specially to Bethesda to investigate the conditions under which quarrying was done, to help him decide a lawsuit. He seized the trucks and pushed them himself wth both hands. Mr. Justice Warrington of England has also toiled as hard as any coal-heaver. A few years ago some eighteen tons of coal near his residence set up combustion, and all his servants there were called upon to remove it urgently to the open. His lordship thereupon took his wheelbarrow and worked vigorously with the rest.

EGG TESTER

Experts Say You Cannot Improve This Variety

If you're going to set any hens this spring or put eggs in an incubator you ought to have an egg tester. Don't buy one. The Department of Agriculturt experts admit they cannot improve on this home-made contrivance.



It consists simply of a pasteboard shoe box and an ordinary kerosene lamp.

The box is provided with a hole at the top and one on the side, the latter being just a bit smaller than an egg. The lamp is lighted, put in the box and the eggs are held against the hole in the side.

After the eggs have been under the hen, or in the incubator, 7 days a fertile egg will show a dark spot in the center with a lot of little veins running out in all directions from it. An infertile egg will be clear.

BAT FOR BUNTING

Big League Players May Soon Carry Their Own Bats

If the present tendency of specialization in baseball continues it will soon be customary for the average big league player to carry a bag of bats as varied in shape, size and purpose as a golf player. There are a dozen or more different kinds of bats now in use, though usually the great hitters use but one kind.

Now, however, there has been developed a bat made solely for bunting and the patent office recently issued a patent on the device.

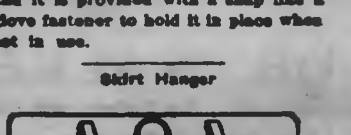
The bat is of ordinary shape and size, but it has two deep slots on either side extending from the butt and about one-third of the way toward the handle or grip end. Slips of a non-resilient material, such as card board are placed in these slots.

The result is that when the ball is struck with the side presenting the cardboard strips the force of the rebound is deadened and a slow bunt is made. When the other side of the bat is turned the effect is the same as with an ordinary bat.

Mud Guard For Shoes

There are numerous devices for avoiding mud. One of the most unique is a mud guard for shoes. This guard only protects the heel of the shoe, but it is said to afford the most ample protection to the heel. It is a properly shaped piece of leather or rubberized fabric permanently attached to the shoe between the heel and the upper. It is so made that it juts out from the heel and keeps the mud from being plastered on the shoe. In fine weather the guard may be turned up and it is provided with a snap like a glove fastener to hold it in place when not in use.

Skirt Hanger



A couple of wooden clasp clothes pins and a length of stiff wire make the best skirt or trousers hangers in the world. Bend the wire in the shape shown in the illustration and attach it to the pins as shown.

The Shifting Poles

Both Peary and Amundsen made allowances in determining the site of the Poles. Their position is not perfectly constant, there being a counter-clock elliptical movement of some 30 feet, and a counter-clock circular movement of some 26 feet in diameter, in a period of 428 days at the extreme axis of the earth. This change, however, is so slight as not to be reckoned in practical calculations. Peary and Amundsen made no guesses, but took several observations from various standpoints to determine conclusively that they had reached the Pole.—The Christian Herald.

AN IDEAL VACATION TRIP VIA GREAT LAKES STEAMSHIPS

At this season of the year when so many are planning their vacation trip the question "Where To Go" naturally arises—What could be more delightful than a Great Lakes trip, where the air is pure, the sun shines and cool refreshing breezes blow?

Few people realize with what ease and speed a trip from the East to Fort William and Winnipeg, can be made via the Canadian Pacific Great Lakes Express Steamships. You can leave Toronto 12.45 noon Tuesday or Saturday and arrive Winnipeg 9.60 p. m. Thursday or Monday. Fifty-seven hours from Toronto to Winnipeg: twelve hours faster than any other service. For those who wish to leave on different days in the week, and have a little more time on the water, the trip can be made leaving Toronto 12.45 noon Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, arriving in Winnipeg 11.40 a.m. Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

If you are contemplating a trip, don't let this slip your memory. Canadian Pacific Steamships make the fastest time, have the best of accommodation and the table is unexcelled. Full particulars and reservations on trains and ships, at every Canadian Pacific Ticket Office.

ALMOST TWO HUNDRED UNITED STATES FIRMS IN EASTERN CANADA

Long List of Business Concerns With Branches in Quebec and Ontario--Total Capitalization is Over $230,000,000--Do Not Show Any Fear as to the Commercial Future of the Dominion.

Although certain financial interests in the United States have been leaving only the very smallest stones unturned in their efforts to persuade those of their fellow-citizens who were thinking of emigrating to Canada that blue ruin and financial chaos were just one jump behind the Dominion, United States capitalists do not seem to have been seriously impressed by the arguments presented.

In the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, there are 195 business corporations whose head offices are in the United States, but which have been organized to manufacture goods in Canada for the Canadian and the export trade.

More than half of these companies have been organized in the last five years.

Their total capitalization is $230,000,000, which does not look as though the American investor who is looking for safe as well as remunerative opportunities to place his money was very much afraid of what the commercial future of the Dominion had in store.

When this amount, devoted to manufacturing, is added to the total which the farmer who moves across the border to an Alberta or Saskatchewan wheat ranch brings every year to the country, the expression of confidence in the stability of Canadian invesments is as conclusive as it is comprehensive. The Immigration authorities estimate that between $100,000,000 and $150,000,000 in cash is brought into the country every year by the farmers who emigrate from the United States.

A partial list of the manufacturing companies whose head offices are in the United States but which have established branches in Eastern and Central Canada is as follows:—

MAKING A PORTAGE

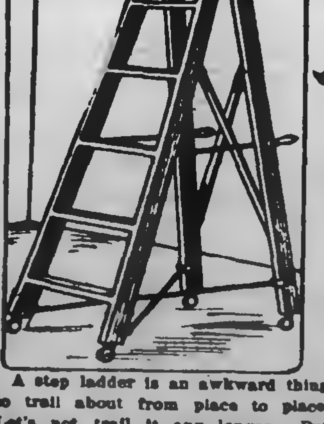
How to Ease the Weight of a Canoe

It has been said that the portages cure more people of the woods fever than anything else to be found in the wild lake country. The burdens one must carry at the portages are certainly discouraging even to the most enthusiastic and cause much backache and general soreness.

The carrying of the canoe over the portages has always been a problem. Some of the canoes are so large that it is impossible for one man to manage them. This device would not do for them. But for the smaller and lighter boats a much easier method of portage has been invented than the old custom of raising the canoe over the head and walking with it in this uncomfortable manner, with the arms bearing much of the weight.

A canoe rest for the shoulders has been devised that is made of four pieces of stout board and lets the entire weight fall on the shoulders without straining the canoe or the man who is carrying it. The four pieces of board are fashioned into a frame which is provided with padded notches for the shoulders, on one side and on the other smaller notches at each end into which fall the battens of the canoe.

Roll the Ladder

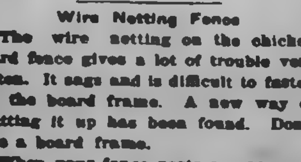


A step ladder is an awkward thing to trail about from place to place. Let's not trail it any longer. Put casters on each of its four legs and push it around. You'll find it's a whole lot easier.

Wire Netting Fence

The wire netting on the chicken yard fence gives a lot of trouble very often. It sags and is difficult to fasten to the board frame. A new way of putting it up has been found. Don't use a board frame.

When your fence posts are up good and firm, instead of nailing rails on them, string them, top and bottom with heavy wire. Then stretch your netting and fasten it to this wire frame with hooks made of the same wire.



It's the simplest and easiest way to put up a wire netting fence, and if it is properly stretched when put on there will be no sagging.

Huge Excavation

The earth and rock excavated from the Panama canal, if it could be piled into a column a yard square, would reach two-thirds of the distance from the earth to the moon.

To Prevent Accidents

A permanent exhibit of devices and means to prevent accidents to workmen has been started at Copenhagen.

KEEPS ATHLETE FRESH

Grape Fruit Said to be the Ideal Reviver for Players

A new reviver for athletes, which also serves in a way as a food and an aid to training, has been discovered by Lieutenant P. A'Beckett, an all round sportsman, also well known as a regimental footballer. This is the West Indian grape fruit.

Oranges and lemons, particularly the latter, have served almost since football became a British institution, to refresh the footballer at half time, and of late years many have taken to chewing gum, which they kept in the mouth all through the play, as it served the double purpose of preventing thirst and killing any desire for an interval cigarette.

Lieutenant A'Beckett, however, says the grape fruit is an invaluable asset to any team, being health giving and sustaining, and to it he attributes the success of his team in the Dorset Senior Football league. He believes in giving each man half a grape fruit every morning, another at the interval on the football field and another piece at night.

"As one of the rules in training is to cut down all excess fluid, the acid pungent qualities of grape fruit juice makes it an ideal thirst quencher, as a man is content with little, and it is also agreeable to the most delicate stomach, which is important considering how vital it is to an athlete to have perfect digestion."

BRINE CURE FOR HORSES

Novel Bath Experiment at Droitwitch for Afflicted Animals

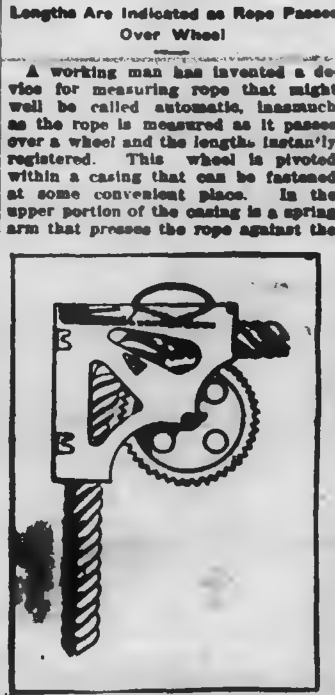
A brine bath, in which four horses can stand in hot brine, is in existence at Droitwich. The bath was built at the rear of Mr. Everett's garage, in St. George's Square, with a sloping way down which the horses walk into four stalls, where they find themselves in about 2 feet 6 inches of warm brine. After standing in this for the number of hours ordered by a veterinary surgeon, they are brought out, dried, and properly bandaged, to avoid all risk of catching cold.

Droitwich brine is twelve times as strong as ordinary sea water, and the cure is intended for race horses, polo ponies, and hunters. Mr. Everett says that he has for years used the brine, made hot, on lame horses, by dipping bandages in it and applying them to the legs. He has found the cure successful for strains, bangs, and rheumatism. He also found it very good while he looked after his father's stud farm at Finstall Park for foals and yearlings who were weak in the legs.

ROPE MEASURER

Lengths Are Indicated as Rope Passes Over Wheel

A working man has invented a device for measuring rope that might well be called automatic, inasmuch as the rope is measured as it passes over a wheel and the lengths instantly registered. This wheel is pivoted within a casing that can be fastened at some convenient place. In the upper portion of the casing is a spring arm that presses the rope against the wheel with just enough force to make it engage the cogs and turn the wheel, yet not forcibly enough to impede the movement of the rope. This wheel is connected with a registering mechanism, and each revolution represents so many inches, or feet, as the case may be. As the rope passes out therefore, the length is recorded at the same time. Such a device would be useful in a hardware store or other places where rope is sold.



MEASURED AS IT RUNS.

ADDING TO EXHIBIT

Interesting Additions to Specimens at Victoria Museum

Human bones shaped into instruments used by the Indians, most probably before the advent of the white man into North America, is the latest interesting and educating exhibit at the Victoria Museum, Ottawa. Arm bones have been whittled at the wrist end to a point, resembling a large spike nail. What these were made and used for is not known.

Another addition is the erection in a glass case of a pair of fine specimens of Arctic musk oxen, in the lobby. Twenty-five cases of archæological specimens arrived recently from an old Indian village near Prescott.

Mr. Harlan I. Smith, who has charge of the antiquities department of the museum, states that Canada is rich in these classes of specimens. For instance, he said, from the township of Blandford, near Toronto, in a very short time 26 archæological sites and five Indian burial places were found.

Old Country Forests

Of the total area of Ireland only about 1.5 per cent. is wooded, while forests cover 5.3 per cent. of England, 4.5 per cent. of Scotland and 3.9 per cent. of Wales.

Progress of Medicine

Experiments in France indicate that mushroom poisoning can be created by a serum prepared in a similar manner to diphtheria antitoxin.

CREAM-COLORED BEAR

Dr. French of Washington, the zoological collector, to whose generosity in exchanging specimens British Columbia owes many varieties of game that are being tried out and acclimatized at the Chilliwack farm and on the East Kootenay reserve, is anxious to secure a specimen of the Kermode cream bear, which is found exclusively in the Bella Coola district and on Gribble and Princess Royal Islands.

A price of $250 is offered for the bear alive. A splendid specimen of the Kermode bear was recently killed at the head of Cascade Inlet. These animals are extremely rare.

AN ADJUSTABLE MIRROR

Can be Moved to Give Reflection at Any Angle Desired

An adjustable mirror that, while it is designed primarily as a shaving mirror, can be used by women on their dressing tables with equal convenience is a new invention. The glass is attached to a support that consists of three arms so connected that they have five joints and can be lengthened, shortened, raised or lowered in an instant with one hand. A universal joint on the back of the mirror permits of its movement independent of the angle of the arms. A small bracket that comes with the outfit is screwed to wall or window frame and the mirror can be inserted in this bracket or removed from it in an instant by means of a short rod on the free end of the last arm. These arms can be turned about to form legs to support the mirror on a table.

UNCLAIMED BANK BALANCES

Two-thirds of a Million Dollars Lying in Canadian Vaults

A blue book issued at Ottawa giving a list of unclaimed balances in Canadian banks, shows that some thousands of depositors throughout Canada have for some reason or other left with the banks a total of $677,147, to which no one has laid claim for years. The unclaimed balances run from a few cents up to several thousand dollars, over a score being in the neighborhood of five thousand dollars.

"A Man of Straw"

The legal expressions, "a man of straw," and "straw-bail," meaning a worthless person, or one who deceives the authorities into accepting him as a security on bad grounds, dates from a time when idle fellows hung about the law courts ready to give false evidence or to go bail for anyone who would pay them. They were called "straw-shoes," as they put wisps of straw in their shoes, either as a badge or to ease their consciences when they swore they owned sufficient land—represented by the straw—to go bail for a prisoner. The "straw-shoes" swiftly degenerated into professional perjurers, ready to swear anything. They lingered till comparatively recent times in Ireland, hated by their neighbors.

TRACING MAN'S DESCENT

Scientists to See Which Race is Nearest the Ape

An attempt is to be made at the Imperial Research Laboratory at Munich to determine, by blood precipitin experiments, which of the races of men bears the closest relationship to the ape.

As the case now stands, there is general agreement among scientists that man and the ape are descended from a common ancestor; but as to whether the black, the white, the red, or the yellow man, the pygmy, the giant, or the medium-sized man, was the original human type there are strong differences of opinion. One body of theorists holds that the negro is a degenerated white type, while another insists that the white man is evolved from an ancient black type.

A Commendable Purpose

A German society of electricians has offered a costly gold medal to be awarded annually for the best device or process produced in any country for safeguarding life or limb or promoting health in the electrical industry.

Bee Tree in Big City

When a big tree on Maplewood Avenue, Montreal, was chopped down by some employes of the Tramways Company, it was found to house a big colony of bees, and three hundred pounds of fine honey was secured.

Russian City's Growth

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking rough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; a very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarhozone Inhaler rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that hape hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c. sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Getting Ready for Hydro.

Hydro operations are now in progress. Eight or more wooden poles have been located and the poles for street lighting are being distributed on the streets where the underground system will be carried out.

Pulkinghorn Charge Dismissed

In regard to the Pulkinghorn auto case, Magistrate Rush gave judgment in yesterday's case and dismissed the charge without costs. This case was where a boy claimed to have damaged his bicycle whilst escaping from Pulkinghorn's auto.

A Correction.

In our obituary notice regarding the deplored death of Mrs. John Edgar, by a typographical error, we said she had left two sisters, Mrs. Swan of Toronto and Susie of, Win-Swalm, of Toronto, Susie of Winnipeg. This should have read Mrs. peg and Mrs. Alfred Amos of Fielding, Sask.

Notes of the Regiment.

The annual inspection of the clothing, arms and equipment of the 57th Regiment will take place on Monday, August 4th, next. All great coats, arms and equipment must be in the armouries—laid out ready for inspection. All other clothing in stores or on issue, must be accounted for by the O.C. units and the whole properly listed.

Trouble Said to be Brewing.

The Times is informed that considerable dissatisfation is being aroused in certain quarters over the placing of the fire insurance on schools. It is claimed that the business is placed through one or two insurance agents who have had a monopoly of it for years. The matter is likely to come before the Board at an early date.

Judges Off the Bench.

This morning the members of the Board of Judges will be taken for a visit to the big plants of the Canadian General Electric Co., the Quaker Oats Co., and probably several other points of interest about the city. At 1.30 the visitors will be entertained to a trip down the river.

Receipts From Big Picnic.

All the accounts for the People's Picnic, held one week ago yesterday, by the Retail Merchants' Association have not as yet been received, and a financial statement cannot be given. It is known, however, that the total Receipts for the day were about $850. What balance remains will be held as a "rainy day" fund by the association for future work.

A New Local Band.

Some of the members who composed the Rube's Band which gave splendid service at the People's picnic, held a meeting and a committee was appointed to look into several propositions in connection with the organizing of a band. The object of the new band is to become a first-class concert organization.

Flower Thieves in East City

A resident of East City yesterday told The Times that flower thieves are too numerous by half in East City. He said that several residents of this part of the city are mourning the loss of pot-plants. The thief takes the plant and roots but is generous enough to leave the empty pots.

Church Grounds Improved.

The old fence surrounding George street Methodist church has been removed, which is a decided improvement. It is understood that the board walk on the south side will be replaced by cement. When the hollows are filled in, the lawn, the grassy sward around the church, will add much to the beauty of that handsome structure.

AN IDEAL SUMMER RESORT

The Grand Trunk Passenger Department are in receipt of a letter from a prominent Boston traveller, who visited Algonquin Park recently; he says:—

> "We are enjoying our stay very much at the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, and can only offer our heartiest congratulations on the efficient manner in which everything is managed here; in fact my wife likes it so well, she is planning to remain some time after I leave."

G.T.R. Brakeman Hurt.

Mr. Howard Willcott, a G.T.R. brakeman, who lives at Little Britain, whilst uncoupling the van from the train at Lindsay, standing on the front platform with his right arm hooked around the railing on the front platform. When the train moved, his foot caught between the tie and the rail, and before he could pull his foot out, the arm which was around the railing was horribly mangled, between the wrist and the elbow, he had his arm broken and the bones breaking through the flesh. He was removed to the hospital and it is hoped that his arm may be saved.

Yesterday's Drunks.

At yesterday's police court, Thos. Healy guilty of having been drunk, $5.75. Walton McNeal said he was drunk, $2 to be paid forthwith. McNeal said he had paid a fine 7 weeks ago and did not get a receipt.

Harry Peters denied having been D. and D. P. C. Bullied said he had found Peters very drunk. He advised Peters to go home and Peters told him to go to ——. $2 and costs, to be paid in 10 days.

A young man additted supply a blacklister named Mann with whiskey. He did not know that Mann was on the prohibited list. He was given the minimum fine of $25 with $2.60 costs. Fallon another blacklister, pleaded guilty to supplying Mann with liquor. He said he got the liquor on Friday from Mann, and returned it to him on Saturday. It was white whiskey he returned. Witness, though a blacklister, denied touching any of the whiskey. Mr Mann, in the box, said he denied giving the booze to last witness. He had no whiskey in his possession on Friday. Fallon was fined $50 and $2.60 costs. Mann, recalled, said Fallon had drank some of the whiskey. Security for payment of the $52.60 within 10 days was accepted.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars nad testimonials.

BALKED AT THE WOMAN JURY

Ship's Captain Derided Federal Regulations, but Dire Threat Brought Him to Time.

The prospect of facing a woman jury in muncipal court was more effectual in making Capt. Brown of the American steamer Leelenaw, comply with port regulations than was the threat of Federal prosecution when Harbor Patrolman Bakeey went to the ship to ask him to display port lights and rig a proper gangway. From his berth, whither he had retired early, Capt. Brown commended the patrolman to a "warm climate."

Bakeey replied that there was a federal fine of $200 for the offenses; the captain grunted from his berth. Bakeey threatened arrest; the captain snored.

"They have a woman jury in municipal court," suggested Bakeey, "and you will have to face that." Instantly the captain raised his hand to his whiskers and the watchman came running.

"All hands on deck," commanded Capt. Brown, "and order the gangway changed and proper lights hung. I won't face a woman jury in any court, and me 60 years old."—Portland Oregonian.

COMING TO PETERBOROUGH.

"TINY TOWN."

"The midget has ceased to be a myth." To-day he is a civilized being, slap-bang up to date, with fancy socks or hobble skirt, according to sex. To these inhabitants of Tiny Town, for instance, life is all stern reality. Tiny Town open at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday, at 2.30 and 8 each day. Tiny Town's mayor is 36 years of age, and for all his 30 inches height, he is heir to all the cares and worries common to other ordinary seized old gentlemen of the same age. And so with all the other quaint villagers. They are truly men and women with all the hopes and ambitions, feelings and emotions, of all full-sized people. They object to being regarded as children. How do these remarkable little people live? Like we of the full sized world, eating as we do, but out of tiny spoons, drinking from toy cups, wielding ridiculously small forks and knives. A third the size of an ordinary mortal, they possibly eat a little more than a third as much. One roll at breakfast will suffice three tiny townsmen. But the economy effected in feeding the midgets is more than balanced by the cost of dressing them. The tiny feet must be shod in specially made boots and shoes, the clothes of the men and women must be as elaborate and well-fitting as any turned out for full sized beings. The Tiny Townsmen or woman may effect some economy in the matter of sleeping apartments. Three bachelor midgets might share the one bed in the one room without discomfort, and not get in each other's way when rising of a morning. It may be indiscreet to mention, but it is nevertheless a fact, that on more than one occasion, when travelling, the dignified Hayati Hassid, the Turkish Tom Thumb, has slept in a dress basket, and not lost a wink all night. Occasionally midgets marry each other, but more frequently the 35 inches high man seeks his life's companion among the girls of the "big" world, and practically without exception matches have been happy ones. Friederich Ulpts, who is one of the brainiest and smallest midgets in the world, is married to a normal sized wife, and has two daughters who can easily lift their father up and put him on the mantleshelf. Mr. Ulpts is well endowed with worldly goods, and has a beautiful home in Vienna. Hayati Hassid, on the other hand, is confirmed bachelor. Though 56, he says: "I like to think I'm 21 with the girls." The tiny people have brought their own Viennese cook to America, for they are mostly Austrians and like their national dishes. A barber who is also a valet to the men, looks after the ladies' hair for women midgets, almost without exception, have beautiful [illegible], though the men [illegible]

YOU CAN MAKE MONEY IN

Carmangay

"The Star of Alberta"

PAST The splendidly strategic site of Carmangay was discovered by a far seeing, shrewd railway engineer attracted to the district by the lure of the finest wheat in the Canadian West. He snapped up lands where the wide canyons of the Little Bow River narrows to a point. Here must all railways cross. The C. P. R. came and the shipping centre created went ahead by leaps and bounds.

PRESENT Carmangay today is a thriving incorporated town, with not less than 53 business places. Her up-to-date electric and natural water supply systems are owned and operated by the people. Carmangay boasts an eight-roomed schoolhouse, two banks and four big elevators, shipping over a million bushels in 1911 and 1½ millions in 1912. Carmangay has coal mines operating, and the entire district is underlaid with coal of finest Galt quality.

FUTURE Carmangay grows as Alberta grows. That means a wonderful future. Four new railroads are heading for Carmangay. Four new elevators are trying to cope with the tremendous wheat yields of the district. The mines are opening up splendid prospects. Carmangay is being rapidly developed into one of the greatest towns in the Canadian West. YOU can just as confidently invest in Carmangay as her own people do, who are building in brick and stone for a tremendous future. Carmangay has her own supply of finest brick clay and stone right at her doors, and will soon supply her sister cities in Alberta.

CANADIANS QUICK TO GRASP CHANCE OF MONEY IN FOXES

United States Government Astonished at Lack of Enterprise in Own People--Islands of Alaskan Coast Are Rich in Blue and Silver Foxes, Sought by Canadians

Washington, July 25.—A number of Canadians have written to the Department of Commerce seeking to buy some of the blue and silver foxes from the Government's preserves in Alaska, but no citizen of the United States has made similar request, although the department is anxious to get some Americans to go in for fox-breeding.

Assistant Secretary Sweet declared to-day that good profits await those who take up the industry. The Government, he said, has a number of small Islands off the Alaskan coast which it will lease to any one who desires them for fox farming, and at the same time the Government will furnish breeding animals at low prices.

There are several fox-raising establishments in Canada, Mr. Sweet said which are reported to be making big profits, and as the skins bring fancy prices in London, centre of the fur-selling trade, he thought of the citizens of United States bringing in part of the returns

Is Religious War Coming

The Montreal Star says editorially: "A mob of hoodlums tore down a tent in which religious meetings were being held, and destroyed most of the contents. True to their traditions, the police took no part in the controversy."

When the police act as the Montreal police have been for some time acting, it begins to look as if they were being inspired from higher sources. It won't take very much more of this sort of thing to participate a crisis in Canada. It is all right to be infallible, but because a man "knows" he has the true religion is no excuse for his lording it over everybody and trying to play the little tin god.

PUBLIC DEBT DOWN TWENTY MILLIONS

Surplus of Fifty-Six and One Half Millions Easily Largest in History of the Do minion

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, July 25.—The final figures for the last Canadian fiscal year which have been prepared by the Finance Department show that as predicted by Hon. Mr. White in the House there is a record surplus. The total is no less than $56,500,000 on current account, which is easily the largest in the history of the Dominion.

Public Debt Reduced.

Under the wise administration of Mr. White the public debt of the country was reduced by no less than $20,000,000.

On consolidated fund the revenue totalled $168,600,000, compared with $136,108,217 the previous year. Expenditure was $112,000,000 as against $98,161,446.

The total of capital and special expenditure was $32,300,000, including five millions in railway subsidies. Outlay on the N. T. R. amounted to $13,500,000. On public works $6,000,000 was spent, and on railways and canals, $7,250,000.

Conservative Argument

The Conservative argument has always been that instead of chasing rainbows in the United States where the farmers already are exporting annually millions of dollars' worth of farm produce of all kinds, Canada should build up a home market at hand and this is the very argument which The Globe drives home.

Here's An Example.

An example of the way Canada has profited by the defeat of reciprocity is seen in a news despatch from Boston. Governor Eugene Foss, of Massachusetts, has announced that his company, the B. F. Sturtevant Co., a corporation with a capital of $2,500,000, has purchased land for a plant at Galt, Ontario, and will remove there the greater part of its manufacturing operations. The failure of the reciprocity pact is assigned as the chief reason for the removal of the American firm to Canadian territory.

Here's Another.

Here is another example of what the defeat of reciprocity has done for Canada. Reciprocity would have given the Canadian grain trade to the mills and elevators and railroads of the United States. James Stewart & Co., of Chicago, are building thirteen new elevators, most of them in Canada, with a total capacity of fifteen million bushels and costing six million dollars. This firm explains their action in stringing the elevators through Western Canada by pointing to the defeat of reciprocity and the Laurier Government.

Some of the Others.

Here are some of the other elevator works decided upon after the defeat of reciprocity and because of it:

Quebec Harbor Commission, capacity one million bushels.

Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Medicine Hat, half million bushels.

Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal, one million bushels.

Canadian Malting Co., Calgary, half million bushels.

CANADIAN TEAM SHOOTING WELL

Seven Men In For Final Where Four Won Place One Year Ago

Bisley Camp, July 25.—Dull early this morning but brighter later, conditions generally were favorable to-day for the second stage of the King's prize. Sergeant Ommundsen of the Royal Scots Reserve who won the bronze medal yesterday, has also carried off the silver medal, bringing 104 from first stage.

He put on forty-seven at 300 this morning, and forty-five at the six hundred, his total therefore being 196.

Sergeant Fenby, Fifth Royal Warwick Regt., Private Fraser of the same sorps, as silver medalists, both made 195.

REJECTED LOVER SOUGHT REVENGE

Toronto, July 25.—While walking along St. Clair avenue yesterday John Donelly and a lady were attacked by Alfred Barron and threatened with a revolver.

It appears that there had been some trouble between the two men previously over the woman in the case, and yesterday was the culmination of the affair. A telephone message to the police station brought Detective Wickett and Barron was arrested. He was fined $20 and costs or 60 days in jail.

Don't forget the Printers' Picnic, down the river, on Saturday afternoon, August 2nd. Good list of sports, and a good time is assured all. First-class orchestra in attendance. Don't forget the date, Aug. 2nd.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Southwest winds, fair and warm.

EX-SULTAN VISITS FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN

Railroad Tunnel Proved Too Much for Him and He Sought Refuge in a Corner Where He Was Found Huddled, Muttering Texts From The Koran.

Mulai Hafid, Ex-Sultan of Morrocco, having entertained and been entertained by France for a number of months and taken the cure at Vichty, is now visiting Great Britain. The photograph shows the former Sultan disembarking at Plymouth. So cordially has Mulai Hafid been received in France and in England, it is safe to say that the atrocities committed in his name have been forgotten. European life was new to the Ex-Sultan when he first visited France. One of the most terrifying moments of the former tyrant's life is said to have been the passage through the railroad tunnel from Marseilles to Vichy. While in the tunnel the ex-Sultan remained huddled in a corner of the coach muttering texts from the Koran. Not so on his visit to England. He is now thoroughly European excepting for his costume.

Noted Leader of Suffragettes Apparently Dying From Hunger Strike

London, July 25.—The consulting physicians in attendance on Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was yesterday released from Holloway Jail, take such a serious view of her condition that they ordered the immediate resort to a transfusion of blood. Mrs. Pankhurst's weakness and inanition from the effects of her "hunger and thirst strikes" are so extreme that great apprehension is felt by the doctors as to the outcome.

"She could be no worse," was the statement made by one of the attendants to-day.

Titled Woman to Jail.

London, July 25.—Lady Sybil Smith, daughter of the Earl of Antrim, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence and Miss Evelyn Sharpe were sent to prison to-day for a fortnight on a charge of disorderly conduct during an attempt to hold militant suffragette meeting at the entrance to the lobby of the House of Commons. All the accused refused to find surities for their good behaviour and as an alternative were sent to jail

TO-DAYS EXCURSION RICE LAKE POINTS

Take the steamer Esturion at 1.30 to-day for Rice Lake Points. The excursion is run under the auspices of the Peterborough Dairymen's Association. Adults 40c; Children 25c. Good music provided and a good time ahead.

SHE WANTED RIGHT TO SMOKE ON TRAIN

Cincinnati, July 25.— Miss Hester McCay, daughter of a Chicago contractor, likes to smoke cigarettes and makes no secret of it. The fact became known to-day when a ticket-seller told of a recent experience with her.

Business was dull, when the young man was startled by the strange request of the Chicago girl to sell her a ticket to the Pacific Coast, including the right to use the smoking compartment at will.

"I want that privilege because I like to smoke a cigarette occasionally", said Miss McCay. "It will be a long and delightful journey. The smell of the smoke of a fine cigar or good tobacco is pleasant to me and I have just that much American independance to know that only gentlemen travel in buffet compartments and sensible ones at that.

I'm not in the least afraid to go in the compartment and I enjoy a smoke and feel that I can do so without the least embarassment, for men are not like women. Men keep their opinions to themselves. You know what a target women travelling companions would make of me with their catty flings.

Miss McCay secured her ticket just as she wanted it!

REV. J. D. MORROW AGAIN IN COURT

But Only Remained a Few Minutes After the Arrival of Inspector Archibald.

Toronto, July 25.—Much to the surprise of Police Court officials Rev. J. D. Morrow returned there to continue his work of redeeming fallen men. This morning Mr. Morrow waited for half an hour, but his proteges failed to appear. At the end of that time Assistant Deputy Archibald entered the court room. The "Athletic Pastor" remained but a few moments after the inspector's entrance.

After court Magistrate Ellis commented on the incident, "I was sorry to see Mr. Morrow go out," he said, "and I again state that I shall be glad to give any of the petty offenders that Mr. Morrow thinks he can help, over to his care."

BIG CIRCUS HERE FOR THE WINTER

Mr. W. Fleming Has Secured Premises and Now Negotiating for Others

Mr. W. C. Fleming, a former Peterborough boy, who has been here for the past week arranging for making Peterborough headquarters for his big circus and Indian Congress, left yesterday at noon for Port Hope, Ottawa, Owen Sound and other Canadian points. Whilst here Mr. Fleming told The Times yesterday he had secured the barns to the rear of the Grand Central apartment house, and also a big barn in the South Ward to be used for painting his waggons, etc. He also noted that he is negotiating for obtaining possession of the Cordage Works for use in preparing his 40 or 50 new cars, that are now in course of construction, that will require many local additions. Mr. Fleming will return on Sept. 1, for a time and bring his big show here for the winter, about Jan. 1.

TALENTED MUSICIANS FOR 57th REGIMENT BAND

Musical circles in this city will learn with pleasure that their ranks are in all probability to be increased by some half dozen or more first class English instrumentalists who will become members of the 57th Regt. Band. They comprise both reed and brass players, as well as an artist on the tympanies, and as they double on string, apart from being a decided acquisition to the the 57th will form the nucleis of a first-class orchestra. The parties who have been quietly conducting the negotiations on behalf of the 57th have taken the utmost pains to assure themselves as to the ability and character of these prospective citizens, so that mistakes that have been made in the past will be avoided. The London Times was the medium used to get in touch with these musicians. The 57th is bound at any cost to maintain its high standard of of efficiency.

The 57th Regt. Band will have to to fill their engagement at the Toronto Exhibition this year in full dress. The Musical Director of the Exhibition has advised Bandmaster Gliddon that tunics, belts, etc., must be worn The drill order serge will not fill the bill this year.

The 57th Regt. Band at last nights rehearsal turned out in nearly full force. Thirty-five of the members were present and put in two hours work under the baton of Prof. Gliddon.

"Renwick's Hits, No. 13," will be specially featured at to-night's band concert. The ink is scarcely dry on this number.

SAYS THE APOSTLE TO THE TEXANS "A MAN'S MAN"

Rev. Dr. Truett Most Notable Figure In the "Gideons" Convention

Toronto, July 25.—A man-to-man preacher is Rev. Dr. Truett, the so-called "Apostle to the Texans," who conducts the "Quiet Hour" meetings at the current conventions of the Gideons.

Torontonians have not had time to learn that, with him in the city, there is a man in their midst who speaks Gospel truths with a tongue of fire, who has been pastor of a great church for 16 years, who made a dying university a going concern, and who was not above applying his time and energies on the prairies of the Lone Star state, preaching the simple gospel to the wild, ungodly cowboys.

Earnest and Eloquent.

Those who heard Dr. Truett at the "Quiet Hour" services in the Metropolitan church this morning, listened to a man who impressed them as a combination of Rev. John McNeill, Spurgeon and Beecher. He preached with all the earnestness of Rev. Mr. McNeill, with all the wealth of homely anecdote and illustration characteristic of Spurgeon, and with all the eloquence of Beecher. And yet it was all a man to man talk, so that even the gray-haired Gideons in the audience thrilled with the eloquence of the speaker.

It was not because Dr. Truett tried to be an emotional preacher but that he spoke the gospel with a sense of its importance to real human beings.

"Make Jesus Real."

"Make Jesus real," he said earnestly, not shouting, to the Gideons. "For we can know, without the Bible, that there is a supreme being—the heavens declare that. But we cannot know, apart from the Bible, that God is love and mercy. Jesus came to reveal that. Make Jesus real to men by your own daily walk and conversation. I know you have distributed over 200,000 Bibles in the guest-room of the hotels. But your lives must make people believe and feel that the Bible is real—the way of God to man and of man to God."

A Gift of Epigram.

Dr. Truett has his own special gift of throwing off an epigram in homely, but all the more effective language.

"The unbearable yoke on the neck of this world," he said this morning "is sin. Watch against sin. For it is an insulator which cuts off the currents between God and man."

Putting the matter more pointedly, Dr. Truett said:

"Watch the little sins. There is the sin of envy, for instance. It's the meanest of all sins. The acid of envy eats all happiness out of the human heart."

He startled the Gideons with a statement that for unexpected blunt truth was decidedly awakening.

"You Gideons must be busy followers of Christ. The supreme foe to religion is the idler—the idle poor, and more than they, the idle rich. For an idle brain is the devil's workshop. The big social problem of the day is what to do with the idle poor and rich. If you want to be Christ's kings, fill your lives with busy-ness."

BORDEN'S NAVAL POLICY IS ENDORSED BY THE VETERANS

Toronto, July 25.—Strongly Imperialistic and favoring the Borden naval policy was the tenor of the addresses given at the annual gathering at the Veterans of 1866 at Queenston Heights yesterday. From Toronto, St. Catharines, St. Davids, Port Colborne and throughout Lincoln County the be-medalled veterans had gathered, with their families many with their grand children.

The gathering was not without its pathos. Man after man was inquired for, and the friend was told, "He was mustered out last month," or "He was too sick to come," and the veterans were brought face to face with the realization that soon there would be no excursion for them.

A Suitable Memorial.

Lieut.-Col. A. E. Belcher, ex-Mayor of Southampton, impressed this fact upon the gathering. "Before we all pass away there should be some suitable memorial erected to the memory of the men who fell at Ridgeway during the Fenian Raid," he declared. It rests with the Government to recognize the services of the men who went to the front in 1866 by the erection of a monument either on these historic grounds, or on Limestone Risge on the battlefield of Ridgeway. The one memorial erected is that in Toronto, built by private subscriptions. This is not I deem, the right thing to do. The Government should erect a monument, and the time will yet come when it will do so."

GOLD IN MANITOBA NOW ASSURED FACT

The word "Gold" has throughout all ages of the world, awakened a lively interest in the minds of progressive men. This reminds us that, in this issue, appears an advertisement with the magic word "gold" in prominent type. This offer of stock for sale in "The Independence" Mine is well worth serious consideration.

HON. SYDNEY FISHER IS OUT OF POLITICS

Montreal July 25—A. F. Legatt, of Chateguay Basin, is said to be the liberal candidate for the by-election to be held in Chateguay County to elect a successor to the late J. P. Brown, M. P. While the name of Hon Sydney Fisher former minister of agriculture, has been mentioned as the liberal candidate, friends of Mr. Fisher says he has no desire to enter the contest and that he may not even present himself in the next general elections in his own county.

BERLIN CAPTURES THE SECOND GAME FROM THE PETES

Quite a large crowd turned out yesterday at Riverside Park, when the Petes took another chance and lost to Berlin. The fair fanettes were there in large numbers and the usual enthusiasm was evident; but enthusiasm, like errors, don't win games.

The game opened up like a real ball game, but in the third innings, the smoke from a passing engine on the C.P.R. siding half blinded the Petes and they really couldn't help making a few errors. Thompson, the second baseman, tried to get more flukes than any of the others, and he succeeded, although at one time it looked as though he would be trimmed. He, however, made up a little of his badness, by his hitting. In thee innings, the Berlin aggregation tallied only seven runs.

Tracey, in the box, worked hard, and put up good ball, as did also Fox and Brant.

After the third innings, the boys tightened up and the balance of the game was more on the Petes end of the shovel, getting six runs and making the score 9—7 in favor of the visitors.

Each team were credited with 11 hits.

Umpire—Daly.

The game between the Typos and the M.A.P. at Brinton Park this afternoon has been called off, and will be played at a later date.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 186 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

Extensive Scheme of Irrigation Recommended for Australia

N. R. W. Nielsen, formerly Minister of Lands for Australia, who conducted an investigation into the irrigation methods of North America, has issued a report, in which he says that the eastern coast of Australia can be made quite as productive as any similar area in Canada. He recommends the Government to undertake extensive irrigation works, declaring that the cost of these would be amply repaid.

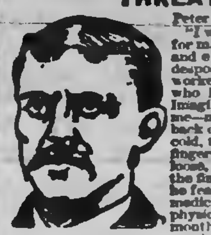
Mr. Nielsen also recommends the organization of a general scheme of immigration from Canada, the New South Wales Government undertaking to pay a proportion of the fares of those persons possessing a certain amount of capital.

"NERVOUS DEBILITY"

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

☞ NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS



BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

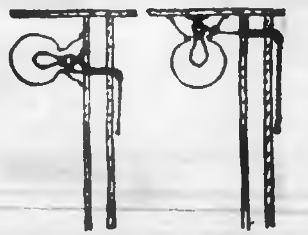
Turn on Outside Light

Electric light companies maintain that porch lights are great protectors of the home and that burglars will not venture to attempt an entrance in any part of a house that has an outside light.

While most houses having porch lights are wired so that the outside light may be turned on from the hall, there are some houses wired in such a way that one must go out on the porch to turn the light on. That is especially inconvenient. Such a householder should arrange the porch light with a pull socket, with the pull going through a hole in the wall to the inside.



NORTHERN ONTARIO

It is reported that further exploration of the James Bay slope of Ontario, as well as the Moose River estuary and the James Bay shore, will be undertaken next spring under the direction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Commission.

Catch of Whales.

The Canadian Northern Pacific Fisheries' steam whalers (Victoria) had the largest catch in their history last season, whales to the number of 1,600 being taken.

Fine Moose Head.

Three hunters recently brought into Edmonton one of the finest moose heads ever found in the Province. The spread of the antlers measured exactly 5 feet.

ENGAGEMENT RING

A Custom Which Was Originated by the Romans

Wearing engagement rings appears to have commenced with the Romans. Before the celebration of the nuptials there was a gathering of friends to settle the marriage contract. It was usually agreed then also that the dowry should be paid down on the wedding day or soon after. On these occasions a luxurious entertainment was given, and at its conclusion the man placed a ring upon the third finger of the lady's left hand, because it was thought that a nerve reached from there to the heart. This ring was considered a pledge of betrothal, and the day was named for the marriage.

Nelson Relics Sold

Nelson relics, consisting of a Worcester porcelain tea-cup, coffee-cup and saucer, and five other pieces, part of a service presented to the admiral by the nation, were sold at auction for $725, and an old English cut-glass rummer with Nelson's initial brought $125.

Oldest Sunday School Teacher

Recent Indian Horrors.

The lecturer was criticising Uncle Sam's method of handling the affairs of certain tribes.

"Pardon me for interrupting you," spoke up an auditor, "but do you maintain that we are our Indian brothers' Chero-keepers?"

"I have no hesitation, sir," answered the lecturer, frowning at him, "in pronouncing that the Choctawfulest pun I ever heard."

BULL DOGS THE VOGUE

Not for their good looks but for their artistic ugliness bulldogs have become one of the freaks of fashion in New York. Every bud and every matron must have a British bulldog accompaniment nowadays. All the associated specialty show in New York for the first time the Britishers beat out the Boston terriers in number of entries with 323 to 201 for the breed that has hitherto been the most popular there. The immense entry made a severe task for A. C. Madden, the judge, and long after the other classes had been disposed of he was still handing out ribbons to the bulldog owners. Mr. Madden has only recently "gone to the dogs." He was private chaplain to the late Lord Salisbury when he was prime minister of the United Kingdom.

Gave $10,000 to Hospital.

Just when the Oshawa hospital trustees were considering ways of extending their institution to meet the demands upon it came the announcement of a gift of $10,000 by Mr. and Mrs. George H. Pedlar for a new surgical wing in memory of ther son, George, who died about two years ago. The gift came as a complete surprise.

Navel Grapefruit.

James H. Geggett, an orange grower of Oroville, California, has two trees which bear navel grapefruit, and will make an effort to make the new citrus product commercially popular. The fruit is a cross beween a navel orange and a grapefruit. Steel cages surround the trees to prevent buds from being stolen.

Premier Borden is reported to have gained several pounds of flesh in the fresh air of Nova Scotia. There is so much hot air in Ottawa that it is debilitating to one not accustomed to it.

Says John D. Rockefeller: "Fresh air, exercise, simple food, a tranquil mind and a friend or two will keep one young." Quite true. A man with his money has no difficulty in keeping a friend or two.

If you hear sounds of great distress, rest assured that it is Sir Wilfrid and Hon. Wm. Pugsley weeping and wailing and gnashing their teeth over the ruin to the Canadian farmer which is wrought by the defeat of reciprocity.

It is as plain as a pikestaff that some men are born to be successful as editors. One in the West published an item saying: "A certain prominent business man was seen last week hugging his stenographer." The next day a dozen different business men dropped in for a friendly chat with the editor, and left copy for an advertisement in his paper.

NEW ZEALAND'S IMPERIAL NAVAL UNIT.

The patriotic enthusiasm with which the New Zealand battleship contributed to the Imperial navy will be received on the Pacific coast, will emphasize the humiliation of Canada. The people of the Dominion, whose pride has been humbled to satisfy the miserable petty partisanism represented by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Hon. George Ross and pliticians of that calibre, will make the occasion notable by a fine display of hospitality. Ministers of the government will grace the reception with their presence and the vast majority of the patriotic people of Canada will be present in spirit. New Zealand will witness the outburst of approval on Caoada's part with pride. This display of interest in New Zealand's Imperial contribution on the occasion of the ship's visit to Victoria, will be construed by the world in general as Canada's approval of the policy which dictated the gift. As Hon. John Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, said in Winnipeg recently, if the Duke of Connaught were in Canada at this time, he would attend the ceremonies on the Pacific coast to testify the appreciation of the Dominion and the crown officially. It is an event in which all Canadians may take a pride, in spite of the knowledge that by reason of a partisan Senate, the Dominion is refused, for the present, the privilege of showing its patriotism by similar contributions.

SOUTH AFRICAN LABOR TROUBLES.

Johannesburg has been the scene of a gold miner's strike which developed such proportions and was accompanied by such disorder that 1,000 special police were powerless to check the rioting, and 1,650 soldiers were sent to overawe the rioters. But the soldiers did not accomplish their work without the killing and wounding of not a few persons. At the funeral of the dead the Socialist party displayed a wreath inscribed, "In memory of our martyrs, foully murdered in cold blood by the capitalist class." The strike seems to have been accompanied by exceeding bitterness and the end is not yet. If the miners continue their strike longer it is reported that the railway men will inaugurate a sympathetic strike, and this would at once tie up the whole of South Africa. The feeling aroused by the calling out of the military is so keen that the recall of Governor Gladstone has been demanded by some. Generals Botha and Smuts have been trying to reach some satisfactory settlement by which the men would return to work, and it is probable that some compromise will be arranged. And yet why should such things be? Why cannot human brotherhood eliminate the fierceness of the strife between labor and capital? But selfishness is both blind and cruel.

Weak, Tired Folks
Given New Vigor

STRENGTH RETURNS, HEALTH RENEWED, VITALITY OF YOUTH RE-CREATED

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Ambition by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Chebogue Pt., N.S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost my appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the 'blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. 'A medicine that will do this should be in every home.'"

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or by mail from the Cattarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

ALL THE DIFFERENCE

"Patience, my dear, patience!" reproved Mr. Bounce complacently. "I'm quite sure Jim didn't mean to upset his cup of tea, and it will be easy to get out a fresh table-cloth. Accidents will happen, you know, in the best regulated families—mind your glass, Willie—and it's no good crying over— Careful, Willie! I always think—

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "There goes Willie's milk all over my trousers—and a new pair, too! Get a cloth, somebody! I'm dripping! Heavens! a man can't sit down at his own table nowadays, it seems, without being peppered from his children's plates, and bespattered from his children's cups. Just look at these trousers, Mary! Ruined! Ah, don't tell me he didn't do it on purpose! I'll teach him to behave himself—

"Willie," he roared, as he left the room, "follow me into the study!"

THE WAY OF A REFORMER

He was one of those sad faced men who delight in becoming railway-carriage bores, and when he saw a happy-looking stranger smoking contentedly near by he felt compelled to ask a few questions.

"Sir," he began, "will you allow your boy to smoke cigarettes when he grows up?"

"I have never given the question a moment's thought," replied the stranger.

The sad faced man sighed.

"And," he went on faintly, "I suppose you have never thought about stopping his drinking?"

"I never have," admitted the man.

The sad-faced man positively gasped.

"Can it be true," he muttered, "that there are such monsters living; such hardened, callous-"

"But I think you ought to know," interrupted the stranger, "that I have been a confirmed bachelor all my life."

IT WAS CURIOUS

"Come in."

The door opened to admit a shabby-looking individual, the shine on whose coat would have done credit to the hardest-working shoeblack.

"Are you the gentleman," he began, "who found a purse and advertised the fact in the papers to-day?"

"I am."

"It contained money?"

"Yes, it contained a very large sum of money."

"You mentioned that the owner could recover the purse by giving you a description of it?"

"That is so. But you will have to give an accurate account of the purse, its contents, and how you came to lose it."

"I haven't lost a purse."

"Eh? Then why do you come here and make these inquiries?"

"I called out of curiosity to see what a man looks like who finds a large sum of money and advertises it in the papers instead of having a good time. Good morning, sir!"

GOOD IDEA

Jones was at the theatre, and behind him sat a lady with a child on her lap, which was crying unceasingly.

Unable to stand it any longer, Jones turned smilingly to the lady and asked: "Has that infant of yours been christened yet, ma'am?"

"No, sir," replied the lady.

"If I were you I would call it 'Good Idea,'" said Jones.

"And why 'Good Idea'?" said the lady indignantly.

"Because," said Jones, "it should be carried out." It was Jones who had to be carried out.

"THE DEVIL'S HORSE"

Just off the main road from London to Cambridge, between Ware and Puckeridge, is a straggling hamlet called Standon Green End. Here in the middle of a meadow, says "Cycling," stands a remarkable monument, known as the Balloon Stone. Under a hinged metal flap is a bronze plate bearing an inscription chronicling the first balloon ascent. Lunardi's ascent created a tremendous sensation, all London turning out to witness his departure into the upper atmosphere. His sole companions were a dog, a cat, and a pigeon. When he was nearing the earth in the field where the Balloon Stone stands, five laborers declined to take hold of his mooring ropes, and swearing they would have nothing to do with the "devil's horse," took to their heels. But for the plucky conduct of a young servant girl from an adjoining farm-house, who seized the rope and summoned assistance, the pioneer balloonist would not have effected a landing.

FOSSILS AND GOLD

In Alaska the bones, and often the entire bodies, of extinct animals, such as the mammoth, the mastodon, the reindeer, and the bison, are found most abundantly in layers of soil directly above gold bearing gravels. So intimate is this association between fossil animal remains and auriferous deposits that one scientist, who has just been exploring Alaska, says fossils serve prospectors as indexes of the metallic richness of the soil. In ancient times both the gold and the bones and the bodies of the animals were deposited at the bottoms of valleys by action of rivers and smaller streams, many of which have now disappeared. Consequently the appearance of fossils is, it is claimed, an almost certain indication that gold will be found in the neighborhood.

THE FLAG'S SUPREMACY
A WOMAN'S TRIBUTE

Canada's High Station Won by Toil and Uncompromising Devotion to Duty

At a meeting of the Daughters of the Empire in Winnipeg a fine address on "The Supremacy of the Flag" was given by Mrs. J. A. Henderson. A few brief extracts are given:

"In our early history we have a panorama of shadowy forms. Indians and explorers, missionaries and Jesuits, hunters and trappers, soldiers of France and soldiers of England moving over half a continent in canoe and through centuries of conflict in time. These were followed by the United Empire loyalists, who came to Canada because they stood by the old English tradition and the old flag. These people were incidentally the founders of the English part of the Canadian commonwealth.

"To preserve for us the British ideals and principles, they suffered hardships, dangers and difficulties so severe and so numerous as to have a permanent place in any history of the world's patriotism. Their patriotism caused the sacrifice of home, country and possessions. With this sentiment and loyalty they soon learned to love the land of their adoption. Their hardships in this new land were many, yet in the midst of it all they felt, no doubt, that they were laying the foundation of a great British colony amid these scenes of forest and waste. The strain of "God Save the King" ringing out through the long years made the lonely and painful life endurable, and the sight of the old flag gave them new strength and more endurance to continue the fight for king and country.

"In order to keep our flag supreme, we, as Canadians, as daughters of the Empire, must see that we build the new nation on a loyal foundation; see that the traditions of the flag are taught and impressed on the youth of our land. They should be taught that empire has been obtained by hard struggles and our commercial position by indomitable pluck, that the world at large sleeps better at night because the Union Jack is supreme on the sea.

"It is our duty and privilege to continue the work of patriotism of these loyal founders, and to assimilate the foreign peoples which are entering our gates by the thousands every year. Under the Union Jack every nationality on earth enjoys the same protection and shares the same citizenship. We should foster and guard our foreign population jealously. If we show an interest in them the first few years of their lives, they may make even more loyal citizens than many of our native born. It is our duty to assimilate them with our civic and national life. Do we look with indifference upon the tremendous task which is facing us?

GOLD ALONG NEW LINE

Following a survey of the area along the T. & N. O. Railway trial line between Gowganda and Porcupine, the party of engineers submitted its report to the Ontario government. That the country is entirely unsuited to agricultural purposes, but may prove to be another Porcupine, may be inferred by the information given by the engineers.

The report says that the area is underlain by the oldest rocks, and small quartz veins occur in Kewatin schists in many parts. Veins of considerable size were struck, and gold was found in some of these. Their development was scarcely sufficient to determine whether gold was in paying quantities. "These rocks are receiving much attention on account of the Porcupine discoveries, and will probably repay careful prospecting," said the report. "The iron formation can scarcely be considered of economic importance."

Sandwichman and Princess

John Inshaw, a sandwichman, seconded a vote of thanks to Princess Louis of Battenberg for opening a bazaar at Liverpool, the object of which was to raise $30,000 for the League of Welldoers. During its nineteen years' existence the League has provided nearly 6,000,000 meals for children, 300,000 dinners and dainties for invalids, 43,000 garments for the poor, 182,000 beds for the homeless, and 123,000 midnight meals for the unemployed.

RING.

Boston, July 25.—Two bouts and one that was not so very good made up the all-star show of the Atlas A. A. at the Arena last night. The match that was expected to provide the real fireworks fell down as flat as a damaged balloon in a wind storm namely the Mike Glover-Marcel Thomas battle, scheduled to go 10 rounds. Thomas went along for four frames, or to be exact, about three frames and a fraction, when Jack Sheehan, the third party in the ring, stepped in and called the game, when the distress signals were hoisted good and high by the Frenchman.

Thomas shaped up like a real champion in the opening round, although he was a trifle polite in his attack. Glover did nothing alarmingly interesting at any time, and from the outset it was easy to see that a match of the listless order was coming.

Thomas may be the champion of France, but he will never do on this side of the water. There are a number of good heavy light-weights on this continent who would corner the French fighter's number in a handier manner than Glover did last night.

New York, July 25.—Joe Jeanette, the veteran colored heavyweight, tonight outfought Lester Johnston, a South American negro, in a ten-round bout here. Jeanette several times knocked down the South American, but the latter's persistent defensive tactics saved him from a decisive blow.

BICYCLE.

Iver Lawson, the clever sprint rider from Salt Lake City, fell a victim to the speed of Frank Cavanagh, the speedy Newark cyclist, in their match race at the Revere Beach Oval, Cavanagh winning in a three-heat contest.

Lawson showed flashes of his old-time form when he captured the second heat in the match at one mile by out-sprinting the Newark rider to the tape. Cavanagh captured the first and last heats, which were at the half mile distance, by outjockeying the Salt Lake man from the start.

In a 20-mile motor paced race, ridden in 10-mile heats, George Wiley, the middle distance champion, won. Bob Finley of Australia, finished second in the first 10-mile heat, and Ernie Pye finished in the same position in the second 10-mile heat. Finley and Pye rode good races, considering their slight knowledge of the track, it being the first time either rider appeared on the new oval.

Harold Rollins of Everett secured a double victory, winning the quarter and half-mile professional races, and L. C. Rollins of Everett won the five-mile open amateur race. Willie Turville of Revere, who finished first, was disqualified for riding under the pole and teaming. Tom Connoly won a half-mile amateur handicap race.

GOLF

Chicago, July 25.—The field in the play for the western gold championship was reduced to 16 today after a series of brilliant matches at 18 holes on the links of the Homewood County Club. The second 18 holes of the qualifying round were played this morning. Champion Charles Evans, Jr., of the Edgewater Club, scored a marvelous 73 for a total of 151, giving him the gold medal. The champion was closely pushed by Mason Phelps, former title holder, who counted 153, and by Warren K. Wood last year's runner-up, with 152.

E. P. Allis, of Milwaukee, Harvard's champion, made a record of holeing out in one stroke in the difficult first hole, 291 yards long. His feat gave him front rank among the visiting players with 157 for the two days' play, but he failed to last through the first match rounds, losing to J. S. Thompson, of St. Paul in 19 holes.

TURF.

Baltimore, July 25.—The Blenheim stables, owned by W. Wallace Lanahan and Walter R. Abell, of this city and containing the famous Algoma, are to be broken up and the horses sold. The sale will take place at the Long Branch horse show next week, at which the animals will be exhibited. Mr. Lanahan said today that the only reason for the sale of the stables is that neither he nor Mr. Abell can give their time to horse shows.

MINERAL WEALTH MANITOBA PROVINCE

Agricultural Province Has Important Deposits of Gold, Limestone, Gypsum and Other Minerals

It cannot be said that a great deal of attention has been paid to the possibilities of Manitoba as a mineral producer. This is as might be expected in a province where agriculture has been and is of paramount importance. And yet the soil is not the only natural asset of any country; and a systematic investigation of the mineral resources must always play an important part in contributing to the development of the whole.

If we associate with the name of minerals such ores as are mined for gold or silver or copper, then it is indeed the case that minerals and good agricultural soil are not as a rule found together in nature. But under mineral resources must also be included materials such as clays, shales, sands and gravels, limestones, marls and coals, all of which are frequently found in districts which support a thriving agricultural population, and all of which call for development in the agricultural areas of Manitoba.

Although certain areas of new Manitoba have a coating of clay sufficient to provide an agricultural soil, the possibilities of revenue lie mainly in the mineral resources, the timber, the fisheries and the water power which the new territory will provide.

Cement and Gypsum

Up to the present time it has been found possible to carry out organized geological survey work only along some of the principal waterways, and private prospecting has been but desultory.

In one district, near the eastern boundary of the Province, and forming the western extension of the Lake of the Woods area, gold mining is an assured fact.

If Portland cement were manufactured from raw materials mined in Manitoba, a very considerable saving in freight rates might be affected. Limestones sufficiently pure for this purpose outcrop at various points on Lake Manitoba, and the necessary clay or shale is available conveniently near at hand. The calcareous Niobrara shales provide a suitable material for a natural cement, and future investigations in this direction may result in considerable increased activity.

Valuable gypsum deposits are mined in the vicinity of Lake St. Martin, and in the country between Lake Manitoba and Lake Winnipeg; other beds may yet be found. Borings have shown the existing depths from the surface. A pure friable sandstone at the base of the sedimentary strata of the Province will provide a good material for a future glass industry.

Fertilizer Obtainable

A good phosphatic scale which is found in the western part of the Province will come into requisition as a fertilizer when the soil begins to show signs of exhaustion. Limestones are already a valuable asset, not only from the point of view of building stone, but as lime and rubble producers. Extensive northern areas of limestone are awaiting development, and for the furtherance of the "Good Roads" movement not only the limestones, but also the available sand and gravel ridges will be utilized. With regard to fuel, the value of peat is being more and more emphasized in Canada and elsewhere; and Manitoba has her fair share of this commodity. Of lignites, Turtle Mountain contains on a rough estimate 160 million tons; and the formations in which lie the Lethbridge lignites extend into Western Manitoba, and deep borings may yet repay the expense they entail.

INNOVATION FOR OARSMEN

Their Defects Will Be Shown Them by Cinematograph.

English rowing men are to spring an innovation in the coaching line. According to a letter in the London Field, the cinematograph will be used to take moving pictures of the important crews, not for public exhibition purposes, but to demonstrate to each man his individual faults. Moving pictures will show every little and big fault from beginning to end, if the moving-picture machine be worked slowly. Thus every oarsman, literally, will be able to see himself as others see him and the coach's task will be very much lighter. Incidentally, it will diminish the self-esteem of many of the oarsmen, which in itself will be salutary. The moving pictures also will show whether a crew is rowing synchronously, i.e., whether each part of each man's stroke is in exact time with those of all the other men in the boat—whether they are "together." And this is a paramount factor in attaining speed.

Advice.

"Don't eat that stuff," the doctor said,
"Or you will soon be with the dead!"
But when the doctor had his say
The patient ate it anyway—
And he's living yet.

"Don't buy that run-down business, friend,
Or your career will shortly end!"
Thus spoke the man who'd have his say;
The fool went his headstrong way—
And now he's rich.

"They can't put you in jail for that!"
Exclaimed the lawyer, sleek and fat;
The man in prison groaned a groan,
And the lawyer man left him alone—
He's still in jail.

Decay of Gaelic

Speaking at Craigmoich Ladies' School in Inverness, the Very Rev. Dr. Donald Macleod, Glasgow, said he was afraid they in the north were getting like the people in the low country in their ways. Gaelic was dying out, and he did not hear the beautiful English he used to hear in Inverness. He wished the children to learn Gaelic. If they wanted to they should go to a Highland shepherd's house for some time.

WIFE IN NAME ONLY

By GEORGE MUNSON.

All London society was whispering and questioning, for Lord Rensley was on his way home to England after an absence of a year. He had shot tigers in India, had speared salmon in Alaska, and hunted grizzlies in the wilds of western Canada. And all the while Lady Rensley had kept open house at the Abbey. Now he was expected home; he would arrive in two weeks. Actually he arrived a week earlier and unexpectedly.

They had been married nearly three years before. Lady Rensley had been Miss Edith Kane, of Cleveland, and her father was one of the twelve richest men in America. The marriage had been considered singularly fortunate, for the Rensley family dated back five hundred years—though not the title, and his lands were extensive, although unprofitable. Miss Kane's dowry would restore the old abbey and enable her husband and herself to assume their rightful place in the social hierarchy. And so Rensley had won the beauty of Cleveland.

This is what happened three hours after the marriage: He and his bride were face to face in their apartments at the Eversley hotel. The bride drew off her engagement ring meditatively and handed it to him and said, without a trace of passion:

"I shall wear my marriage ring, but not this. The bargain is an equal one and I am satisfied. You will never have cause to be ashamed of me in the eyes of the world. Goodnight, Lord Rensley."

"You mean," he asked, "that our marriage is to be one in name only?"

"Why, what else did you expect?" she answered mockingly, though her lip was quivering. "You never loved me. You sought me for my fortune, as I you for your title." And so she turned away and they said no more.

That he had sincerely loved her she did not know, nor he that she could have cared for him had not the marriage been made by her ambitious mother. In due course they sailed for England. Rensley Abbey was redecorated and thrown open. Gay parties assembled there. If the relationship between the two was strained, that was known only by their discreet servants and guessed at by their intimates.

Drew Back With a Frightened Catch of the Breath.

Then Rensley sailed for India to shoot tigers, and the parties continued. They were as gay as ever, but different people came. There was Rizzi, for instance, that Italian nobleman who had acquired a sinister reputation in several capitals of Europe and was not diminishing it in London. He brought his attendant crowd: flashy women came and sporting men and tawdry actors and actresses. And of the character of these people Lady Rensley knew nothing, for she never stooped to gossip, and she only knew that she liked Rizzi and that he alone of all of them seemed to understand her situation and to have sympathy for her.

So she moved among them, innocently, the lonely mistress of the Abbey, while people shrugged their shoulders and smiled. And then they heard that Rensley was coming home.

Rizzi, too, heard it, and he put his fate to the touch. In his way he liked this unapproachable American lady as much as he was capable of liking, and as constantly. They were alone for a few minutes in the conservatory. From the ballroom came the sound of music and the chatter of the guests.

"I hear Lord Rensley is coming back next week," he said.

"Yes," she answered. "He expects to sail from New York tomorrow."

"It will be different when he returns," Rizzi said.

"Oh, no," she answered, with a shrug of her beautiful shoulders. "That will not make any difference. We shall still have our own friends, each of us."

"It will be terrible for you," he said, studying her with his cat-like eyes.

"Why?" asked Lady Rensley, facing him squarely.

"Because you do not love him," he answered boldly.

Pocket Testament League

The growth of the Pocket Testament League, which has for its object not merely the carrying of the Bible, but a more faithful service, to show to the world that the Bible is the secret of all success in individual and national life, and to increase the effectiveness of church work and develop the spirituality of every member, has been rapid. The work only commenced in Canada in May, 1911, but to-day there are 30,000 members, while the branches number 500.

Sanol's
Blood Salt

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion, such as DYSPEPSIA, GASTRIC CATARRH, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, ETC., and as an aid to digestion in wasting and nervous diseases.

This preparation is a mixture compound so as to resemble in essence and effect the salty part of the human blood which through disease or a wrong way of living might have been lost and not regained. In some cases of flatulence, a sense of fullness or pressure aver the region of the stomach, the blood salt has no equal, in fact there is no other remedy that can take its place.

TREES AND LIGHTNING

No Particular Kind Chosen When a Bolt Seeks Conductor

The relation of trees to lightning, as shown by a forestry bulletin, does not wholly accord with popular beliefs. It is found that trees are the objects most often struck because they are the most numerous of all prominent objects; they offer a short course to the ground, and their spreading branches in the air and roots in the soil present an ideal conductor to the ground.

Any kind of tree may be chosen by the lightning, the greater number in any locality being found among the dominant species. The likelihood of any tree being struck is increased if it is taller than surrounding trees, is isolated, is on high land, is deeply rooted, and if its condition—as when wet—makes it the best electrical conductor of the vicinity at the time of the flash.

Lightning may set a forest fire by igniting the tree or—what is much more likely to be the case—the humus about the base.

EXPERT APPLE TRADE

Excellent Condition of Quality and Packing Wins Confidence

That grading and packing of Canadian apples for export to Great Britain is constantly improved is shown in a report from Mr. J. F. Ray, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Birmingham, sent to the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa. He writes:—

"Your commissioner visits Smithfield market weekly in order to ascertain the state of the fruit market, quality of Canadian apples, and to seek probable buyers. It is gratifying to report the excellent condition in which apples arrive. Eight years ago complaints about quality and packing were numerous; but there appears to be no complaint of any kind now. Such a state of affairs is sure to increase the confidence of Birmingham buyers, and cannot fail to augment direct imports."

OUR WORST FOE

Dr. Hewitt Says the Fly Must be Exterminated

Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, in an interview at Ottawa regarding flies which he is fighting so vigorously, said:—

"The fly should be regarded as a winged carrier of disease and decay; without doubt the most dangerous pest on the farm. Wherever there is filth suppuration or purulent discharge flies are invariably attracted, and as they are cosmopolitan in their attentions and no distinguishers of persons they are potential disseminators of such bacteria as these sustances may contain. It is not a question of eradication in the case of this insect; such is impossible. Control and prevention, however, are within the bounds of possibility, and these will be regarded as essential when the facts are more generally realised."

"Do you believe all flies carry germs? Need a person regard every fly with distrust?" was adsked.

"No house fly can be caught, indoors or out of doors, that is not carrying on its legs and body bacteria of all kinds, and the spores of moulds and other organisms that accompany decay," he replied. "No living fly is free from germs; the existence of such would be more than a miracle. Its legs and body, proboscis and wings are covered with small hairs and bristles, so that its legs may be compared to fine bristle brushes; it frequents every kind of filth imaginable, and besmirches itself with the microscopic bacteria and other decay-producing organisms, of which it cannot possibly rid itself, and flies about, a winged and wandering bundle of bacteria. All this might be expected as a result of reasoning alone, but such would not be proof, and the proof is astonishing in its vindication. Any house fly, whether caught in one's room or out in the open, and allowed to walk over a medium suitable for the growth of bacteria and moulds, will deposit the germs of those organisms in its tracks, which in a short time will yield colonies of bacteria and decay-producing fungi.

"It does not require any play of the imagination, therefore, to appreciate the ability of house flies, if they carry about such germs, to infect themselves with the bacilli of typhoid fever, tuberculosis, infantile diarrhoea, and other similarly infectious diseases. The only way to get rid of the fly is to kill it, but cleanliness is a good preventative. That is, all refuse, manure and other filth should be quickly cleared away or destroyed."

HURRY WEARS

It is Like Worry in Exhausting the Human System

Don't hurry. It wears the system like worry.

It tears out the nerves and the bodily tissues rapidly, puts lines in the face, interferes with digestion and other intestinal action, and in time may produce permanent palpitation of the heart. Loss of both mental and physical control and a number of varieties of nervous disorders may result.

Hurry exhausts twice the energy in a given time than would be required to accomplish twice the wor if undertaken leisurely.

Don't hurry at your meals. If you have only a few minutes in which to snatch a bite forego the usual breakfast which requires careful mastication. Instead take a cup of warm milk or break a couple of raw eggs into a cup. These you may swallow quickly. They will digest easily.

Don't hurry after a train or a street car. It has been known to be the cause of many fatal accidents and serious hurts.

Don't hurry when you are dressing in the morning. It will fluster you and make you irritable at the outset of the day. Your appearance will bear the marks of the insufficient time, too. Instead get up ten minutes earlier and take proper time.

The system can stand an immense amount of physical labor for an indefinite time. But it cannot very long safely withstand the wear of hurry.

Have plenty of exercise. Be alert in your work. But don't wear out before your time hurrying.

MOTOR BIKE REAR SEAT

Comfortable Seat, With Back, Attaches to Rear of Wheel

It is a selfish motorcyclist these days who does not take somebody with him on his pleasure jaunts. It may be his wife, it may be the baby, or it may be the girl he is hoping to make his wife. If it is the baby, the infant is carried in a basket-like contrivance that hangs over the handlebar. If it is some person old enough to take care of herself she occupies a seat over the rear wheel. A Colorado man has invented what he claims is an improvement over the rear seats used heretofore. The cut shows the general construction of this seat, with its padded bottom and back, but the chief virtue lies in the spring mechanism. The rods under the center of the seat lead into tubes that have a short coiled spring at the bottom and act as shock absorbers.

GIRLS, EXERCISE!

The Best Dowry on Your Wedding Day is Health

Physiologically girls need exercise as much as boys. They need it under proper direction and in reasonable "doses." They need it as they do food and sleep. As a rule mothers take every care that their little daughters look well as to dress. But do they all remember to consider that a girl as well as a boy must lay the foundation of the future strength and happiness of health while she is still growing up?

The best dowry a girl can have on her wedding day is health. From the age of 10 to 14 a girl should be carefully built physically if her body is to be strong and wholesome in after years. Girls should be encouraged to romp, not boisterously, but in a whole-souled way which will bring every muscle into action and cause the blood to circulate well. And if the mother is wise she won't be deeply troubled if some other mother calls her happy, healthy, natural child, a "tomboy."

In order that growing girls may have as much freedom as possible it is a step in the right direction to dress them in romper costume as long as it is at all feasible. If this custom were popularised and adopted for use among larger girls in schoolrooms and on the playground the age of self-consciousness would be postponed and the cause of health enhanced.

The vision of life depends very largely on the physical condition. If you would have your daughter grow into womanhood with a happy, wholesome vision start her on the right road by giving her proper exercise when she is growing. Let her learn to breathe the fresh air as a regular diet. Let her find out the wisdom of sleeping out of doors in fair weather and with plenty of fresh air in her sleeping room in stormy weather. Teach her how to breathe.

Let her learn to exercise regularly in a hearty, natural way. Dress her simply in a fashion which will make it possible for her to grow.

The chances are that the habit of exercise and fresh air breathing formed when she is young will be second nature when she is grown.

Don't make the mistake of supposing, because she is a girl, that your sole duty is to make a "perfect lady" of her while her health takes care of itself.

A JEALOUS SPORTSMAN

Elderly Husband Was Not to be Outdone by Youthful Beaus

Some men follow sport for sheer love of it; others are driven to it as the following story will show:—

A Birmingham gentleman, 60 years old and white haired, went to one of the public swimming baths in his city and made enquiries regarding swimming lessons. He confessed that even at his age he had made up his mind to acquire the art. He entered upon his course of instruction with enthusiasm and vigor. None the less, he was a mystery to his instructor and friends until one day, in a burst of confidence he enlightened them. He had, it appeared, only a short time before married a young wife. They had gone to the seaside, and the wife, who was an able swimmer, regularly took her morning dip in the waves, and was generally attended by several young natatory cavaliers. The aged, non swimming husband, left alone on the shore, was frankly jealous. He felt he was on his mettle; and so, unkonwn to his wife, he commenced to learn the art.

HIS LITTLE LAMB

A Toronto travelling man was married and was given a month's vacation. He and his bride had been passing their honeymoon at Atlantic City.

As they entered the dining room and sat down as usual, in a secluded corner, the young husband noticed a good customer at the table near by.

"Say, dearest," he whispered, "there's Mr. Jones over there. You won't mind if I go over and dine with him, will you? Think how fine it will be if I get back from my wedding trip with a smashing big order."

The little bride agreed, rather ruefully. Her traveling man hurried over to Jones and shook hands with him and ordered his dinner, which included roast lamb. Then he began to talk business.

He was so earnest about it that he didn't notice that the waiter removed his meat dishes and placed a dessert before him. Then suddenly he looked down at his plate and exclaimed:

"Why, where's my lamb?"

A little voice in the corner piped out, "Here I am, dear!"

ROYAL BUSINESS MEN

Not a few of the rulers of the Old World are prosperous business men. The most conspicuous example is the Kaiser, who includes among his interests a porcelain factory. The general conduct of it is based upon rules and regulations laid down by the Emperor himself.

Indeed, it is said the Emperor is not above engaging employes himself, adjusting their wages, and even designing certain of the wares turned out. The Emperor is a model employer, anxious as to the comfort of his men, who have been provided with cottages and pensions and given a share in the profits, which are reported to be approximately $50,000 a year.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the Prince of Lippe-Detmold is a dealer in butter and eggs, while he has as a side line a busy brick factory that adds materially to his income.

The King of Wurtemberg is the proprietor of two hotels within his domains, which are reported to be worth something like $45,000 annually to him.

The Emperor of Austria-Hungary like the Kaiser, operates a china factory. This establishment, situated near the Austrian capital, is said to employ more than a thousand skilled workmen. The King of Saxony, too, has business interests of this character, though on a smaller scale.

Perhaps the most unconventional of the Royal business men is the King of Servia, who, in addition to several shops doing general trade, is said to promote the sale of a patent medicine and to run a motor car agency.

A MAN OF TITLES

The Duke of Atholl is about the most titled nobleman in the United Kingdom. He possesses no less than nineteen, and in addition is co-heir to five other baronies. The Duke's principal seat is Blair Athol, Scotland. In Gaelic the word Athol means "plain of the pleasant land," and the word well describes the surrounding country. The family is an ancient one, and cherishes many old customs, chief of which is that whenever the Sovereign visits Blair Athol, the Duke of Atholl must present to him on bended knee a white rose.

The Duke is head of a corps termed the Atholl Highlanders, which consists of 230 clansmen. It is a relic of feudal times, when bodyguards were common and the Dukes of Atholl are privileged to maintain this corps at the present day.

The present Duke served in the Scots Fusilier Guards, and attained the rank of captain. He is now Hon. Colonel of the Black Watch, and Lord-Lieutenant of the Country of Perth, having occupied the latter position since 1878. The Duke is one of the largest landowners in Great Britain, and lords it over 202,000 acres. There is no question as to the succession, for the Duke has a family of three sons and three daughters.

SWIMS 16 MILES AN HOUR

But Frenchman Uses Apparatus With Screw Propeller

A Frenchman has been interesting his compatriots by swimming at the speed of 16 miles an hour. To be strictly accurate, however, he does not swim at all but merely operates a screw propelled apparatus that goes through the water with him lying upon it. A plank about six feet long has metal floats at each end. At the rear end is a screw propeller of the type used on motorboats and driven by means of pedals. The swimmer lies flat on this plank and pedals, as if he was riding a bicycle. He uses his arms chiefly to direct his course and to maintain his balance on th plank. The revolving propeller provides all the impetus necessary. An advantage is that the user need not necessarily know how to swim without it.

SWIMMER MERELY "PEDALS"

Poultry Pointers

Give the hens plenty of good pure water in clean dishes.

It pays to provide plenty of green food for the laying hens.

Learning how to prevent diseases in poultry is worth far more than learning how to cure them.

A general cleaning up of the premises will help greatly in keeping down rats.

Brooder chicks must be provided with some kind of exercise.

Grease or insect powder should be applied to all young chicks infested with lice.

It is poor policy to feed inferior grain to poultry, especially to the laying hens.

Don't keep the culls, the loafers, the puny, weakly chicks around. Cull them out.

Protein the hens must have, and animal protein is better for them than vegetable protein.

Don't feed corn alone. Give the hens some wheat and oats if you want plenty of eggs.

Refuse from the family table is relished by the hens, and it pays better in the hen pen than in the hog pen.

CHAPTER I.

Astra's Inheritance.

A gloomy foreboding of approaching disaster hung over the capital.

Hannibal Prudent, ex-President of the United Republics, was dangerously ill. The people walked quietly and talked in subdued tones, as though they feared to disturb him.

Hannibal Prudent, the scientist whose invention had saved the country, was eighty-four years old, but he had carried the weight of his years lightly and had worked unceasingly. On a flying trip to Labrador he had contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. Just as the disease was nearing the crisis a curious thing happened, something that had not happened in the half-century which had passed since he had put an isolator between America and the other continents.

A wireless message had come from Europe.

The great man had been awakened by the ringing of the 4,500-mile bell on the small electro-stylograph that stood by his bedside. To his astonishment the indicator that automatically registered the sending station pointed to Berlin, Germany. He stared in amazement at the instrument and saw spark following spark on its small, square, milk-glass plate.

He put forth a shaking hand and adjusted the receiving horn. The electric sparks then formed a picture—a moving picture that talked! A man in military uniform looked at him from the picture and a clear voice with a German accent said in English:

"Professor Prudent?"

"Yes, sir. Hannibal Prudent."

The figure bowed reverently. "I am Count Von Werdenstein. As you see, I have bored through your isolating rays with my sparks of electricity. This is the beginning. The next time I talk to you there will be nothing to keep the fleet of consolidated Europe from entering the ports of the Americas. I am giving you this warning because I admire you—you were my honored father's teacher."

The figure on the plate bowed again, then vanished.

Hannibal Prudent gazed curiously at the glass of the apparatus, trying to believe that he had experienced a vision; but when he saw the words of Werdenstein clearly printed by the magnificent instrument on a sheet of paper by the stylus he fainted. The vitality that could combat physical suffering could not bear the menacing news that the little instrument had brought.

When he opened his eyes his daughter Astra stood at the bedside and the house physician was counting his pulse. The scientist still held Werdenstein's message crumpled up in his old fingers—the message that conveyed such crushing news. Impatiently, as one who knows his time is short, he asked to be left alone with his daughter. As the door closed behind the doctor he cried out in agony: "All my hopes and all my life work are threatened. I had hoped that here where I had established it peace would abide—peace that has spread comfort, contentment and happiness over our continent; peace that created and conserved fortunes greater than any ever before known to man; peace that permitted developments so high that even the boldest would not have dared to dream them fifty years ago.

"All this will go." His voice failed for a moment. "Read this." As the startled girl read Werdenstein's message he cried bitterly: "They want vengeance." He felt his own pulse, watching the large chronometer on the wall opposite his bed. "My will is in the safe in my library. Here is the key. The Europeans think that the Z-ray alone hinders them from entering our beloved country, but they are mistaken." He gasped for air. "I will defy them again. Astra, write what I have to say."

His breath came gaspingly; his clear eyes grew dull; a whirlwind seemed to possess the great brain that had been able to create peace in America for half a century.

Astra watched him with apprehension; she did not speak, as she realized that it would be a waste of time, and the short time left her adopted father was precious indeed. The old man rested a moment, then seeing Astra was ready, he said:

"When the isolation has been broken through or destroyed (both are possible, if one knows how), then new isolations must be created, one ray after another. We can gain a year that way, and that year must be used to prepare for war. War! That horror will destroy the work of a peaceful country. But we are forced to it; we will win, and peace will come forever. Plans are ready for a new craft that will be invincible. Navigation of the air will solve the problem." His voice had grown so weak that Astra could hardly understand him, but she had taken every word down in shorthand.

"Don't grieve when I am dead. I died in peace. All my life I have been a true apostle of that gospel—but hurry! Hurry to the island of—" He drew himself up with his last strength; an inarticulate sound came from his lips; he beckoned to Astra for the pencil and paper and forced his shaking hand to write one word:

"Cirynith," ran the zigzag lines of the shaking old hand, then the pencil fell from his fingers. Calm stole over the face of the man who had lived for one great idea, "Peace." He had found it, but his last words advised "War." Astra looked sorrowingly at her father. Tears filled her eyes as she called the doctor.

But Hannibal Prudent had reared her, and after the first burst of grief she remembered her duty. Taking the message from Europe and her notes, she hurried to her father's library. With a steady hand she transcribed her notes on the typewriter, but when she came to the word written by Hannibal Prudent, "Cirynith," the tears came again.

She could not understand the meaning of the command: "Hurry to the island of Cirynith." Was there an island of that name? She had never heard of it.

While Astra was in her father's library the sad news spread through the city. The stylographed extras began to appear at the automatic news stand. The short paragraph telling about the wireless message from Germany alarmed everybody.

More than fifty years before, in the year 1919, the now prosperous and peaceful United States had experienced a great disaster. New emigration laws and the new tariff had precipitated an international conflict that had involved not only the leading European monarchies but Japan and China as well. The ultimatum came from the East and the West. Europe was mobilizing on one side; the orientals on the other; all the nations against one. The question was whether it was best to bow before the will of the united enemy, or to lose independence. Congress seemed unable to decide.

The time given the United States for consideration was rapidly passing.

The President was in despair. He gave orders to the fleet and land forces, but in his heart he cried, "What is the use?"

The night before the day of final answer he stood before the window, looking hopelessly into the starless darkness.

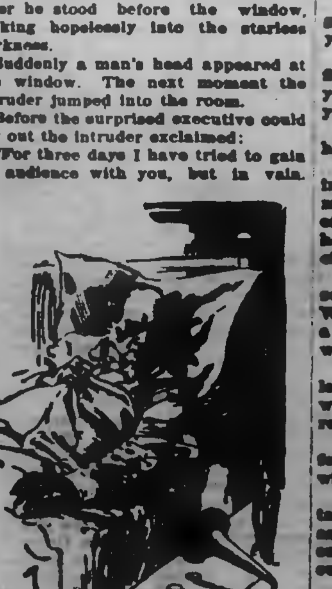
Before the surprised executive could cry out the intruder exclaimed:

"For three days I have tried to gain an audience with you, but in vain.



The Great Man Had Been Awakened By the Ringing of the 4,500-mile Bell.

Since I know that tomorrow will be too late I have forced my way to you."

"What brings you here?" the President asked.

"My desire to save my country, to imagine the enemy. I can defend the entire continent against any invasion. Don't think me mad—I am not; I have invented the greatest power. To be exact, I have discovered it. A man who solves one of nature's problems is not an inventor but a discoverer. My discovery is an invisible power that resists all attack. Don't doubt me before I have finished. I will create around me a circle that will defend me and will ask you to try to touch me."

He took a small instrument from his pocket, and stepping back from the president, he continued:

"When I motion toward you try to touch me."

He manipulated springs on the instrument, then signaled to the President. The executive stretched his arm toward him. An invisible force bent first his hand, then his arm back. He could not touch the man from any side.

After several experiments the astounded President was convinced of the importance of the discovery.

The intruder removed the force from about him and told of his plans to save the country. They talked until long after the first rays of the morning sun shone through the windows.

When the midnight visitor had finished his confidences the President's face was brighter than it had been for many days. The careworn expression was gone. He escorted his visitor to the gate, putting his hand familiarly on his shoulder as he bade him good morning.

The midnight visitor was Hannibal Prudent, the greatest scientist of the new world.

The President spent the morning preparing dispatches for the representatives of the European and oriental nations. He gave them twenty-four hours to order their vessels from American waters, advising them that if they had not obeyed the order in that time the United States would not be responsible for their future.

The new laws that had been formulated by the United States government and which were so objectionable to the powers would stand, and the United States would see that they were enforced.

Three days later Hannibal Prudent created a current of the impenetrable Z ray that isolated the whole American continent from the rest of the world.

Fifty years had passed; fifty years of independent peace. The Central and South American republics had joined the great United States and a confederacy was formed that secured their independence and the freedom of commerce.

Those fifty years of peace had created wealth, happiness and a scientific progress such as had never been equaled.

Now the man whose genius had made this possible lay dead, and his last words urged preparation for war.

Astra sat before her father's desk; before her lay a document that demanded careful study—the will of her adopted father.

She did not look at the long list of bonds and stocks; she did not care for the vast wealth that from now on would belong to her alone. The paper she was reading contained far-reaching instructions, prophetic insight into the future. The last page was a farewell letter:

"My dear Astra, knowing that I am nearing the limit of human existence, and that rest awaits me after a long and full life, I set down such facts as will enable you to make the best use of the knowledge that I, the old tree, wish perpetuated in the blossoming plant; it is you who will be responsible for the coming prosperity of the country. God gave you a broad mind that has developed to its fullest capacity under my care and I am proud of you, dear girl; you are chosen to do great things for your country and humanity.

"There is only one man on earth who is worthy of calling you wife; you will find this man, or he will come to you, as you two are ordained mates, comrades.

"When I go to my rest I feel that I will leave turbulent times behind me. My Z ray will not remain impenetrable forever, and when the day comes that it is destroyed, the country will need a brave, competent man to drive away the dreadnaughts. He will come, as he has been fully instructed. Trust in him, my dear daughter.

"This country was not developed to be blasted by war; the adventures of warfare and strife are not for it. Our Creator selected this country to grow to freedom, equality and science. Thundering cannons shall never more sound on our shore; our land shall be a land of love and peace.

"I have labored hard to spread this gospel. After I am gone the task is your inheritance, dear Astra.

"Before I die I will tell you where to find the one man competent to assist you and will further instruct you in your duty.

"God bless you, my daughter, you have ever been my joy and pride."

Astra put down the paper, and, staring out into the beautiful garden, murmured to herself: "Hurry to the island of Cirynith! Cirynith? I have never heard of the place, and he left no specific instructions."

The entrance of John, a faithful old servant, woke her from her reveries. With shaking lips he announced that a reporter for the Hourly Stylograph wished to see her.

Folding up the documents, Astra locked them in the safe, then said, "I will receive him at once in the green room."

The servant left. Astra hesitated for a moment, then she said aloud, with quiet determination:

"Father, I will accept the inheritance. I will wait for him to come and help me; I will take the burdens on my shoulders and faithfully carry out your teachings. God help me to!"

CHAPTER II.

Nominee of the Continentals.

Morning found the great capital in the splendor of deep mourning. The elevated sidewalks, the roof gardens, the terraces were crowded by people dressed in black. The newspaper roof terraces were especially crowded; there, on immense opal glass plates sparks of electricity printed the latest news and illustrated the happenings of the moment with moving pictures.

On the main tower of the new capital building (a colossal creation of pure American architecture) the Bell Orchestra, comprising four hundred players, played the march of "Coming Peace," a march that thrilled the hearts with its melody, that elevated the souls with thoughts of Heaven, that drove away evil thoughts with its exquisite harmony and foretold the happiness awaiting beyond. Resonant horns spread the melody farther and farther, until it soothed the mourning people in neighboring towns.

The fourteen-hour San Francisco limited had just slid into the central depot of the Tube Lines; the broad glass doors were flung open and the passengers hurried out.

One of them, noticeable for his tall, upright figure, clear eyes and bronzed face, hastened to the hellioboard; he was followed by a short man, whose rotundity more than made up for his lack of height. The tall man with the bronzed face eagerly watched the sparkling news, as he had been cut off from any form of communication on the Tube Line for fourteen hours. The sparks at that moment were printing some uninteresting commercial news, but soon the following notice appeared:

"The cremation of the ex-President, Hannibal Prudent, will be held at 4:00 p. m. Thursday."

"Too late!" whispered the stranger sadly, removing his hat. "Friend Santos, we are too late. How happy, how contented he would have been had he received the news I wanted to give him personally before he left." He took the arm of his friend. "Come, Santos, we have some hard work in store."

They took the elevator to the aero-station of the depot, where they boarded the south-bound aero bus. A few minutes later they landed at the terrace of the American Hotel.

The same morning Astra received several committees offering their sympathies and condolences. When the last one had gone she sank exhausted on a couch. She had rested but a moment when a servant brought in a card. She sighed wearily and made a motion of dissatisfaction when she read the name "Ambrosio Hale."

The man was admitted. As he entered he bowed deeply before the weary girl who stood there in her black gown, looking like an angel of sorrow. The exquisite face had taken on a new beauty through her affliction, which the newcomer quickly noticed.

"I have come, my poor, suffering girl, as a friend of your father. During these days of sorrow your woman's heart needs the aid of a strong man. Your father honored me with his intimate friendship, and I want to offer you my services."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Hale. Your kindness touches me. It is good to know that there are friends upon whom I can count during these sad days. My beloved father, however, made such far-reaching arrangements that I hardly think there is any need of your assistance. But I thank you with all my heart."

With these words she offered her hand to Hale, who retained it in his grasp greedily.

"I also want to tell you something confidential, my dear Astra: The Continental Club feels that this coming election will bring the long expected event—that is, the nomination of the first woman President. And the eye of the Continental Club rests on you!"

Astra smiled serenely.

"Should the country select me for its executive, I shall be glad to serve, and I will do my best to carry out the plans formed by my father for the furtherance of the United Republics."

She looked at the man whose ferret-like eyes could not leave her face, whose thick lips were parted, showing a row of gleaming teeth. In spite of his handsome appearance Astra had long ago discovered some bestial trait in him, and had often wondered how her father could extend his friendship to such a man. These thoughts flitted through the brain of the girl, then an afterthought came and she asked:

"Mr. Hale, can you give me any information in regard to a place I cannot find?"

"I will do my best, my dear Astra," said Hale, as Astra hesitated.

"Do you know a town, a district, village or any other place by the name of 'Cirynith'?"

Mr. Hale thought for a moment, then admitted that he had never heard of the place.

Astra felt some satisfaction.

As Hale left the crystal palace, he met the tall, bronzed man who had arrived on the fourteen-hour limited from San Francisco that morning, on the broad stairway that led up to the main entrance. He eyed the sunburnt athletic man curiously; the man, notwithstanding his modish style of dress, looked a stranger.

In the hall, he handed his card to the waiting servant without a word. The servant looked at it and saw but one name.

"Napoleon Edison."

As the stranger had no appointment, Astra told the servant to advise him that she could not receive anyone until Thursday evening, after the cremation of her father's earthly remains.

Edison shook his head somewhat impatiently.

"If you say it is her wish not to see me until Thursday evening, I must wait notwithstanding the importance of my mission."

He turned, left as hurriedly as he came. His whole being seemed surcharged with energy.

Napoleon Edison met his short friend Santos on the roof garden before the hourly stylograph. The round, ruddy cheeked man was watching the hellioboard with interest. He enjoyed the great city immensely, and at that moment he was laughing heartily at the comic section shown on the board. The newspaper was reproducing some funny pictures made by a Chicago artist in the early days of the twentieth century. "I have never seen such amusing brain products in my life," he said.

Edison smiled at the amusement of the man he called Santos. Taking his arm, he led him to the elevator. This time they went to the subway tube and, after making some inquiries of the guard, Edison bought two tickets for New York. It took two hours for them to make the journey between Washington and New York.

After they left the train, the two elbowed their way through excited and mourning crowds. Santos could hardly keep pace with the long strides of Edison. They turned into Forty-second street from the avenue and hurried into the Hippodrome, an immense, but very old structure, a relic of the nineteenth century.

The continental party had gathered in this building and a somewhat stout woman was speaking when the two strangers entered. The audience listened to the woman with intense attention; her pleasant, strong contralto voice filled the great hall and she brought out important points in her address with decisive strokes.

Edison and Santos stopped and listened.

"To whom do we owe all these blessings? To whom must we give thanks for the thousands of other things that add comfort to home life, travel and national existence? To whom but the man whose soul has left the clay and entered the land of peace: Hannibal Prudent, ex-President of the United Republics of America.

Astra Had Long Ago Discovered Some Bestial Trait in Him.

"I know that many of the sectionists and internationalists say we are isolated from the countries that gave us our ancestors; I know that the sectionists think the isolation was an outrage against our further development in art, literature and science. They think those things, but we continentalists know differently.

"It is true no Italian singers can be imported to please the ears of the wealthy; it is true that we cannot add ancient pictures to our collections of masterpieces; it is true that the yachts of our rich cannot make a tour of the Mediterranean; but compare our losses with our gains!

"Since the isolation we have created our American art! Does not that alone pay for our isolation?

"Our singers sing the airs of our country; our artists paint pure, beloved objects and scenes known to all of us.

"Look at our magnificent, lofty architecture, our terraces and roof gardens at our reversible street covers, at the swinging gardens, tube and aerial roads. These are our own—these are not influenced by foreign education. We created them ourselves."

"Before the isolation of our continent, we were a mixture of all the nations of the world; today we are a nation complete in ourselves. There are no English, Irish, Dutch, German, Italians or Spaniards left. These nationalities have merged and produced the citizen of America."

Her voice sank lower and vibrated with emotion.

"A new item has sparkled through the country, a bit of news even more heart-breaking than the news of the departure of the greatest man our country has produced. I mean the news that our stronghold is near its breakdown, that European scientists have discovered the way to invade our isolation. I pray that the news is untrue, but should it be true, then we will have to prepare for defense.

"Compatriots, true citizens! Who can fill the executive chair more satisfactorily than the one who, throughout her whole life, has been prepared for it? I call to you and ask you to give your best judgment for the cause and with one heart and one thought nominate for the continentalist candidate the daughter of Prudent, Astra Prudent—"

Here she was interrupted by a heavy voice thundering:

"No female rule for me."

That was all he could say, as his voice flattened out behind a healthy slap delivered resoundingly on the disturber's mouth. The hand and arm that administered this rebuke belonged to Napoleon Edison. With a strong jerk he turned the surprised man toward the door and he was carried on and on as if he were a wreck being tossed by stormy waves. When order was restored, the speaker continued:

"With all my heart I trust Miss Prudent will be the nominee of the continentalists. Those who agree with me, kindly stand up!"

As one body the audience rose and 50,000 voices thundered "Hurrah! for the continental nominee!"

Then the oratrix sat down.

Astra, in her own room in the crystal palace, saw and heard through the electro-stylograph the whole proceedings of the New York continental party in the Hippodrome. She had raised her hand to disconnect her machine when a man from the audience asked for the right to speak.

According to the rules of the party, all who desired had the right to make an address, so this request was readily granted. Since no one asked for this man's name, it was not disclosed. He walked calmly forward, closely followed by a short, fat man who stopped only when his tall friend mounted the platform. This tall man was dressed in a gray traveling suit, instead of mourning, but on his arm was a broad black band.

All the attention of the great audience was centered on the athletic figure and the sunburnt, frank face of the young man. Astra's instrument showed these details to her as plainly as if she were sitting in one of the boxes, and she was thrilled as his eyes seemed to look straight into hers.

Couldn't Breath Through His Nose Stuffed With Catarrh

Catarrhozone Inhaler the One Means of Relief, and It Cured Quickly

The extraordinary efficacy of Catarrhozone is without parallel. A sneezing cold is cured in ten minutes, a harsh cough is eased in an hour, the most offensive catarrh is thoroughly drawn from the system. In case of asthma and bronchitis the relief and certain cure that comes from the healing balsamic extracts in Catarrhozone is simply wonderful.

"For more than twenty years I suffered with a cough, bronchitis, asthma and nasal catarrh," writes J. F. Fenwick, of Staunton, P.O. "Every attack I had seemed to grow worse and I could hardly breathe on account of an accumulation of phlegm in the nose and throat. One day I tried Catarrhozone and in ten minutes was wonderfully relieved. I could breathe freely and naturally through the nose, and blood spitting was stopped—the phlegm was cleared away and my regular breathing restored. No remedy can do more than Catarrhozone."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Lewis, B.A., who is residing in Peterborough for a year, has agreed to attend to all special calls and pastoral duties in connection with George street Methodist church during Mr. Peever's absence on holidays. Mr. Lewis' address is 421 Stewart street. Rev. Mr. Lewis will take the services to-morrow.

Mr. Elliott in Possession.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, the wholesale liquor dealer is now in possession of the premises, formerly occupied by Mr. Fred Mitchell at 418 George street. Mr. Elliott will use these premises as a retail liquor store. From his many years experience in the wholesale trade, discriminating and moderate users of stimulants will now be assured of getting something that will tickle their respective palates.

Local Soccer To-day.

One of the best soccer games of the season will be the clash this evening at 6 o'clock at Riverside Park, between the Nomads and the C.G.E. Team, champions for the last three years of the Midland League. The game is a semi-final Midland League fixture.

Early Ball To-day.

To-day's ball game, the last in the series between Berlin and Peterborough, will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. It should be another good game and will attract a big Saturday crowd of fans. It is likely that Bramble will pitch for Berlin, while Manager Rowan may send Sterling back at the Germans.

57th Band Augmented.

Some half dozen or more first-class English instrumentalists will become members of the 57th Regiment Band. They comprise both reed and brass players as well as an artist on the tympanies, and as they double on string, apart from being a decided acquisition to the 57th, will form the nucleus of a first-class orchestra.

Ed. Graham in Cigars.

Mr. W. H. Hill, who for some days has been removing to his new offices in the Hill Building, will complete his change of premises on Monday. Mr. Ed. Graham, who is well known to most of our citizens, will occupy Mr. Hill's vacated premises as a cigar store. Mr. Graham's many friends will congratulate him on his new venture.

Visiting Judges at Factories.

Yesterday morning the County Judges made a trip to the Canadian General Electric Company at the invitation of Mr. E. G. Patterson and were greatly impressed with the magnitude of the works. They also visited all the shops. A trip was also taken to the Quaker Oats Co.

The Gates Ajar.

A gentleman living on Albert St., near the C. G. E. Co., told a Times reporter about a wake he attended recently in Toronto. It seems that Shaughnessy, whilst washing the 6th storey window of an apartment house there, fell to the pavement and instantly killed. Murphy and his wife attended the wake. The A. O. H. had sent a big and beautiful floral design of the "Gates Ajar." Mrs. Murphy said "Moike, what does that mane?" "Whist, Nora," replied Mike "Don't expose yer ignorance that way. Whoi, that's the windy poor Shaughnessy fell out av!"

Returned From the West.

Ex-Warden Robert N. Scott, of Smith, returned yesterday from a trip to the west, visiting Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Brandon and other places. He says that while there is plenty of work in the immense harvest fields, the cities are teeming with unemployed. As a result there is considerable suffering among the population of the larger cities. Mr. Scott thinks the West is all right for those who have capital, or those accustomed to work on farms, but does not offer opportunity to those seeking employment in the city.

Yesterday's Police Court.

At yesterday's police court, Wilfred Ireland was fined $5 for being drunk, and warned not to come back again. George Pigeon pleaded guilty to D. and D. and was fined $2 and costs. He was given one day to dig up the long green. James Robertson pleaded guilty to having been drunk. $2. Robertson comes from Toronto. J. Innis was charged with leaving his horse on George street, when the animal was not tied. P. C. Sills said he frequently saw Innis' horse left untied. $2. Mr. Leo Longo was charged with a similar offense. P.C. Sills gave evidence. $2.

For God's Sake Butter It.

An absolutely true story was told The Times yesterday, of a Lindsay pastor. A tramp called at the door and asked for a "hand-out." The pastor gave him a generous parcel of bread, which, in his charitable zeal he forgot to butter. The divine remarked, "Now, I don't give you this for my sake, but for the sake of the Lord." The tramp removed the paper and replied, "Well, Mister, for God's sake, please butter the bread!"

County Judges on Outing.

The County Judges, assembled in Peterborough, yesterday afternoon, enjoyed a trip to Rice Lake, per good ship Esturion. They were conveyed in autos from the Oriental to the wharf, where they embarked. Amongst the local members of the bar accompanying them were Judge Huycke, County Crown Attorney Wood and Mr. L. M. Hayes. A Philistine aboard the steamer said that a venerable occupant of the bench, seeing a mud turtle slide from a log as the boat approached, remarked: "Look at the quiet dignity and sublime self consciousness of that reptile."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Port Hope Burglar Sentenced

Port Hope Guide: Charles Rogers, who was committed from here, on a charge of burglarizing the home of William Kennedy of the Township of Hamilton, came up before Judge Rogers, in Cobourg. About one o'clock in the morning of July 8th, William Kennedy was awakened, and saw a man walking through his room. Kennedy called, but the man hurried out the front door. Kennedy caught Rogers at the wire fence. Here the battle was a fierce one. Rogers pulled a chisel from his pocket and beat Kennedy over the forehead, cutting and bruising him severely. Kennedy was almost obliged to give up, when his father appeared on the scene. Kennedy, Sr., threw him to the ground. Here they tied him securely. The prisoner was sentenced to seven years years in Kingston Penitentiary.

WRINKLELESS SKIN NOW EASY TO HAVE

(From Family Physician).

There's no excuse for any woman having wrinkles now. It has been found that a simple mixture of saxolite and witch hazel has a remarkable action upon the deepest wrinkles, no matter what their nature, whether caused by worry, habitual frowning, a debilitated condition or the ravages of Father Time. This harmless remedy, which anyone can easily make and use at home, acts both as an astringent and a tonic. The combined effect of tightening the skin and heightening its vitality is to immediately affect every line and wrinkle, keeping the cuticle smooth and firm as in youth.

The proportions are one ounce saxolite (powdered) to one-half pint witch hazel. The solution should be used as a wash lotion. It is equally effective in disposing of flabbiness of cheek and neck, as well as sagging below the eyes.

Canada's Plant Wizards

In the popular mind Luther Burbank is the "plant wizard" of the world, and the only one. It is not generally known that there are other men, and many of them, on this continent and in foreign lands, who are working and achieving as well as Burbank. All over the world, where advanced agriculture is practised, men are striving for something new, for things that are better. In Canada there are many so-called plant wizards. Zavitz, at Guelph, on wheats; Groff, at Simcoe, on gladioli; Saunders, at Ottawa, on apples; Macoun, at Ottawa, on many things—these are some, and only a few, of the men who are "creating" new things in plant life for Canada.

Salt Bed in the West

The discovery is reported of an extensive salt bed at Kwinitsa, Mile 45 on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific east of Prince Rupert. The importance of this find lies in the fact that about the only other deposits of commercial value in Canada are situated in Ontario at Kincardine, Goderich, Windsor, Parkhill and on Lake Huron so that, so far as the western Provinces are concerned British Columbia may be the distributing centre for this essential of the culinary art.

THE BRITISH CANADIAN BRICK AND COAL COMPANY, LTD.

Incorporated under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act.
NO PERSONAL LIABILITY

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL - $500,000.

Consisting of

$200.000 7 Per Cent Preferred at $10.00 Per Share, with Bonus of 25 per cent Common. $300.000 Common at $10.00 per share

DIRECTORS:

J. S. DOUGLAS, Merchant, Winnipeg.
W. F. TALLMAN, Street Commissioner, Winnipeg.
A. B. WOOLDRIDGE, Gentleman, Winnipeg.
D. W. McKERCHAR, Barrister, Winnipeg.
V. A. TALBOT, Real Estate Broker, Winnipeg.

The above Company has purchased from the Excelsior Coal and Brick Co., Ltd., their whole plant as a going concern, the purchase price to be taken in shares of the new Company, and it is the intention of the Directors to equip the plant to make it one of the largest in the West.

The plant is situated in that rich tract of mineral producing country surrounding Estevan, and is near the town. It comprises 640 acres of the best clay and coal to be found anywhere.

The shaft of the coal mine has been sunk to a depth of seventy feet to reach a seam of the best lignite coal, and there are enough entries and passages to enable an output, at slight expense, of 200 tons of coal per day. Other mines in the district are producing less and making considerable profit. A conservative estimate of the profit on each ton is $1.00, but from Government borings near the property it has been shown that there is a seam of coal 650 feet from the surface which is similar to the Lethbridge coal, and which could be sold f.o.b. the mine for at least $5.00 per ton, netting the Company $3.50 per ton. It is to reach this seam and further equip the brick plant that the issue of stock has been made.

There is a constant and ever-increasing demand for brick. At the present moment the price for common brick all over the West is from $12.50—$13.00 per thousand. The clay on our property is of the finest, and makes a brick second to none. We can make bricks for about $4.00 per thousand, so that the profit on the product is considerable. It is the intention of the Company to increase the present brick plant to allow of an output of from 75,000—100,000 common bricks per day, and at least 25,000 pressed bricks, which retail at $25.00 per thousand and cost about $7.00 to produce.

Under the coal there is a strata of fireclay, which is extremely scarce in Canada, and commands a high price. It is intended to instal a machine for the making of fire brick, which is being almost entirely brought from the United States and Scotland; also to manufacture sewer pipes and hollow tiles. Firebrick and hollow tiles command the high price of $40.00 per thousand, and we can make them for less than $8.00.

Coal and brick run in conjunction is probably the finest profit-making combination known. It has been proven over and over again that with competent management such a proposition is a success from the first.

The Directors have insured the success of the new Company by engaging the services of one of the most expert brick men in the West, who will supervise the laying out and working of the new plant.

It is with unbounded faith in the future of this western country that the Directors have decided on offering to the public a share in its development and wealth. The man who invests in this proposition makes a two-fold investment. He invests and aids in the development of his country, and at the same time puts his capital to profitable use.

An Extension Telephone

IN THE RESIDENCE, if the main telephone is downstairs an Extension Telephone upstairs will add greatly to the usefulness and convenience of the service. Upstairs or downstairs a telephone will be close at hand and the necessity of stair-climbing eliminated.

Incoming and outgoing night messages are often emergency or highly important calls. An Extension Telephone upstairs in or near the sleeping apartment will save much time and add greatly to your comfort and protection.

IN THE OFFICE, an Extension Telephone on your desk will save you much time and annoyance. It is most inconvenient to be constantly called on to leave your desk to answer a telephone call at a telephone far removed from the work in hand.

With an Extension Telephone on your desk, telephone calls can be sent and received conveniently with practically no loss of time. With its aid you will be able to accomplish more during the busy office hours.

The additional expense of an EXTENSION TELEPHONE is trifling—only a few cents a day.

NON-MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES HAVE NOW INVADED LONDON

Hundred Thousand Women March Through the Streets to Hyde Park Meeting

London, July 27.—Many thousands of non-militant suffragettes were on the streets of London this morning to attend a great service in St. Paul's Cathedral and a subsequent demonstration in Hyde Park.

They had turned out to greet at the cathedral the marching columns which arrived from all parts of the Kingdom yesterday, whence they had converged on the capital along the five great roads leading to London which end at the Mansion House, the centre of the British world.

Every constituency in the country sent representatives to join the various columns during their progress, and the small detachments of suffragettes who originally started from Land's End and John O'Groat's the two uttermost limits of the island, were augmented on the way until they formed great columns.

The women started out on June 18th and were therefore on their way for five weeks. They were cordially received in all parts of the country: clergymen, college professors, business men and noted women greeted them and spoke at their meetings along the route.

At Bedford, the trade unionists gave proof of their chivalry and loyalty to the women by insisting upon forming an escort for a speaker who was about to explain the suffrage cause to an audience which had previously shown hostility to its advocates.

No untoward incidents marred the march, and when the women reached London, they made a triumphal entry as they bore the banners of the various societies and made their way to the official residence of the Lord Mayor.

U. S. SENATE MAJORITY WOULD INTERVENE IN MEXICO

Members of Foreign Relations Committee Think This Only Possible Outcome of Situation

Washington, July 26.—(Special)—With another American held and under sentence of death in Mexico, Ambassador Wilson will today take up with Secretary Bryan the question of whether or not the United States should intervene in the southern republic.

President Wilson will not see the ambassador until monday, but intervention seems more and more certain.

The american held and sentenced to be shot is Charles Belfer, general manager of the Mines Co. of america a $10,000,000 corporation. Lernard McDonald an Englishman, general manager of the Patricio Mining and Milling Co. has been arrested and sentenced to death in Chihuahua.

Both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan advocate mediation. Both favor sending a commission of mediators, consisting of representatives of the United States, Brazil, Argentine and Chili into Mexico for the purpose of making overtures to President Heurta and General Carranza for the restoration of peace.

They agree that the proposition must be accepted by both factions in Mexico before any step can be taken by the United States to bring about peace.

SOUTHERNER'S ARMY BEATEN IN THE CELESTIAL KINGDOM

Rumors Point to An Early Collapse of the New Chinese Revolution

Shanghai, July 26.—The fighting between the rebels and the Government forces, which was resumed at 9 o'clock last night, after fruitless negotiations for an armistice, ceased at daylight to-day, when the southerners withdrew. Their attack again was unsuccessful.

The consular body is considering expelling Dr. Sun Yat Sen, General Huang Sing and General Chen Chi-Mei, who are conducting the revolution from the safety of the foreign settlement.

The casualties of the southerners around Shanghai total 1200. The losses of the northerners are much less.

Early Collapse.

London, July 26.—"The defeat of the southerners at Shanghai," says the Pekin correspondent of The Times "is calculated seriously to affect the prospects of the southern movement.

"Many rumors are current in Peking, indicating the probably early collapse of the movement. Unless the Naking army shows unexpected spirit and certain provinces prove their sympathy by immediate active assistance to the southerners, government success is inevitable."

Foreigners Want Help.

Hankow, China, July 26.—Urgent appeals were received yesterday from the foreign resident in Ku-Ling for a naval guard. There are over 2000 of them there, consisting mostly of women and children.

CHICAGO MYSTERY BAFFLES POLICE

Dead Body of Pretty Young Woman Found on the Lake Front.

Chicago, July 26.—The police were confronted with another murder mystery in the finding late last night of the body of a woman partly immersed in the shallow water along the lake shore in Rogers' Park. She had not been dead longer than three hours, an undertaker asserted.

A bullet hole over the right eye and two abrasions of the scalp are proof of the woman's violent death. The victim could not have held a revolver in a position which would send a bullet on the downward course it took, the police say. On the beach the officers found an automatic revolver containing one empty cartridge. They came across two furrows in the sand, which were traced to an alley about 50 feet away, from where there were several footprints made by a man's shoe, and an umbrella bearing the label of a Milwaukee manufacturer. It is thought that the woman was murdered in the alley, dragged into a few feet of water and that the waves washed the body shorewards again.

The body is that of a woman about 30 years old, and who weighed 125 lbs. The hair and eyes are brown. She wore a black serge skirt, pink flowered washable waist, with double front, black stockings, black shoes and a shawl

RULER OF BULGARIA PHOTOGRAPHED AT HIS PALACE

CONTRACT LET FOR DRY DOCK AT LEVIS

To be State Owned and Will Accommodate the Largest Vessels

(Special to The Times).

Ottawa, July 26.—That work will be commenced immediately upon the new Government dry dock at Levis, Quebec, is the announcement just made. Thus another Government promise has been fulfilled, and in a couple of years there will be a national dry dock at Quebec able to accommodate the largest liners or battleships afloat. Its cost to the Government will be almost two and three-quarter million dollars. The contract has been awarded at that figure.

OTHERS COMING

This is the first step towards the construction of a series of big Government dry docks and ship repair plants for both the Atlantic and Pacific shipping of Canada. Another dry dock is to be built by the Government at Esquimault and similar projects are contemplated for Halifax, St. John, Sydney and Vancouver. These dry docks will also have a naval defence aspect, since they will be available for any British battleships in Canadian waters in time of war.

STATE OWNED DOCK

During the last shipping season a series of regrettable accidents on the St. Lawrence caused the Government had been merely talking about for years. Private firms could not be secured that would be willing to take the risk of building the dry dock by the aid of a Government subsidy. The Government then decided to construct the dock as a state-owned proposition.

Whereas, formerly big liners had to be sent outside of Canada for repairs in case of accident, now Canadian labor in a Canadian dockyard will have the advantage of the work. The money expended in the construction of the dry dock will be doubled in a few years in a return in income to Canadian workmen. The developing and the increase of Canadian shipping will guarantee that return.

ARE A NECESSITY

Good dry docks are as necessary in Canada as repair shops for a railway. The Dominion has for a long time felt the necessity of the Levis dock will do much not only to satisfy ship owners but to make easy the minds of the shipping insurance agents. The high insurance rates on the St. Lawrence have for a long time been a ground for complaint among Canadian ship owners. The continuance of the present Government policy will eventually remove that trouble.

Don't forget the Printers' Picnic, down the river, on Saturday afternoon, August 2nd. Good list of sports, and a good time is assured all. First-class orchestra in attendance. Don't forget the date, Aug. 2nd.

CLEVER ARREST OF AN INSANE MAN

George McDonald at yesterday's police court was charged with indecent exposure in Victoria Park. Detective Newhall said he had followed McDonald, Thursday afternoon as a result of many complaints. He saw McDonald commit the offense in the park whilst near two young girls. McDonald has been in court more than once for a similar offense. McDonald has once been let off on suspended sentence for a similar offense. He claimed to have been drunk but Newhall had followed him all afternoon and said prisoner had only had one glass of lager. Sergt. Adams corroborated last witness and said prisoner was sober. The prisoner was given six months in Central prison. The evidence will be sent to Toronto to enable the prisoner's mental condition to be investigated.

The arrest of this man was cleverly effected. It seems that McDonald got wise to the detectives watching him. Detectives Newhall and Meagher had followed him all afternoon, but wanted to get him "dead to rights." At 5 o'clock Meagher entered at one side of the park and pretended to be watching McDonald. McDonald kept busy watching Meagher, whilst Newhall entered from another part of the park unseen by the prisoner.

PEACE PARLEYS BEGIN TO-DAY

Expected Terms Will be Arranged Concurrently With Armistice Now Being Discussed

Bucharest, Roumania, July 26.—The peace delegates of Servia, Greece and Montenegro left Belgrade this morning and are expected to arrive here on Monday when they will be joined by Premier Venizelos of Greece.

The Bulgarian plenipotentiaries are expected to reach here simultaneously, and it is hoped in official circles that terms of peace will be arranged concurrently with the armistice now being discussed at Fish.

BASEBALL

A large crowd of fans were present at Riverside Park on Saturday, the fair fans being well represented. The Petes got back after their holidays and were in good trim. The boys went after the Berliners right and every man played good ball. The hitting was good and in all a good exhibition of ball was witnessed by the large crowd.

The Petes will be back again on Thursday and stay here for the balance of the week.

RUSSIA WILL SEIZE ARMENIA

Powers Authorize Occupation to Compel Turkey to Draw Away

London, July 27.—A despatch to The Daily Express from Rome says the powers have authorized Russia to occupy Armenia in order to compel Turkey to withdraw behind the Enos-Midia line, the new frontier between Turkey and Bulgaria as fixed by the Treaty of Londo.

CITY'S LAZIEST MAN IN POLICE COURT

At Saturday's police court, John Sweeney was charged with vagrancy. Sweeney has often been in the court. His wife works hard and is ill. He pleaded not guilty. Mr. Finch Miller in the box, said he had known Sweeney 20 years. Sweeney will not work steadily. Sweeney is able-bodied. He has seven children dependent upon him. Sweeney's wife said he had only worked four days during the summer. One week he only gave her $1.40, and during a recent illness would have starved, but for charity. Sweeney is a habitual drunkard. He asked for a chance. The Magistrate remarked, "You are a low-lived man and should have the lash." P. C. Maher said he had known prisoner for 10 years. He went to his house at the request of Father Phelan and found both Sweeney and his eldest son at home idle. His wife even had to cut the wood. Father McColl asked him to investigate and said he would see the children were provided for. One cold winter's night he found Sweeney's family outside the house, and prisoner seated inside with his feet on the stove and smoking his pipe. Mr. Goodwill was present for the Children's Aid Society.

The case was enlarged for a week.

LAWYERS EXCLUDE TANGO, BUNNY HUG

Cape May, N. J., July 25.—The tango, bunny hug and grissly bear were barred from the annual ball of Commercial Law League of America tonight after the subject of modern dancing had been warmly discussed by the members of the league at the afternoon session. The executive committee recommended that these dances be omitted from the program, and its recommendation was adopted but only after both sides of the question had been argued.

The business session today was taken up with a discussion of proposed changes in the constitution of the league, well known lawyers from many sections of the country participating in the debate.

PRIVATE WM. HAWKINS, TORONTO, IS NOW EMPIRES BEST SHOT

THE HONOR ROLL.

Canada's King's Prize Winners.

1895—Private Hayhurst, Hamilton.
1904—Private Perry, Vancouver.
1911—Private Clifford, Toronto.
1913—Private Hawkins, Toronto.

Bisley, Eng., July 26.—Private Hawkins, 48th Highlanders, Toronto to-day won the King's prize for rifle shooting, carrying with it the National Rifle Association's gold medal and gold badge and $1250 in cash.

The competition which is open only to members of the volunteer forces of the British Empire, is fought in three stages. The winner of the first stage receives a bronze medal; of the second stage, a silver medal, and of the third stage, in which only 100 contestants are left in, the gold medal.

The first stage is fired at three ranges, 200, 500 and 600 yards, seven shots at each distance. The second stage, in which are the leading 300 men, consists of 20 shots at 600 yards and the third stage is shot off at distances of 800, 900 and 1000 yards, ten shots at each distance.

Private Hawkin's aggregate was 330 points, out of a possible of 355.

IMPORTANT LOCAL REAL ESTATE DEAL

A local real estate deal of considerable magnitude has been consummated whereby Mr. Geo. Fitzgerald, Peterborough's veteran carriage builder, has acquired all the shops and premises, for many years at the corner of Brock and Water streets. Mrs. Birdsalls formerly owned the property. Mr. Fitzgerald expects to make some improvements in the factory, rendered necessary by his rapidly increasing business.

B. WILSON THE SPEED DEMON, INSTANTLY KILLED, TORONTO

Rochester Amateur Rider at Ontario Motorcycle Championships Fails to Make Turn While Travelling Fifty Miles an Hour and His Skull is Fractured

Exhibition Grounds, July 26.—The excellent card of races at the Ontario Motor-cycle championships here this afternoon was marred by a fatality, when B. Wilson of Rochester, an amateur rider, took a header into the fence on the second turn, while travelling at 50 miles an hour.

The rider, while new to the track, was making capital time, but did not allow enough for the turn and shot with terrible force into the fence, completely demolishing it for 25 feet.

The St. John's Ambulance Corps was on hand to render first aid, but could do nothing for the unfortunate man.

The sad occurrence cast a gloom over the large assemblage, and the final event on the card was cancelled.

Wilson was about 30 years of age, and his family are said to be well-to-do residents of Rochester. About 10 years ago the young man had a shooting gallery on Queen street near Terauley.

His friends who accompanied him from Rochester are anxious to return with the body to-day.

MARRIED WOMEN WANT TO TEACH AND HAVE CHILDREN

Band Themselves Together in New York to Oppose Discrimination Against Those Who Want to Become Mothers.

New York, July 26.—Do marriage and motherhood interfere with woman's efficiency as a public school teacher? That is the question now agitating the New York board of education, and many civic bodies throughout the Greater City have taken the problem up. The question has become such a burning issue that the other day 150 men and women, teachers, lawyers, writers and actresses, formed themselves into a league for the Civic Service of Women, which will, in the fall, begin an active campaign in the interests of married women teachers

The argument started when Mrs. Katherine C. Edgell, a member of the Erasmus High school faculty, formally applied to the board of education for a year's leave of absence without pay for the purpose of bearing and rearing a child. The board, after considerable debate and deliberation, refused Mrs. Edgell's request.

The newspapers and periodicals got hold of the story and gave it much space, arousing discussion throughout the city. Fuel was added to the flame when Mrs. Bridget C. Peixotto, a Bronx teacher, was suspended indefinitely for staying away from school to give birth to a baby.

NOT AS EFFICIENT.

Twenty married teachers attended the meeting at the Hotel Astor, where the League for the Civic Service of Women was launched and the movement was indorsed by the New York Mothers' club and the Women Lawyers' club. For many years there have been married women employed in the public schools of New York, and from time to time they have dropped out on sick leave and have become mothers.

The question never became a public one until Mrs. Edgell made formal application to the board for a year's leave of absence, giving as her reason her wish to become a mother. Members of the board who opposed Mrs. Edgell's request for a motherhood vacation defend their action by saying that they do not approve of married women as teachers. They have no objection to babies, they say, but they think that matrimony lowers the efficiency of women, as teachers. When they have home and husband and children, it was argued, the teachers cannot give their undivided attention to their pupils and their school duties.

BOMB PLAYS HAVOC

Paterson, N. J., July 26.—The explosion of a bomb partly wrecked the Helvetia Silk Mills early to-day, the resulting excitement bringing hundreds of workers, who have recently been on strike, from their beds to the streets. Great damage was done to the machinery and other fittings of the factory, many windows were broken and one wall crushed in. The police began at once to conduct a rigid examination, but no arrests had been made this morning.

The Helvetia mills constitute one of the largest plants among the several affected by the past four months' strike of the Paterson silk workers. Several thousand of the strikers have recently been returning to their work, without having won their demands.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at [illegible] a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., [illegible] George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

LIGHT ON HIS PAST

Girl's Fiance Makes a Confession That Surprises More Than One Friend.

By FRANK FILSON.

"Fanny, you've been lording it over me for for the past month, ever since your engagement to Edward Brooks. But you can't do it any more," said her friend Mildred Thomas, holding out her left hand with a blush. Fanny Upton seized it and dragged her friend into the light. On Mildred's third finger sparkled a diamond in a platinum ring.

"Mildred!" exclaimed Fanny, kissing her. "Who is it?"

"I mustn't tell you," answered Mildred. "Now don't be angry, dear, because you shall be the very first person to know. It's a sacred promise—for certain reasons."

"Oh, I'm sure I don't want to know, Mildred," said Fanny coldly, releasing the hand she held.

"Oh yes you do, Fanny. Now don't be cross. Listen! We're going to have an engagement party on Saturday night, and it will be announced then. And you are to come and be told first. See?"

Fanny was mollified a little. "Well, if you think it's worth making a secret of to please your fiance, all right," she said. "But you know very well he has secrets he hasn't shared with you."

"Fanny!" cried Mildred Thomas indignantly.

"Of course he has, goose. Don't you suppose he has been in love dozens of times—rapturously in love, and never told you a word of it?"

"Fanny," said her friend indignantly, "he told me that he has never been in love in his life before. He has never kissed any girl but me."

"Bosh!" said Fanny mockingly. "Now Edward knew I was too sensible to fall for that sort of yarn and he confessed [illegible] all. So, [illegible] going [illegible] out a whole lot more before Fanny [illegible]."

Mildred remained coldly silent.

"Oh, Mildred, here's a joke," said her versatile friend. "Now are you game for it? Let's each write a letter [illegible] found [illegible] expect you to explain—if you can. What a joke that would be. Picture the poor men's faces! Will you, Mildred?"

"It seems a shame," murmured Mildred. "[illegible] I [illegible] to think he had deceived me. Are you sure he has, Fanny?"

"My dearest girl, of course he has. How old is he? Twenty-eight! And never kissed anyone but you? Mildred, you certainly are simple. And now's the time to show him you aren't as simple as he thinks, and he'll think all the more of you for it. Is it a bargain?"

It was. It was not without many misgivings that Mildred Thomas mailed her letter to George Howard, but Fanny's hints were eating into her soul like vitriol. She must know, now, whether her lover ever had been in love before. That would be dreadful. Still she might forgive it, but she could never forgive deceit. When the letter was mailed she wanted it back, and all that day and the next she listened in terror for the postman's whistle. On the third day, Friday, the answer came—a hasty, incoherent letter, full of self-accusations and reproaches. "I shall tell you about what you refer to when I call tomorrow evening," he wrote, "and I shall come half an hour before the party, in the hope of gaining your forgiveness before the guests arrive."

Mildred was looking her prettiest when George Howard arrived. He looked so haggard and mournful that she could hardly find words with which to greet him. Bitterly now she repented having been persuaded by Fanny to play that foolish joke. But she must play her part through. They sat down very soberly side by side in the empty reception room.

"I'm going to tell you everything, Mildred," said George humbly. "I did not wilfully deceive you, for it was only because I had put the memory of that mad summer, two years ago, out of my mind and heart, and dared not recall it, even to myself. She was the only woman before you."

"Go on," murmured Mildred, and to her consternation she discovered that she was not shocked at all—only deeply interested.

"Mr. George Howard, Miss Upton."

"It was at Atlantic City. I won't tell you her name. We were almost the only guests at the hotel at the end of the season. We fell in love with each other; we loved each other madly. We were engaged. Then she went back to town, and I, like a fool, lived in a fool's paradise, anticipating the time when I should meet her again, to ask her to fulfill her promise.

"Well, the upshot was that she had imagined me to be a cousin of mine, Garfield Howard, the wealthy manufacturer. When I called at her home she was quite frank about it. She said she had loved me and would have fulfilled her promise, but she had resolved never to marry a poor man."

"The horrid cat!" exclaimed Mildred indignantly, slipping her hand into his.

"That broke the spell, Mildred. I realized then that I had never loved her. I learned to laugh at my infatuation, for I saw her as she was, and my love was dead. So don't you be afraid, in case we ever meet, for I have seen her two or three times since then, and there is nothing left in my heart but aversion."

"Darling!" said Mildred, putting up her face for a kiss.

"And I am forgiven, dearest?" whispered George.

"Absolutely. Now listen, for the guests will be here in a few moments. I'm going to announce it and tell them your name. It's all a profound secret, just as I promised you. I want you to meet my friend—"

But she did not finish the sentence, for the maid opened the door and announced Miss Upton and Mr. Edward Brooks. Mildred darted forward and embraced Fanny, and shook hands with her fiance.

"I want to present my fiance," she announced triumphantly. "Mr. George Howard; Miss Upton—Mr. Howard, Mr. Brooks. Now you have got to like each other as hard as you can, Fanny!"

The last remark was almost an interjection, for Fanny Upton had put forth her hand as gingerly as though it were of porcelain, and George was stretching out his finger tips as though he was afraid of never getting them back again.

"Mr. Howard and I have met before," said Fanny icily.

"You have? You never told me. Where?"

"I think it was at Atlantic City, or thereabouts," said Miss Upton casually.

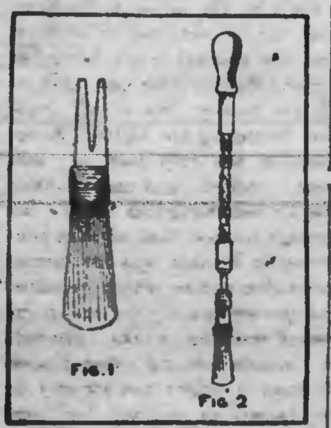
TO REMOVE THE DUST USE A SCREW DRIVER

Put a Paint Brush in the Ratchet Driver And Try It

Cleaning tufted upholstery work is one of the most difficult jobs imaginable. The dust collects in the hollows and it is almost impossible to get it out by ordinary methods. This is especially true of leather furniture.



The ordinary dust brush must be cast aside and if absolute cleanliness is wanted a ratchet screw driver and a paint brush must be used.

The handle of the paint brush is cut, about 1½ inches being left on the brush. This is cut Y-shaped, as shown in Fig. 1. This permits the brush to be attached to the blade of the screw driver with stout cord shown in Fig. 2 and the tufted places are cleaned out by simply pushing the brush into them and whirling it with the ratchet as the screw driver would be turned.

What is a Gentleman?

A gentleman is the man who dissolves company with the snob who relates at the club his latest conquest of a woman.

A gentleman is one who doth not forget that the washerwoman in the crowded street car belongs to his mother's sex.

A gentleman is the man "higher up" who is big enough to grasp the hand of the man "lower down."

And, above all,

A gentleman is one who does not try to prove it.—[illegible] O.A.C. Review.

Judging by the descriptions of the Bulgarian atrocities, there is some lying going on in the Balkans that is just as fierce as the fighting.

It is reported from Sofia that General Ivanoff has effected a splendid retreat. This will mean, we presume, that the general's army made excellent time leaving the enemy away in the rear.

MEDICAL REGISTRATION

The action of the Ontario Medical Council in throwing down the barriers to reputable physicians who have practised ten years in the Dominion will very soon be followed by other provincial medical bodies. For a quarter of a century it has been incumbent upon any doctor wishing to move from one province to another to pass a rigid examination before obtaining a license to practise. Ontario's move is the first step toward Dominion registration, an innovation greatly in the interests of the country at large.

It will not be long before other professions, such as law and engineering follow the example of the medicos. For instance, what is more absurd than the fact that a graduate of Osgoode Hall must take the Alberta examinations before he can practise in that province? A McGill graduate in engineering must take the Dominion land survey before he can survey Dominion lands and then must take a special provincial examination before he can survey lands in Alberta. Ostensibly the municipality of provincial examinations and registrations is only so much red tape designed to maintain special privilege.

CANADA IN THE LONDON FINANCIAL MARKET.

The London "Economist" says in a recent issue that for the first half year of 1913 the application for new capital in the London market has aggregated over 600 millions of dollars. This is the largest sum ever asked for except in 1909 and 1910 when the rubber boom was on. Canada has fared pretty well in these transactions. For the first half year of 1911 we applied for nearly 100 millions; for the first half of 1912 for 75 millions, and for the first half of 1913 for over 100 millions. For this latter half the United States had applied for 46 millions.

It cannot be said, therefore, that Canada has been neglected by the English investor. But, as the "Economist" says, there is a limit to the amount of money that can be obtained in London and the market must be given a rest. We got over one-sixth of all the money lent to all countries, including the United Kingdom, in the first half of this year; indeed, got more than the United Kingdom itself, although a good deal of that borrowed in Britain was for armament companies which required the money mainly for the purpose of erecting works abroad, in Canada among other places, so that it ought not strictly to be classed as capital for employment in England.

Just now the rising rate of interest is beginning to curb the demands, but with many borrowers "money at any price" seems to be the cry. The "Economist" thinks that England cannot indefinitely provide so much capital for permanent investment, and that when supplies are cut off from the countries which have been relying on the continued flow of borrowed money to complete their industrial development a general curtailment of that development, and the unreal activity produced by it, must occur.

This is a fair warning to us as well as to the other borrowing countries that for the present at any rate, we had better cease borrowing on a large scale.

Catarrh or colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago" writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cures me I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

NOT HARD TO TELL FORTUNES

Little Need for Soothsayer to Be Fitted With Much More Than Ordinary Intelligence.

The way to tell people's fortunes is to have one list of characteristics, and use it for every one without the slightest variation. It is bound to succeed. For instance, suppose Falstaff and Hamlet had their fortunes told by the same sothsayer. I imagine he would have told Hamlet's character as follows:

"You are not as fortunate as you seem. You have a great deal of sense, but more sense than knowledge. You can give admirable advice to other people. Your judgment is excellent as regards others, but bad as regards yourself. You never value your own good advice. You are fond of your friends. You prefer to talk to action. You suffer from indecision. You are fond of the stage. You are susceptible to female beauty. You are witty, amiable and well educated, but you like coarse jokes. You are superstitious and believe in ghosts. You can make people laugh. You often pretend to be more foolish than you are. At other times you will surprise people by your power of apt repartee. Your bane will be your inclination to fat, which will hamper you in fighting. You are unsuccessful as a soldier, but unrivaled as a companion and philosopher. You will mix in high society, have friends at court. You will come off badly in personal encounter and your final enemy will be a king."

Now imagine him saying exactly the same thing to Falstaff. Doesn't it fit him just as well? Can't you imagine Falstaff saying: "He has hit me off to a T;" and Hamlet murmuring: "My prophetic soul!" In fact, I believe fortune telling after that of medicine, to be the finest profession in the world, and the easiest.—Metropolitan.

Reprinted by Request.

An editor in the Blue Grass state has been trying for a long time to inject himself into politics and get elected to something. At last he was made a delegate to the state convention of his party. The day on which the convention opened was also the date of issue of his militant weekly newspaper; and in the excitement of the moment, he had forgotten to write his usual burning editorial. He was reminded of his dereliction just as he was leaving town for the convention.

"Oh," he said to the genial factotum of the mechanical department, "just reproduce last week's editorial, and state that it is reprinted by request."

The intelligent foreman followed instructions, and the editorial was served up to the amazed readers under the startling caption:

"Reprinted by Request of the Editor."

ASTRONOMY TALK

Prof. Warren Gives Popular Lecture at People's Forum

Many beautiful views of stellar nebulæ were shown at the People's Forum, Winnipeg, in the course of a popular illustrated lecture on astronomy by Professor Lloyd Warren of Manitoba University. The lecturer also showed many interesting views of comets, planets, shooting stars and of the sun and moon. Professor Warren suggested that one reason why former generations had found out so much about astronomy was because of the purer atmosphere prevailing before the era of cities and smoke. The ancients had studied the groupings of stars in the sun's path and had given the different clusters fanciful names of animals, birds, reptiles and fishes. This zodiacal path they had called the zodiac and they had told the different seasons from the passage of the sun through the different groups. An interesting point about the fanciful figures of the zodiac was the fact that from them it had been possible to discover the country where astronomical study had had its birth. It had been found that the series of animals represented by the signs of the zodiac had only existed in Asia Minor. So far away were the fixed stars, said Professor Warren, that the only possible comparison of them was by the light they emitted. The 20 brightest stars in the heavens were called stars of the first magnitude. These stars were two and a half times as bright as the stars of the second magnitude and the latter, in turn, two and a half times as bright as the stars of third magnitude and so on for the less brilliant stars. The most powerful telescope in existence had never been able to reveal any star as more than a point of light. No disc had ever been seen. The distance of the stars was measured in light years, that was to say the number of years it took for the light of a star to reach the earth. But although light travelled at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, no star was nearer to the earth than three years. The discs, however, of all the planets could be seen as well as the satellites stars. Meteors traveled through the earth's atmosphere at the rate of 40 miles a second, usually burning to ashes as they sped.

ECONOMY IN FOOD

French and Germans Models of Thrift in Kitchen

Much that we treat as refuse, which actually comes under the head of waste, the French and Germans utilize and the time has come to follow their example and learn to make delicious soups and stews and ragouts from food we have heretofore thrown away or poorly used. The pods of peas make excellent pea soup. The outside leaves of celery, cabbage, and lettuce should not be thrown away, but utilized for soups, stews, or creamed and served as vegetables. Every single food material seen on the market, or purchased and brought into the house, should be studied for its possibilities and these used to the utmost. But this cannot be done unless you know the value of different foods.

This means that you will learn what to substitute when any one article so increases in price as to become a luxury to you. When potatoes are too high you will substitute rice and macaroni. When fresh vegetables begin to tempt you, you will remember that you are paying purely for flavor and not for nutrition when they are too high and too new. The trouble is that we have forced seasons until we do not now properly distinguish if the food is in season or not. If we could and would return to the old-fashioned way of not using fruits and vegetables, such as strawberries and peas until they were ripening within some few miles of our own neighborhood we would gain in pocketbook. It is not good sense or economy to pay too high a price for such luxuries, but you must be the judge of the time when any single food is properly within reach of your purse or your demands.

The second item of waste, and one emphasised by every man or woman studying present conditions, is the tendency to buy in too small quantities. This is made necessary in the city by lack of storage room, but the custom has spread into places where no such limitation exists. Those living in small quarters may be able to study out adjustments of space which will accommodate many more original packages, in place of the day to day purchase which actually costs just twice as much.

So the adjustments required for meeting the increased price of food materials may be summed up in learning how to purchase and use food. First and formost is a close study of food values. Then a learning how to market with intelligence and forethought.

Do You Know

That plants need sulphur? Stick plenty of unburned matches, head first into the soil of plants which begin to look unhealthy. If there should be anything at the roots it will kill them.

That to remove the lime from the inside of your kettle it is best to boil vinegar in it? The acid acts upon the deposit of alkaline matter inside and will cause it to disintegrate and crack off.

That to clean willow furniture salt and water is excellent? Apply with a brush and then rub dry.

That milkly glasses should be rinsed in cold water before being washed in hot water. The hot water, if used first, will coagulate the albumen in the milk, making the glass look smeary when dried.

Precaution Against Trichina.

A temperature of about 160 degrees Fahrenheit kills the parasite responsible for the disease Trichina, or flesh worm, as it is more commonly known. Fresh pork should be cooked until it becomes white and is no longer red in color, in all portions of the piece, at the center as well as near the surface.

CHRISTENED UNDER THE FALLS

An Indian Girl Baby Receives a Flowery Name.

A party of Indians went to Niagara Falls for the purpose of christening beneath the great cataract an infant Princess of the Iroquis tribe, thereby repeating the ceremony which was performed in March 1866, upon the same spot. The christening ceremony took place beneath the Horse Shoe Falls on the Canadian side shortly before dusk, and Indians in full regalia participated. The child is a grandchild of Chief Thunderwater, who was christened in the same place. The girl is eleven months old, and was christened "Mahonicee," meaning "Morning Beauty," and "Au-paw-chee-kan-paw-qua," meaning "woman whose name shall never die." The christening was performed by Rev. Geo. Septimus Gerald Hares, pastor of St. Paul Methodist Episcopal Church.

Shares at 40c.

(Par Value $1.00—Non-Assessable and Non-Personal Liability)

For Further Development Work in the Manitoba Gold Fields

The pioneer work in this mine has all been done. The purpose of the present issue is to provide further funds for the complete opening to a depth of 200 feet of the 8-foot rock quartz vein now exposed, prior to the establishment of a reducing mill on the property.

Independence quartz down to 60 foot level now exposed assays from $15 to $90 and more per ton. This ore can be milled and refined for $6 per ton. Reports on this property and the Rice Lake Gold Fields are unanimously and highly favorable.

We believe these shares at the price are the most attractive speculative investment to be found in the mining world to-day.

AVIATION

Art Lyn, who gave up editing a Chinese newspaper in San Francisco, is now awaiting word from Peking of his appointment to head the aviation corps of the new army of the Chinese republic. He made a deep study of flying and intends to teach it to the Chinese army. He secured an aviator's license at San Diego, Cal., and has made many successful flights. He was the first Chinaman to fly in America.

BOWLING

And the Canadian won last Thursday. They defeated All-Ireland by 23 shots at Dublin, and now they are the champions

The tour resulted as follows—One down in England, tie in Wales, 3 up in Scotland, one up in Ireland, or two up on the whole tour. This is a great achievement for Canadian bowling, and one every bowler in the country should be proud of.

—Never Before—

Never in the history of the game has a Canadian team of bowlers got within fighting distance of the old country players, but here you have this year a team chosen absolutely on their playing ability, who not only gets within fighting distance but wins out on the whole tour. It is a really great performance, and Captain Tom Rennie and his merry men deserve the heartiest congratulations of every lover of sport in Canada.

—Hard Game—

The game they played Thursday is said to be one of the stiffest combinations ever pitted against them, and if this is o then the glory of their win is all the more creditable. Twenty-three shots is a good majority, but one pleasing feature about the result is to see that Skip McJanet of Ottawa, who only skipped two games won them both. His was a notable victory twenty out by 24 to 13. This Ottawa rink have certainly run up against some pretty tough luck across the pond. There is no better skip in Canada than Bob Far[illegible]y, but you know how it is, let Dame Fortune fail to smile and it's good night for yours. The remarkable fact is that this sort of think has lasted during practically the whole tour and it must have been really disheartening for the Ottawa players, to see loss after loss.

BASEBALL.

Montreal, July 26.—If a deal which is under way to-day goes through a new achievement will have been attained in the annals of professional sport. The deal under way is no less than a proposition to trade a professional hockey player for a professional baseball player.

Skene Ronan, a crack Ottawa wing man, and Tony Carlo, a pitcher secured by the Royals from the Federal League are the players involved in the prospective deal.

Sam Lichtenhein, managing director of the Montreal Baseball Club, in the International League, controls also the fortunes of the Wanderer Hockey team.

The Ottawa Baseball Club evidently has something to do with the hockey club, and talking over the prospects of the winter organization, Ronan's name came up.

RUNNING

Thomas Longboat has handed out a dare to the flying Central quarter-miler at Varsity. It took the form of a 300-yard match, with the Indian out 25 yards in front. Tressider beat the redskin a foot. Both were surprised. Tom didn't have the slightest doubt but that he'd win, and Tressider didn't think Mr. Indian could sprint as fast as he can.

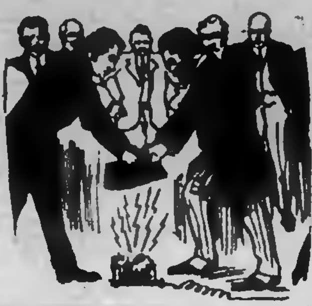
DEFIES GRAVITATION

French Inventor Makes Metal Float in in Air—Car Without Wheels

Emile Bachelet, a Frenchman, living in obscurity and for a long time near to poverty, but for 20 years a patient, though unschooled delver into the hidden mysteries of electric forces, demonstrated to the wonderment of the scientific world an invention which actually defies the seemingly inflexible law of gravitation. Bachelet exhibited his wonderful device to a party of interested friends in his laboratory and the performance was weird. At the touch of a button they saw a 12-pound metal weight rising in mid-air, resting solidly on an invisible cushion of electric current. They placed their hands on the weight and pressed down. The weight wobbled and squirmed upward, like a hollow ball on water.



Weight held in mid-air by electric current.

Bachelet made these experiments merely to demonstrate the new scientific principle which he adapted to a transportation device so wonderful as to make imagination reel. He explained that the principle is that of electro-magnetic repulsion, just the reverse of the well known electro-magnetic attraction. The boy with his horseshoe magnet knows that it will pick up a needle. Bachelet found an alternating electric current, or wave, that drives the needle away from the magnet—drives it into the air. Bachelet discovered that while the direct electric current strongly attracts metals, the alternating or interrupted current will repel metals, particularly aluminum and brass.

Combining the attractive and repellent forces he constructed a 32-foot miniature railroad on which runs, at terrific speed a car which has no wheels, no motor, no brake, and which moves practically clear of all except atmospheric friction—floating like a ship in the ocean in an electro-magnetic field.

This car weighs 40 pounds and is constructed of aluminum and steel. It is suspended between three grooves, two below and one above. Brushes attached to the car run in the grooves, but there is practically no friction at these points of contact, and these brushes are merely to guide the car.

The car is levitated by alternating currents sent into the bottom grooves from magnetic coils placed at the base of the grooves. The 40-pound weight then rests on the electric cushion, held only in place by the brushes.

At intervals along the track are solenoids, large coil magnets, which loop over the railway, like small tunnels. When Bachelet turned his direct current into these solenoids the suspended car was instantly attracted and leaped toward the next solenoid like a projectile shot from a high-power gun. Bachelet reversed his current and the car sped backward.

The inventor says that it would be possible, though not practical, to run a train of cars 1,000 miles an hour over a railroad so constructed. He says that a train could be run, practically 300 miles an hour.

RIEL VETERAN DEAD

Thomas Orthwaite, Recluse of Headingly, Dies Suddenly

After living the life of a recluse in a one-roomed shack in the village of Headingly, Manitoba, for over 30 years, Thomas Orthwaite, an old Yorkshireman, dropped dead while feeding his stock. Orthwaite, who was 73 years of age, owned a small garden by which he made a modest living, and it was while he was concluding the work of the day that he was seized with heart failure. He was seen to fall by a Galician woman, who called the attention of some neighbors to the fact. The deceased was a veteran of the Riel rebellion, and received a medal for his services in that campaign.

STARTED OVER AT FIFTY

Out of a Job This Man Studied Law and Made Good

For three decades Nathan P. Allen has been the Chicago underworld criminal's first aid and main reliance. Whether the arrest was for stealing a pig from a pen at the stockyard, for lifting a pocketbook from a visitor in a dive, or for murder, the arrested person's first call was for Allen.

He has defended thousands of criminals, with much profit to himself and much satisfaction to his clients, many of whom believe they would be "on the inside looking out" if it hadn't been for their lawyer's remarkable skill in persuading the jury that black was white.

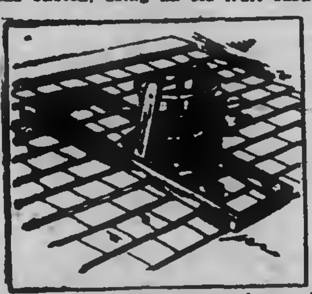
Yet Allen was a carpenter till he was 50 years old. Now he is within a very few years of 90. The panic of '73 is responsible for making him a lawyer. That panic, among other things, took his carpentering job away from him and gave him plenty of time to look around for other work.

NATHAN P. ALLEN

He read law and studied in what had been his carpenter shop. When he was admitted to the bar he hurried to Chicago and spent his last cent furnishing an office. The habit he then formed of sleeping in his office still clings to him.

For Roof Workers

If you ever find it necessary to repair your roof, you will doubtless be troubled as to what to do with your tools and nails and supplies. That's an easy trouble to dispose of. Make a roofer's basket, like that shown in the sketch, using an old fruit basket for the central feature and an old buck saw blade to furnish the teeth that keeps the frame from slipping. When using this basket see that the teeth are sunk into the shingles Oherwise the basket will slide off.



Blasting With Lime

You don't have to use gun powder or dynamite every time you want to get a block of stone out of your way in a field or break up a boulder. There are easier and simpler ways. The rock of Gibraltar was honeycombed by the Moors without a bit of powder being used. Lime is the stuff that does the work. A series of holes are drilled in the rock and these are partly filled with unslacked lime. Water is then poured into the holes and the rock is split as though you did it with an axe. Another method is to drive a dry wooden plug into the hole and pour water on it. The expansion of the wood will cause the rock to split.

Sanol's Blood Salt

This salt is an excellent and absolutely harmless remedy for any disturbances of digestion, such as DYSPEPSIA, GASTRIC CATARRH, SOUR STOMACH, HEARTBURN, LOSS OF APPETITE, CONSTIPATION, ETC., and as an aid to digestion in wasting and nervous diseases.

This preparation is a mixture compound so as to resemble in essence and effect the salty part of the human blood which through disease or a wrong way of living might have been lost and not regained. In some cases of flatulence, a sense of fullness or pressure over the region of the stomach, the blood salt has no equal, in fact there is no other remedy that can take its place.

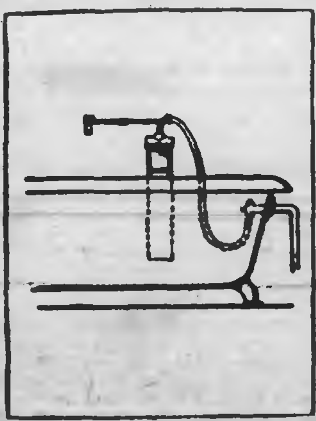
For the convenient handling of photographic films at home a photographer has invented a film washer. This consists of a rubber tube that connects with the spigot of the bath tub as a bath spray does and has a slot attachment on the other end. This attachment consists of two flat lips that work on the same principle as a paper clip. They hold one end of the film and the hose is then hung over a gas bracket or towel rack or some similar object so that it is some distance above the tub and the film can dangle its full length below. The water is then turned on and is sprayed gently over the film, washing it thoroughly and without the fingers touching it anywhere. Any spigot in the house will do quite as well, but a bucket should be provided over which the film can be hung.



CLIP ENGAGES THE FILM

After a year's work a four-foot coal seam was discovered near Gilfach Goch, Mid-Glamorgan, at a depth of 381 yards. It is estimated that the working of the seam will give employment to 1,000 men.

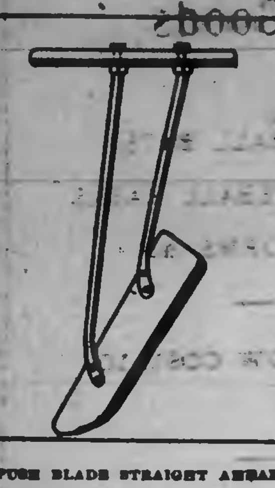
NEWEST SOD CUTTER

Broad Blade Shears Through Turf with Ease and Speed

The cutting of [illegible] with the tools used in that operation is rather tedious. It is usually done with a short curved blade on the end of a long handle and the workman has to step on the top of the blade to force it through the turf and repeat the action every six or eight inches. A western man devised a sod cutter that appears to be a big improvement over the old type. A broad, sharp blade is fixed to two substantially parallel arms that are attached to a handle. To cut the sod the workman inserts two sticks in the ground and runs his guide line from one to the other. Then he starts at one end with the cutter and pushing it straight ahead of him, literally ploughs his way along. It is easy to see how much time this implement will save.



PUSH BLADE STRAIGHT AHEAD

SHEEP IN CANADA

They Are Poorly Cared for Says Commissioners' Report

In their report on the sheep industry the commissioners who investigated it on behalf of the Dominion Government stated, among other things, that sheep in Canada are, as a rule, poorly housed and poorly fed; that heavy losses are sustained through lack of proper care during the winter season, and that from shearing to marketing no country in the world handles its wool in a worse manner. Besides pointing out these weaknesses of many Canadian sheep raisers the commission reported fully upon the state of the industry in Great Britain and described how old country shepherds handle their flocks. A farmer there may keep sheep of the breed popular in the district and although they may not be eligible for record in an Association Flock Book they are very highly bred and young ewes are sold at very remunerative prices to neighboring farmers for breeding purposes. For producing early lambs the ewes are bred to [illegible] soon after New Years. Male lambs not intended for the early sale are always wethered. Besides grass pasture, such crops as kael, vetches, rape, cabbages and turnips are grown for the sheep. These are often sown in succeeding periods in season so that when one is consumed another is ready, thus providing fresh feed a great part of the summer. The sheep are not allowed to forage over large areas, but are often kept within portable fences which are moved periodically to take up new patches. The same thoroughness is exercised in the treatment of the flock throughout the winter, with the result that sheep keeping is a highly profitable branch of English agriculture.

AFTER RARE ANIMALS

Two Naturalists Explored the Wilds of British Columbia and Alberta

Frederick K. Vreeland of Montclair, N. J., and William T. [illegible] of Milburn, N. J., visited the extreme northern parts of [illegible] British Columbia in the interests of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. Their purpose was to determine the northern limit of the habitat of the Big Horn sheep of the rocky mountains; to ascertain if in the northern part of British Columbia the Big Horn and the Stone sheep occupied the same territory, and to compare specimens of both varieties, as also of white goat, mountain caribou and brown bear. The two naturalists explored the mountain wilds on both sides of the Peace River, shooting such specimens as they desired and photographing the country. They got many photographs of wild life in its native haunts. The Canadian law which forbids the exportation of mountain sheep and goats and caribou was withdrawn at the request of the Smithsonian Institute. Mr. Vreeland hunted mountain sheep and goats in the Canadian Rockies several years ago and one of the finest specimens of the mountain goat to be found in America now adorn the walls of the Montclair Athletic Club.

A PROBLEM IN WHEAT

Here are Some Figures Which Can be Judged Indefinitely

An Indian prince wishing to reward one of his subjects desired him to ask whatever he thought proper, assuring him it would be granted. To the surprise of the prince this subject only asked for a grain of wheat for the first square of the chessboard, two for the second square, four for the third, and in the same ratio to the last, or sixty-fourth space. The prince was almost incensed at this seemingly insignificant request, but was surprised to learn as the result of the calculations which ensued that to comply with the subject's demand, it would require a quantity of grain greater than he possessed in all the royal granaries, and even throughout all Asia.

The number of grains of wheat required to satisfy this demand will be found by calculation to be:—

18,446,744,073,709,551,615.

Now if a pint contains 9,216 grains of wheat, a gallon will contain 73,738 and a bushel (8 gallons) will contain 589,784 grains. Dividing the number of grains as shown above by this last quantity, we get 31,274,997,412,297 as the number of bushels necessary to discharge the promise of this Indian prince.

If we suppose an acre of land to be capable of producing in one year, an average of 30 bushels of wheat, it would require 1,042,499,913,743 acres, which is more than eight times the entire surface of the globe, based on the statement that the diameter of the earth being taken at 7,930 miles, its whole surface including land and water will amount to about 126,437,889,177 acres.

If the price of a bushel of wheat be estimated at one dollar, the value of the above quantity probably exceeds that of all the riches known on the earth!

English Grocers and Tobacco

Grocers in England no longer sell tobacco, but for many years after the "sovereign herbe" reached England, theirs were the only shops where it could be obtained. Tea came in under the commonwealth, and from that time the list of commodities sold by the grocers began to expand considerably. "It was the first half of the seventeenth century," writes Mr. Aubrey Rees, "when new lands were opening up on all hands, that adventurers set out in quest of spices and other valuable products to all parts of the-then known globe. The spirit of adventure and enterprise was abroad, and in no class of traders was it more pronounced than among the grocers. 'More blood has been spilt over cloves than over dynasties,' says Thorold Rogers."

A noiseless gun for killing horses or other animals at short range has been invented in England.

Power for a new fire proof machine for rewinding motion picture films is provided by a tiny electric motor.

LONG-DISTANCE RUNNERS

Japs and Kahars are the Real Champions

The feats of professional runners seem insignificant when compared with the regular performances of an East Indian caste. These Kahars, who are also known as Jhinwars, live in the Punjab, where for centuries they have acted not only as runners but as fishermen and as waterfowl catchers.

These men are said to be able to accomplish 100 miles a day without resting. There is said to be a well-authenticated instance wherein one Tika Ram carried despatches 300 miles in three days, from Mean-Mir to Moogut. It is further said that, so far from shortening their lives, these performances really conduce to longevity in the Kahars, many of whom are able not only to withstand the strain of covering great distances, but to thrive under it.

The jinrikisha man, too, notwithstanding his irregular diet, excessive use of liquor and exposure to the elements, lives to a reasonable age. In Tokio when a census was taken of the jinrikisha men some years ago there were found to be more than 1,300 who were over 55 years of age.

BONFIRE BURNED ON HISTORIC SPOT

The property upon which a bonfire was built to celebrate the annexation of the town of North Toronto by the City of Toronto was the site of Montgomery's Hotel, an old landmark that figured in the rebellion of 1837. The lot lay vacant ever since the historic tavern was burned by the Government forces on December 7, 1837. It was the scene of a sharp skirmish and bloodshed, Sir Allan McNab, who came from Hamilton several days before, attacking the rebels at a point on Yonge street just south of the hotel. As the Government forces were reaching the top of the hill a horse came galloping out of the fields. A man named Wideman who caught and mounted the animal was shot. While a group was standing around his body someone raised the cry of fire, and smoke was seen issuing from Montgomery's Hotel, which was gutted.

MODERN BABEL

Winnipeg a "Melting Pot" for all Nations of the Earth

Winnipeg stands unique among Canadian cities, but the uniqueness is not in her beauty, but in her people. Less than one half of her population are Canadians and a full quarter are what are called "foreign." In the number of nationalities, Winnipeg approaches New York; in the noise of her varied tongues, she rivals Babel. A map of the city indicating the nationalities by color would "show more stripes than the skin of a zebra." Winnipeg numbers among her citizens, English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish, Italians, Germans, Russians, Ruthenians, Poles, Austrians, Bohemians, French, Swiss, Spaniards, Finns, Magyars, Chinese, Japanese, Africans, Swedes, Norwegians, Danes, Dutch, Icelanders, Turks, Americans, Arabians, Hebrews, Syrians, East Indians, American Indians, Egyptians, Hungarians, South Americans, Cubans, Slovaks, Bavarians, Greeks, Servians, Maltese, Malays, Hindus, Roumanians, Portuguese, Dalmatians, and perhaps a few others.

BULL-FIGHTING PAYS

Two Spanish Toreadors Earn at Least Quarter Million Dollars a Year

There is probably no sport in the world so lucrative as that of Spain's national sport, bull-fighting, and the statement that there are twenty-three famous toreadors who earn annually $1,000,000 [illegible]. In Madrid [illegible] toreador, the fairy prince of the senorita, at the leading hotels. He smokes the very best cigars. He drinks [illegible] wines from France. [illegible] is also most fastidious in his fashions, wearing the best of clothes. His nails are also delicately manicured lest their rough appearance should mar the brilliancy of the priceless diamonds which his standing as a toreador compels him to wear. His life has made him a stoic, and his smiles he reserves for the ring.

He is also most superstitious. Evil befall the [illegible] between him and [illegible] whom he may be fighting. The toreador who, on the morning of a bull-fight, may have fallen a victim to any of these [illegible] will pay a heavy fine rather than face the [illegible] of bulls.

There are two toreadors who earn anything up to $250,000 a year. They are Bombita and Machaquito. The former is married to the daughter of a French nobleman with a highly historical name, and the latter to a Scotchwoman.

The Isolated Continent

A Romance of the Future

"Ladies and Gentlemen," he began. "I have a message to deliver to the political party in which I believe; do not ask me how I happen to be the instrument that was selected to convey this message to you, but I beg of you to seriously consider my words.

"You have all heard or read about the warning that came to our dear dead, the ex-President, Hannibal Prudent."

There was silent emotion in his voice when he mentioned that name.

"That warning is only too true. Our enemies, defeated fifty years ago, have found a way to break through our isolation; they have spent these fifty years planning revenge! We can, through Hannibal Prudent's efforts, put off their invasion for one year, which will give us a little time to prepare for defense. Continentalists, my brothers in conviction, spread strength and faith through the mighty land, as God has given us, just as he did fifty years ago, a man to liberate this country from the oppressor's hand. God, in his infinite goodness, has given us another instrument to repel the storming enemies."

As he opened his mouth to speak again, the large helioboard began to show many colored zig-zag sparks and the audience watched it in apprehension; the whole atmosphere was charged with an inexplicable feeling of expectation. Not a person moved until the man on the platform stepped quickly down to the operating table of the electro-stylograph and adjusted the instrument into the right receiving socket. The sparking ceased and blurred, but discernible, a picture appeared.

As the audience stared the picture became somewhat clearer and they saw what appeared to be tremendous sea monsters lying immovable on the bosom of the ocean. The huge bulks of metal, showing unknown forms of warfare, were pointed menacingly at the silent audience, which was representative of the fifty years just past; the comparison showed clearly that the science and genius of the Europeans had only produced a perfection of death-dealing instruments, while the Americans had advanced in science, art, literature and a general development of the human race.

The great audience, which had been so enthusiastic, now sat as motionless as a bird that has been charmed by a snake, intently watching the wonderful picture that moved and changed incessantly; huge airships of an improved type, resembling the old style Zeppelin, glittered brightly, as they moved with ponderous grace.

Every conceivable form of mono and bi-plane came gliding by; and each and every form of locomotion carried unmistakable signs of their destiny—a machine of destruction.

As the pictures vanished a sigh issued from every heart and a rustle of relaxation stirred the multitude. Many turned toward the platform, hoping to see the man who had last spoken, but he was gone.

By the time the people who had been favored by a sight of the enemies' destructive forces, began to leave the hippodrome, that young man was on his way to the capital. He was none other than Napoleon Edison.

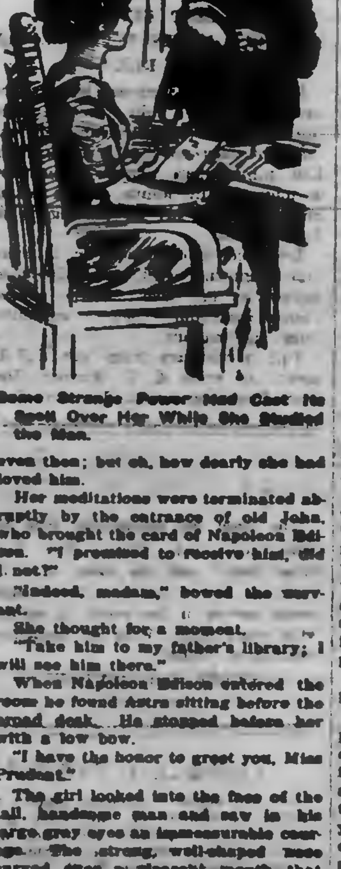
CHAPTER III.

The Ring.

Thursday afternoon at four o'clock the clay abode of the man whose death was mourned by the continent returned to ashes. The mournful procession started toward the crematorium from the chapel of the Crystal Palace. Gardens had been devastated to furnish flowers; the streets were carpeted with blooms. Immediately following the coffin rode his only relative, the daughter of Hannibal Prudent, in an open carriage.

Her pale face spoke of sleepless nights and many tears, but her eyes now were dry, her classic face calm and her carriage like that of a queen. And a queen she was, not by the right of birth or inheritance, but by the divine might that inhabited her superb body.

Astra's mind was dazed from the loss of sleep and the pomp of the funeral ceremony, and her nerves were well-nigh exhausted by the time she arrived at her crystal home. As she slowly mounted the steps her loss overwhelmed her; she had not fully realized it before. She went at once to her boudoir, locked the door and, throwing herself on a couch, sobbed bitterly. Her mind reverted to the past when the great man she had lost had played with the little girl of five years—with her; he was an old man even then; but oh, how dearly she had loved him.



Some Strange Power Had Cast Its Spell Over Her While She Studied the Man.

Her meditations were terminated abruptly by the entrance of old John, who brought the card of Napoleon Edison. "I promised to receive him, did I not?"

"Indeed, madam," bowed the servant.

She thought for a moment.

"Take him to my father's library; I will see him there."

When Napoleon Edison entered the room he found Astra sitting before the broad desk. He stopped before her with a low bow.

"I have the honor to greet you, Miss Prudent."

The girl looked into the face of the tall, handsome man and saw in his large gray eyes an immeasurable courage. The strong, well-shaped nose curved over a pleasant mouth that softened the stern expression of the eyes. The high, broad forehead was shaded by dark brown hair. The broad shoulders and the sinewy, muscular form all gave evidence of strength, endurance and energy.

The girl did not answer for a few seconds; some strange power had cast its spell over her while she studied this man. She recognized him as the man who had talked so prophetically at the continentalists' meeting in the old Hippodrome.

"Good evening, Mr. Edison," she said at last in her low, pleasant voice. The man thought it the sweetest voice he had ever heard. Then she added: "Will you kindly be seated?"

The young man sat down without speaking, and Astra asked: "You wished to see me; may I ask you, sir, why?"

The expressive face of the young man showed a shade of disappointment as he replied quickly:

"I was under the impression that you expected me, madam, but it seems that I have been mistaken. However, I can tell my mission in a few words."

He rested his eyes on the girl's face and seemed still, expectant, but the calm, beautiful face did not change. He continued:

"The main object of my call is this." He took a small jewel box from his pocket, and, opening it, placed it on the desk before Astra. Resting on the purple pad in the box was a sparkling white object, a small ring in the form of a spiral; one piece of scroll woven into a shape that formed the letter "A" to take the place of the jewel.

No jewel decorated the ring; the material it was made of was more brilliant than diamonds; it sparkled in all the colors of the rainbow, notwithstanding its smooth surface.

Astra could not repress an exclamation of surprise: "Ah, how beautiful!" She leaned over the desk, admiring the weaving colors.

Edison smiled slightly and waited until the girl was ready to turn from the dazzling ring to him. She took the ring in her hand and saw that it was as transparent, clear and colorless as crystal; without that sparkling effect it would have been invisible.

She slowly held it up again and looked questioningly at the man sitting before her. She did not know that while she was admiring the ring his eyes had rested on her yearningly, expressing love and admiration. Or was it adoration?

He smiled strangely at her and said: "If I read your questioning gaze aright, you want to know the meaning of my gift, a gift that I have brought from afar for the daughter of Hannibal Prudent." He placed a peculiar accent on the last four words.

"I thank you, sir, very much," she replied.

"It is a present for you, and through you to the whole American continent."

Astra's face expressed surprise.

"I will have to be more explicit. I will have to tell you more about it. May I ask you to let me have the ring for a moment?"

She handed it to Edison with a gracious movement of her slender hand. He took it from her, and, grasping it firmly with both hands, he pulled it apart; it yielded like rubber and jumped back to its former size when he released it. Then he let it drop on the polished desk; it sounded like glass.

"What do you think of that, Miss Prudent?"

"It is wonderful."

"Indeed it is, and more: It carries the solution of aerial navigation, making the aerial crafts as safe as your chair. It makes war on land or sea absolutely impossible. It strikes the word 'distance' from the dictionary. What do you think of it?"

Astra's face took on an expression full of faith and thankfulness; her eyes seemed to look far up to the power that moves worlds and creates new stars.

"You—you have come to our aid; peace and happiness will still reign over our continent. God has sent you to me in this trying moment."

Tear drops trembled on her long eyelashes like drops of dew on a flower.

When the moment of enthusiasm had passed they sat again calmly opposite to each other. This time Astra spoke:

"My dear Mr. Edison! You have not proved what you claim can be done, but the way you said it convinced me that you have the power to do it. In other words, I trust you and believe in you implicitly. Women know much by instinct, and my intuition has never led me astray.

"I recognized you at once as the man who spoke at the Continentalists' meeting, trying to encourage the masses and give them heart to brave approaching events.

"As you know, the Continentalists have nominated me because I was the daughter of the man who made this continent what it is today. Now that I have found a man who promises as great things as you do I shall not accept this nomination, but will insist upon you as a candidate."

"Miss Prudent, I appreciate what you say, but none must know about our present conversation. I have done nothing but give you a jewel. The other things remain to be proved."

Astra looked thoughtfully at the visitor and seemed to agree.

"Besides," continued Edison, "it is absolutely necessary that no one shall know what I can do. You will be elected and inaugurated the 4th of March this coming year. This is the 15th of September. The isolator now existing will last until the coming summer and you will hear from me between now and then; indeed, you can depend on me when the crucial moment arrives. If you will permit me I will report whenever I can; that will not be often. I will supply you with information from time to time as to what is going on on the other side, and suggestions that you can use, if you desire, for defense, should it prove necessary."

Edison stopped for a second, bit his lip thoughtfully, then rose.

"I have finished my duty for the present. You don't know, Miss Prudent, how much I appreciate the fact that you look upon my intentions with approval, intuitively knowing that they are noble and the outgrowth of your father's teachings. I am sorry I came too late to tell him the good news—that war is destined to lose its foothold throughout the world."

"I hope it will cease forever," interrupted Miss Prudent.

"The element that ring is made of will drive it from land and from sea, but carries it into the air."

"But if no one knows the secret?"

"There are no secrets, Miss Prudent; there are many things we don't know yet, but there are no secrets. Nature is an open book to those who can read and understand."

"Again you are right, Mr. Edison."

"Then, with your permission, I will go. I hope that the service I am offering to our continent will be accepted as freely as I am offering it."

"I can assure you of that, as the nominee for the presidential chair." She offered her hand again and Napoleon Edison kissed it reverently. He bowed once more and started toward the door. Miss Prudent hesitated a moment—a question was on her lips—but as she hesitated it was too late; the visitor was gone.

"Cirynith—Cirynith!" she sighed, more than uttered, and looked at the [illegible] that hid a short moment ago [illegible] that splendid man.

It seemed to her as though the stranger had carried away something—something?—what? She did not know. She sat down before the desk and taking the ring in her hand looked at it, and finally she slipped it on her finger. It fitted perfectly.

Then she looked at it more closely and saw some small tracings on it. She could not distinguish the lines with her [illegible] took a magnifying [illegible] curiously. [illegible] she dec[illegible] Cirynith [illegible] coincidence Napoleon Edison [illegible] it was a [illegible] that made him think of Napoleon, whether it was Bonaparte [illegible] could not recall.

Mr. Hale was received in the green room.

Astra had a peculiar dislike for that color, not in nature, but in furnishings and clothing, and generally received people she did not like in the green room. That room had a depressing effect on her mentality, and the people who visited her there soon left.

"I have come this time, my dear Astra, to congratulate you. I wanted to be the first. You are nominated by the continentalists, and there is no doubt but you will be elected; there is hardly any opposition on the isolationists' part. Whom could they put up against you, my dear Astra?"

He pressed the hand of the girl warmly. He knew that he had to win her love or he would never reach the goal he was longing for.

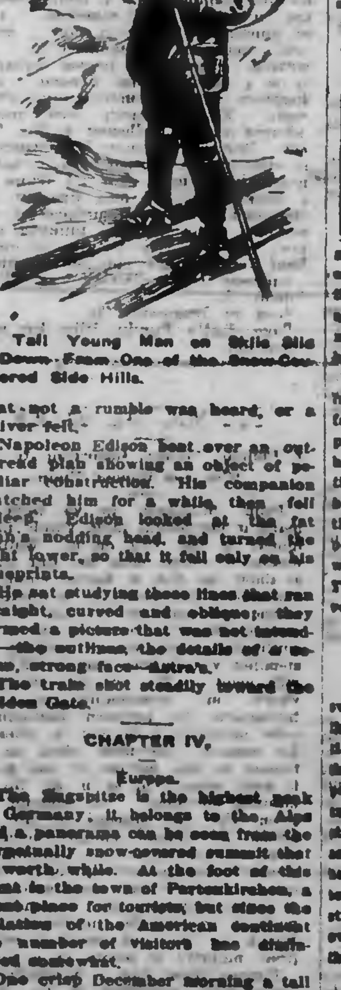
"I wish you would consider me your very best friend, my dear. Consult me any time you please. Your wisdom and judgment is great. The whole continent is looking at you as the deliverer; still, once in a while the word of an experienced statesman will help."

"Indeed, Mr. Hale, I assure you that if I ever need your kindly offered help I will call on you."

The intimate conversation did not last long, as other visitors arrived and spoiled Ambrosio Hale's ardently longed for opportunity.

Before Astra fell asleep, she kissed the glittering ring on which the word Cirynith was faintly engraved.

That evening Napoleon Edison, accompanied by his short friend, sat in a compartment of the fourteen-hour Frisco limited, flying toward the West; the train that was shot through the tube by compressed air was so perfect that not a rumble was heard, or a quiver felt.



A Tall Young Man on Skis Slid Down From One of the Snow-Covered Side Hills.

Napoleon Edison bent over an outspread plan showing an object of peculiar construction. His companion watched him for a while, then fell asleep. Edison looked at the fat man's nodding head, and turned the light lower, so that it fell only on his blueprints.

He sat studying these lines that ran straight, curved and oblique; they formed a picture that was not intended—the outlines, the details of a serene, strong face—Astra's.

The train shot steadily toward the Golden Gate.

CHAPTER IV.

Europe.

The Zugspitze is the highest peak in Germany, it belongs to the Alps and a panorama can be seen from the perpetually snow-covered summit that is worth while. At the foot of this giant is the town of Partenkirchen, a great place for tourists; but since the isolation of the American continent the number of visitors has diminished somewhat.

One crisp December morning a tall young man on skis slid down from one of the snow-covered side hills of the Zugspitze. He wore an Alpine costume and carried on his back the usual satchel of the mountain climber. The sack evidently was heavy, yet he carried it easily.

The early sportsman stopped for a second or two just about the Tirolean and Bavarian border. After a short meditation, he started forward, and with the agility of a master of the sport slid downward, jumping down steep slopes, and soon landed in the valley. He took a peculiar field glass from his knapsack and directed it toward the great peak, moving it until he found a spot that looked to the unaided eye like a red dot on the mountain side. It was the deserted castle of the great Prince Luitpold, once reigning prince of the kingdom of Bavaria.

When he had focused the glass, he saw a round, ruddy-cheeked man rubbing his hands vigorously.

"It must be somewhat cold there," smiled the sportsman.

He drew a red handkerchief and made some circular movements in the air with the fluttering [illegible], always watching through his glass. Then, with a satisfied expression, he placed the glass and kerchief in their respective places, and started toward the town.

The narrow, winding streets were almost deserted and he used his skis even through the town.

There were several hotels around the square; the Golden Eagle and the Red Star were the most promising looking, and he selected the latter. Unfastening the straps of the skis, he cast them over his shoulder and entered the famous old hotel.

At the sound of the stranger's footsteps in the hall a big, white-aproned man, whose head was covered with a Turkish fez, appeared in the doorway at the end of the hall; in his right hand he held a murderous looking knife and in the left a fork. He greeted the newcomer with great respect; it was surprising to see a guest at this time of the year. The man of the skis leaned his knapsack and the skis against the wall and said, "Guten morgen, Herr Wirth!"

Moving Pictures and Their Origin

What we know as moving pictures originated, it is stated, in a question asked by Sir John Herschel of his friend Charles Babbage. This was in 1826, and the question asked was how both sides of a shilling could be seen at once.

Babbage replied by taking a shilling from his pocket and holding it before a mirror.

This did not satisfy Sir John, who set the shilling spinning on a large table, at the same time pointing out that if the eye is placed on a level with a rotating coin, both sides can be seen at once.

Babbage was so struck by the experiment that the next day he described it to a friend, Dr. Fitton, who immediately made a working model.

On one side of the disc was drawn a bird, on the other side an empty bird cage. When the card was revolved on a silk thread, the bird appeared to be in the cage. This model showed the persistence of vision upon which all moving pictures depend for their effect.

The eye retains the image of the object seen for a fraction of a second after the object has been removed.

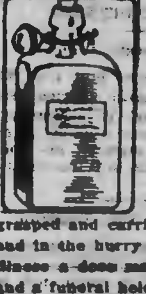
This model was called the thaumatrope.

Next came the zoetrope, or "wheel of life." A cylinder was perforated with a series of slots, and within the cylinder was placed a band of drawings of dancing men. On the apparatus being slowly rotated, the figures seen through the slots appeared to be in motion.

The first systematic photographs of men and animals taken at regular intervals were made by Edward Maybridge in 1877.

POISON WARNING

An Attachment to a Bottle Rings a Bell

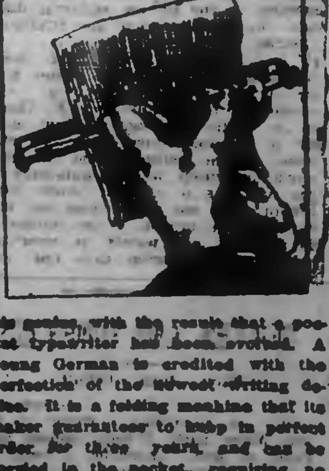


Some time in the still, dark night somebody, the wife, the baby or yourself may get suddenly ill and somebody will hurry to the medicine case, or the pantry shelf, or wherever the medicine bottles are kept. In the darkness a poison bottle may be grasped and carried to the sick room, and in the hurry incidental to sudden illness a dose may be administered—and a funeral held later on! Or there may be medicines that must never be given to children.

Bell bottles—that's by way of warning. Get a number of tiny bells, and fasten a bell to each bottle containing poison or any medicine which may have a serious affect if taken unintentionally. Possibly a good way would be to tie two bells to the poison bottles, to distinguish the very dangerous ones from the others, the taking of which wouldn't be quite so serious. The ringing of the bell will then prevent you from making a fatal mistake.

A Pocket Typewriter

Just as the pen has replaced the sword and the fountain pen displaced the ordinary pen of commerce, so the time is probably approaching when the typewriter will send the fountain pen back to the scrap heap. Some smart and observing person might state that the time is already here, as typewritten letters and manuscript have practically displaced those written by hand. The fountain pen is still being carried in the pocket, however, and it was against this practice that an inventor has recently directed his genius, with the result that a pocket typewriter has been evolved. A young German is credited with the perfection of the newest writing device. It is a folding machine that its maker guarantees to keep in perfect order for three years, and can be carried in the pocket, requiring no more space than the average watch or tape measure, and a foot rule combined. It is provided with a handle by which it is held with one hand and operated with the other, no desk or table being necessary.



Entomologist's Pet.

An unusual "pet" now is harbored in a box at the office of the state entomologist, Charles H. Baldwin, at the state house. The "pet" is a praying mantis, an insect about one and one-half inches long, with a long, thin neck, big head and heavy body. On its front feet are claws, shaped much like those of a crawfish or lobster. The insect has become so tamed that it eats flies and ants from the fingers of Mr. Baldwin's assistants, while sitting on their hands in the position from which it derives its name—praying. The insect sits almost upright and, folding its long front claws up in communicant attitude, remains for several minutes. The insect in general appearance resembles the outline of a horse. It is not poisonous and devours flies and other insects. Many specimens have been found recently in the northern part of Indianapolis. It has many of the habits of a grasshopper.

Women's Ailments Caused By Neglect

Proper Treatment Will Quickly Bring Back Robust Health and Good Spirits.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated; another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted—the nerves suffer and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, no medicine for women can compare with Dr Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly responded to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and the result is as you would expect—pain in the back and side, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the functions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, and finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers 25c per box, five for $1.00 postpaid The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

FORMER LOCAL MAN HURT.

The many friends in this city of Mr. E. J. Toker, former editor of the Review, but now residing in Toronto, will regret to learn that he sustained a severe injury a few days ago. As Mr. Toker was entering a taxi-cab at the Parliament Buildings, he fell and sustained a bad fracture of one arm. He was removed in an ambulance to his residence, 44 Cecil street.

Former Local Man in Trouble.

Mr. Clifford McDonald, formerly of the C.G.E. Co., accidentally ran over and killed a man in Vancouver a few days ago. It is understood that Mr. McDonald is out on $10,000 bail. The incident which occurred at midnight, was purely an accident. Mr. McDonald stopped his car and at once notified the police. Mr. McDonald was very popular here among social and sporting circles.

FORMER LOCAL MAN AUTHOR.

Hamilton Spectator in its description of the reception of the Press Club of that city, by the newspaper men of Brantford, refers to a former member of the Review editorial staff, but now manager of the Brantford Courier, as follows:

"A. Lynch ran across Fred Cheerful Mills, who has found refuge from the turmoil of a large city in the solitudes of Nelsonville. F. Cheerful is to-day writing the first chapter of a book which he will shortly issue, on the decline of the Canadian youth, in which he will elaborate on the opinions of Adolph Lynch Richardson, who can see nothing but blue ruin for the nation, if the youths of the present age persist in reverting back to kindergarten days and soft ball.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Mary Ruth O'Neill.

The last sad tribute of respect was paid on Saturday morning to the late Mary Ruth O'Neill (eldest daughter of Mrs. Catherine O'Neill, 77 Russell street), when her remains were laid to rest in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Mrs. H. Waldon.

The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. H. Waldon of Gore's Landing, after a severe illness of about three months. A husband and seven children survive. The deceased lady was formerly Miss Mary Bates of Peterborough, and has many friends here, who will regret to learn of her death She is a sister of Mr. F. W. Bates, of 654 Stewart street. The funeral takes place at Gore's Landing this (Monday) afternoon.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. EQUINOCTIAL GALES

A Popular Fallacy, According to One Who Has Studied Them

From childhood up we have all heard of equinoctial gales which many appear to fear with alarm. Equinox means, of course, equal day and night, so about the 21st of March when the sun crosses the equator in its northerly course and again on the 21st of September when it recrosses it in its southerly course, we are told by the so-called weatherwise that great gales will occur. We are not informed where, but presumably at least throughout the northern hemisphere —for naturally if the sun in crossing the equator exercises such an influence in one portion of the globe, it must equally do so in all the remaining portions. No reasons are given why the passage of the sun across the equator should occasion such an upheaval of atmospheric pressure, and meteorologists are at a loss to discover that such conditions do exist, however, the statement is made by irresponsible individuals that this is the case and accepted by the great majority of people as a fact.

Figures taken from a carefully prepared table, according to Mr. B. C. Webber, prove conclusively that there is no marked increase in storm energy about the time of the equinox, and that a term of any other six days in any other part of the months of March or September.

TINY TOWN

To-morrow at the Grand Opera House, Tiny Town will unfold its wonders. They are a company of little men and women, averaging only 30 inches high, active, intelligent, charming, and perfectly developed, each one an artist in one way or another. There are nearly twenty and they have gathered from all over Europe. Dainty little women, and lively little men, together with their twelve midget horses and ponies. Their Australian tour commenced in Adelaide, and in the fortnight's season there, over 60,000 saw their entertainment. Broken Hill was visited, and in five nights, 15,000 paid for admission—half the population of the Barrier. These seasons constitute records in these towns. This remarkable combination of midgets presents a unique entertainment. First it gives a unique midget circus performance, with tiny horses and ponies (the smallest ever seen in Australia), a miniature strong man, who carries two full grown men on his chest, wire-walkers, contortionists, acrobats, clowns and marvelous equestrian acts. Then there are the Tiny Town vaudeville entertainers, headed by Havati Hassid, the Turkish Tom Thumb (described as the smallest man in the world), who sings quaint songs in any of the eight languages that he can speak; Miss Hausi, a charming soubrette, 34 inches high; Mdlle. Honka, revolving ball walker; the Hungarian and Tyrolean dancers, and a ten minute pantomime performed by little people all under three feet in height. They can only remain in Peterborough to-morrow, and Wednesday, performances being given each day at 2.30 and 8.

The Midgets are on a world tour, and under six months is allotted for the whole of America.

NEW EVIDENCE IN BINGHAMPTON FIRE

Employe Called Attention to Smell of Burning Hall and Hour Before Fire Started.

Binghamton, N.Y., July 26.—A new trend may be given the enquiry into the cause of the fatal fire in the factory of the Binghamton Clothing Co. by the evidence that will be offered by Mrs. William Whitney, 262 Washington street, one of the employees, who declares she called attention to the unusual heat in the building at 1 o'clock and smelled smoke at 2 o'clock and called the attention of the girls to it. The flames were discovered at 2.30. This would sustain the theory that the fire started in a large number of rags stored in the basement.

The search for the bodies has ended, the last being found outside the ruins beneath a fallen wall, crushed and burned so as to be unrecognizable.

The insurance companies have agreed to pay life policies without demanding identification of fire victims and the Binghamton Clothing Co. announce it will resume work at once.

Arrangements are being completed for the public funeral and interment of the unidentified dead in Springforest Cemetery to-morrow.

All of the injured in the hospital are now expected to live.

ALIMONY CLAIM COVERS 46 YEARS

New York, July 26.— A claim for alimony covering a period of 46 years came to light to-day when attroneys for Mrs. Deborah Van Ness, once wife of Cornelius H. Van Ness a millionaire of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. who died in 1906, made a demand in the supreme court for a bill of particulars to show just what financial settlement Van Ness made upon her at the time of her divorce.

Mrs. Van Ness who is 94, alleges that her former husband agreed to pay her alimony during her life time and that she accrued alimony since her divorce in 1867 now amounts to $30,000. The administrators of the Van Ness estate told that the millionarie settled upon Mrs. Van Ness a lump sum of $10,000 and that she is entitled to no more.

WARS ON DUELLING

Kaiser Seeks to Reduce Number of Encounters in Army

Emperor William is earnestly endeavoring to reduce the number of duels fought by German army officers, according to an announcement made to the committee of the Imperial parliament. His majesty, said the minister, admonished the commanding generals to give their attention to the matter chiefly in the way of improving the training of officers. The emperor followed this up with a rescript to the army calling attention to the number of duels caused by officers insulting their comrades or civilians. This was in the nature of a warning to the officers to strive against such practices. It concluded: "Self-control and restraint must be cultivated as manly virtues."

Know All the Jail Birds

The late Joseph H. Jobbin, turnkey at the Montreal court house was known to every lawyer in the city, and looked upon by the prisoners, of whom he had charge, as their friend. He knew almost every criminal in Montreal and by his familiarity with the criminal world, he was a great help to the police and detectives, as with one glance he could always tell whether the prisoner was "an old hand" or "a first offender." He was a big man, weighing over 300 pounds

THE IDEAL ATHLETE

Plays a Clean Game and Takes Good Care of His Body

Winfield S. Hall gave an address in Winnipeg on "How to Become an Athlete." "The first thing necessary for good athletics," said the lecturer, "is a good framework. A boy who is well put together, keeps his shoulders back and is as straight as an arrow has a great advantage. Then he must have a good heart and to have that he must leave tobacco and cigarettes severely alone. No one ever makes a great success out of athletics who does not play a good clean game. To be perfectly on the square should be the aim of every aspirant to honors in the athletic field. The fellow who is to make good, must not go round with an everlasting grouch. He must be cheerful and be able to smile, even in the face of defeat."

Continuing Dr. Hall pointed out that more important than all these was to live a clean life. They were to take good care of their bodies and not destroy their vitality by carelessness. Summing up the necessary characteristics for a good athlete, Dr. Hall said he should live a strenuous, clean, chivalrous life. He would introduce a new golden rule for society namely "To treat the other fellow's sister in the same way as you want the other fellow to treat your sister."

HON. ADAM BECK

Hon. Adam Beck's father, a German, founded the town of Baden, Waterloo county, Ontario, and Adam Beck was born there on June 20, 1857. A German-Canadian, Mr. Beck can think for himself, and, in the instance of the Hydro-electric Power System, he has thought for a million or two other people—Ontario. He was educated at Rockwood Academy and Tassie's Grammar School, Galt. He has been a busy bee in the human hive. A manufacturer of veneering and thin lumber and cigar boxes, he has factories in London, Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg. That the busiest man always has the most time to do things is exemplified in Mr. Beck. He is a keen business man, his interest in Niagara power is a household fact, but he is more: He is a leading spirit in the battle against the white plague, tuberculosis, is a member of well known social clubs, and as a horseman he is as well known in New York and London as in Toronto. Both Mr. and Mrs. Beck have won trophies in the saddle. Besides Mrs. Beck is a fine vocalist.

THE BRITISH CANADIAN BRICK AND COAL COMPANY, LTD.

Incorporated under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act.
NO PERSONAL LIABILITY

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL - $500,000.

Consisting of

$200.000. 7 Per Cent Preferred at $10.00 Per Share, with Bonus of 25 per cent Common. $300.000 Common at $10.00 per share

DIRECTORS:

J. S. DOUGLAS, Merchant, Winnipeg.
W. F, TALLMAN, Street Commissioner, Winnipeg.
A. B. WOOLDRIDGE, Gentleman, Winnipeg.
D. W. McKERCHAR, Barrister, Winnipeg.
V. A. TALBOT, Real Estate Broker, Winnipeg.

The above Company has purchased from the Excelsior Coal and Brick Co., Ltd., their whole plant as a going concern, the purchase price to be taken in shares of the new Company, and it is the intention of the Directors to equip the plant to make it one of the largest in the West.

The plant is situated in that rich tract of mineral producing country surrounding Estevan, and is near the town. It comprises 640 acres of the best clay and coal to be found anywhere.

The shaft of the coal mine has been sunk to a depth of seventy feet to reach a seam of the best lignite coal, and there are enough entries and passages to enable an output, at slight expense, of 200 tons of coal per day. Other mines in the district are producing less and making considerable profit. A conservative estimate of the profit on each ton is $1.00, but from Government borings near the property it has been shown that there is a seam of coal 650 feet from the surface which is similar to the Lethbridge coal, and which could be sold f.o.b. the mine for at least $5.00 per ton, netting the Company $3.50 per ton. It is to reach this seam and further equip the brick plant that the issue of stock has been made.

There is a constant and ever-increasing demand for brick. At the present moment the price for common brick all over the West is from $12.50—$13.00 per thousand. The clay on our property is of the finest, and makes a brick second to none. We can make bricks for about $4.00 per thousand, so that the profit on the product is considerable. It is the intention of the Company to increase the present brick plant to allow of an output of from 75,000—100,000 common bricks per day, and at least 25,000 pressed bricks, which retail at $25.00 per thousand and cost about $7.00 to produce.

Under the coal there is a strata of fireclay, which is extremely scarce in Canada, and commands a high price. It is intended to instal a machine for the making of fire brick, which is being almost entirely brought from the United States and Scotland; also to manufacture sewer pipes and hollow tiles. Firebrick and hollow tiles command the high price of $40.00 per thousand, and we can make them for less than $8.00.

Coal and brick run in conjunction is probably the finest profit-making combination known. It has been proven over and over again that with competent management such a proposition is a success from the first.

The Directors have insured the success of the new Company by engaging the services of one of the most expert brick men in the West, who will supervise the laying out and working of the new plant.

It is with unbounded faith in the future of this western country that the Directors have decided on offering to the public a share in its development and wealth. The man who invests in this proposition makes a two-fold investment. He invests and aids in the development of his country, and at the same time puts his capital to profitable use.

Birds That Hold Courts

Ravens, starlings and crows are believed to hold courts of justice to mete out punishment to offenders. Sometimes they assemble in great numbers, as if they would give great dignity to the occasion. The trial sometimes apparently endures for many days. Some birds sit at the conclave with lowered heads, some merely cock their heads on the branches and look grave, while others are most garrulous and fill the air with their complaints.

Naturalists studying these strange proceedings have seen an apparently selected number of birds fall upon one or more of their number at the close of the "trial" and put them to death, after which they dispersed in orderly fashion and went back quietly to their nests.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for Dredging, Little Current," will be received until 4.00 P. M., on Tuesday, August 12, 1913, for dredging required at Little Current, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. (5 per cent) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

An End To The Curse of Wearing Worthless Trusses

No More Rupture Troubles
60 Days Trial
To Prove It

You Don't Have to Risk a Penny.

Here it something absolutely guaranteed to keep your rupture from coming out.

And you can try it sixty days—make a thorough prove-it-to-you test—without having to risk a penny.

If it doesn't hold—if it doesn't keep your rupture from bothering you in any way—then it won't cost you a single cent.

The Only Thing Good Enough To Stand Such a Test.

You know as well as we that you can't tell anything about a truss or anything else for rupture merely by trying it on. That's the worst of going to a drugstore or local truss fitter's.

A truss or so-called "appliance" may seem alright when you first put it on, and afterwards prove utterly worthless.

The only way in the world you can make sure of exactly what you're getting is by a day-after-day test.

And our guaranteed rupture holder — the famous Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss —is the only thing of any kind whatever for rupture that you can get on sixty days trial, the only thing good enough to stand such a long and thorough test.

Something Nothing Else Does.

The Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss is so utterly different from anything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents.

It provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does that—entirely automatically—is all explained in the free book.

Will Save You From Operation.

The Cluthe Truss has so thoroughly proved its merits that physicians in all parts of the world and surgeons in the U.S. Army and Navy now recommend it instead of advising operation. It has brought complete recovery in hundreds of cases after operation has proved a failure.

No Belt Or Leg Straps to Annoy You.

That's why people who try this truss say it is as comfortable as their clothing. It is water-proof—will hold in the bath. Easily kept clean.

Get World's Greatest Rupture Book.

Don't send any money—just write for our free book and find out everything you want to know.

Full of facts never before put in print. Cloth-bound—[illegible] pages—[illegible] separate articles and [illegible] photographic illustrations. Will save you from being fooled and save you from wasting money.

Explains why elastic and spring trusses are a wicked crime—why they are the ruptured man's worst enemy—why the law should stop their sale.

Exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc.

Shows why operation is often a needless gamble with death, and why, if a man manages to get well from the operation, he often has to keep on wearing a truss.

And it tells all about the Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss and how you can try it sixty days and how little it costs if you keep it.

Gives endorsements of over [illegible] people.

Better write for the book to-day—it tells things you could never find out by going to doctors or drugstores. Simply use the coupon or say in a letter or postal "Send me the book."

SPEECHES TINCTURED BY A CAUTIOUS STRAIN AT OTTAWA

Orators at Function to Empire Parliamentarians Pleased All Hearers

Ottawa, July 28.—In spite of the fact that there were Conservatives and Liberals, Labor men and capitalists, Imperialists and anti-Imperialists and representatives of even other political factions present, the dinner tendered by the Government to the Empire Parliamentary Association here Saturday night was considered a marked success. The Imperialists present considered it a gain for Imperialism, quoting the various speakers to show that Lord Emmott, Mr. Stuart-Wortley and Mr. Lough, all agreed with the Imperialists point of view. On the other hand even the anti-Imperialists present claimed to have found comfort in the speech-making. Those who were on neither one side or the other were enthusiastic in their praise of the tact and discretion which had characterized the whole proceedings.

Nothing New.

Analyzed, however, the speeches contained nothing new, according to hardened listeners who were present. They pointed out that Lord Emmott had merely clothed in extraordinary courteous and graceful dress, a non-committal statement to the effect that England trusted us and did not want to advise us in the matter of our duty to the Empire.

Hon. Geo. Perley as host in the place of Hon. Mr. Borden, who was unable to be present, named the toasts.

Hon. Sydney Fisher spoke on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was unable to be present owing to illness.

Hon C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, made appropriate remarks.

Mr. Stuart-Wortley and Hon. Thos. Lough, though not of the same political school as Lord Emmott, contributed equally satisfactory, but non-partisan addresses.

The dinner was broken up early.

Time to Sit Up and Notice

The Montreal Star is very severe on the religious intolerance of Montreal. There has been going on for some time a concerted movement in that city to destroy religious freedom. It has apparently been winked at by the police, but even that game is getting dangerous now. It shows what would happen in this country if certain people had their way. It is certainly a very bold thing for a band of men to set themselves to work in the chief city of Canada, to weed out open air religious meetings. The Adventists are about the quietest and least offensive of all the spouters.

Pall Mall Gazette Discredits Report That They Will Go to Australia--Also United States

London, July 28.—A report from Australia that the King and Queen Mary were to lay the foundation stone of the Australian Commonwealth Parliament House at Canberra next year is discredited to-day by the Pall Mall Gazette, which declares that Canada is to be the next British Dominion visited by their Majesties, and adds:

"They take for granted that, while so near the United States, they will cross the border, and it is thought probable that they may pay a brief visit to Washington and perhaps, to New York.

RIFLE RANGES PUBLIC MENACE

It is Said That Tragedy is Likely Unless Signalling System is Improved

The attention of The Times is called to the danger which has been created by the erection of the new rifle ranges in Otonabee, east of the city. If what Mr. Sargent and others say is true, no time should be lost in adopting some safeguards, or a tragedy may occur that will be regrettable. The following letter tells its own story:

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In last Monday's Review and also in The Examiner, complaints were published regarding the new rifle range, where they were shooting across a public road, without any sentry to warn persons driving on the highway, and much inconvenience was experienced. Lieut.-Col. Clegg gave an explanation of the trouble. He said some system of road signals will have to be devised to meet the situation. He was interviewed last Saturday by a resident of this neighborhood, and after a lengthy talk with him about the grievance he got this much satisfaction: "Take off your hat and wave it, and shout; and when the shooters see it they will cease firing."

The public will see what an up-to-date signal system he has studied out. The shooting Thursday afternoon of last week was still more dangerous to persons driving on the road. I left my home to drive to the city that afternoon. When I came to the danger line on the south side of the ranges, there was no sentry there.

Mr. S. R. Price, who lives near by, came with me, and we drove as far as we thought it safe to go and endeavored to find some way to get through. After waiting some time a sentry appeared upon the road at the danger line, north of the ranges, and went through all the gestures of a railroad man. We thought we got the signal to drive on, but when prepared to advance we were held up by shooting. The sentry then tried the Lieut.-Colonel's bright idea, and got a white cloth in his hand and commenced revolving it in the air (and perhaps doing the shouting). We decided this was our signal to drive on but was again held up by firing. We were forced to remain where we were until the sentry came close enough to us to assure us of safety in passing. Had a stranger been driving the road that day and not knowing the danger he doubtless would have excepted some of those signals and drove on and perhaps met death.

I would like to correct Lieut.-Col. Clegg's statements regarding the road. He says this a little crossroad. He says this is a little cross-farm in the neighborhood. Let me say it is a public road—the tenth concession line of Otonabee, and is constantly used by a number of persons not residing in the neighbor-

Now, Mr. Editor, these are facts which I am prepared to prove. Will this reckless playing with danger continue until some person is killed, or will the military authorities stop all shooting at the ranges until a proper signal system is installed?

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper.

Thos. E. Sargent.

Otonabee, July 25th.

A HOME RECIPE FOR REMOVING WRINKLES

(From Woman's National Journal)

Who will blame the modern woman for trying to look as young and attractive as she reasonably can? Why should she be placed at a disadvantage in numerous ways by wearing wrinkles, if she can avoid these hateful marks of advancing age?

Few woman, however, know what to do to effectually rid themselves of wrinkles or sagginess. None of the advertised preparations is satisfactory and most of them are very expensive. But a very simple and harmless home remedy, which any woman can make, will work wonders where all the patent preparations fail.

Buy an ounce of powdered saxolite at any drug store. Dissolve the whole ounce in a half pint of witch hazel and use it as a wash lotion. The results are practically instantaneous. Marked improvement is noticed immediately after the very first trial. Wrinkles and sagging are corrected and the face feels so refreshed and smug-like.

JOHN CAMPBELL SIX MONTHS FOR FORGERY

Alexander Coulter, alias Jack O'Brien, alias John Campbell, was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison by His Honour Judge Huycke yesterday morning for forgery.

Coulter, who gave his name as John Campbell, came to this city a few weeks ago from Toronto. The first day in town he went to the Kingan Hardware store and purchased a few dollars' worth of tools. In payment he gave acheque made out by one Jas. McIntosh to John McDonald. The cheque, which was for $7.50 was accepted and the change handed to Coulter. Later the cheque was refused by the Bank of Commerce, as McIntosh had no account in that Bank.

Yesterday morning undefended by counsel, Coulter made a strong plea for leniency. He reminded the Judge that he was drunk when he committed the crime and said as far as he was concerned the whole thing was a blank to his mind. He was a mason by trade and had a wife and three children to support. He promised never to touch liquor again.

Then Judge Huycke imposed the sentence, six months in the Central prison. In announcing sentence His Honor remarked that greater leniency was impossible on account of Campbell's record.

DIED SUDDENLY IN ENNISMORE

Awfully Sad Death of a Well Known Young Man of Peterborough

Those of our citizens who were awake at midnight yesterday and heard the sad intelligence, were shocked to hear the sad news that Mr. John Belcher, only son of Mr. John A. Belcher, had dropped dead suddenly near Telford's farm in Ennismore.

It seems that the young man drove out to the family's summer cottage at Oak Orchard, near Gannon's Narrows, yesterday morning in one of Akey's livery rigs. He started to walk, yesterday evening to the city and suddenly expired at the spot designated above. Comstock's undertaking rig was sent out to prepare for the funeral.

The young man was unmarried, and leaves to mourn his death his parents and two sisters. The whole community, this morning will extend heartfelt sympathy to Mr. John Belcher, Peterborough's veteran architect.

RELIGIOUS RIOTS IN MONTREAL

French Mob Refuses to Allow Religious Meeting to Take Place

Montreal, July 28th.—The religious riots in the north end are creating considerable excitement. Chief Campbell, who was summoned to the Mayor's office, said: "We cannot have this sort of thing going on in the city," he said. "If the Adventists hold meetings they are as much entitled to protection as anybody else; and the police have been notified that they must give it.

"If the Adventists propose to hold another meeting, however, I think they should notify the police, particularly after an interval without meetings."

It is stated that the disturbance is made by an organized crowd of roughs who have banded themselves together just for that purpose.

"We are not going to stand for that sort of thing in the city," Mr. Godfrey emphatically repeated. "We must have order preserved and we intend to preserve it."

FAMILY OF FOUR FOUND SHOT, EVIDENCES OF FIERCE FIGHT

Rumsey, Alberta, Family Victims of Winchester Shot Gun--Evidence of Awful Struggle Against Death in Prosperous Farmer's Home on Prairie

Rumsey, Alta., July 28.—At noon Sunday, George Robinson, a prosperous farmer of the Rumsey district, was found lying in his own home with the top of his head blown completely off.

Across his body was a Winchester shotgun. Opposite him on the floor was the body of his wife, shot through the right breast, her face bruised and beaten almost beyond recognition.

In the kitchen the twelve year old son of the couple was found shot to death, while on the bed in a rear bedroom was the body of their three year old daughter, her head blown completely off.

Three empty shells were found on the floor of the house and a fourth in the gun. The furniture was overturned, and there was evidence of a fierce fight found in every room.

THREE LONDON MEN INJURED WHEN AUTO TURTLES TWICE

One is Pinned Under Car, Which Fell Down Embankment --Steering Gear Goes Wrong

Bowood, Ont., July 28.—W. W. Gammage, florist, was badly hurt, and Harry Coleman and C. Fraser, all of London, were injured when an auto in which they were going to Grand Bend to spend Sunday went over the embankment at Bowood, and turned over twice before it reached the bottom.

Mr. Gammage, who was driving had several ribs broken, and was badly crushed by being pinned under the car. Messrs. Coleman and Fraser were hurled out and badly shaken up. The accident was caused by the steering gear going wrong. All will it is expected, recover.

MR. GRAHAM STUCK BUT NOT STRUCK

Ex-Alderman Graham was stuck but fortunately not struck by the terrible lightning of Sunday night. It seems that Mr. Graham was spending the afternoon and evening with friends in Ennismore. He says that he never before saw such terrible forked lightning. Mr. Graham wanted to hook up his horse and drive home during the evening's electrical display. His friends, however, would not permit the risk. It was 4 a.m., before the fireworks were over and he could leave. Jimmy, who arrived in town shortly after 5 o'clock says the darkness at night was as opaque as the side of a battleship.

UP GOES COAL AUG 1st

So Say Dealers, But Say They Do Not Know New Price Yet.

Toronto, July 28.—The summer prices on coal cease August 1. All householders who wish to procure their next winter's supply at $7.50 a ton must take action soon. "We will not guarantee that the price will remain the same as it has been after August 1," say the coal dealers.

All that is necessary, is the price be paid before next Friday, the coal man will deliver at any time the purchaser desires. No matter how high the price soars in the winter, the man who has ordered and paid for his coal now will have it delivered to him at the summer price.

PROMINENT CITIZEN MAY SETTLE IN CITY

Mr. T. J. Nicholl, of Rochester, N. Y., who was accompanied bt his wife was here at the National Hotel, and has left for Europe. Mr. Nicholl is now deciding where to locate on his return from his European trip. As a man who has made more than good in the United States, but who has never foresworn his allegiance to the grand old Union Jack, on his return from his European trip is undecided whether to locate in Toronto or Peterborough. The betting, however, is a dollar to a cancelled postage stamp that he locates here.

BRITISH PARLIAMENTARIANS WALKED TO TORONTO HOTEL

Showed Characteristically English Willingness to Walk Instead of Using Autos--Could Not Visit Niagara, and Left for Port McNicoll This Afternoon

Toronto, July 28.—A little tired from their first night's railway journey in Canada, the Empire Parliamentary Association arrived at the Union Station this morning from Ottawa, en route to Port McNicholl, where they sail this afternoon for Port Arthur and Vancouver. Controller Thomas Church, representing the city, was waiting on the cold dank platform of the depot long before the train drew in. He met the party and invited them to motor to the King Edward where rooms had been reserved for them and breakfast prepared. But the party elected to let the motors go empty for the time being, and walked to the King Edward.

"We want to see as much as possible of your city in the short time we have at our disposal here," said Lord Emmott, "and we need the fresh air."

Automobile Tour of City.

Shortly after nine o'clock the entire party went out in motors provided by the city and were driven to the principal points of interest. On the way an informal reception was held at the Parliament Buildings.

"What a pretty city!" exclaimed Lady Emmott as the party was driving through one of the better known residential sections. "What charming houses and what exquisite little lawns."

"It is such a shame that we have not more time here," exclaimed another member of the party. "You see we have to catch the boat at Vancouver and are therefore limited in time. But we especially wanted to see Toronto and Niagara Falls. Unfortunately our itinerary has been so arranged that we cannot do this. We have only these few hours in Toronto and cannot see the Falls at all."

REAL MORMON TEMPLE IS DEDICATED IN CANADA NOW

First Occasion of its Kind Outside of United States--President Smith in Address Tells His Admiration For British Government Law and Justice

Lethbridge, Alta., July 28.—The site for the first Mormon Temple to be built outside the United States was dedicated Sunday at Cardston by some of the leading men of the church of Utah.

The main theme of President Smith's address during the day was the assurance to the world that nothing would be carried on in the Temple that would be contrary to the law of the land.

He also strongly emphasized the excellence of British institutions, British Government, British law and British justice.

He especially mentioned in this connection the strict and desirable observance of the Sabbath noted in Canada, in comparison with the laxity prevalent on the other side of the International boundary.

FORMER LOCAL MAN NOW FOXY GRANDPA

Mr. Geo. T. Rickerbyi an old Peterborough boy, who is now practising law in Flint, Mich., has been in the city for a few days and leaves this morning for his adopted home. Whilst in the city Mr. Rickerby told The Times a little story of law, as she is practised in the U.S.

A week ago a client called at Mr. Rickerby's office and after telling his story, asked "How much will my case cost?" Mr. Rickerby replied: "$100." The client said, "why I could get advice cheaper than that." Mr. Rickerby, recalling the name of an attorney, a friend of his, replied, "You go to Mr.——, who may take up your case for $50." The man went. In the meantime the telephone was busy. The client went into the other office, stated his case and asked "how much?" $150. Why Mr. Rickerby said he would take it for $100." "Why," replied lawyer No. 2. "That cheap skate is cutting prices. However, my charge is $150 and any other lawyer in Flint, except Richerby would charge you $250." The $150 was paid and Mr. Rickerby and his friend met in a cafe two hours later and split.

"GOOD" SWIMMER SINKS LIKE STONE

Winnipeg, July 28.—Although reported to be a good swimmer, Jas. Allworth sank like a stone in the Red River at 8.45 o'clock last night when his canoe, attached by a rope to a rowboat was overturned in midstream by the wash from a motor boat. Friends in the rowboat were unable to effect a rescue.

BASEBALL

The Petes were defeated yesterday at London before a large crowd. The boys worked hard and played good ball, but the jinx was roosting on their bench and the game went to London by the score of 8—3.

A feature of the Printers' Picnic on Saturday will be the baseball match between the Quaker Oats and Typos teams. This promises to be a first-class game, and will only be one of the many events which will be pulled off by the Printers on their excursion down the river on Saturday afternoon. Boat leaves George street wharf at 1.30.

MEXICANS SHOOT AMERICAN OFFICER

Inspector Dixon of Immigration Staff Was After White Slaver

Washington, July 28.—With the shooting of Inspector Dixon, of the United States Immigration staff at El Paso, by Mexican Federal troops at Juarez, Mexico, international complications are feared. The tension is growing between Mexico and its northern neighbor.

Inspector Dixon had gone across the river to Juarez upon orders from his chief to investigate a white slave case for the United States Government. While he was talking with a negro, a squad of drunken soldiers from the Juarez barracks arrested him and started towards the foothills south of the town. Dixon fearing that the men were going to attempt his execution because they thought him a United States officer, started to run down an alley on the outskirts of the town. The soldiers permitted him to run for a short distance, when they opened fire on him, shooting him through the back.

Tickets for the Printers Picnic are now on sale, and may be had of any printer. Get one and have a good day's fun.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 35c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 35c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 356 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

☞ NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got The New Method Treatment. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

HENRY C. LOCUST.

HAS YOUR BLOOD BEEN DISEASED?

BLOOD POISONS are the most prevalent and most serious diseases. They sap the very life blood of the victim and unless entirely eradicated from the system will cause serious complications. Beware of Mercury. It may suppress the symptoms—our NEW METHOD cures all blood diseases.

YOUNG OR MIDDLE AGED MEN.—Imprudent acts or later excesses have broken down your system. You feel the symptoms stealing over you. Mentally, physically and vitally you are not the man you used to be or should be. Will you heed the danger signals?

READER Are you a victim? Have you lost hope? Are you intending to marry? Has your blood been diseased? Have you any weakness? Our New Method Treatment will cure you. FOX RANCHING

Industry Not Lucrative, But Animals Bred to Perfection

Breeding and rearing foxes for their fur is an industry still carried on in Alaska. It was also tried a few years ago on the Maine coast, but with little success. An island was selected for the purpose two or three miles from the shore, far enough away so that the foxes could not escape by swimming to the shore. But in a cold winter the water froze, and the ice made a bridge from the island to the main land. It is said by Agnes Herbert, in her book, "Two Dianas in Alaska," that the foxes travelled over this, and that they did not stop when they had reached the farther edge.

In Alaska the ranchers have not this risk of ice. On the North Semidi the first fox ranch was established with the idea of making a great industry of raising blue foxes to supply the fur markets of the world. Nobody has made a fortune out of it, but the foxes can be reared to great perfection. The animals are killed between November and January.

The blue fox living wild is now exceedingly rare in Alaska, but the islands set apart for the raising of them in domesticity are numerous. The only thing requisite is that the island be two miles distant from any other land. This is to guard against the foxes swimming away.

Some of the islands have as many as 1,000 head. The food provided is meal and fish, mixed together, and given once a day. The beautiful creatures get to know the hand that feeds them, not dreaming that some day it will turn and rend them. It takes about nine months for the cubs to grow to maturity, and the litters usually number from six to eight.

One or two islands go in for propagating the silver-grey fox, whose pelt is worth much more than that of the blue.

Isles of the Blest

Between the island of Madagascar and the coast of India there are 16,000 islands, only 600 of which are inhabited. In most of these islands a man can live and support his family in luxury without working more than twenty-five days in the year, or at all, as nature provides the food and no clothes are required.

Holland's Waterways

Holland has 2,000 miles of canals in addition to 3,000 miles of other navigable waterways.

New Motorcycle

One of the newer motorcycles has a single seat which will carry two riders side by side.

CLEAN OFF GLOBE AND START ANEW

Great Astronomer Thinks It Would be Justifiable—He Compares Mankind With Beings on Mars

"An outraged deity could wipe us off the surface of this earth, as a man cleans a dirty golf ball, and the universe wouldn't miss us, and I'm pretty sure it would be a good thing anyway to clean off all the life and all the institutions that human beings have created here and start the whole thing over again!"

This is what Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer—the most notable star gazer in all the world—thinks of this old world of ours..

"It was an astonishing picture the great Flammarion drew for his interviewer—the earth whirling, uninhabited, through space, as it did before man came; the winds blowing, but no living thing feeling them; then life stirring again, as it did before, probably as protoplasm; then, after hundreds of thousands or millions of years, man developing again to be the same that man is to-day, with all the evil things that Flammarion says he possesses? Perhaps, it is suggested, the new man might be more like the beings on Mars.

"I have reason to believe," Flammarion said, "that the beings who inhabit Mars are so far ahead of us in development that we could not understand their thoughts and principles any more than an ant or a bee or a dog can understand ours! It is possible that, for the past 10,000 years, the inhabitants of Mars have been trying to communicate with us and that their messages are reaching us, even now, by wireless, and that we are unable to understand or recognize them!

"The day will surely come when we shall talk with Mars! There is no doubt of that. But I'm afraid that, even if we could talk with Mars now, we wouldn't be able to grasp the thoughts of its inhabitants! We don't know enough. Why, we've had the wireless only for a few years. Even now we don't know its limitations. The telescope is only 300 years old with us and we haven't developed it to its full possibilities. I believe the people on Mars know a great deal about us, a great deal more than we know about them. Their civilization is perhaps 100,000 years or more ahead of ours!"

"Do you believe that God has anything to do with the progress of mankind?" was asked.

"You may call it god if you wish but you are only naming the unknown power that placed this little atom, the earth, here in space among the millions of bigger atoms that we call planets. This power is all the God I know, and I don't even know that power. All I know is that space is here and that the planets and solar systems whirl in this space. As for our personal, individual selves, what do we count for? We are the tiniest atoms on this little speck which we call the earth. There are other globes, sailing through space, that would carry our earth on their sides like a football might carry a grain of sand!

"What egotists we are to believe that our little fleck is the only one on which intelligent beings dwell! Why would the power that started this great system moving, select our tiny ball for developing life in its highest and most intelligent form? Out of the millions of other balls, why should this power select ours? A bushel basket full of tiny peas, and we say that this pea, which we call earth, is the one that God chose upon which to exert His mightiest efforts! It is preposterous!"

ANOTHER CONSUMPTION CURE

Still another consumption cure has been announced. It would be interesting to count would be interesting to count how many scientists from the days of Koch down to Friedmann have trumpeted forth the discovery that they had found the serum conqueror of the tuberculosis plague.

Friedmann has gone back to Germany, a discredited man. In Berlin, the other day, only one doctor in a large group of scientists had a kind word to say of him. His spectacular visit to America and his sudden world-wide fame, and the subsequent repudiation of him by a multitude of doctors who observed his experiments invite a comparison of his meteoric career with that of the celebrated Dr. Cook, of polar disrepute. To many, Oriedmann and Cook are in the same class.

How to Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look in Symptoms of This Treacherous Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrh germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit last two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c, sample size, 25c, at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catrrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

The Lancet, the leading publication of Great Britain, a very conservative journal, has just assured the world that another German doctor, Mehuarto, of Meidelberg, has discovered a consumption cure called by him "contra-toxin." It is hard to follow the technical jargon in which Dr. Mehuarto describes the properties of his serum and its action on the blood, but one fact emerges which shows that Dr. Ftiedmann was perhaps working in the right direction. The discoverer of the latest supposed cure has also been using reptilian plasmas in manufacturing a bacteriolytic serum.

Friedmann used turtle plasma, but he did not succeed in quelling the tubercular germ. He rushed into the limelight too soon. Dr. Mehuarto had his serum made long before Friedmann achieved notoriety, but he is modestly leaving the testing experiments in the hands of medical exuerts in London. In thus adopting the quiet, professional course, he has been well advised, and the waiting world will have more confidence in him than if he had started out with a Cook-Friedmann flourish.

FIRE INSURANCE ON SCHOOLS

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In the Morning Times of the 25th inst., there is an importance reference made to the fire insurance on schools in this city. In the city of Toronto, a short time ago, an insurance man was a member of the School Board, and by virtue of his authority he compelled every teacher within his reach to insure in his company. This abuse of power became intolerable. An investigation was held, and the grafting member of the School Boatd was sacked.

The suggestion of The Times is highly commendable and will be appreciated by every honest man.

McNEILL EPIGRAMS

Originality and Wit in These Characteristic Sentences

Here are some characteristic passages from a sermon by Rev. John McNeill, Cooke's Church, Toronto:

The church itself saves no one, the church needs to be saved.

If you want to sleep well at night, be busy during the day.

We are strange beings, and the man who says he isn't, doesn't know him self.

If a man thinks he is strong enough to stand alone, well and good—but he's an awful fool—an awful fool.

The Lord is worth a shout every once in a while. If you don't shout, some one else will.

Slack off your speed, take things easier—don't crowd God out of your life.

There's an old saying that "care kills cats." I don't care how many cats care kills, because I don't like cats—but it kills Christians.

Some people are thankful they were born in Christian land, because idolatry would break their little hearts with expense.

The way some people sing the psalms of David is enough to make him return to earth and take them back.

Always try and have some money in the bank. But you need a little ready cash in your pocket for daily use. So, have some religion for everyday use.

Hindus bring chickens and rice to their idols. You Christians couldn't buy much chicken and rice for a five cent collection contribution. Idolatry costs something.

I have no objection to the eight hour day. But think of the women. If they were to strike for an eight hour day it would be the last strike the world would see.

There are here women with furrows and marks of age, and signs of its concealment, too, and at seventy your mothers had a cheek like a dairy maid, and a bigger family than some of you will ever have.

Of course, we Presbyterians don't shout—that's why the Lord sent the Methodists, and then because He wasn't satisfied, He brought along the Salvation Army.

Fire won't burn you, water won't drown you, death won't kill you, and sin can't damn you if you fix your eyes upon God and the Saviour. And cling to Him like a baby to the breast, or a leech to the wound.

The question about a workingman is not whether he has his coat on or off. There is many a slouch and loafer with his coat off. Some men expend more energy in taking off their coats than they do in the next three hours' work.

POPE PIUS X.

His Holiness, Pope Pius X., known as "The Pope of the Poor," was born Joseph Sarto at Riese, near Venice, on June 2, 1835. He was the child of poor parents, but he was destined to fill the most exalted position in the Roman Catholic Church. Talent displayed at an early age and developed to an extraordinary degree, deep piety, broad human sympathy and tireless energy brought about his marvellous success. Until he was 31 he was a country curate. In 1867 he was appointed parish priest of Salzano, and later suffragan. 1882 he passed to the diocese of Mantua, where for two years he was rector of the Seminary. In 1884 Pope Leo XIII. appointed him Bishop of Mantua. On June 12, 1893, he was created a Cardinal and three days later he became Patriarch of Venice. When he left Venice in 1903 to attend the Conclave called to elect a successor to Pope Leo the faithful in "the pearl of the Adriatic" hailed him as the next Pope. He remonstrated with them, saying that such an event was beyond the range of possibilities. But the seemingly impossible happened and he was elected Pontiff, much against his wishes, however. He took the floor and entreated his fellow-cardinals to desist from the idea of electing him, and he tried to show them that he was absolutely unfitted for the office. But his words had an effect other than that which he intended they should have.

Ten Days' Speech

The longest speech ever made in a British court of law was that concluded by Sir John Simon, the Solicitor-General, after he had addressed the Railway Commissioners in the telephone arbitration proceedings for nearly ten days.

"Tweed" Cloth

The word "tweed," as applied to cloth, really means "twilled," and has nothing to do with the River Tweed, although much Scotch tweed is made in the basin of that river.

Westminster clock is regulated by electric machinery from Greenwich, and has a special contrivance for making the first blow of the hour strike exactly at the right time.

Army of Dressmakers

In the United Kingdom, where there are no fewer than 616,000 women dressmakers, there are more women workers in proportion to population than in any other country in the world.

NOW MAKING GOOD

Young Englishman Who Wrote Poetry in Prison Justifies His Release

"John Carter," the young English convict who was released from the Minnesota State prison about three years ago because his ability as a poet had won the friendship of influential men, is said to have fully justified the confidence reposed in him and has "made good" in the world beyond the prison walls. Carter is not the real name of the young man who became an international figure because of the appeal made in his behalf by Robert Underwood Johnson, editor of the Century, and others distinguished in the world of letters. He was born in England, of good family, about twenty-seven years ago. At the age of nineteen he went to Canada, and made his way to Winnipeg. Inexperienced and frail, he was unable to obtain employment. It was while attempting to beat his way from Winnipeg to St. Paul that he was put off a train at Karlstad, Minn. Cold and almost starved, he broke into the railroad station and stole $24 and a watch. He was sentenced to prison for ten years, and there, "to kill time and ease my unhappy thoughts," he began writing poems that won the admiration and praise of Mr. Johnson and other editors. Through their influence he was released from prison on his twenty-fourth birthday, and began life anew under more favorable circumstances.

THE PEOPLE OF MARS

Plenty of Evidence That They are Highly Intelligent and Build Canals to Preserve Race

In 1877 the Italian astronomer, Schiaparelli announced that he had detected on the surface of the planet Mars an intricate series of lines which he believed to be canals. Their existence was not universally admitted and it was strongly contended that they were of optical production. Public attention and interest were greatly aroused when Professor Percival Lowell, director of the Flagstaff Conservatory in Arizona issued a bulletin containing photographs of the ruddy planet which he claimed as corroborating the objective existence of the canals and further insisted that it was the abode of a race of reasonable beings. Since then there has been considerable controversy about the canals and in an effort to arrive at a final decision investigations are started on an elaborate scale at Flagstaff under the direction of astronomers and astro-physicists who employed all the most recent methods of research. Dr. James H. Worthington in an article published in an English scientific journal declares "that the explorers of the planet from the standpoint of Flagstaff find abundant reason to believe in the existence of a highly developed and intelligent race, making a last stand against the increasing deserts of its world. The famous canals are evidence of tremendous and united efforts to eke out the decreasing water supply to the last drop. In this struggle we see in some sense a forecast of what the earth must also become in the fulness of time." This conclusion is supported in the article by a description of the observations and by much technical reasoning. Dr. Worthington insists that there remains no rational doubt of the existence of a race of canal-builders on the planet Mars.

For Further Development Work in the Manitoba Gold Fields

The pioneer work in this mine has all been done. The purpose of the present issue is to provide further funds for the complete opening to a depth of 200 feet of the 8-foot rock quartz vein now exposed, prior to the establishment of a refining mill on the property.

Independence quartz down to 60 feet level now exposed assays from $15 to $80 and more per ton. This ore can be milled and refined for $6 per ton. Reports on this property and the Rice Lake Gold Fields are unanimously and highly favorable.

We believe these shares at the price are the most attractive speculative investment to be found in the mining world to-day.

GOLF

London, July 28.—Long-distance golfing has become something of a fad in England. Two golfers recently understood to play from Maidstone to Littlestone-on-Sea, a distance of about 35 miles, in 2,000 strokes. They succeeded in doing it in 1087 strokes. In a similar contest, with a bet as an incentive, Melville Foster and W. Harmon undertook to cover the eight miles of Woodland, heather and several steep hills, from Forest Road to Crowborough, in 350 strokes. They succeeded in 184 strokes, without losing a single ball.

BASEBALL.

Montreal, July 28.—While President Barrow hints that Montreal's International League franchise may be disposed of to some other city better located geographically, President Lichtenstein of the Montreal Club said today that he had received no offers for the Montreal franchise, except from people who had no money, and announced that he was going to stick until he got a winner. "We have spent more money for players this season than any other club in the league, but luck was against us. I have never failed in anything else, except baseball, and will succeed before I quit," he declared.

President Barrow said the Montreal owners had the money to meet all obligations, but the objection came from the other clubs which lost money every time they came here.

New York, July 28.—Edward Barrow, the hustling president of the International League is the original "Bull Mooser" of organized baseball. He is thoroughly progressive in his views and actions, and he wields the big stick, with determination and foresight. Under his regime the International League has prospered greatly and minor league baseball in general has shared that prosperity.

To the untiring efforts of Barrow is largely due the fact that the three most powerful minor leagues are graded higher than had been the case before he assumed office. The more exalted rating carried with it any number of advantageous privileges. The Class A. A. clubs are not only better protected in every way—but the new order of things made compulsory a revision of rating and privilege all the way down the line from the two major circuits to the most obscire "brush" organizations. In short, a new working agreement had to be framed; a more up-to-date peace pact, as it were.

—Pool the Players—

The players of the International League next spring will be pooled at the spring schedule meeting, after they have all been put under contract. The various magnates will cast lots for first choice. They will draw for the various prizes of the circuit.

SWIMMING.

New York, July 28.—Splashing about with nymphlike grace in the capacious swimming pool at North Beach, a group of about thirty young women, some of them from distant lands, took their first lesson in swimming by the Australian "crawl" stroke method.

San Francisco, July 28.—Bob McAllister, the idol of the Olympic Club, and the most sensational amateur boxer developed in San Francisco in many years, is to be put to a thorough test at last. Bob is signed to meet Sailor Petroskey in a 20-round bout at Coffroth's Eighth street arena on the night of Aug. 8, and, win or lose, the experience is sure to prove an exciting one for the former mug-hunter.

It will be in the nature of a clash between a gymnasium-taught athlete and a ringman from nature's mold. McAllister has had all the benefits of tuition from high-salaried professors, and all the advantages of modern equipment in the line of training appliances and massage treatment. Petroskey merely knows what he picked up while in the navy, and for years had no better opportunities of conditioning himself than were afforded during his "watch below."

ICE CREAM SODA

Ice cream has been the dominating influence in the progress of the soda water industry since the advent of pure fruit syrups. The addition of this frozen palate tickler to soda water not only improves the richness and smoothness of the beverage, but at the same time it increased its food value. Statistics as to the consumption of ice cream show an enormous increase since it was first added to soda water, and the soda fountain has not only been the greatest quantity consumer of ice cream, but its advertiser. With the advent of the luscious sundae came still additional increase in the consumption of both soda and ice cream at fountains.

In the Spring of 1874 Robert M. Green of Philadelphia, who at that time was acting agent for John Matthews of New York, at the same time had begun the manufacture of smaller types of fountains of his own. He secured a concession to dispense soda water at an exposition held under the auspices of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, and stress of business compelled him to do something to attract the patronage of the public. At all events, such was the inspiration, according to Mr. Green, which prompted him to put ice cream in soda water.

KEEN FOR POETRY

Minstrels Wander About the Country Singing to the Peasants

"One of the most interesting characteristics of the Serb race," declared Professor Pupin of Columbia university, "is its imagination and poetic temperament. It is remarkable that a people deprived of education during 500 years of Moslem oppression and robbed of any knowledge of their ancient written language should preserve in the form of extraordinarily beautiful verse and folk lore the details of every important incident in their history.

"Goethe, the famous German poet, mastered the Servian language for the sole purpose of studying the wealth of Serb poetry, which is handed down from generation to generation. The University of Vienna has translated several hundred thousand lines of this poetry, and it is studied to-day with amazement by scholars and litterateurs.

"In Servia and Montenegro alike many blind, lame or crippled minstrels eke out a comfortable existence in traveling from town to town with the ancient one-stringed lute and singing to the peasants the deeds of their fathers and the ancient glory of Servia. From the fourteenth century to the present day every national hero has been immortalised in verse by humble epic anonymous bards. The authorship of this wealth of epic poetry must forever remain unknown, but the verses themselves have been preserved, not in the books or upon paper, but in the memories of the people."

BOOST TO DOUKHOBORS

Mr. Drayton Says Time Will Make Them Valuable to Country

That the Doukhobor colonies at Kootenay and the boundary district are "a decided acquisition to the population of British Columbia" is the opinion of C. R. Drayton, manager of the Vancouver Financial Corporation, who returned from a business trip to the upper country. "The people," he says, "are frugal, sober, thrifty, industrious and deeply religious and although they have peculiar customs that run counter to twentieth century civilization, I could not but admire the manner in which they have transformed a veritable wilderness into an earthly paradise. I think that these people, despite their ways, constitute a valuable economic asset as they do not ship their money out of the country like many aliens. They are here to stay and time will make them harmonise better with their social environment. They have a good many thousand acres of land under cultivation, own comfortable homes, one thousand horses and large herds of cattle. They work early and late and mind their own business."

"I marvelled at the fine waterworks systems they have installed in their colonies," he continued. "They have organization methods down to a perfect system. It is a mistake to suppose that they are ruled by their so-called leader, Peter Verigin. All matters affecting the welfare of the communities are decided at meetings held every Sunday, attended by two delegates from each household."

WHY WOLSELEY WENT TO THE RED RIVER

An Incident in Canadian History Which it is Interesting to Recall

To understand the conditions which made it necessary for the late Field Marshal the Viscount Wolseley to go to the Red River at the head of a military expedition in 1870, one must go back to the early days of Confederation.

At the first Parliament of the Dominion of Canada (1867) attention was directed towards the extension of the Dominion westward to the shores of the Pacific Ocean, and steps were taken to secure the transfer from the Hudson's Bay Company to Canada of Rupert's Land and the North-west Territory.

An address to Her Majesty Queen Victoria was adopted requesting that an Imperial Order-in-Council might be passed (pursuant to the B.N.A. Act) annexing these vast territories to the Dominion of Canada. But the Imperial Government decided that the Company must first be bought out. For this purpose the Hon. George E. Cartier and the Hon. Wm. Macdougall visited England in 1868. Early in 1869 the bargain was completed, the sum of $1,500,000 being agreed upon as the purchase price. By the terms of the bargain, the Company was to retain the land round the various trading posts, and, in addition, two sections in every township—a total reservation of one-twentieth of the entire region. For this cash payment and large land monopoly the Company agreed to give up its trade monopoly and all its claims to government. Canada at once made preparations for the government of the new territory. A Lieutenant-Governor and a small Council were appointed to administer its affairs until a more permanent form of government could be arranged. The Hon. Wm. Macdougall was selected to fill the position of Lieutenant-Governor, and in the autumn of 1869 he started for Fort Garry, intending to enter upon his duties on Dec. 1. On Oct. 30, he reached Pembina.

A Startling Surprise

There a startling surprise awaited him. A half-breed served upon him a notice, which had been drawn up by Louis Riel, forbidding his entry into the territory. This notice was the result of the failure of the officials of the Hudson's Bay Company resident in England to consult the officials (factors and traders) resident in Canada. Some time before this the Company had been re-organized and the officials resident in Canada had been made, in a sense, partners in the concern. Their incomes depended on the amount of business done. When the bargain was made in London for the transfer of the Company's property in Canada to the Canadian Government, they were not consulted. They were to receive no part of the purchase money, and the giving up of the Company's monopoly meant, of course, a serious loss to them. The settlers, too, thought that Canada should have consulted them in reference to the nature of the government to be established in the colony; and that, in particular, the claims of the half-breeds, both French and English, to the lands over which they hunted, should have been settled before the transfer took place.

The half-breeds, therefore, becoming alarmed about the title to their lands, formed a "council" to insist upon their rights. It was this Council that approved of the notice served upon the Hon. Wm. Macdougall. This notice was disregarded by Macdougall who advanced to the Hudson's Bay Company's post within the Territory.

A band of mounted half-breeds appeared and made such a demonstration that Macdougall thought it prudent to go back to Pembina. On Nov. 2 a party under Riel took possession, without resistance, of Fort Garry. On Dec. 1 a "provisional government" was formed, of which Riel shortly afterwards became president. Then followed the refusal of the Canadian Government to pay over the £300,000 to the Hudson's Bay Company until order had been restored, the return of Macdougall to Ottawa, the attempt of Vicar-General Thibault, Col. de Salaberry and Donald A. Smith (now Lord Strathcona) to restore amity and concord, the convening of another convention and the drawing up of a "Bill of Rights," the Kildonan uprising, the threat of Riel to shoot Major Boulton and the murder of Thomas Scott, against whom, it is said, Riel had a personal grudge.

Aroused Indignation

In Canada (that is, in the original four Provinces) the news of this cold-blooded murder caused the greatest indignation and excitement, and preparations for a military expedition to the Red River were pushed rapidly forward. In the summer of 1870 a force of about 1,400 (of whom less than 400 were British regulars) under the command of Colonel Wolseley, proceeded to the Kaministiquia River on Lake Superior. Thence, by a long and fatiguing journey, partly by canoe and partly on foot, the soldiers proceeded over the height of land to the shores of Lake Winnipeg. Ascending the Red River, they reached Fort Garry toward the end of August. No amnesty had been proclaimed, and for a time threats had been made that resistance would be offered to the advancing troops by the French half-breeds. No steps, however, were taken to carry out these threats, and, on Wolseley's approach, Riel and his lieutenants, Lepine and O'Donohue, fled to the United States. Days of peace and tranquility followed. Within a week after their arrival at Fort Garry the regular troops had been sent back to Quebec. The militia battalions, however, spent the winter in the Province and many of the soldiers afterwards became settlers. The early days of 1871 saw the Province of Manitoba fairly launched on her career.

TIMBER AND LUMBER

Vancouver Has Great National Forest Wealth

Vancouver Island is endowed with a wealth of varied timber and diversified minerals. They have been the main source of the country's revenue for many years, and yet not a third of its area has been exploited, so that what present and contemplated surveys may reveal, it is impossible to conjecture. It is perfectly certain, however, that the island in these respects, as in many others, is only beginning to evolve a splendid future of internal greatness and commercial influence. That the potentials lie within herself is without doubt. Her timber resources surpass those of any other area of similar magnitude in the world. Her forest area is not only vast in extent, but it has a phenomenal growth of abnormally large and splendid merchantable timber. This represents an average, and is not by any means indicative of rare or isolated instances of enormity in else; for the island's timber growth has aroused the wonder and admiration of travellers from all parts of the world. And still, it is certain, the unrevealed and unexploited interior, has in this, as in other respects, the mightiest and greatest residuum of unrevealed wealth and of commercial and industrial potentials preserved for the brilliant epoch of progress on which the island has entered. The indigenous trees of the island include Douglas fir, red and yellow cypress, western white pine and black pine, spruce of two classes, western hemlock and white oak, poplar, maple of various kinds, alder and many other species of deciduous but valuable trees.

Agonies of Gall Stones
SANOL is the only Reliable and Rapid Cure for this Painful and Dangerous Disease
There are hundreds of sufferers from Gall Stones who will be glad to know of the great results being derived from the use of SANOL; the remedy that is safe, sure and remarkably rapid in its action. It removes the necessity of an operation; relief comes promptly, the stones being dissolved or passed off in the stool without danger to the patient and without pain.
We have many testimonials from people who have thus been cured. We are able to give name and addresses of numbers of these, and will gladly do so to all who enquire.
The following from the letter of a well-known Toronto gentleman:
"Replying to your letters, I followed your instructions and purchased two bottles of SANOL, you might send me as much of the mixture as I need. If I can, in any way, help the sale of SANOL, and by doing so help some other unfortunate, I will be only too pleased to do so, as I consider it the best remedy made."
SANOL is made only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD., Winnipeg, Man.

HISTORICAL DOCUMENT BROUGHT TO LIGHT

Death Warrant of Marie Antoinette, Gay But Ill-fated French Queen Found in an Old Trunk

Marie Antoinette's death warrant—fatal relic of the tragic romance of a gay, famous French queen—was found in a dusty old garret in Washington, D.C.

The long lost document which sent Louis XVI's widow to her doom on the guillotine in 1793 was picked out of a trunk, unopened for forty years.

Placed in the Public Archives in Paris and stamped with the seal of the legislative section of the national document room, the death warrant of Marie, the Austrian, remained in its glass case for four years following her death. One day Henri Samson, the public executioner who officiated at the guillotine when the head of Marie was severed—Oct. 16, 1793—walked through the halls of the temple. He saw the order for the death of Marie Antoinette and extracted it from its case together with three smaller slips of paper.

From that time until a few months ago the warrant was lost to the world.

MARIE ANTOINETTE

Marie Antoinette was charged with causing the reckless expenditure of the national finances and fomenting civil war. By many writers this remarkable woman has been depicted as the victim, the sainted martyr, almost, of the revolution. Others have taken an opposite view, dealing sharply with her character and her role in French history.

Marie Antoinette was the youngest daughter of Emperor Francis I. and Maria Theresa of Austria. She was born at Vienna Nov. 2, 1755. At 14 she was betrothed to the French Dauphin and married him a year later at Versailles.

The queen's unpopularity originated in her personality, which soon aroused the ire of the populace. Her levity of disposition, girlish love of fun, fine dress, banquets, etc., added to a lamentable incapacity to see the actual misery of France, were fatal to her.

The death warrant, translated into English reads as follows:

IN THE NAME OF THE REPUBLIC.

"The prosecuting public attorney of the Revolutionary Criminal Court, established at Paris by the act of March 10, 1793, in execution of the judgment of the court of this day, requires the commanding general of the Parisian armed force to give assistance and to put on foot the public force necessary for the execution of the said judgment rendered against Marie Antoinette Lorraine Autriche (Austrian), widow of Louis Capet, and which condemns her to the penalty of death, which execution shall take place to-day at 10 a.m. in the Place de la Revolution in this city. The commanding general is required to send the said public force from the courthouse yard on the said day at 8 a.m. precisely.

"Given at Paris on the twenty-fifth day of the second year of the French Republic, one and indivisible. (Old style, Wednesday, October 16, 5 o'clock in the morning).

Public Prosecuting Attorney,
(Signed) A. L. FOUQUIER."

THE METALS IN BELLS

Effects of Too Much Tin—Large Bells Seldom in Tune

Bell-making is one of the few arts which have been in practice from the earliest times, but even to this day it has never reached a state of perfection. Very skilled workmen are needed to construct bells so that they shall be melodious artistic and durable.

Taking Great Britain as an example, we find that its oldest industry is the art of bell-making. In Whitechapel, London, a bell foundry had its beginning 350 years ago, and yet this is by no means the oldest for we are told that some may be traced back four or five centuries.

The bell of to-day is usually composed of five parts of tin to sixteen parts of copper. It has been found by the large bell-founders that to put too much tin in a bell often causes undesirable results, of which cracking is the most common. But the most satisfactory results have been obtained by using very old copper and procuring good tin, which comes from Australia.

STRIKE OF WOMEN WOULD GET Vote

So Thinks Prominent Englishwoman Who No Longer Favors Militant Methods

"I'll tell you why I am not a militant suffragist any longer," said Lady Russell, a former hearty supporter of "the cause" in England, to an interviewer. "I believe in militancy of a kind, but I feel the need for general militancy passed when the man in the street realised what the vote meant. Militancy now should concentrate itself on the Government only. It is a great mistake to attack the public by destroying letters and property. John Bull is obstinate. Look at the pictured representations of him and see if you think he is likely to be bullied into giving anything he doesn't want to give. No, I think the general policy should be subtler and the Government should be harassed continually, special attention also being given to each 'anti' member of the House of Commons.

"On the other hand, though, the militants do get a certain reward for their efforts. They get plenty of advertisement. Why, a few years ago when we were holding meetings and making earnest appeals we were practically boycotted by the Press. Now every sensational manœuvre gets plenty of space.

"One of the great difficulties with militancy is that it is so hard to organise and manage. That is another reason why I resigned from active work. I was on the committee of my association, but when militant acts were performed by our members I usually heard of them through the papers. Yet we had passed a resolution that all militancy should be planned, or at least approved, by the committee. I finally came to the conclusion that I could do just as much by writing and proselytising as I was accomplishing there. I consider one of the greatest mistakes the Government made was in stopping the public meetings, but they are always taking steps in the wrong direction, it seems to me. If a thing is seething and burning it is better to give it an outlet. Then the forcible feeding. How absolutely unnecessary. Let the women starve themselves ten days and then come out. Anyone can starve ten days without any lasting ill effects. I've tried going without any food three days myself, and felt the better for it, but they forcibly feed the suffragists almost at once.

"What do I think will be the outcome of it all? Who can say? I'm prepared for strange developments. What I would like to see, though, would be a well-organised, well-managed women's strike. Every woman in revolt!"

An Exaggeration of the Barrel Costume

Paupers' Bodies for Dissection

By thirty-two votes to six a motion by Mr. Thos. Lawlor, declaring against the sending of bodies of the destitute to schools of anatomy, and seeking to provide that those not claimed by relatives should be decently buried, was rejected by the South Dublin Guardians. On Mr. Lawlor asking a lady guardian whether she would give her body "to be hacked for research work," Mrs. Greene said she would, and the chairman said he would give his body willingly.

Well Worth Holding.

A corner lot on Queen street west, Toronto, was sold after having been more than sixty years in the Millichamp family possession. The Millichamp family got the property about 1851 at less than $5,000, and the sale price was just a trifle under $300,000. The property has a frontage of 22 feet 11 inches, with a depth of 130 feet.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for Dredging, Little Current," will be received until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, August 12, 1913, for dredging required at Little Current, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. (5 per cent) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order.
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

A FREAK AUTO

The "Snail" Car Latest French Fad Buts It's Not Slow

The "snail" car is the latest product of the French automobile maker's shop. The name has no reference to the speed of the car, but is a description of its appearance when coming, head on. The French seem to have turned their particular attention to the making of freak automobile shapes during the last few years, the idea being to get as much of the car under cover as possible and thus keep out the dust.

LOOKS LIKE A SNAIL OR A FROG, BUT IT REALLY IS A FRENCH HIGH SPEED AUTOMOBILE.

In the "snail" car this object seems to have been accomplished to perfection. The headlights are continuations of the front mudguard which is built in as part of the hood over the engine so that there are no sharp corners or crevices for the dust to penetrate. The car attracted great attention at the Paris automobile show.

HIGH SALARIES IN SPORT

A Glance at the Large Amount Some Players Get.

Chance, manager of the New York ball team, recives $25,000 a year, the highest salary ever offered to a ball player. Another baseball player, named Bresnahan, signed a contract at $10,000 a year for the St. Louis team, but after serving a year the owners decided to get rid of him. In order to break the contract, which had been made for four years, it was necessary to pay Bresnahan $20,000. That is to say, he recived $30,000 from the St. Louis club for services that did not extend over more than six months. The Chicago club that dismissed Chance offered him $6,500 a year and in addition paid him $10,000 for signing a contract. The New York Telegraph calculates that Bresnahan received $46,000 for his baseball services, which did not extendd over eight months. Close figuring would show that in these eighteen months Bresnahan would not work more than five hours a day. It is doubtful if any man ever made so much money out of sport in so short a time. Pitre, the celebrated hockey player, of the Canadien Club, received $3,000 a year. He plays twenty games, which is at the rate of $150 a game. Billy Fitzgerald, the great home player of the Toronto Lacrosse Club, received $4,000 for twelve games; so that if the time occupied be taken into consideration it will be seen that Canadian lacrosse and hockey players are still the highest paid atheletes in the world.

KITCHEN HELPS

Permanganate of potash will cleanse dirty filters of all impurities. A solution should be passed through the filter until it comes out as pink as when it was poured in.

Tar may be removed from the hands by rubbing with the outside of fresh orange or lemon peel and drying immediately. The volatile oils dissolve tar so that it can be rubbed off.

Cayenne pepper is excellent to rid cupboards of mice. The floor should be gone over carefully, and each hole stopped up with a piece of rag dipped in water and then in cayenne pepper.

When a tin lid is very hard to remove, instead of struggling to loosen it with a knife just hold the tin up endways and give a few taps with a hammer, and it will loosen immediately.

Very frequently when separating the whites from the yolks of eggs the yolk becomes broken and falls into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry, and touch the yolk with a corner of it. The yolk will adhere to the cloth, and may be easily removed.

If great care is not taken flat irons easily become rusted. The following is a good way to clean them when this occurs. Tie a lump of beeswax in a piece of rag, and when the irons are hot rub them with this. Then rub them well with salt on a cloth, and they will be quite smooth and clean.

A CURIOUS TRAVELLER

Wasted His Money in Aimless Jaunts Till Police Got Him

Robert Morrow, of Bath, Ont., fifty years of age, was taken off a train and arrested on a charge of insanity at Hamilton. On him was found $30 in cash and a bank book showing deposits amounting to $22,343. For a week he has been wasting his substance by riding on trains all over the Province. He refused to buy through tickets or get tickets from a station agent, but insisted on purchasing them from conductors, and those good only to the next station. His favorite ride was from Niagara Falls to Toronto, and he bought tickets from the conductors for each station on the route as he came to it. The result was that he had his pockets crammed with slips calling for rebates.

The Isolated Continent

The big German threw fork and knife on a table and rubbing his hands on his apron to remove the grease, took the stranger's sack and carried it into the office. There he put a long, official blank of reporting paper before him, together with pen and ink.

It took a long time for the stranger to fill out all the somewhat impertinent questions, but at last it was done. On the last line he wrote in large, round characters the name:

"Chevalier Senapo E di Leon."

"What can I do for you, chevalier?" asked the hotel-keeper, who had used the time to remove his apron and put on a clean coat.

"First of all, I want some breakfast, then a room, as I would like to spend a few days here."

The host's face shone with pleasure and he led his guest into the small dining-room.

The chevalier's eyes wandered around searchingly; they seemed to penetrate into every nook and corner.

The host returned, followed by a girl, who put a snow-white cover on one of the tables, then steaming hot rolls were brought in with coffee, butter, honey and some eggs.

The chevalier ate heartily; the early morning exercise had given him a splendid appetite. When he had finished, the host offered him some cigars, but he smilingly refused, assuring him that he never used them.

"They are real Saharan, chevalier."

"Saharan? Is that a new brand?"

"Not exactly; we have had it for ten years, ever since the successful irrigation of the desert. I understand that it is even better than the once famous Havana."

The stranger looked at the host thoughtfully, then with some hesitation he asked:

"What is the name of the engineer who planned that project? I have quite forgotten."

"You are not a German, chevalier, otherwise you would know the man whom all the German-speaking nations regard with hope; his name is Count von Werdenstein."

The young man started, but recovered himself quickly. "How foolish, I have nearly spilt my coffee. Yes, Werdenstein; I remember the name now."

"He is our Bismarck, Moltke and Edison, in one person."

The young man stared at the host for a second. "Quite a remarkable man."

"Indeed, sir, he was selected as commander in chief by the International Federation, for the war against America."

"I am sure it is a very happy selection."

"Well, sir, he is a great man indeed, but I do wish, and I am sure many others wish so too, that instead of militarism, he would devote his energies to the betterment of the people."

"To industrial, agricultural and financial developments; is that what you mean?"

"Yes, sir, and above all else, to lifting the burdens from the citizens. You know what we have to suffer under this terrible military rule."

"I am a stranger, my dear host; I came from where the coffee and slender palms grow, so I don't know much about the happenings around here. However, I am interested and pray that you tell me more."

The good host of the Red Star was happy to find some one who was glad to listen to his talk; this stranger even took his notebook out and dashed some interesting details into it.

Later on he found a queer little newspaper, the Koelnische Zeitung, and read the news section with much interest.

The same morning he inquired for the best tailor in town and Herr Schulz, the host, telephoned for him. When the little tailor arrived he took measurements, showed fashion plates and goods, but the chevalier left the selection to him, stipulating that all he wanted was the latest in everything.

The tailor touched the cloth the chevalier's Alpine coat was made of and examined it closely with an air of surprise. "This is something new to me," he said at last. "I never saw a weave like this." He looked questioningly at the chevalier, but he seemed to be busy with the fashion plates and did not answer. However, at the tailor's request, he removed his coat and that little man looked searchingly at the lining, hoping to find the maker's name. His eyes grew large when he saw a small tag bearing the name of a Chicago manufacturer.

Three days later the new clothes were ready; the Chevalier di Leon paid for them in gold. It did not matter that the mint stamp was quite old; indeed, some were of the nineteenth century, and none of the pieces were later than 1919. The curious little tailor noticed this fact, also; he shook his head again, but kept quiet. That quality was still golden.

The same evening the stranger left by the slow local train for Munich, that old art center. He selected a promising hotel and was soon settled for the night.

Upon his inquiry for the quickest route to Berlin the Aero-Electric Line was suggested. It made the trip in six hours. "It is quite ingenious," thought the chevalier. Four tremendous cigar-shaped aluminum balloons were attached to each other; the whole aerial train was at least 500 yards long. The first and the last balloons had very high powered dynamos, and both were connected with some ingenious device to the rail that was supported on tall iron columns.

"Not a bad idea," thought the chevalier as he mounted the Aero-Electro the next morning. "It is in some way similar to the old electric car system; they economize on the rails and the roadbed, but let me see—the gas? Yes, it pays, after all, and it is quicker."

The chevalier selected a place where he was able to see both sides of the train, and took out his field glass. It was cold on the upper deck, but he did not pay much attention to that; he was too busy watching the country below.

He saw many interesting things with his extremely powerful glass, but at almost every town that they passed he observed military maneuvers, notwithstanding the cold and deep snow. "Oh, what a waste!" he thought, then retired into the large saloon, because the wind had risen and was unpleasantly cold.

He sat down at the reading table and looked through a number of periodicals. There he found pictures of almost all the monarchs and also a very good picture of Count von Werdenstein. Just below this picture was an article that did not speak very highly of this genius. The paper was ultra-socialistically inclined, and the article pointed out the futility of the militarism of which the count was the advocate.

The chevalier took out his little notebook and wrote the name of the author there. The paper was edited in Berlin and he did not anticipate much trouble in finding Paul Kalmar through the editorial office.

The aero-train was half an hour late on account of the high wind, but finally arrived.

The traveler took a taxicab and at random told the chauffeur to drive to the Metropole Hotel. It was one of the old-fashioned places left over from the nineteenth century, but it was excellently equipped with all modern improvements.

The Chevalier di Leon did not stay long in his rooms, but after a short consultation with the clerk left the hotel and mingled with the crowds on the street.

The beautifully decorated stores showed Christmas splendors and luxuries. The ancient beauty of the town impressed him. At one end of the park stood a magnificent equestrian monument of colossal size. The horse was bounding forward; the face, with upturned mustache and fierce eye was familiar. All the muses of art and science were gathered about the base in a fantastic but expressive manner—but, in front of them, holding the most prominent position, was Mars! The chevalier shrugged his shoulders: "It does seem that monarchies cannot exist without the sword."

The palace guard marched by, a company of the 221st infantry regiment. Their helmets glittered, they wore grayish cuirasses, and carried clumsy looking rifles; they had no bayonets, but short pistols in their belts. The music boomed in warlike tones and the uniformed men marched in stiff, unnaturally long steps. The chevalier shook his head again, and turned sadly into a side street.

At the editorial rooms of the Freie Gedanken he gave his card to an attendant and asked to see Herr Paul Kalmar. "Are you a poet?" the boy asked inquisitively.

"No, indeed, not even an author."

This seemed to please the boy, who hurried away; he soon came back with a smile. "Third door to the right."

The next moment Chevalier di Leon stood before Herr Paul Kalmar, who invited him to be seated. The ultra-socialist was a mild, calm giant with very light brown hair, but his greenish eyes held sparks of courage and dogged determination.

The tall chevalier seemed to impress him favorably, and he listened with a quiet air.

"I have come from afar to see you, Herr Kalmar. I read your article about Count von Werdenstein, and as I have an idea that probably will influence the count to preach peace instead of war, I wish you would kindly listen to me and give me your advice."

"I also am a man who wants peace, Chevalier di Leon, and I will be glad to discuss that theme with you; if you will give me a few minutes' time I will take you to the Cafe American and we can talk and eat at the same time."

"I am sure it will please me very much."

Half and hour later they were on the balcony of the famous Cafe American in a cozy corner among the palms and vines.

"What is Your Intention?"

The big German ordered an epicurean lunch with Mosel wine; he listened attentively and ate with a relish. The chevalier's words seemed to meet with his approval.

"To prove my good will, to win his influence, I am willing to give him the secret of gold manufacturing."

These words were said so enthusiastically that a beautifully dressed woman who sat at the neighboring table looked up from her plate and gazed at the bright-eyed chevalier.

"Not so loud, my dear man, not so loud; even the walls have ears."

The advice came somewhat late, for the woman already had noted the chevalier's words, and now she watched them from beneath her long, silky eyelashes, but it was in vain; she could not hear another word.

After the long lunch Herr Kalmar and the chevalier entered a taxicab.

"To the palace of the honorable chancellor, Count von Werdenstein," thundered Kalmar in the ear of the taxi driver.

Mr. Kalmar seemed to know how to reach his excellency, the iron-handed chancellor, as a gorgeously liveried attendant soon conducted them into the presence of the man they sought.

Chevalier di Leon stopped for a moment when he beheld the man whose face he had seen only in print; he stopped with a trace of caution in his manner.

The count's face was disturbed for a second, when his own cold blue eyes met the gray ones; they clashed like two swords, both blades keen, hard and elastic.

"Chevalier di Leon?"

The chevalier bowed.

"Your business must be very important, since you ask to see me in my private residence."

"It is, your excellency, and as I know your time is valuable I shall not delay you long."

"Please!"

The chevalier took a small package from his pocket and unwrapped it, then he placed a piece of yellow metal on the table.

"Will your excellency examine this?"

The count picked up the metal with a bored expression and its weight surprised him.

"Gold?"

"Yes, it is gold."

"And what is its meaning?"

"I am willing to build and equip a factory for your excellency, enabling you to produce the metal for 25 pfennigs the kilogram."

"Then it is not gold."

"Have it examined by an expert."

"I will do that."

"When may I return for your answer?"

"Tomorrow morning at nine sharp."

The two bowed and turned to go, but the count stopped them.

"Who knows the secret of the composition besides yourself?"

"Only one man. He lives in South Africa."

"And this gentleman?" and the count pointed to Kalmar.

"He knows as much about it as your excellency."

The count thought for a moment. Suddenly he came nearer to the chevalier and, stopping before him, looked steadily into his wide, gray eyes. They stood thus for a few moments.

What the chancellor felt no one knows, but he looked as if he were the suppliant and the other the almighty chancellor upon whom the eyes of four continents rested hopefully. At least that was the impression Herr Kalmar received.

Slowly he asked: "And what is the price of your secret?"

"I will tell you tomorrow."

CHAPTER V.

The Countess Rosloy.

Chevalier di Leon and his companion hardly had left the room when the count gave orders that caused two men to emerge from the side door at the instant the two men approached the waiting conveyance. These two men took separate cabs and found it an easy matter to follow the quarry, as they had no desire to avoid the detectives.

Herr Kalmar returned to the editorial rooms and Chevalier di Leon went to his hotel, where he bought a number of papers and magazines.

The secret service reported at 11:00 p. m. that he had retired, and considering him safe for the next eight hours they did likewise. There they made a mistake. The chevalier read until twelve. Then, cautiously opening the door, he looked into the hall and listened.

No one was in sight and no sound came to his ears, so he turned and picked up a small box and hurried with it to the fire escape at the end of the hall.

It was a clear, starry night, but no moon was shining. He mounted to the square, flat roof, and listening again advanced to the center and leaned against the chimney about which the snow had melted. He looked at the sky for a long time until he discovered the star he was looking for. Was it a star? It gleamed like one, but it winked like an old-fashioned revolving lighthouse.

Chevalier di Leon took the object he brought with him, and directing it toward that winking star he manipulated something that gave a metallic sound. A hiss followed, like the hiss of a bullet.

A minute later another star appeared near the winking one. It was large and bright and seemed to spit fire. Suddenly it disappeared in a small white cloud, looking like a shrapnel exploding in midair.

The winking star vanished entirely.

Then the chevalier returned to his rooms and went to bed.

The following morning at nine o'clock he stood before the chancellor.

The count bowed to him more cordially than he had the day before.

"The experts report that the ore you gave me is chemically pure gold, purer than any they have ever seen." He thought for a moment. "For some reason I cannot doubt your words; I am, so to say, forced to believe in you." He looked inquiringly at the chevalier, but as he did not answer the count continued: "Do you realize the far-reaching influence of your invention?"

"I do to the most minute detail."

"What is your intention?"

"To give my invention to you—for a consideration."

"And that is?"

The young man weighed every word he said.

"Absolute disarmament and peace."

The count showed no surprise. He felt that he stood before an extraordinary man. He walked up and down the room thoughtfully, then suddenly he stopped before the chevalier.

"Sir, who are you?"

The chevalier stood up and smiled pleasantly.

"I expected this question, your excellency, but if you will permit I shall not answer it. All I can say is that I believe I am a true apostle of brotherly love. My ideal is to overthrow tyranny and make not only the leaders but the masses happy and contented. What I am offering you is a mighty instrument to forward this movement. True, it also means destruction if injudiciously used. I came to you, sir, the chosen leader of the armies of four continents." He looked earnestly at the man standing before him.

"Do you not think that it is your duty to accept my offer—to send home the millions who are amassed to break peace; whose final destination is to break into a happy, peaceful continent where every man is free and where the hearts of the people are not poisoned with the passions of selfish greed? It is my own wish, also, that these invisible walls which separate the American continent from the others shall disappear, not be destroyed by ruthless hands, but opened to receive brothers!"

The enthusiastic young man stopped when he saw a sarcastic smile play round the corners of the count's mouth.

"I know enough, chevalier!" His voice was cool and cutting. "You are an American."

The chevalier did not say "yes" or "no," but scorning the cold expression on the count's face he almost ordered him to hear him out.

"Your excellency must listen to me to the end. Who I am or whence I come does not matter. I have offered you a secret that will enable you to make your country, and through your country the world, happy if used with discretion. If not, it may bring conditions that will break all your ambitions. Your tremendous armies, men of war and fortifications, figuratively speaking, are all made of gold. You can easily imagine what chaos will reign if I give my gold away—make it no more valuable than iron. Don't you realize that it will break you, in spite of your might, and drive your armies to work instead of wasting time in pursuing the scientifically perfected exercises and studies of devastation? You ought to realize that gold is only an image created by man; that yellow metal has no real value. Work is the only thing of value to a nation.

"I have one thing more to say. You have evidently selected for your life's work the invasion and conquering of the American continent, claiming that the United States had refused to yield to the wishes of the European powers fifty years ago. Do you think there are no more men like Hannibal Prudent? Do you think that after breaking the isolator all you would need do would be to land your armed puppets and kill the people who have nursed at the bosom of Liberty? I have spoken, your excellency!"

"Chevalier di Leon, no man has ever spoken to me as you have." His voice was dull. "I will think over the far-reaching perspective you have spread before me; I will have to consider it from every side. For that reason I cannot set a date for my final decision and the decision of his majesty the kaiser.

"Above all, you have awakened my admiration; you are a strong man, chevalier, and I am a friend to strong men. I welcome you." He rose and offered his hand to his visitor.

"I want to introduce you to his majesty and the chief diplomats," continued the count. "I hope you will accept the invitation to the 'Hof-ball' given day after tomorrow."

ROMANCE NOT DEAD

But Some of the Old-time Frills Discarded in Modern Life

No, Romance is not dead, but it takes a different form in this practical age.

The man of to-day can love just as fervently as in the days of sighs and verse. An exaggerated romantic wooing and a Gretna Green marriage do not appeal to the present-day maid. Imagine her consternation if her lover serenaded her at night, or suggested an elopement! She prefers a man who will get about his business and provide a good time for her.

Instead of maintaining a lordly reserve as to his business and income, the man of to-day discusses both with his wife, and her women's wit is often helpful. It is certainly not sentimental of him to notice that Johnnie's boots are wearing out before he realises the fact that his wife has done her hair in a new fashion, but it is eminently more practical.

The tales of old-world gallantry make excellent reading, but it is doubtful if a courtly wave of the hat would compensate the woman of to-day for a sparsely laid table.

And Chivalry—well, outwardly chivalry has decreased. Woman strives with man in nearly every field of the labor market, and naturally the attitude she assumes does not give rise to over-chivalrous feelings on the part of a man. But womanly bearing will always call forth courtesy in the average man.

Woman takes a different stand in a man's thoughts to-day to what she did in the—say, early Victorian age. To-day she is accepted more as a comrade and practical helpmate than she was then. She is not regarded as a divinity, neither is a man regarded as a paragon of virtues. Men and women know each other now as they really are—more alive to each other's limitations, and the knowledge creates a true love based on reality, not a high-flown, sentimental ideal.

The girl of to-day is educated with her brother, and takes her stand in the world with him; she realises, when grown up, that other men are but a counterpart—she does not expect perfection. But it is a man who combines the tenderness of love with a practical eye to the present and future that the woman of the present day values.

SCOTCH GIRLS' FRIEND

Mrs. Radford Undertook Big Task at Advanced Age

Mrs. Jane Radford, founder and principal of the Women's Canadian Employment Bureau of Montreal, has big ideas for encouraging the best type of Scotch immigrant girls to come to Canada.

Mrs. Radford is considerably over the alotted span of years, and a very interesting story she had to tell of her work among girls who forsake the Old for the New World. Her public life commenced by her appointment to the Selecting Committee of an agency which was bringing girls out to Canada by the hundred. Her experience in this capacity gave her an idea of the great injustice done by the system under which these girls were sent out. Promises were made that never could be realised, with the result that disappointment and despair invariably made miserable the existence of girls who left the Old Country full of high hopes and ambitions. Realising all this, Mrs. Radford, although seventy-four years of age, went to Canada and asked to be permitted to put her scheme into operation. That was to tell the truth with regard to the wages domestic servants would receive; to give opportunities to girls to select whom they should work for and see that the particular work of a domestic servant was made clear to her before any contract was closed; and to provide amusement and social intercourse for the girls during their free hours. This was rather a big undertaking for a woman, but the Women's Canadian Employment Bureau was organized as the result of Mrs. Radford's efforts, and part of its activity consists in bringing the girls into touch with ministers of their own denomination, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic; and giving them the advantage of a home at a very low rate for at least twenty-four hours after their arrival—a rest being desirable after the faigue of their passage. To perform all these obligations, Mrs. Radford arranged a system of work which does her credit.

REVIVAL OF THE FAN

Has Not Been in Fashion Since the Revolution

A revival of the fan is talked of. The fan fell into disuse at the time of the French Revolution and has never quite recovered its sway, though it has been in and out of fashion many times since then.

Things are, says a famous fan maker of the present day, looking brighter and prophecies of a revival of the art are not without visible proof in the increasing numbers of hand-painted and lace fans now being sold.

Queen Mary's taste in fans is widely known, as is also that of Queen Alexandra. One by one the old fans are reappearing from the wardrobes and presses where they were carefully laid by our great-grandmothers.

Of the modern fans some of the newest are of hand-made lace, usually Brussels point, with a hand-painted gauze medallion. The novelty lies in the fact that the reverse carries the idea worked out in the design on the front.

Safety for the Watch

What is the safest way of carrying a watch? Have a small ring sewn into your left waistcoat pocket. Put the watch in the pocket. Pass the end of the chain through the ring, hook it on to the watch—and there you are. The pickpocket who snatches at your chain will not get the watch, and yet you can easily take the watch out of your pocket yourself.

Laughs With Joy! No More Indigestion

Montreal Man So Ill, Thought He Would Die of Stomach Trouble.

Found a Simple Remedy That Has Kept Him Well Ever Since

The experience of Mr. Larose is one very common to-day:

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 836 Joliette street, Montreal, P.Q.

All who have weak stomachs, and those who suffer with indigestion, headaches, biliousness, can be perfectly cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c per box, at druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Rural Mails.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has been notified by the Post Office Department that the Bailieboro and South Monaghan rural mail routes will be in operation by the middle of August. The contract for the Baillieboro route for which tenders had been asked, has been awarded to Mr. Hector Jewison.

Good Specimen of Ore.

Mrs. Sophia Williams, of Portland, Frontenac Co., on Saturday showed The Times some very interesting mineralogical specimens from her farm and farms adjoining. They include copper pyrites, emory, corundum, silver, red leadi gold, etc.

Officer Weller on the Job.

Percy Admitted Soft Impeachment

At yesterday's police court, Steven Percy when charged with being drunk grinned and said "I wasn't sensible, so I guess I was full all right enough." $2. Steven remarked: "That's the cheapest I ever got off for here." A young man paid $5.75 for a case of d. and d.

City Officials in Chicago.

City Clerk Simon Armstrong and Ald. Duffus left yesterday for Chicago on municipal business. Watch for their return and, it is possible the scalp of a big boom for Peterborough may be dangling from their respective belts.

Card of Thanks.

The Treasure-Seekers' Adult Bible Class of St. James' Sunday school, wish through The Times to thank those who patronized their excursion to the Thousand Islands on Saturday, July 26th. Also those who helped to make it an unqualified success.

Florists are Coming.

On Wednesday, August 6, the Florists' Club of Toronto will come here with a big excursion and delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will also arrive in the city, to attend the two days' session. One hundred or more delegates are expected. They will come from the cities lying between the two coasts. Preparations are being made to give the visitors a good time and part of the entertainment will be a trip to the lakes.

A Hint Worth Following.

Guelph, July 28.—In future habitual drunkards will not be served with liquor in any of the hotel bars or liquor stores of the city. It was so decided at a meeting of the hotelkeepers and it is understood that it is their intention to draft a list of those known to be habitual drunkards, every hotel-keeper being supplied with a copy. Bartenders will also be given a copy and ordered to refuse to serve anyone on the list with liquor.

He Depended Upon God.

Belleville Ontario: Edward Marlborough, a railroad man, was taxed $5 and costs or 15 days. When he said he had worked for one man for five years blowing in his earnings as fast as he made them, the court asked him if it would not be well to lay by something for a stormy day and how he fared when he was sick. Marlborough answered fervently, "I always depend upon God for that. He has never deserted me yet."

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Once more it is nearing the time for Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition, which is to be held on September 11th, 12th and 13th.

Mr. John Elliott, 390 Rogers street, desires to thank his many friends and neighbors for numerous acts of kindness and sympathy during his wife's sickness and death.

Light motors can now cross Pigeon Lake floating bridge, but it is dangerous for a large or heavy car to attempt to cross as the bridge is very unsafe in many spots.

One day last week a resident of Smith township came to Peterborough and on his return he was minus $18. The house had been entered during his absence and the money had disappeared.

Mrs. Profitt an English woman who has caused the City Relief Officer considerable anxiety of late by her repeated refusals to leave Peterborough and be sent back to England, left yesterday morning for the old country.

A special series of meetings is in progress at the Pentecostal Mission, corner of Water and Brock streets. Mr. J. H. Cale, of Paris, Ont., who is a commercial traveller, is lecturing on the "Times of the Gentiles," illustrated by charts.

Belleville Ontario: "Belleville is in need of a dog catcher—at least one is required on market days, to keep the canines from causing trouble on the square." Peterborough could spare a few hundred of her dogs without boo,ing the price of crape.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

OBITUARY.

The funeral of the late Mr. George H. Adlum, who died suddenly at Rochester, N.Y., on July 24th, was held yesterday afternoon, to Little Lake Cemetery from the residence of his father, Mr. John Adlum, 516 Sherbrooke street.

Russell Williamson.

Many friends express sympathy with Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, of the 7th line of Cavan, on the death of their only son Russell, which occurred on Saturday morning, 26th inst., after an illness of three weeks, at the age of six years.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Stanley Gillespie, of Picton, is home for his holidays.

Mr. P. J. Kehoe, Fenelon Falls, is a guest at the White House.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Ruth are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ruth, 208 Lake street.

Miss Margaret Carrick, of Toronto is the guest of Miss Gladys Graham Gilmour street.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., has returned to the city from Stoney Lake, where he has spent a short vacation.

Mrs. Moule and children, Reggie and Florence, left yesterday morning for Newark and Whitby, Mass., where they will visit friends.

Mr. T. S. Griffith, of Montreal, is in the city on business in connection with the Trent Valley Canal and is registered at the Oriental.

Misses Kathryn Rasp and Eileen Gould and Mr. H. Gould of Buffalo, N.Y., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Gould, 576 Cedar street.

Mrs. Harvey McCulloch of Saskatoon, is spending a couple of months at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ruth, 208 Lake street.

401st BARGAIN ANNEX EVENT

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30th, 1913

DRESS MUSLINS 5c.

The quality of these Muslins will be a surprise to every Annex customer on Wednesday. Each piece is 27 in. wide, with light shades predominating in patterns of stripe or floral design. One would be satisfied to pay the regular price of 12½c for such fabrics. On Wednesday the price is, yard 5c

FORTY INCH FACTORY COTTON 10½c

Cotton like this—of good weight and even texture, cannot be bought at the mill at less cost than we are asking in the Annex. If we had not bought it before the advance in cotton it would be marked 15c. But here it is—a sound investment at, per yard 10½c

NATURAL WOOL SOLE HOSE 19c — 3 PAIRS 55c.

The dye being "Hermsdorf" is guaranteed fast. The cotton from which they are made is of good quality, seamless, the heels and toes being double. A sole of natural wool insures comfort for the feet and they are really the most popular 25c hose in the trade. Sizes 9, 2½, 10. Wednesday 19c

CHILDREN'S SOCKS, 8c Pair

They are of good quality cotton, with seamless feet and spliced heels and toes. Ribbed top, and in colors of red, sky, tan, white with checked tops and black. Annex price per pair ... 8c

Very stout and serviceable round the home, and procurable in either narrow or wide stripe designs. The color is blue and white, and the value most satisfactory. Wednesday, per yard ... 12½c

BOYS' ALL WOOL JERSEYS 59c.

Blue and white, red and white, garnet, plain navy, etc. are the colors in these Boys' Jerseys that are all wool, with worsted finish. A dollar is the regular value, yet they are reduced on Wednesday to 59c

ROLLER TOWELLING ENDS (5 YARDS LONG) 29c.

They are bordered with red and are 17 in. wide. Each piece is all linen crash and sold only in the 5 yard length. This is something special for Wednesday. Per length 29c

USE THE TELEPHONE

Every department in our store is connected by telephone. A wire is laid to the Annex, and any item on this bill may thus be secured by merely telephoning for it. Good selection and prompt delivery assured. Two lines to Central. Nos. 138 and 139.

Three of the Best Whitewear Items the Annex Has Ever Seen

$1.50 & $1.75 White Waists for 99c

OF ALL THE DOZENS UPON DOZENS OF BLOUSES SOLD IN THE ANNEX THIS SEASON, this line surpasses them all, where value is concerned. Amongst them will be found Blouses of net, lined with silk; Blouses of fine drill or lawn, and Blouses in fancy colorings. Each garment is beautifully trimmed, and is practically being sacrificed at the Annex price, because the builders are crowding us for room in the Blouse section. The values offered reach $1.25 and higher, thus presenting a splendid range of choice to those purchasers arriving early in the department on Wednesday 99c

SHEWN IN THE WINDOW.

90c White Underskirts 59c

BEING SAMPLES, THEY ARE THE BEST OF THEIR KIND, and are all tastefully trimmed with embroidery and lace. They were made to be sold at 90c; some even more, and were bought specially for the Annex, where the price will be 59c

SHEWN IN THE WINDOW.

55c Drawers for 39c

THE EXCELLENT COTTON FROM WHICH THEY ARE MADE could not be procured for the small sum that, in this instance, buys the complete garment, ready to wear. Two inch Cluny insertion, and embroidery is used as trimming and both open and closed styles can be secured, in all sizes. A glance at them in the window will reveal the fine value that is to be obtained on Wednesday for 39c

MILLINERY FLOWERS 25c

Most women can find a use for a bunch of good millinery flowers, and therefore a box of them has been sent up from the Millinery section and placed out for the Annex patrons. At, per spray 25c

DO YOU NEED STATIONERY?

The Annex line of "Imperial Linen" will prove most satisfactory and is to be obtained at most reasonable cost.

Envelopes ....3 Packages 10c.
Writing Pads ....Each 11c.

COLORED BED SPREADS 69c

Around the home, the tent or the summer cottage one of these pink or pale blue Spreads will be found to be both useful and economical. They are of Marseilles weave, and fringed all round. Just the right weight for summer too. Wednesday 69c

ODD OVERALLS AND SMOCKS 49c

They are of blue and black duck with or without bibs. Not every size will be found, yet a fairly good range is presented. They are a 75c line in the regular way. We are clearing them up for 49c

CHAMBRAY BLOUSES 55c

In shades of blue, grey, and tan Chambray, finished with summer collar, and plain cuffs. The fabric is of fine texture, patterned with stripes and the styles are most suitable for present wear. The price is far lower than the value 55c

All usual sizes

MEN'S BALBRIGGAN DRAWERS 25c.

The shirts that match have all been sold, so the drawers are marked for a quick clearance at a very low figure. 35c, 40c and 50c values are represented, and the sizes are 32, 34 and 36. Some are in natural wool color, some are pale blue, but every pair is remarkably cheap at......... 25c

Pair of Bath Towels for 29c

THEY WILL ABSORB THE MOISTURE QUICKLY because of their fine soft texture and heavy nap. The size is 39 x 18 in., most convenient for the bath or general use, and the color a combination of grey, red and white. At 40c a pair they would be considered good value, yet the Annex will see them marked at 29c

Look at them in our South Window.

THE BIG ALTERATION SALE IN THE MEN'S SECTION OFFERS VALUES RARELY MET WITH IN MEN'S CLOTHING AND FURNISHINGS.

ON THE FLOOR BELOW THE ANNEX THERE IS ASSEMBLED A FINE COLLECTION OF BEDS, HOUSE FURNISHINGS AND WALL PAPER. A WHOLE FLOOR IS DEVOTED TO THIS CLASS OF GOODS.

At The Grand Opera House --TINY TOWN--

TO-DAY AT 2.30 and 8.

This remarkable and unique show will open this afternoon at 2.30, the Tiny Village being located at the Grand Opera House.

Tiny Town itself is a miniature village populated by tiny men and women 32 inches high, and varying in ages from 19 to 56 years. Every tiny townsman is a perfectly formed midget. The men are dapper little beings, the women doll-like creatures, possessing among other feminine vanities, a mania for fashions. The village is controlled by a mayor 32 inches high, midget policemen patrol the streets. The town has a fire-brigade, miniature cabs and carriages. A remarkable novelty is the miniature circus, in which are twelve tiny trained midget horses and ponies, as well as a big company of tiny strong men, jockeys, wire-walker, acrobats, clowns and dummies. The town itself is composed of miniature shops, houses, post office, church, etc., and possesses its own weekly newspaper, which is edited by the Mayor of Tiny Town. All the inhabitants of this quaint city of midgets speak English though the majority of them hail from Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Mr. Beaumont Smith, the director and organizer of the company is now in Peterborough, busily engaged in the thousand and one details connected with the show, for it is no light task to superintend the moving from place to place and laying out of Tiny Town for the accommodation of this quaint gathering of miniature humanity.

Famous Harpist Dead

Mr. Albert Roberts, Newtown, the famous Welsh harpist who died recently, was the winner of nineteen harp prizes at the National Eisteddfod of Wales. He had performed before the King and Queen, the late Queen Victoria, the late King Edward, the late Empress of Austria, the Queen of Roumania, Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg, the Empress of Russia, and the late Duke of Cambridge.

TAKE NOTICE

that Robert J. Moher and James J. Moher, trading under the firm, name and style of "Moher Bros.," of the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, Automobile Salesmen, have made an assignment of their estate to me for the general benefit of their creditors under the Assignments and Preferences Act (10 Ed. VII., Chapter 64).

THE creditors of the above insolvents are hereby notified to meet at the office of George Newcombe Gordon, at 397 George street, at the City of Peterborough, on the 4th day of August, 1913, at the hour of 2 o'clock, in the afternoon, for the purpose of receiving a statement of the debtors affairs, for the appointment of inspectors and for the giving of directions with reference to the disposal of the estate.

ALL persons claiming to be entitled to rank on the estate must file their claims with me with the proofs and particulars thereof required by the said Act on or before the day of such meeting.

AND NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN, that after the 4th day of August, 1913, I will proceed to distribute the assets of the said insolvent amongst the creditors entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which notice shall then have been given and I will not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose claim I shall not then have had notice.

DATED at Peterborough, this 28th day of July, 1913.

RIVER BOATS COLLIDE IN DARK; PASSENGERS PANIC-STRICKEN

"Lady of Gaspe" Down Bound From Montreal, Wrecked in Collision With Lumber Boat Below Three Rivers--Huge Hole Torn in Her Side--Hundreds Lose Nerve But All Are Saved

Montreal, July 29.—The steamship Lady of Gaspe, which cleared from here late yesterday with over a hundred passengers and a heavy cargo, was wrecked early to-day by a terrible collision with the Crown of Cordova.

The Crown of Cordova had left the wharf here about ten minutes after the Lady of Gaspe, and is said to have kept fairly close to the other ship as far down as Three Rivers. It was just below this point that the collision occurred.

The Crown of Cordova tore a hole in the sister ship's side large enough to use the shipping agent's words, "to drive a two-horse rig through."

Water Rushed in in Torrents.

The shock was terrible. The water rushed in in torrents, and Captain Vesina, in command of the Lady of Gaspe, at once saw that the loss of his ship was a matter of a few minutes, unless he could drive her ashore.

Meantime, the terrified passengers, the majority of them women and children, rushed on deck, and the officers had their hands full in trying to quiet the people and get the fast-sinking ship on to Cape Magdalene. The captain saw that this was the only chance.

Signals of distress were sent up, but the passengers were told there was no immediate danger, and implored to keep cool. Most of them were asleep when the collision occurred, but fortunately the sleeping apartments are on the upper deck, and the risk was avoided of the passengers being crushed to death on narrow gangways. They got out easily on deck and many were even able to rush back and partially clothe themselves.

Steamer Quebec to Rescue.

Meantime the steamer Quebec, bound from Quebec to Montreal, was rushing to the Lady of Gaspe's aid, and with some difficulty, owing to the terror of the passengers and the darkness of the night, she was able to take all off in safety.

The Quebec was expected to arrive at Montreal early this afternoon.

The Crown of Cordova, whose owners decline to make any statement, is understood to be uninjured. She was on her way to Quebec to take lumber on board for London.

The Lady of Gaspe is a two-masted one-funnel vessel, and was built in 1877. She was on her way back to the Gulf of St. Lawrence ports.

Ocean Freight Rates

(Special to The Times).

Ottawa, July 29.—The increase in ocean freight rates is to be made the subject of investigation by the Canadian Government, acting in conjunction with the officials of the Government of Great Britain. This is quick work. The question was raised only last session in the House of Commons by Mr. Arthur Meighen, of Portage la Prairie, now Solicitor-General. It was then brought for the first time before the Government. It had been at one time under the consideration of the late Liberal administration, but when the Laurier Cabinet reached the point where a definite step should be taken, the whole matter was dropped.

ULSTER ANGRY; CIVIL WAR AND TALK GAINS SUPPORT

Home Rule Member of Lords Says Shrapnel Would Halt Irish

London, July 29.—The Government is watching with anxiety to-day the movements of Sir Edward Carson and his M.P. supporters who having finished the session's work at Westminster have gone to Ulster to perfect their organization to resist Home Rule.

An incident yesterday at an open air meeting at Ballynahinch, County Down, indicates the volcanic character of the atmosphere.

Lord Clonmell, a Home Ruller, recently declared that a little shrapnelw ould soon drive the Ulster crowd back to their armoury.

Dealing with this utterance Earl Clan William said, amidst raptuous cheers, "All I have to say to Lord Clonmell and anyone else who indulges in such fatuous ill-considered remarks, is this:

Light Torch of Civil War.

"The first shot fired here by order of his Majesty's Government against loyal men and women of Ulster may light a torch of civil war which will not easily be quenched. Civil war is very contagious; you cannot have civil war in Ulster without civil war in England. If you have civil war in Ulster it soon will span the narrow seas that divide Ireland from England. Then those who are responsible in his Majesty's Government and their supporters will be swept into social and political seclusion, for committing the act, the most atrocious that we can conceive, that will stink in the nostrils of generations to come." The meeting was held at the foot of Edna Valley Hill, where the battle between the Crown forces and the Rebels in 1798 resulted in defeat of the Rebels.

CHINESE REBELS GAIN STRENGTH

Government Reports of Success Not All Confirmed as Details Leak Out.

Pekin, China, July 29.—5.20 p.m.—The Province of Hu-Nan seceded from the Peking Government on July 25th, according to the consular report just received here. The strength of the Hu Nan forces at present on the border of the Province of Hu Peh is variously reported as amounting to from 1,500 to 8,000 men.

General Li Yuen-Heng, Vice-President of the Republic, who is conducting operations in Central China from Wu Chang, declared recently that his forces were capable of dealing with the revolt in both Kiang-Si and Hu-Nan, but to-day's reports announce also the defection of a small body of troops on the Han River above Wu Chang.

Factions Very Much Mixed.

It is impossible to draw a border line between the rebellious and the loyal Provinces, for many cities in the rebel Provinces declare themselves loyal and some of the cities in the loyal Provinces have gone over to the rebels. It is known, however, that important rebel forces are operating in the Provinces of Kiang Su, Kiang-Si, Ngan-Hwei, Hu Nan, Fokien and Twang Tung.

Four of the Southern Provinces, Kwei Chow, Kwang Si, Yan Nan and Che Kiang, although surrounded by seceders, remain loyal, but Ho-Nan in the north, is believed to be loyal only because of its geographical position.

In the meantime active hostilities continue on the borders of Mongolia and Thibet and also in the westernmost Province of Sin Kiang.

LOCAL RIFLE RANGE IS DULY PROTECTED

Referring to a letter in The Times relating to an alleged danger existing at the new Rifle Ranges, we ascertained yesterday, from an undeniable authority that all danger from this latest addition to Peterborough's advancement of local marksmanship has been eliminated.

The public should consider that with all new enterprises there is some contretemps at first. Again, without extraordinary expense, to the local marksmen sufficient range between them and the targets, it is usua,ly necessary to include a highway in the line of fire. The season for rifle practice only exists during four months of the year and then only on certain duly defined days. Arrangements have been concluded whereby the roadway intervening will be duly patrolled during practice and sentinels placed to preclude all danger of any catastrophe.

CHANCE TO ESCAPE TOO MUCH TO MISS

First Offender, Soon Due to Be Freed, Now Fares Charge of "Breaking."

Kingston, Ont., July 29.—By prying open an old trap-door in the police station, Roland Attwood and his chum, Ross Lee, gathered in for drunkennes, made their escape.

Attwood knew the trap door was there, as he lives in the basement of the City Hall.

It led to his home, and after the two got down into the basement, they had little trouble in getting out on the street. It was attwood's first time in the lockup and in a couple of hours' time he would have beengiven his liberty. Now he and his chum will have to stand trial on a charge of breaking jail.

MUCH AMERICAN CAPITAL COMES TO CANADA THIS YEAR TO STAY

Defeat of Reciprocity Bears Rich Fruit for People of The Dominion

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, July 29.—No stronger justification of Canada's stand in defeating reciprocity and in remaining loyal to the National Policy is wanted than is given in a recent declaration by Governor Foss of Massachusetts, "All over the United States," said the Governor, "the tendency among the principal manufacturing interests is towards the establishment of plants in Canada. This movement has been going on for years and it is estimated that from three to five hundred million dollars of American capital is now invested in those Canadian plants."

They Wanted Our Market.

"American manufacturers," continued Mr. Foss, "have completely filled the American market, and their production is now greatly in excess to the domestic demand. Under these conditions the expansion of their domestic plants is impossible, and it is becoming necessary for them to curtail production. If they had a reasonable outlet for their surplus products, under reciprocal trade agreements with other countries, these industries could remain at home and grow; but, under the conditions that exist, they must remove in part to those countries whose markets they desire to reach."

At Our Expense.

Further the Massachusetts Governor said: "This movement of American manufacturers to Canada could be stopped and they could remain in this country if it were not for the absurd conditions created by our tariff legislation. We should have with Canada and other countries such trade agreements as would enable us to manufacture our goods in the United States, giving employment to American workingmen and utilizing only American capital. But such agreements would imply a recognition of reciprocity."

Must Come To It.

Mr. Foss added: "Reciprocity would meet the wide-spread demand throughout this country for a lower tariff—and would meet that demand on sane and reasonable lines, stimulating our industries and our trade. Canada, in particular, is one of our most valuable customer-nations in theory and should be so in fact. During the past ten years the rate of increase in population in Canada has proceeded far faster than in this country and her relative industrial power in growing faster than our own. If we cannot get this market through proper adjustment of our tariff policy, then we must go to Canada and establish ourselves there."

His Own Industry.

Coming down to particular instance Governor Foss has announced that the B. F. Sturtevant Co., of which he is treasurer and which manufactures engines and heating apparatus at Hyde Park, Mass., is about to remove its plant to Canada. All this would have been lost if the Fielding reciprocity pact had passed. Governor Foss was an ardent advocate of the Taft-Fielding pact.

POLACK FINED FOR CARRYING REVOLVER

A young Polack, whose name splintered three pencils, before our reporter gave it up, through an interpreter pleaded guilty to having a revolver on his person. He did not know this was against the law. He carried it because he had money. He was not allowed to carry weapons in Poland. He got the pistol in Hamburg Germany. He had only been 7 weeks in Canada. It was explained to the prisoner that the least penalty under the law is a $20. fine. This he paid. The revolver was confiscated.

WILSON PARCELS WAS COMMITTED FOR RAPE

Yesterday his Honor, Judge Edmison, County Magistrate, held court at Havelock. The case was that of Wilson Parcels, charged with having committed rape on a girl at Cordova Mines. Parcels was committed for trial. A spectator at the trial told The Times last night, that the evidence was strong enough against the prisoner to demand a trial.

DIAMOND JIM TAKES TO TANGO TROTTING

New York, July 29.—James Buchanan Brady, known to the Great White Way as "Diamond Jim" Brady, has come out in defence of the tango skirt, as well as the tango trot. "Diamond Jim" says, as a flesh reducer, nothing can touch the new fan-tango dances.

"You see for yourself," said "Diamond Jim," straighening himself up in his box at the Polo Grounds, where he watched the Giants play baseball and incidently gave a bag of peanuts to each of the 800 orphans who were guests of the day, "how much flesh I have lost. Some of it I lost last winter when I was so sick but most has gone since I began to trot."

EX SOLDIER MOIR MAY NOW BE GIVEN HIS LIBERTY

Friends Who Have Worked For Him Over a Year Sanguine of Success

Toronto, July 29.—Efforts to secure the release of "Private" William A. Moir from the Central Prison are expected by his friends to bear fruit soon. Negotiations have been quietly pursued for over a year. This morning a despatch from London, Ont., states that a Mr. Lawrence of that city has offered to enter into a bond for $5,000 for the goodconduct of Moir if he is paroled. Moir is imprisoned as a criminal lunatic, having been transferred to the Central Prison following his escape from the Hamilton Asylum, to which he was committed after his trial for the murder of Solor-Sergeant Lloyd at Wolseley Barracks on April 17th, 1908.

May Be Hindrance.

The News learned at the Central Prison this morning that Mr. Lawrence, if this despatch is correct, is acting independently in the matter as other have long been asking for the release of Moir and are beginning to be sanguine regarding the outcome. The intrusion of Mr. Lawrence is not very acceptable to the gentlemen who have been negotiating with the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, as they think the introduction of a new factor in the proceedings may prove more of a hindrance than a help.

Owing to changes in the Ministry of Justice that have occurred since the friends of Moir opened negotiations, there have been several checks encountered. The applicants have, it is understood, met with a favorable reception from the Hon. C. J. Doherty, but have now to make an application to the Ontario Government, as prisoners confined as criminal lunatics in the Central Prison are wards of this Province.

Tickets for the Printers Picnic are now on sale, and may be had of any printer. Get one and have a good day's fun.

THE WEATHER.

ENGLANDS BEST DEFENCE; SHIPS AND MORE SHIPS

Ease With Which Inferior Fleet Out-Manoeuvred Big One is Startling

London, July 29.—With the most interesting phase of the naval manoeuvres over, experts are trying today to sum up their moral.

They seem to agree that the peril of raids is more serious than was foreseen. It is apparently easier for transports to get through the naval lines of defence than was anticipated, and make a way up the frequent waterways to convenient landing places. Their aiders having done considerable damage may be able to get away without being caught.

Equally general is the conviction that land forts, however, well-armed are nodefence against raids.

Nobody seriously supports the alarmist local authorities along the east coast who already are beginning to clamor for fortifications and guns. Not even wealthy England can fortify every landing place.

Ships, Ships, Ships.

As the naval editor of The Daily Telegraph says there is only one form of protection of a lang exposed coast line, namely ships, ships, ships, preferably ships using torpedoes.

The Times suspects that operations have been more or less suspended owing to the necessity of taking in fuel.

Hitherto it has been necessary to send Welsh coal all over the world so that British men-of-war could find it wherever they wanted it.

If it remained in store long it deteriorated and was little better than the most ordinary stuff when put in furnaces.

When, however, ships can use oil, they will find it afloat or can go to stations as before where they went for coal, but with this difference that the longer it has been in stock the better it is for guel.

TORONTO'S GIFT TO HAWKINS SIX HUNDRED DOLLARS CASH

It Will Help Him on the Way to Own His Own Home--Board of Control Unanimously Approve Suggestion--Public Reception as Well

Toronto, July 29.—Six hundred dollars to be applied to purchasing a house will be the city's most tangible piece of recognition to Pte. Hawkins, the King's prize winner. Besides this, the municipality will tender an official reception to her soldier-man.

At the meeting of the Board of Control today Col. Currie and Major Darling of the 48th Highlanders appeared to consult as to what form the expression of the civic appreciation should take.

"We think that it ought to be something substantial," said Col. Currie.

"Useful other than ornamental," supplemented Controller Church.

"Just so," replied the colonel, and the board nodded approval.

Conferred With Clerk.

The military men were instructed to confer with the City Clerk and come as soon as they had come to an arrangement.

It was not more than ten minutes before the suggestion was completed and Col. Currie came back with one of the officials from the City Clerk's Department. A short conference with the Acting Mayor then—"The suggestion is to supply a grant of $600 to starting Pte. Hawkins on the way toward owning a house of his own," said Controller Church.

Unanimous For Once.

"I'll support that," said Controller Foster.

"Will you?" Controller Church asked Controller O'Neill.

"Me? Sure I will," said the latter, and so the matter was settled.

"He's a good boy," said Col. Currie, "and he takes good care of himself. He couldn't be an athlete unless he did."

"Of course there'll be the civic reception besides," added Controller Church. "The regiment are going to supplement the grant, of course, and many citizens will probably contribute as well."

It is not known yet when the Toronto hero is coming back.

JUST JUMPED INTO THE BAY

But It Took Two Men to Rescue Unknown From Watery Grave.

Toronto, July 29.—Considerable mystery surrounds an elderly man who jumped into the Bay at the Island Line dock this morning about nine o'clock. The man's action was witnessed by Alex. Dunkin, of 190 Bain avenue, and Ethelbert Brooks, of 191 Sumach street, and by another man, who went to the rescue of the unknown and brought him out, making his escape before his name could be secured.

The recue was not effected without difficulty, as the person who attempted suicide is a big man, about six feet in height. He was well dressed in a grey suit, and has in his pocket a key to Room No. 223, at the Grand Union Hotel. Papers found in his pocket gave the name of O. L. Stevens but there is no person of that name registered in the hotel, and he is thought to have gone there under an assumed name. The man was in too weak a condition to speak very much.

BULGARIANS CAPITAL CUT OFF FROM THE REST OF THE WORLD

Servians Sever Railway Connections of Sofia and City is Now Threatened With Famine--Appeal to Roumania

Belgrade, Servia, July 29.—The investment of Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, is complete, the last connecting link of the railway having been cut by the Servian troops. The Bulgarian forces concentrated in Sofia, as well as the inhabitants of the capital, are threatened with famine, and the Bulgarian Government has, therefore, asked Roumania to consent to the opening of the railroad line running from Varna, on the Black Sea, to Sofia, in order that provisions may be brought into the city. It is expected that Roumania will consent to this arrangement.

BASEBALL

A large crowd of fans were present yesterday at London to witness the game between the team of that town and the Petes. The boys are getting a little better support from the fans now than they have had in the past. The Mayor of London has declared to-day a public holiday and a big Booster Day is on the card.

The Petes put up a great game yesterday, with Tracey in the box they kept the Bronchos just where they wanted them. The hitting was exceptionally good as was also the fielding. The score stood 14 to 6 in favor of the Petes.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 25c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered so as to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 25c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 365 George St., directly opposite Cressman's store.

NOT A LOVE LETTER

BY GEORGE MUNSON.

John Benson rose hurriedly from the breakfast table and plunged for his hat; then he plunged for his wife. "Good-by, dearest," he said, clasping her as tightly as he could, considering that he was holding a derby and a bag full of office papers. "I must catch that 8:27."

"Good-by, John," said Mary Benton, kissing him fondly. "I do wish you didn't have to hurry away to that old office," she added, pouting.

"It won't be for long," said her husband. "If our great new advertising scheme goes through we'll flood the country with notices of our new patent. Everybody will read them. It's my own idea. Can't stop to tell you now. Good-by." And, with a hurried final kiss, he was through the door and hastening toward the station.

Mary sighed a little—then smiled. She and John had been married only six months and they were very fond of each other. There was only one cloud upon her happiness. John's devotion to his office was even greater than to his home. But it would not be for long, he assured her. Once his scheme went through they would move into a big house and keep two servants.

She put away the breakfast things; then, still smiling at the thought of her husband's haste, she went into the little room in which he worked at nights upon the new advertising plan. A piece of paper lay in one corner; it had evidently fluttered out of his desk and fallen there, unnoticed. She picked it up and, glancing at it, felt her heart throb painfully. She could hardly read the words that danced before her eyes.

It was a love letter, and it began: "My dearest, sweetest Jack." It was typewritten—evidently that the writer might remain immune against discovery, and for the same reason it was signed "Bunny." And it was just the sort of foolish mixture of prattle and endearment that an ignorant young girl would write.

Worst of all, it was headed 2347 Andover street—her husband's business address. Mary saw now why he was in such haste to get to his office; why he came home so late on various pleas. And the date of the letter was only a week before.

She tried to read it, but the mixture of shop talk and loving phrases was too nauseating. Mingled with allusions to business affairs were references to somebody who must be "kept in the dark"—herself, doubtless. And "Jack" had taken her out to dinner on the 29th—that was the evening when he did not come home till eleven. "Jack" had given her a ring. "Jack" was her everlasting sweetheart.

Mary Benton had the quick temper which accompanies many lovable natures. She flung the letter into a corner and packed her bag. She was determined to go home to her mother. She would leave no message—merely the letter on the table. She picked it up and smoothed out the wrinkles. Then, at the door, she reflected. No, she would go down to the office and confront them—John and his absurd stenographer. She pictured her as a little, blonde, bold-faced, mincing creature, just the type that would catch most men. But John—John, who had always been so loving and kind! By now she was crying as hard as she could cry. She gave way to her grief without restraint for fifteen minutes. Then at last she composed herself, dabbed some cologne upon her eyes, put the letter in her bag and started down town. She would be very quiet and very calm and give the woman no occasion to triumph over her. She would request a few moments of John's time, would walk in, lay down the letter, ask him if he had anything to say, and then go home. She would never return—never. By this time she had begun to cry again. She saw the people in the street car looking at her. She wiped her eyes furtively, and by now her grief had given way to a fixed, steely anger, so that she was quite resolute in her purpose.

It was nearly eleven o'clock before the slow-moving car reached Andover street. She might have taken the train. But she wanted to spin out the journey as long as possible. There was always the hope that there might be some explanation, and she was living in that hope, although she thought that hope was gone. She tried to find excuses for her husband and could think of none. She took the letter out of her bag and looked at it again. No, there could be no excuse; this woman was intimately acquainted with the details of John's business. That angered her the more, those business allusions. If it had been wholly sentimentality—well, John was very handsome, she reflected with a sort of pride. She would not have blamed the woman so much. But—but—she must not cry any more.

She got down from the car and entered the dreary office building, high up on the seventh floor of which John had his business quarters. She had never been there since their marriage. She knew that he had a bookkeeper, a stenographer and an office boy. When she went in she saw the same office boy and bookkeeper; but there was a new stenographer, a little fluffy-haired thing, who chewed gum brazenly. Her heart sank. Was it possible that John was attracted by that creature?

"Why, Mary!" John was at the door, looking at her with a puzzled expression. He was holding her hands. "Mary! What is wrong, dear?"

She could not help her tears. "Send that—woman away," she said in a faltering voice, and the stenographer withdrew softly, smiling a little. She had seen men's wives go to their husbands' offices before. Mary Benton entered, put down her bag and, standing like a recording angel, flung down the letter silently. John Benton read it and suddenly began to laugh uproariously.

"John! You are laughing!" exclaimed his wife.

"Read it aloud, my dear," her husband answered. "So you thought—you thought—"

"John, what do you mean? Can you offer any excuse at all? What is it?"

John Benton read solemnly:

"My dearest, sweetest Jack—When are you going to take me out to dinner again, as you did on the 29th sweetheart? I miss you every hour of the day—more than I miss Hairoff, the new patent scissors for cutting your own hair. When I see my brother's Hairoff I think of your own dark, lustrous locks. I—"

"Oh, pshaw!" said John, throwing the letter down. "That's a mimeographed circular, Mary; we're flooding the country with them. Everybody will read them and want a pair. Look at those stacks of letters up there, dearest—they're all the same letter, all those thousands of them. And you thought—you really thought—"

But Mary was past thinking now; she was in his arms, and her tears were those of relief, happiness and humiliation.

COMB INSIDE BRUSH

Slides Into Cavity That Runs Along Back of Latter

A truly pocket comb and brush designed by a North Carolina man. In the back on the hair brush is a narrow longitudinal cavity just big enough to receive a comb that runs the length of it. A hinged clip at the opening of this cavity keeps the comb from falling out when it is not in use. The handle of the comb is also removable, unscrewing at will so that it will readily be seen that the article is a convenient one for traveling and can even be carried in the pocket without discomfort. In these sanitary days, when states are passing laws against the use of public drinking cups and other similar articles, it is surely time to consider the public brush and comb, which must form a home for many of the germs that are responsible for skin diseases. Pocket toilet articles should be welcomed.

HOW TO LIVE LONG

Frederic Harrison's Golden Rules—People Eat Too Much

Five golden rules of health were given recently by Mr. Frederic Harrison, author, critic, bibliophile, ex-professor, barrister, historian, traveler, and amateur gardener, on his eighty-first birthday, celebrated at his home at Hawkhurst, Kent:

(1) Abstain from tobacco, spirits, made dishes, and all such dreadful things. I am satisfied with a little bit of mutton and rice pudding.

(2) Rise from a meal with an appetite. I believe people eat too much.

(3) Walk every day for two hours. This I am going to do as soon as I get through a pile of letters and telegrams from Florence and Rome. I am too old to play at tennis, and golf is too slow.

(4) Sleep eight hours. People cannot sleep who smoke themselves black in the face, eat too much, and have not walked enough.

(5) More important than all—be content with what you have got. Take things quietly.

Buy Tickets for Sun Baths

The sun bath is said to be so popular at present in Germany that in several cities one can buy a ticket for a sun bath just as in Canada one buys a ticket for a bath in the surf. The sun bath ticket entitles the holder to a room for disrobing, a bathing suit and a "place in the sun."

Special
Extra Mild Ale

Is light, mild and satisfying. Strong in positive food values—nourishing and invigorating—a mild, gentle stimulant.

Brewed in a model brewery, to meet the needs of the home—the family—the athlete—or anyone in need of a food-tonic.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The name Shamrock IV will at least register Sir Thomas' perseverance.

The American with mines down in Mexico is willing to lay all his neighbors' sons upon the altar of Uncle Sam's responsibilit

The British Government, according to the recent statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty still counts upon Canada to do her share, even in spite of Sir Wilfrid.

The Hon. Ted Roosevelt says he doesn't like people who are "magniloquently vague." Maybe so; but they are preferable to those persons who are incessantly vociferous.

The Federal Government is going to beautify the Canadian Capital on a scale commensurate with the greatness of the Dominion. It won't have to be called "the Washington of the North," either.

It appears that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been laid up with a cold, following a political mission to Montreal. There is some danger of the ailment settling in his feet and preventing the projected autumn tour of Ontario.

"Don't wear too many clothes," is the hot weather advice a prominent Toronto doctor gives, and the women are acting on it, apparently, because they are more given to following a doctor's advice than men.

The kind-hearted man who picked up an abandoned baby on a railroad train was compelled to drive about Boston for three hours before he could find an institution to take the infant off his hands. It is a safe bet that the next time he finds a lone baby on a train he will let the car cleaners handle the situation.

IRELAND AND ULSTER

As in days gone by, at recurring intervals, Ireland is again right in the limelight and through the medium of the cable the attention of the world day by day is focussed on Ulster, which has come to be looked upon as a storm centre.

Latest advices seem to indicate that the solution of Home Rule to the satisfaction of all concerned becomes more and more difficult and there is good ground for hazarding the opinion that the Asquith administration will follow in the footsteps of Gladstone's Government, and to use an "Irishism, "Settle this matter by not dealing with it" for there seems little doubt that, when in the last analysis it comes to a showdown at the polls, they will be in the minority.

It is a trite saying that the looker-on sees most of the game and in the light of past history it is difficult to see how people who have so little in common as the two factions in Ireland can arrive at that state of mutual sympathy for one another which must be the basis of their union, just by the passing of an act of Parliament.

Quit Sniffing,
Stop Sneezing,
Cure Your Cold Now!

Thousands of Cases Prove the Quickest Cure is Catarrhozone.

When germs attack the lining of the nose, make you sneeze and gag—when later on they infect the bronchial tubes—how can you follow them with a cough syrup?

You can't do it—that's all. Cough syrups go to the stomach—that's why they fail.

But Catarrhozone goes everywhere—gets right after the germs — kills them—heals the soreness—cures the inflammation—makes Catarrh disappear.

"Nothing I have ever used gives the warm, soothing sensation of Catarrhozone," writes Isabel Fry, of Seguin Falls, Ont. "I was in a frightful way with catarrh of the nose and throat—had droppings, hard breathing, bad breath and indigestion. Catarrhozone relieved at once and cured me thoroughly. It is invaluable in colds, sore throat and bronchial trouble." Not difficult for Catarrhozone to cure, because it contains the essences of pine balsams and other antiseptics that simply mean death to catarrh. Large size costs $1.00, and contains two months treatment; smaller size, 25c. and 50c. all druggists and storekeepers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE OLD, MISERABLE WAY.

Reports from Europe indicate the renewal on the part of Turkey of an attempt to recover the territory lost to Bulgaria in the recent war. It wou,d be only natural for the Turk to see if he could not pick up some grains of corn while the Balkan allies fight each other.

But the worst of it is that Turkey is said to be on the war path with the secret backing of Servia and Greece. Peoples who ought to be the warmest friends prove to be the exemplars of hatred to such a degree that some of them would rather see the Turk back again in control of millions now free from the shocking rule of the Moslem than negotiate a fair settlement of all rival claims set up by the various allies since the end of the struggle with the Turk.

The idea of the united states of the Balkans is not; even a shadow of a shade in actual substance. The envious and even hateful disposition that has been seen in the Balkans time out of mind seems no less conspicuous than ever. They appear to have learned one lesson in the hard school of history. They retain the elements of discord that have paralized them for ages. Not one government among them stands on its own feet or retains its position except with the consent of the greater powers.

Yet they quarrel among themselves and go to war with each other as readily as in the old days when they first fought themselves into impotence and then were all alike made the victim of the conqueror from Asia. The miserable old habit is too firmly set in them to be abandoned.

CANADA'S DUTY PLAIN

The Toronto Globe indulges in the following:

> "Every forty-five days during the next eighteen months "a new Super-Dreadnought "will be added to the British "navy. Is not that fast enough to end Mr. Borden's "emergency?" ...

This exultation on the part of The Globe that an added burden has been placed upon the backs of the British people which the Canadians were willing to share, comes badly at the present time. The British people have always treated Canada generously in the way of investments. During the first six months of the present year Canada got new issues on th London market to the extent of over $500,000,000. Could there be better proof ol the financial advantage of membership, to put it even at its lowest basis, in the British Empire? It is a grand thing for a new country like Canada to have close relations sentimentally with the greatest banker in the world — the British nation.

But the Liberal policy is selfish and cannot commend itself to the common sense of the Canadian people. Something must and will be done to show Britain that Canada is yet within the Empire, and willing to share some of the burdens of that relationship

CANADA AND IMPERIAL NAVY.

The first lord of the admiralty in his statement to the House concerning the shipbuilding programme, indicates confidence in the attitude of the people of Canada on naval aid to the Mother Country. The cable report says:

> "As a result of the rejection, of the Canadian naval bill, the British Government," said Mr. Churchill, "would accelerate the construction of three warships which would therefore be ready in the third quarter of 1915."
> Mr. Churchill added that he did not think that the question of the Canadian contribution to the defence of the Empire was closed and ther was no reason to suppose that Great Britain would be left to face emergencies in the future unaided. There was an overwhelming concensus o opinion in Canada, he declared, that early action should be taken in one form or another.

And Mr. Churchill is correct in his assumption. There IS an overwhelming concensus of opinion in Canada that we shall discharge our share in the obligation of all units of the Empire to contribute to the country's defense. He is right when he insists that the question is not closed merely because of a supine Senate yielding to the partisan advice of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. A very considerable majority of even the Liberal part are in sympathy with the resolute attitude of Mr. Borden on this subject. The people as a whole are sound in their determination to bear a reasonable share in the naval burdens of the Mother Country. A few time servers, under the guidance of the man whose disloyalty has wrecked their party, are responsible for putting the people of Canada in this humiliating position. Mr. Churchill is quite right when he declares that the Dominion will do its duty to the Mother Country, in spite of this delay.

Lipton a Great Club Man

Sir Thomas Lipton is probably the greatest clubman in the world, for he is honorary member of nearly a hundred clubs in America alone, besides a very great many in Great Britain. Yachting by no means claims all his sporting attention. In later years he has taken up motoring. He likes gardening, too. Cricket, golf, tennis, and bowls also come within his purview, but he is not a great theatre-goer.

War on the Mosquito

Italy's war on the malarial mosquito has reduced the percentage of fever cases in infected districts from 37.12 in 1900 to 13.36 last year.

HE HAS PLAYED MANY PARTS

Before Recognition Came John Masefield Was a Sailor, American Farmer and Clerk.

John Masefield, whose poem, "The Everlasting Mercy," won him the Edmond de Polignac prize of the Royal Society of Literature, was born a little more than thirty years ago near Ledbury, in the west of England. Mr. Masefield has had a varied career. After leaving school he went to sea in the merchant marine (he has since written some fine, breezy verse on the ships and deep waters), spent a few years on an American farm, and subsequently became a clerk in a city office. Gradually his genius as a writer became recognized, and in the last few years his output has been enormous—dramatic plays, essays, novels and poems coming from his pen in rapid succession.

THE HORSE'S COLLAR

It is a crime often laid to the shoeing smiths that they fit the horse's foot to the shoe, rather than the shoe to the foot, but just as serious a crime and often more serious is frequently committed by the horse's own r with respect to the fitting of his collar. Always fit the collar to the shoulder, never the shoulder to the collar. It is a serious mistake to use one collar for two or three different horses with the same adjustment. The horse's shoulder bears the brunt of the work and the collar is the most important part of the harness. A collar which fits badly is a common cause of pain to the animal, sore shoulders and sore necks. It is impossible to estimate the loss to the horse's efficiency due to the results of ill-fitting collars. Every work-horse should have his own collar just as every man has his own shoes.

NO MIDDLEMAN THERE

Sacramento, California, Plans Up-to-Date Market for Consumer

The city of Sacramento, California, has taken the first step for a free public market. It will be located in the new agricultural district across the river from Sacramento and is intended to be a meeting-place for the farmer with his produce to sell directly to the citizens. Located immediately adjacent to the river landings and present wholesale warehouse district, it is figured in 1920, when the metropolitan area of Sacramento should be much over 250,000 population, that this market at West Sacramento will be in the most central location that could be wished. In designing the the market, the architects have had in mind the experience of Rochester, Albany, Montreal, Buffalo, Minneapolis, Paris, and other cities of France and England.

True Type of Great Soldier.

One of the war correspondents in the Balkans writes of General Putnik, commander-in-chief of the Servian forces, a military genius: "I was struck by the extraordinary likeness which he bore to General Grant, both in feature and build. Perhaps, however, if the reader of these lines will recall what Andrew Carnegie is like, then he will have an excellent idea of the appearance of the Servian generalissimo who has organized the marvelously successful campaign against the Turk. Placid and gentle eyed, one of the kindest of men, I should think, he is adored by his staff and by all ranks."

Independence Mining and Development Co., Ltd.

Shares at 40c.

(Par Value $1.00—Non-Assessable and Non-Personal Liability).

For Further Development Work in the Manitoba Gold Fields

The pioneer work in this mine has all been done. The purpose of the present issue is to provide further funds for the complete opening to a depth of 200 feet of the 6-foot rock quartz vein now exposed, prior to the establishment of a refining mill on the property.

Independence quartz down to 60 foot level now exposed assays from $15 to $80 and more per ton. This ore can be milled and refined for $6 per ton. Reports on this property and the Rice Lake Gold Fields are unanimously and highly favorable.

We believe these shares at the price are the most attractive speculative investment to be found in the mining world to-day.

Peary's Journey.

Admiral Robert E. Peary was in the smoking compartment of a train leaving New Orleans for the north. A fussy young man, evidently a commercial traveler on his first trip, came in and sought to make conversation.

"Well," he said, "we're in for a long, tedious journey."

"Yes," answered Peary.

"I'm going clear through to Atlanta," observed the young man

"Indeed," said Peary.

"Yes; clear through to Atlanta. Long, tiresome trip, too."

"Yes," observed Peary.

"Maybe you're not going so far as I am," said the young man.

"Maybe not."

"How far are you going?"

"Oh," said Peary, "I'm only going to the North Pole!"

MOTOR CAR.

Galveston, Tex., July 29.—With many high-powered cars entered with speedy pilots to man them it is expected that new world's straighaway records will be hung up at the coming Galveston's beach meet. Although the sprint records for the mile and two-mile distances now held by Burman probably will not be eclipsed, there are some long-distance marks which undoubtedly will fall. The four and a half hours' continuation free-for-all, which is to run three consecutive days, and for which a prize of $5000 is offered, has enlisted a number of the fastest long-distance cars now racing and world's records are bound to be hung up.

GOLF.

Philadelphia, July 29.—Forty-five golfers, the youngest more than 55 years old, contested in the second annual ancient and honorable tournament of the Philadelphia Golf Association today on the links of the Spring Haven Country Club. O. B. Dickinson won the medal for the lowest net score, covering the course in 88 strokes and receiving a handicap of 18. Herman Wendell, whose handicap was six, had the lowest gross score, 79. Six contestants tied for second honors with net scores of 73.

TURF.

James Murray, one of Canada's most popular horsemen, is dead at Toronto as the result of an accident which occurred last Tuesday afternoon, when a runaway horse belonging to the Robt. Simpson Co., crashed into a buggy driven by Mr. Murray at the corner of Chicora avenue and Avenue road.

The late James Murray was born in Perthshire, Scotland, and when a young man he went south to London, where he joined the big horse exchange firm of Carter, Patterson & Co. He came to Canada about 32 years ago and became a partner with T. A. Crow the firm name taking the style of Crow & Murray.

CRICKET.

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 29.—The Australian cricketers defeated a picked team of colored players by a score of 345 to 223. The Australians made all their runs in the first inning. Collins batting 218 of them. The local players made 121 runs in their first innings, and 12 in the second.

BASEBALL

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Samuel Agnew, catcher for the St. Louis Americans, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball in the Washington-St. Louis game yesterday, was rushed last night to a local hospital. It was found that a bone beneath the left eye had been broken, causing slight concussion of the brain, and the player had suffered several hemorrhages. The physicians said his condition was serious.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 29.—Connie Mack, the "wizard manager," of the Athletics, handed out a little American league pennant dope today, the main point of which is that the Athletics have a walkaway for flag this year.

"This talk about Washington and Chicago beating out the Athletics is all bosh," said Mack. "Why, if Callahan's men had ten games ahead of the Athletics my team would win the pennant. Washing is the better of the two, but it hasn't the class to beat us for the flag, even if the teams were tied."

MAT.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 29.—Chris Jordan of Cleveland last night won the middleweight wrestling title of the world's champion by defeating Mike Yokol, of Salt Lake, former champion, in their first match here.

Yokol secured the first fall in three minutes and 45 seconds. The two then roughed each other for an hour and 33 minutes without a fall. Yokol was thrown from the mat heavily several times and after a hard tumble was exhausted and refused to come back on the mat again. The match was then awarded to Jordan.

RING.

New York, July 29.—Referee Draycott who officiated in the Abe Attel-Willie Beecher ten round bout at Far Rockaway last night was able to be about today, but was not looking for another engagement in which the former featherweight champion was to be one of the contestants. Abe was a bit wild in his swings during the go with Beecher and he all but put Draycott out. In the fifth round a wild right landed on the referee's jaw and he went down with a thump. In the sixth a similar blow caught Draycott. He was groggy, but came up fresh for the seventh round. During the eighth round Atell was showing great speed in running backward from Beecher's attack when he rammed Draycott amidships. The referee went down, but refused to take the count.

If a decision had been rendered it would probably have been decided that Atell had the best of his bout with the referee, but he lost to Beecher.

THIS CANADIAN BOY PILED UP A FORTUNE

Ovide Colombe Was Known in the Klondike as "Blowback"—Has a History

A young French-Canadian, Ovide Colombe of Spokane, Wash., and Calgary, Alberta, who is familiarly known in the West as "Blowback," has an interesting history. In 1896 when he was but 14 years old, he ran away from his home in Quebec City and landed at Vancouver, B.C., where he joined a party that went up into the Klondike. He remained in Dawson City about two years and came out with a small-sized fortune, which he lost in a very short time in Seattle. Blowback was game, however, as he went back into the old country again, traveling over three thousand miles by dog train, and young as he was he established a freighting business, having generally about thirty dogs, which were worth anywhere from $150 to $800 each. He made money rapidly, and at the expiration of four years' time hauling freight with his dog teams, he came out with a hundred thousand dollars. This he retained, investing nearly all of it in Spokane, and Calgary.

Double Cause of Death

James F. Ward, engineer at a saw mill in Sault Ste Marie, was killed in a peculiar manner. While winding tape about an electric light wire he received a shock which hurled him into a pit 14 feet deep. When picked up he was dead. Either shock or fall alone would probably have been fatal.

LOUIS OLIVER TAILLON

It is probable that not many of the younger generation of business men know the venerable Postmaster of the City of Montreal. Montreal's postmaster, with his full white beard, heavy white moustache, and strong face, is still a fine figure of the fighting statesman. In his prime he was one of the most effective political fighters of his time. Gifted with a ringing bass voice and a ready eloquence, he could hold his own on any platform, and stirring indeed were the political campaigns in the province when he took to the field. He began life as a lawyer, and was one of the leaders of the Bar before he plunged for good into politics. He held the position at one time of batonnier of the Bar, and was offered but declined a seat on the Bench. An ardent patriot, he took a leading part in fostering the national pride and self-respect of the French Canadian race, and himself set a fine example in a strenuous, ambitious life that commanded the respect of friend and foe alike.

In his fighting days he wore an exceptionally long and sweeping beard that reached not far from his knees, and made him a conspicuous figure. Sir Wilfrid Laurier told a funny story attaching to that beard. At one meeting in rural Quebec at which Mr. Taillon was the chief speaker, a member of the audience kept interrupting. He wanted to ask a question. The chairman appealed to him to be quiet. Mr. Taillon asked him again and again to keep his question till the end of his speech, when he would be only too glad to answer anything he liked to ask him.

No, no, that would not do. He wanted to be answered now. The audience took sides, and as the meeting looked like being broken up, Mr. Taillon waived the point, and told the man to put his question at once

"I want you to answer one question," said the man, "that is all."

"Yes, yes," said Mr. Taillon. "What is it"

"Well," he said, "I've been puzzling my head to know how you manage when you go to bed at night. Do you put your beard inside the bedclothes, or outside?"

The meeting rocked with laughter, in which Mr. Taillon joined, and not all the efforts of all the speakers could get the people sober enough again to listen to serious politics.

Agonies of Gall Stones

SANOL is the only Reliable and Rapid Cure for this Painful and Dangerous Disease

There are hundreds of sufferers from Gall Stones who will be glad to know of the great results being derived from the use of SANOL: the remedy that is safe, sure and remarkably rapid in its action. It removes the necessity of an operation; relief comes promptly, the stones being dissolved or passed off in the stool without danger to the patient and without pain.

We have many testimonials from people who have thus been cured. We are able to give name and addresses of numbers of these, and will gladly do so to all who enquire.

The following from the letter of a well-known Toronto gentleman:

"Replying to your letters, I followed your instructions and purchased two bottles of SANOL, you might send me as much of the mixture as I need. If I can, in any way, help the sale of SANOL, and by doing so help some other unfortunate, I will be only too pleased to do so, as I consider it the best remedy made."

SANOL is made only by the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LTD., Winnipeg, Man.

INDIANS HAD WIRELESS

System of Crude Instruments Worked by Amazon Natives

The Catuquinaru Indians, in the valley of the Amazon, have long had a wireless telegraphic system which enables them to communicate with each other. The machine consists of a hollow piece of hard palmwood filled with sand, rubber, pieces of wood and hide, and fixed in a socket of sand, hide, resin and rubber. This is struck with a club of wood coated with rubber and hide.

One of these instruments is usually hidden in each habitation or malocca and the maloccas are about a mile distant one from the other, and all on a direct line north and south. The instruments are in tune with each other, and, when struck with a club the neighboring ones to the north and south, if not above a mile distant, respond to or echo the blow. To this an Indian answers by striking the instrument in the malocca with which it is desired to communicate, which blow in turn is echoed by the instrument originally struck. Each malocca has its own series of signals.

STREET NOISES IN PEKIN

Street Vendors Raise Bedlam of Sound

An analysis of the street noises of Pekin has been made by the correspondent of an American newspaper and ought to be useful when the anti-noise crusade reaches the Orient.

The great cause of confusion he finds is the various street vendors, each of whom is armed with a noise-producing instrument by which he advertises his trade. The barber has two prongs of steel through which he draws a spike and thus makes a loud whir. The seller of sweetmeats holds in his right hand two brass cups which he jangles together. The buyer of old clothes taps a small drum with a bit of bamboo, getting by this combination a plunk, plunk, that attracts trade. The man who has wicker baskets to sell beat half a gourd with a drumstick, the clothes seller swings a drum which has two bits of metal attached to it by strings, the toy dealer strikes a brass gong of a peculiarly penetrating tone, the knife grinder claps three blocks of iron together and the seller of charcoal announces his coming by a repeated tap, tap on a block of wood.

The watchman introduces a little variety. He is armed with a wooden drum, which he taps in different measure to mark the different hours of the night.—New York Post.

Will Tattoed on Man's Arm

The will found in a scrap-book which came prominently before the Dumfries Sheriff's Court, is one of many that have been discovered in unlooked-for places. Even Mr. Rider Haggard's story of the will tattoed on a woman's back is nearly equalled by the case in which a dead man's arm, carefully preserved, was produced in the probate court. On the flesh appeared the last wishes of the testator concerning his estate. A lawyer, who is chiefly concerned with will cases, gave a representative various instances of strange places where will were found.

ESKIMO DOG FARMS

How Mrs. Scott Breeds and Trains Dogs for Arctic Exploration.

At Grove Park, one of the suburbs of London, Mrs. Scott conducts a very interesting dog farm. Her specialty is Eskimo dogs, which she breeds and trains for the market. The market is not very large, but it is sufficient to make it worth her while to raise and train the best possible Eskimo dogs. It is not the ordinary dog market. It is the market for Eskimo dogs which are trained for Arctic exploration. Her kennels have only pure blooded animals of carefully selected stock, and from earliest puppyhood she trains them in how to eat and how to work. When she gets through with an Eskimo dog the animal is not nearly so ferocious as one that has just "growed up" in the surroundings of an Eskimo village.

They adapt themselves quickly to new masters and they have acquired good eating manners, so that they are not so likely to attack the cupboard or fresh game. Mrs. Scott feeds her animals no meat except pemmican and dried fish brought from Norway; a large part of the diet is especially prepared biscuit. She has supplied trained dogs for a number of Arctic and Antarctic expeditions.

Edison's Cigars.

Thomas Alva Edison, the great inventor, is a great smoker, but he becomes so absorbed in his work that he frequently forgets all about his cigars.

Once he complained to his tobacconist of the rapidity with which his "weeds" disappeared, suspecting that some one about him had got into the habit of helping himself.

The tobacconist agreed to supply the inventor with some specially "faked cigars.

"I'll fill 'em up with horsehair and hard rubber," said the tradesman. "Then you'll find there will not be so many missing."

Several weeks thereafter Mr. Edison met his tobacconist and began rating him roundly.

"Look here," said the great man. "I thought you were going to fix me up with some faked cigars."

RULES FOR HOUSEWIVES

Management and Forethought Necessary to Economize Time

After closely studying myself and others at work, and noticing the motions we all perform in the household tasks, says a writer on the subject, I grouped the causes which make for the larger part of the inefficiency of housewives as follows:

1. The worker does not have all the needful tools or utensils at hand before her when she begins to work. Therefore—

2. She wastes time and effort walking to, hunting for, or fetching ingredients, tools, or materials she neglected to have at hand when she began the task.

3. She stops in the middle of one task to do something else quite unrelated.

4. She lowers the efficiency of good work by losing time putting tools or work away, generally due to poor arrangement of kitchen, pantry, and closets.

5. She uses a poor tool, or a wrong one; or works at a table, sink, ironing-board, or molding-board of the wrong height from the floor.

6. She loses time because she does not keep sufficient supplies on hand, and because she does not keep her tools and utensils in good condition.

Just see, for instance, how much time a woman wastes by using the wrong tools.

The right tool, the tool that will do the work in the shortest time, is almost as important as are methods that will save time and labor. I say almost as important, because the right methods and working without waste motion are the more essential part of any efficiency progress. No matter how useful a labor-saving device may be, if a woman doesn't plan her work, doesn't know how to work so that she can use the right tool the right way, so that she can get the most out of the tool, the value of the device is lessened.

Too many women put too much emphasis on the tool and too little emphasis on themselves. If the woman is inefficient how can she use a tool except in an inefficient way? I believe that woman's liberation from drudgery in housework lies not so much in tools and devices as in her own improved advancement in methods of work.

But even if a woman has the finest tools or newest devices to help her she must plan for and arrange her tasks in a very definite manner. She cannot get the greatest worth from the most perfect tool unless she has planned the right time to use it in relation to other tasks.

ARCTIC KINDNESS

Stefansson, the Explorer, Tells of Generosity of Eskimos

Stefansson, the explorer, tells of the remarkable hospitality with which he and his party were received by one of the strange tribes of Eskimos whom they encountered, says Harper's. "When we had entered the house the boiled pieces of seal meat had already been taken out of the pot and lay steaming on a sideboard. On being assured that my tastes in food were not likely to differ from theirs, my hostess picked out for me the lower joint of a seal's foreleg, squeezed it firmly between her hands to make sure nothing should drip from it, and handed it to me, along with her own copper-bladed knife; the next most desirable piece was similarly squeezed and handed to her husband and others in turn to the rest of the family. When this had been done one extra piece was set aside in case I should want a second helping, and the rest of the boiled meat was divided into four portions, with the explanation to me that there were four families in the village who had no fresh seal meat. The little adopted daughter of the house, a girl of seven or eight, had not begun to eat with the rest of us, for it was her task to take a small wooden platter and carry the four pieces of boiled meat to the four families who had none of their own to cook. I thought to myself that the pieces sent out were a good deal smaller than the individual portions we were eating, and that the recipients would not get a square meal; but I learned later that night from my two companions that four similar presents had been sent out from each of the houses where they were eating, and I know now that every house in the village in which any cooking was done had likewise sent four portions so that the aggregate must have been a good deal more than the recipients could eat at one time. During our meal presents of food were also brought us from other houses. Each housewife apparently knew exactly what the others had put in their pots and whoever had anything to offer that was a little bit different would send some of that to the others, so that every minute or two a small girl messenger appeared in our door with a platter of something to contribute to our meal."

PRAISES THE ROSE

A Flower for Which Canada is Well Adapted

E. T. Cooke, of the National Rose Society of England, in an address in Toronto said: "Canada can grow roses; that has been proved by many a skilful amateur. To-day there are rose gardens here which can hold their own with those across the sea. It is our aim to increase the love of her beauty and to scatter rose gardens of all kinds, large and small, throughout the length and breadth of the land. The rose is a wild flower of the mountains and plains of Canada. The wind carries over many a moorland and mountainside the fragrance of sweet briar, and the glorious crimson from a thousand lips of the beautiful rose Lucida is seen in rough places when the cool light of early winter days floods over the land; therefore, let us intertwine the rose among our emblematic maple leaves, which form for it a fitting surrounding."

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

TENDERS FOR DREDGING.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed, "Tender for Dredging, Little Current," will be received until 4.00 P M., on Tuesday, August 12, 1913, for dredging required at Little Current, Ontario.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of the tenderers.

Combined specification and form of tender can be obtained on application to the Secretary, Department of Public Works, Ottawa. Tenders must include the towing of the plant to and from the work. Dredges and tugs not owned and registered in Canada shall not be employed in the performance of the work contracted for. Contractors must be ready to begin work within thirty days after the date they have been notified of the acceptance of their tender.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, for five per cent. (5 per cent) of the contract price, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, July 25, 1913.

Steel Pontoon Gate Lifter.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Steel Pontoon Gate Lifter, Trent Canal" will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, July 29th, 1913.

Plans, specifications and form of contract to be entered into can be seen on or after this date at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms, unless there are attached the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $1,000.00 made payable to the order of the Minister of Railways and Canals, must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The cheque of the successful tenderer will be held as security, or part security, for the due fulfilment of the contract to be entered into.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,

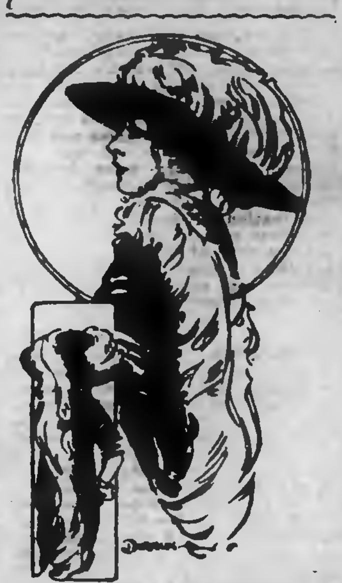
FOREIGN BODY IN EAR

Children frequently put into their ears pebbles, beans, cherry stones, etc. Some insects find their way into the ear passage and create severe pain by their struggles. The insect is no respecter of age and frequently finds its way into the ear of a grown-up. Smooth, non-irritating bodies do no particular harm for some time. The most serious damage results often in the hurried, unskilled manner of attempting to remove such by persons who act immediately and incautiously in the belief that the removal must be made at once. Insects, of course, should be killed without delay. The simplest remedy is sweet oil, which should be dropped into the ear. Castor oil, linseed or even glycerin may be used. Then the insect should be removed in half an hour by syringing. When trying to remove a solid body turn the ear to be treated downward. Pull it outward and backward, rubbing the skin just in front of the opening into the ear with the other hand. The object may fall out. If this is not effective syringing may be tried. Supposing this second method does not prove successful, then get competent medical assistance at once.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE OSTRICH PLUMES LIKE THIS?



This picture gives a very good idea of what may be accomplished with the straight strip of featheriness. First it is curled around the hat, to form the trimming, and then, if the air is brisk and the breezes blowing, it is twisted lightly around the throat in the ordinary boa fashion. And on the other hand, when the day is fine and calm, it is perfectly proper to allow it to wave at will in a carelessly graceful "don't care a penny for expenses" fashion. If cost is no object, and a plume is used, it can be attached near the back of the hat and then allowed to hang as far as it will.

HEALTHOGRAMS

Cataract of the eye is due to change in the lens so that it becomes opaque. It cannot be dissolved. Nothing helps but an operation.

• • •

Fruits and vegetables are the simplest, safest laxatives to give children. Compound licorice powder is one of the simplest medicines to give.

• • •

Apoplexy is due to a broken artery in the brain. Overeating, gorging, constipation, obesity, alcoholic or any other excesses are likely to be contributary causes.

• • •

Spaghetti has a high food value. It is about as good an energy-maker and tissue-builder as meat. Food values cost less in spaghetti than in meat.

• • •

Does your house need a house doctor? Is it dark? Is there a mouldy smell in the closets? Is the bathroom unsanitary? Is the system of ventilation poor? If so, be your own doctor. Get busy. Change things.

• • •

A frequent short cut to the cure of indigestion, "blues," biliousness and a sluggish liver, may be found in the following rules: Exercise more, breathe better air, cut down food supply, especially bread and meat, and eat more fruit.

• • •

Headaches in the back of the head are often due to eye strain. If these continue after the eyes are examined and the sight remedied by proper glasses a physician's individual, careful study should be given to the matter to discover the causes and possible cure.

• • •

Skimmed milk contains practically no fat because of the removal of cream. The other important constituents of milk remain about the same. It is suitable for people who suffer from fat indigestion. It is a good tissue-builder and energy-producer. It is not much of a heat-maker.

Abscessing of tonsils is called quinsy. Such abscesses usually break into the throat. When a person has had three attacks of quinsy it is usually proof enough that the tonsils are of little further service. A physician's advice on removing them should be followed.

Rain usually falls on the ninth day of the lunar month, and 4 p.m. is commonly its rainiest hour.

The Isolated Continent

A Romance of the Future

By
Guido von Horvath
and Dean Hoard

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—For fifty years the continent of North America had been isolated from the rest of the world by the use of Z-rays, a wonderful invention of Hannibal Prudent. The invention had saved the country from foreign invasion, and the continent had been united under one government, with Prudent as president. For half a century peace and prosperity had reigned. The story opens with President Prudent critically ill. His death is hastened by the receipt of a message from Count von Werdenstein of Germany that he has at last succeeded in penetrating the rays. Dying he warns his daughter Astra that this means a foreign invasion. He tells her to hurry to the island of Cirync, but dies before he can tell the location of the place.

CHAPTER III—Napoleon Edison calls on Astra, informs her that he was a pupil of her father's, and promises to help her. He gives her a ring made of a newly discovered substance which, he says, will solve the problem of flying.

CHAPTER IV—Chevalier di Leon appears in Europe. He notes that preparations have been completed for an invasion of America. He calls on von Werdenstein and offers him the secret of making gold.

The chevalier bowed. The count filled out an invitation card personally and escorted his caller to the door.

In the afternoon the chevalier sought aeroplane hangars and stores and bought a small monoplane of the "Belt" style. After trying the machine, he inquired for a large, private hangar and succeeded in finding one near the count's residence.

The court ball was one of the formal social events of the week. The room in which the court marshal and his assistants received the guests was in the ultra-secession style. When the chevalier entered it he received the impression of entering a gigantic wedding cake that had been hollowed and decorated artfully on the inside.

The stiff courtesy that once prevailed at the court of Frederick the Great still was in existence during ceremonious affairs. Only the few French diplomats seemed to have ease of bearing and a certain freedom of movement.

The Count von Werdenstein approached the chevalier with unusual kindness and introduced him to many of the guests. The plain, black evening dress, without stars, crosses, ribbons or other signs of distinction, was strange under this roof and among these gorgeous uniforms.

Baron von Koener was asked by the chancellor to take care of the chevalier, and the little hussar did his best to entertain the interesting chevalier, whose sole reason for being there was that he had some great and valuable invention for military purposes.

At 10:00 p. m. the great double doors were flung open. The master of ceremony came in with his big gilt cane and knocked on the floor to announce the arrival of his majesty.

The emperor, a tall, typical Prussian, came first, leading the Princess of Wales, then came the Prince of Wales, escorting the Princess Isold; the young emperor was not married.

The hidden orchestra played the old melody, "Die Wacht am Rhein." When his majesty finished the regular circle the chancellor introduced the chevalier. The courtiers fell back at a motion from the emperor and he and the chevalier spent some time in what was apparently an intimate conversation. When the dance began he was dismissed and the emperor waltzed around the great hall once with his cousin, the Princess of Wales.

Chevalier di Leon stood alone for a short time, watching the dancers with interest; then the Baron von Koener came and whispered in his ear that the Countess Rosiny desired to dance with him. Di Leon smiled pleasantly and followed the baron, who led him to a young woman of great beauty.

Her large, dark eyes rested on the bowing chevalier; her rosy cheeks dimpled in a smile as she stood up to take his arm. They waltzed away from the baron, who looked after them with admiration.

"I Am Very Much Honored," He Said Simply.

The chevalier proved to be a master of waltzing; disregarding the usual habit, he did not stop after the first tour of the room, but continued. The countess smiled at him coquettishly.

"Chevalier, you dance wonderfully."

"Ah, you, countess, are the dream of a dancer."

They arrived at the countess' chair, but the chevalier showed no signs of stopping and carried her along as easily and gracefully as the morning breeze carries the fragment of thistle down.

"We are creating a sensation, Chevalier di Leon."

His majesty and the princess left the ball at midnight and soon after the Countess Rosiny found an opportunity to talk once more to the chevalier.

"Am I asking too much of you in inviting you to our house ball on Saturday next?"

The chevalier bowed and smiled at the countess, whose long, silky eyelashes shaded her beautiful eyes with such apparent innocence.

"I am very much honored," he said simply.

He met the chancellor once more in the buffet that adjoined the great ballroom. He took the chevalier by his arm and led him to a table. There, in the company of high nobles and diplomats, they clinked glasses and drank to the health of His Majesty, the Emperor of Germany.

Seemingly it was a pleasant, enjoyable social affair, with everything so smooth and polished that one might easily make a dangerous slip and break his own neck.

When Chevalier di Leon arrived in his apartment he was well aware that he had been followed, but he did not care. He was thinking of the bewitching Countess Rosiny. Where had he met her?

At last he found the place in his well classified memories. "The American Cafe Restaurant," he ejaculated. Then without further delay he went to bed.

The chancellor sat in his library awaiting the report of his followers. As soon as he received the information that the chevalier had gone to bed and was safely sleeping he did likewise, but he did not sleep as soundly as di Leon. He had troubled dreams.

The reports that the chancellor received from the men who were following the chevalier the next day were not exciting. He had visited the museums, studied new industries and, in fact, was interested in everything. Shortly before nightfall he went to his hangar, brought out his 'plane and cruised about above the city, finally ascending to such a height that he almost vanished from the eyes of the detectives. By ten o'clock he was again at the hotel.

Saturday evening the chevalier attended the house ball at the palace of the Countess Rosiny. He even played at the card tables, losing a few gold pieces. The detectives obtained a number of twenty mark coins and sent them to the chancellor with their report; every one was of nineteenth century make.

The Countess Rosiny was summoned to a long confidential talk. No one knew what they discussed, but when the countess was home and alone in her dainty, perfumed boudoir, she locked the door and flung herself on her sofa, weeping bitterly.

"I—I shall betray him, the first real man I have ever seen; besides, how can I be certain that he will love me?" She clenched her little fist and shook it at the portrait of a man who happened to be her husband. "You fiend, see what you have made of me!"

Everything went smoothly; nobody interfered with the chevalier's actions, although he knew every move he made was watched.

One evening, after returning from one of his daily aerial trips, as he jumped out of his machine, a dark robe was cast over his head and a number of men grasped him. He struggled, but strong hands held him fast, and a few minutes later he was bound and nearly suffocated by a heavy cloth that shut out the air. Then the cloth was removed and a tight fitting bandage placed over his eyes.

"Will the chevalier promise to keep quiet?" asked a strange voice. "For, in that case, I will not be forced to gag him."

"I promise," was the helpless chevalier's answer.

He was placed on a stretcher-like affair and carried away.

He could not see, but his sense of hearing told him that they carried him to a near by hangar; there he was placed in some kind of a tonneau and he heard the chug, chug of a very powerful motor. The buzz of the propellers followed.

The next moment he felt the lifting of the aeroplane; the air craft made one turn, then shot out under full power. Several hours passed without change, but when the machine began to descend he recognized the fresh, salty air of the ocean, and he heard the water break on the rocks in a peculiar, mournful manner.

The machine landed and he heard muffled talk, but could not understand it. At last he was lifted out from the tonneau of the machine and carried into a building where the bandage was removed from his eyes and the ropes cut.

He found himself in a simply furnished, clean room with a uniformed officer standing beside him.

"Chevalier di Leon, this is your room; tomorrow we will have a talk." He saluted courteously and, turning on his heels, left, locking the door behind him.

CHAPTER VI.

The Message From Helgoland.

The election was over. Astra Prudent, daughter of Hannibal Prudent, had been elected President of the United Republics of America. The dignified Ambrosio Hale won the vice-presidency. The elections of the southern republics took place at different dates, but throughout the continent the continentals were in power.

The girl, upon whom future responsibilities rested heavily, was strengthening herself for coming events. She was occupied consulting politicians, generals, admirals, making flying trips to the fortifications that were rapidly going up, or being remodeled according to the new requirements of the times.

Constantly she expected news from the man she had seen only once, the man whom she looked upon as the deliverer of the American continent, and also the man she loved.

Days, weeks, months went by. The day of inauguration came. She had expected confidently that she would hear from him, or see him on the day she took the oath at the capitol, but she was disappointed.

The whole American continent celebrated the day, but it was empty of joy for her, the President.

She appeared in white, simple, beautiful, unadorned except for the ring which he had given and she always wore. She looked like a bride on her way to the altar with the man she had chosen.

The ceremonies occupied almost the entire day, and the evening was spent at the ball given by the continentalists. Throughout the congratulations that were received a shadow was hovering over all.

It was late when Astra arrived at her home. She looked over the correspondence that awaited her. There was no line from the man whose handwriting she had never seen, no news whatever from Napoleon Edison.

Yet he had said: "You will hear from me as soon as I can tell you something definite. When you need me I will be at your side ready to help you."

With these thoughts to console her she bent her head to sleep.

The President was at her office early the next morning. Her first official action was to consult with the military commanders, then to send out a proclamation to all the republics of the greatest union of the world, giving them detailed instructions regarding the defense of the continent.

In accordance with the decision of the most competent military men, General Eugene Grant Gunner was appointed commander in chief of the continental armies of America. Extensive arrangements were made to enlist those who were willing to take up arms for the defense of their country, and the old form of national guard tactics were revived.

Astra labored day and night though she prayed that God would prevent the bloodshed for which she was preparing her people. Such were her thoughts and still no news came from the man who had promised so much, from whom she expected so much.

Her cheeks began to lose their color, and her large eyes often looked longingly into the distance. "Why does he not come? Why does he not send a message?"

The Vice-president, Mr. Hale, was announced to her one evening. He bowed deeply before her as the President, then with the familiar air of a close friend, he took Astra's hand in his.

"My dear girl," he began, "I am much troubled; your efforts will undermine your health. The roses on your cheeks are already turning pale. You should think of yourself in the interest of the union, or you will be ill. My dear Astra, you know how much I—I adore you." He had retained Astra's hand, but at these words she slowly withdrew it.

"I first saw you when under the care of your father, watched you develop, strong and beautiful. I wish you would let me carry at least part of your burden. I am a man and I can stand more than a frail woman."

The girl president blushed; taking this for encouragement, Mr. Hale continued: "Astra, I love you, will you be my wife?"

The statesman stood helpless before the girl who smiled kindly at him.

"Sit down, Mr. Vice-president, and be good enough to listen to me."

He obeyed and Astra sat down opposite him.

"Your proposal honors me, Mr. Vice-president; I am sorry that I am unable to accept it. The times that we are living in are such that matters such as this would be out of place, and while you have all my sympathy, I cannot tell you that you have my love."

A sigh escaped her lips; she thought of the man whom she loved, for whom she felt that she was created. She yearned to say some soothing words to the friend of her father, but just then a sharp ringing sounded through the whole suite. It was a signal for extremely important communications and she left hurriedly with a glance pleading for Hale's pardon.

A moment later Astra was in the library putting the electro-stylograph in working order with shaking fingers. She could hardly believe her eyes; the pointer of the machine was on the Island of Helgoland, the great German fortification.

The machine was at last adjusted; the sparkling stopped and the strong, manly voice of Napoleon Edison was heard. His picture appeared on the heliopiate, bowing smilingly toward the girl whose heart was beating painfully. Her blood rushed to her head as she responded to the greeting.

"Your excellency. I have to report that the confederated fleet of the European monarchies started for Madeira today. I have been a prisoner, but an hour ago I escaped. Tomorrow at 10:00 p. m. I will be at the Crystal Palace to tell you everything."

"I am so very, very happy that I have at last heard from you!"

Edison bowed; in the hazy background of the picture she could see another man holding a steering wheel in his hand, and beside him was the faint form of a woman watching Edison.

"I will be there at ten, your excellency."

"I will expect you!"

The picture vanished. She leaned over the plate that had, a second ago, reflected the image of the man in whom she placed all her hopes.

Joy and happiness so filled her heart that the news that the confederated fleet was on its way did not seem so terrible.

As she took the paper out of the machine to see the message she pondered: "The message came from Helgoland, and he says he will be here tomorrow. How can that be?"

Recalling that the Vice-president was waiting for her, she went back to the green room.

"A very important message came," she said to Hale, in extenuation of her long absence. Then, after a short pause, she added: "I may as well tell you now, the confederated European fleet is on its way to Madeira."

The Vice-President gasped. "And you have connections with Europe, your excellency?"

She smiled at his surprise. "Not connections; only one, but that one I believe in implicitly."

"Then there will be a session of the union ministers tomorrow?"

"Not tomorrow, but very likely the day after."

Shortly after this the Vice-president left and Astra retired to her private apartment, giving out orders no one should disturb her until the next morning.

When the tired, but now happy girl was alone, undisturbed, she kissed the ring with the word "Chrysith" on it, and looked up to heaven with joyful eyes. The man who gave her the ring was coming.

CHAPTER VII.

The Prison.

The morning after the imprisonment of the Chevalier di Leon a military official came into the room that served as his temporary cell.

"I have the liberty to offer you the freedom of the fort in case you give your word of honor not to try to escape. It will not cause you any uneasiness to do that, as there is not the slightest chance for you to gain your liberty."

"Captain, I thank you very much; not only will I not give my word, but I will tell you plainly that I intend to do my best to escape from this prison, where your superiors have placed me without having the slightest cause for the action." He smiled pleasantly at the captain and continued: "I can see that you realize how I feel about it, and for that reason I advise you to be on the alert or I will escape."

"Just as you please, chevalier. It is my duty to make your temporary detention as pleasant as possible, and if agreeable to you we can get acquainted at the breakfast table."

"That sounds good. I am hungry."

The dining-room was comfortable and pleasant; the breakfast was simple and wholesome.

Prisoner and guard sat silent for a while, and at last the chevalier said: "I suppose it is vain for me to ask you the name of the place where I am imprisoned?"

"You are right, chevalier!"

"You have an advantage over me, captain. You know my name and I don't know yours; is it against your orders to tell me?"

"No, indeed, chevalier; my name is Hans Euler."

"Thank you, Captain Euler. I assure you that I am glad I have made your acquaintance."

They talked pleasantly during breakfast. Afterward the captain escorted his prisoner into the adjoining reading and billiard room. They played a game of carambol; the chevalier won.

The chevalier suggested a walk in the open air, but the captain shook his head. "I am sorry to disappoint you, my dear chevalier, but your territory ends here." He said this with such kindness that it was plain to the chevalier that he was sorry for the imprisonment.

For two long months the Captain Hans Euler kept faithful company to the chevalier.

There was no chance to escape from this prison; not even a chance to look out at the ocean. The Chevalier di Leon soon realized that he could not escape and knew that all he could do was to wait.

The personal belongings that he had left in the room at the Hotel Metropole were brought to him, and great was his satisfaction when he saw that nothing had been forgotten. Even his money was intact, and a receipt from the hotel was given him showing that his bill had been paid.

CASHLESS MILLIONAIRES

Frequently a Lamentable Lack of Quick Assets.

Though Canada's basic position is undoubtedly sound, there is a lamentable lack of quick assets on the personal ledgers of most business men. Canada has hundreds, one might say thousands, of millionaires, and thousands of near-millionaires, but their wealth is, for the main part "on paper" and the average, common or garden individual whose entire assets amount to not more than a few hundred dollars will be surprised to know that the millionaire or near-millionaire hasn't enough "hard cash" to meet his own personal obligations. This is no exaggeration. Of course these wealthy men are fairly "liquid" during a boom season when it is easy to realize on land, property or stocks, but let the boom wane momentarily and the men credited with hundreds of thousands of dollars of personal fortune, are tied up as tightly as any lunatic in a straight jacket.

There has been so much speculative activity in all commodities and such a bright prospect for its continuance that everybody's account is extended to the utmost. It should require no argument to show that this is radically wrong and dangerous. There is not enough liquid resource in the great personal fortunes of Canadians, and it is bad for the whole country. It is clear enough that when everybody is "tied up" there can be no automatic support in time of liquidation. If the near-millionaire kept from 45 to 50 per cent. of their resources in hard cash, they would have ample funds to "play with" and at the same time have a reserve capital which would not only be an asset to themselves but to the whole country. Neither would they lose by this policy, as they would be in a position to take advantage of the "bargain counter" when the man "loaded up" had to sacrifice some of his extended and top-heavy commitments.—The Financial Times.

SURPRISED THE EMPEROR

Pilot Refused to Obey Orders of the Kaiser and Was Decorated.

A member of the German Yacht Club has related the following anecdote about the German Emperor:

When the Kaiser's yacht, the Hohenzollern, was entering a Norwegian port, the Kaiser, impatient at the vessel's slow progress, rang the engine room telegraph bell and ordered increased speed. To his great stupefaction, the pilot, an old Norwegian named Nordhuns, jumped to the telephone and called to the engineers to take no notice of the signal, but to slow down again. The Emperor, after a glance at the man who dared to speak thus in his presence, ordered the pilot to go and put himself under arrest, but the old man, without moving an eyebrow, replied: "I shall not leave this spot. The ship is under my direction, and nobody, not even an Emperor, is going to give me any orders."

The officers present, knowing that the pilot had maritime law on his side, looked on in silence, and were surprised to see the Emperor quit the bridge and leave the old pilot in charge of the ship's navigation.

On the following day the Kaiser's mood has passed, and he decorated the old sailor, at the same time appointing him his official pilot in Norwegian waters.

BOUDOIR SECRETS

Hints For Gifts and Dressing Table Accessories

A vanity case is always welcome. No matter how strongminded a woman may think herself she is generally willing to admit that she delights in catching an occasional glimpse of her face in a mirror. There are fascinating new gold-filled vanity cases now. On the outside is a tiny watch not more than half an inch in diameter, but large enough to remind the owner to keep her appointments. When the case is opened a small compartment, with mirror top, is revealed, and this conceals the little powder puff. Below is another compartment lined with lavender moire, which contains the invisible hairpins and the dress pins.

If your best friend is going on a voyage or a long journey and you want to give her a farewell present that is useful and pretty you cannot do better than bestow upon her one of the new sets of "utility bags." They are fashioned in rubberized satin of various colors, and are corded together. They hold the little necessaries and tuck into corners of the dressing case.

Pasteboard boxes covered with pretty chintz-pattern papers are attractive and hold all sorts of small dress accessories. They can be labelled veils, gloves, neckties, stockings, etc., and kept on shelves in the cupboard.

Ammonia is an invaluable toilet requisite. The brushes and combs cannot be properly cleansed without it. If you wash out your own fine handkerchiefs put a few drops of the ammonia in the water and see how much whiter you can get them.

Old Tug Back to Work

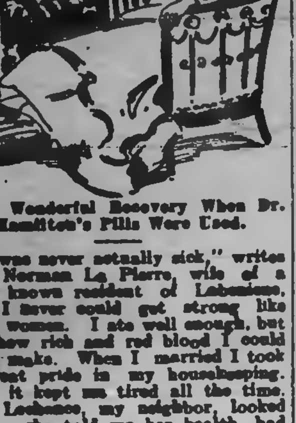
After lying at anchor in Duluth harbor for twelve years, the tug Constitution, one of the oldest on the lakes, is being fitted out for service at St. Clair River points. The Constitution was built in the sixties and was one of the first tugs on the St. Mary's River. Her engines are still good and her hull is in first-class condition. She has an interesting history and is known to nearly every marine man on the lakes.

A Soldier's Remains

The skeleton of a man, probably one of the soldiers slain when York was attacked in the War of 1812, was unearthed by workmen engaged in excavating for a sewer at the eastern entrance of the Exhibition grounds, Toronto. The bones were those of a large man, and were in a remarkable state of preservation. They were interred close to where they had lain for a hundred years.

Vigorous Health Restored To Run-Down Woman

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC



Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. Norman La Pierre, wife of a well known resident of Labenière, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow rich and red blood I could never make. When I married I took great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lechance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made up by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates and renews health and spirits like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, five for $1, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Was Related Here.

Mr. N. Stabler, of this city, is an uncle of Joseph Yorke, who was drowned at Lindsay on Monday. Police Chief Thompson was notified of the accident and requested to communicate with Mr. Stabler.

PROGRESSIVE OTONABEE.

At the last meeting of the Otonabee Council, Reeve Anderson was empowered to have erected a new bridge at Lavall's Creek, Wards 4 and 5, to pay $50 each towards the cost, and the balance to be paid out of the general fund of the township.

Former Local Man Honored.

Friends will join in congratulations to Mr. E. M. Best (brother of Mr. Ray Best of this city) on his appointment as a member of the faculty of the International Young Men's Association College at Springfield, Mass.

A Lindsay Burglary.

Lindsay Post: On Friday evening the residence of Mr. W. H. Ayers was entered from the rear and a small bank containing $7.00 was taken by the intruder, who raised a back window. Mr. and Mrs. Ayers were only absent from the house about an hour, and it was during this period the theft occurred.

More C.P.R. Trespassers.

At yesterday's police court, Cure Pickard, when charged with trespassing on the C.P.R. track, asked "Do you speak French? I don't understand English." Arthur Rowe was charged with a similar offence. They are both boys and were remanded for a week. C.P.R. detective Weller is certainly "on to his job."

Damages Against Monaghan.

Mr. W. J. Oke has presented a bill for $35 damages against the Council of North Monaghan for injuries sustained some days ago. It will be remembered that the incident, told exclusively by The Times, was caused by Mr. Oke riding on his bicycle during the evening, over some logs, near Crawford's Gove, which had been left during road repairs without any lantern present.

Former Local Man May Return.

Mr. Ernie Hannah, formerly proprietor of the Princess Theatre, but now living in Montreal, is in the city for a few days. Mr. Hannah has just returned from Jackson, Mich. He is the Canadian representative of the Jackson Automobile Co. Mr. Hannah yesterday had a lucrative position given him by a local auto firm, which he may consider. Ernie certainly knows how to "deliver the goods."

A Costly Noise.

A few nights ago, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Fitch, living near Lindsay, and newly weds, were given a chirivari. Their house was surrounded by young men who demanded a welcome or $5 to get beer. They pulled the bedclothes out through the window, took the horse from the stable, and did various damage around the place, and threatened to set fire to the buildings unless their demands were complied with. The young men who assisted were fined $23, including costs.

Lightning Strikes House

Lindsay Post: Sunday evening, while the electrical storm was playing high jinks in the heavens, lightning struck the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Sluggett, Division st.

The lightning is supposed to have first struck the chimney, shattering it badly and cracking the plaster on the inside of the house. It then travelled to the northwest corner of the residence, loosening the boards under the cornice and ripping them off in some places. The fluid then followed the eavetroughing right around the kitchen and made its exit in the woodshed. After the members of the family had recovered from their fright, a visit was made to the woodshed, where a strong odor, somewhat similar to sulphuric fumes, could be detected.

Tiny Town a Success.

Last night the Grand Opera House was well filled when "Tiny Town" was presented. The Liliputians who took their respective parts are on their way from South Africa and Australia. The cast is a remarkably clear one and the play "caught on" with the audience.

In reference to the above it might be added that this entertainment, as seen by the hundreds present, is absolutely unique in the history of Canadian shows. There are those who might think that because all the performers are Liliputians, that the performance is only appealing to ladies and children. It certainly does appeal to them. Still more, the circus stunts, juggling, dancing, singing, dancing, etc., is equal, if not superior to that given by those who have attained the lofty stature of say, 5 ft. 6 in., or even 6 ft. The whole show is well staged and goes with a swing and vigoe that brought out continuous rounds of applause. Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons are to be congratulated in securing such an attraction.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The 57th Regiment Band.

One of the new importations of the 57th Regt. Band in the person of Mr. W. Dyer, for years a member of the celebrated band of the 4th Battalion, Devenshire Territorials, arrived in the city on Monday from England and attended a rehearsal of the Band on Monday night. Mr. Dyer is a first class tympany player, and also doubles on string base, and will be a decided acquisition to the band and the new orchestra, which it is proposed to organize in the near future. The Band management and the friends who are interesting themselves in their behalf are determined to present to the public early next year the best concert band this city ever produced, and when it is taken into consideration the splendid reputation the the 57th already won for itself, it will be readily admitted that the management have set themselves no mean task. The other new additions to the ranks, referred to in a recent issue, are expected to arrive early next month. Notwithstanding the intense heat, over thirty members attended Monday night's rehearsal and put in two hours' solid work under the direction of Prof. Gliddon.

WEDDING BELLS.

Birdgenaw—Levasseur.

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday morning at seven o'clock by Rev. J. V. McCauley, when Miss Leeda Levasseur, eldest daughter of Mr. D. Levasseur, Romaine st., was united in marriage to Mr. John Birdgenaw, of this City. The bride was attended by Miss E. Ranger and the groom was supported by Mr. D. Birdgenaw. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Birdgenaw will reside in East City.

McIlmoyle—Logan.

A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated at the Manse of Knox Church on Monday morning, when Miss Noma W. Logan, Maitland Ave., was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Holley McIlmoyle, son of Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, of this City.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox Church, at a quarter to seven o'clock. The bride and groom were unattended, and left immediately for Saskatoon, where they will reside.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. J. H. McClelland has gone to Brockville to visit Mrs. Fulford.

Mrs. Peter Campbell left yesterday on a trip to Chicago by water.

Mr. Roy Wright leaves for Toronto to-day on a business trip.

Miss Emma Aylmer went to Brockville yesterday where she is going to visit friends.

Miss Ethel Armstrong, of East City, is visiting friends in Toronto and Guelph.

Messrs. J. W. and T. N. D. Kelly of Chemong were guests at the White House yesterday.

Mr. Chas. Dean, Reid Street, left yesterday for Walkerville, where he has accepted a position.

The Misses Bridget and Sarah Black, of Campbellford, were guests at the White House yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stubbs and little son have been down from the lakes for a few days, and returned last evening.

Miss Dorothy Hilliard, of Lakefield, was in the city yesterday and attended Tiny Town at the Grand Opera House.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kylie, East City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lenore, to Mr. Denis Hayes, of Rochester. Wedding will take place early in August.

Mrs. (Dr.) H. Prust, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Bellegham, accompanied by Miss Laura Bellegham, left yesterday for Edmonton, Alta.

Mrs. Learmouth has returned home after spending a very pleasant time at Rice Lake with Mr. and Mrs. Parker, at their farm, also at their island, Rice Lake.

Lindsay Post: Mr. Louis Mendel, photographer of Peterborough, was in town Sunday; Miss D. Davies, of Peterborough, spent Sunday in Lindsay.

Lindsay Post: Among the Peterborough people in town to-day were G. K. Rackham, G. R. Munro, Jas. Chambers, C. H. Patterson, W. H. Gould and D. H. Porter.

401st BARGAIN ANNEX EVENT

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30th, 1913

DRESS MUSLINS 5c.

The quality of these Muslins will be a surprise to every Annex customer on Wednesday. Each piece is 27 in. wide, with light shades predominating in patterns of stripe or floral design. One would be satisfied to pay the regular price of 12½c for such fabrics. On Wednesday the price is, yard 5c

FORTY INCH FACTORY COTTON 10½c

Cotton like this—of good weight and even texture, cannot be bought at the mill at less cost than we are asking in the Annex. If we had not bought it before the advance in cotton it would be marked 15c. But here it is—a sound investment at, per yard 10½c

NATURAL WOOL SOLE HOSE 19c — 3 PAIRS 55c.

The dye being "Hermsdorf" is guaranteed fast. The cotton from which they are made is of good quality, seamless, the heels and toes being double. A sole of natural wool insures comfort for the feet and they are really the most popular 25c hose in the trade. Sizes 9, 2½, 10. Wednesday 19c

CHILDREN'S SOCKS, 8c Pair

They are of good quality cotton, with seamless feet and spliced heels and toes. Ribbed top, and in colors of red, sky, tan, white with checked tops and black. Annex price per pair ... 8c

140 ENDS OF TABLING, PRINTS, TOWELLING AND COTTON.

They are marked "Remnants," and every one knows that Annex Remnants mean good saving to the thrifty housekeeper. From the clean up in our Staple Department they have come, and comprise a fine range of fabrics for Wednesday at

REMNANT PRICES

TRIMMED HATS $1.29

Each one a smart, sensible model that has been been marked far below its real value that the remaining few may be quickly sold. If you can be suited, you will receive a sound bargain for $1.29

FEATHER TICKING 12½c.

Very stout and serviceable round the home, and procurable in either narrow or wide stripe designs. The color is blue and white, and the value most satisfactory. Wednesday, per yard ... 12½c

BOYS' ALL WOOL JERSEYS 59c.

Blue and white, red and white, garnet, plain navy, etc. are the colors in these Boys' Jerseys that are all wool, with worsted finish. A dollar is the regular value, yet they are reduced on Wednesday to 59c

ROLLER TOWELLING ENDS (5 YARDS LONG) 29c.

They are bordered with red and are 17 in. wide. Each piece is all linen crash and sold only in the 5 yard length. This is something special for Wednesday. Per length 29c

USE THE TELEPHONE

Every department in our store is connected by telephone. A wire is laid to the Annex, and any item on this bill may thus be secured by merely telephoning for it. Good selection and prompt delivery assured. Two lines to Central. Nos. 138 and 139.

Three of the Best Whitewear Items the Annex Has Ever Seen

$1.50 & $1.75 White Waists for 99c

OF ALL THE DOZENS UPON DOZENS OF BLOUSES SOLD IN THE ANNEX THIS SEASON, this line surpasses them all, where value is concerned. Amongst them will be found Blouses of net, lined with silk; Blouses of fine drill or lawn, and Blouses in fancy colorings. Each garment is beautifully trimmed, and is practically being sacrificed at the Annex price, because the builders are crowding us for room in the Blouse section. The values offered reach $1.25 and higher, thus presenting a splendid range of choice to those purchasers arriving early in the department on Wednesday 99c

SHEWN IN THE WINDOW.

90c White Underskirts 59c

BEING SAMPLES, THEY ARE THE BEST OF THEIR KIND, and are all tastefully trimmed with embroidery and lace. They were made to be sold at 90c; some even more, and were bought specially for the Annex, where the price will be 59c

SHEWN IN THE WINDOW.

55c Drawers for 39c

THE EXCELLENT COTTON FROM WHICH THEY ARE MADE could not be procured for the small sum that, in this instance, buys the complete garment, ready to wear. Two inch Cluny insertion, and embroidery is used as trimming and both open and closed styles can be secured, in all sizes. A glance at them in the window will reveal the fine value that is to be obtained on Wednesday for 39c

MILLINERY FLOWERS 25c

Most women can find a use for a bunch of good millinery flowers, and therefore a box of them has been sent up from the Millinery section and placed out for the Annex patrons. At, per spray 25c

DO YOU NEED STATIONERY?

The Annex line of "Imperial Linen" will prove most satisfactory and is to be obtained at most reasonable cost.

Envelopes ....3 Packages 10c.
Writing Pads ....Each 11c.

COLORED BED SPREADS 69c

Around the home, the tent or the summer cottage one of these pink or pale blue Spreads will be found to be both useful and economical. They are of Marseilles weave, and fringed all round. Just the right weight for summer too. Wednesday 69c

ODD OVERALLS AND SMOCKS 49c

They are of blue and black duck with or without bibs. Not every size will be found, yet a fairly good range is presented. They are a 75c line in the regular way. We are clearing them up for 49c

CHAMBRAY BLOUSES 55c

In shades of blue, grey, and tan Chambray, finished with summer collar, and plain cuffs. The fabric is of fine texture, patterned with stripes and the styles are most suitable for present wear. The price is far lower than the value 55c

All usual sizes

MEN'S BALBRIGGAN DRAWERS 25c.

The shirts that match have all been sold, so the drawers are marked for a quick clearance at a very low figure. 35c, 40c and 50c values are represented, and the sizes are 32, 34 and 36. Some are in natural wool color, some are pale blue, but every pair is remarkably cheap at......... 25c

Pair of Bath Towels for 29c

THEY WILL ABSORB THE MOISTURE QUICKLY because of their fine soft texture and heavy nap. The size is 39 x 18 in., most convenient for the bath or general use, and the color a combination of grey, red and white. At 40c a pair they would be considered good value, yet the Annex will see them marked at 29c

Look at them in our South Window.

THE BIG ALTERATION SALE IN THE MEN'S SECTION OFFERS VALUES RARELY MET WITH IN MEN'S CLOTHING AND FURNISHINGS.

ON THE FLOOR BELOW THE ANNEX THERE IS ASSEMBLED A FINE COLLECTION OF BEDS, HOUSE FURNISHINGS AND WALL PAPER. A WHOLE FLOOR IS DEVOTED TO THIS CLASS OF GOODS.

CANADA'S HONOR SACRIFICED FOR PARTY ENDS SAYS O. G. M.

Liberal Action in Defeating the Naval Bill Was a Subversion of a Great National Movement--Orange Leaders are in Convention at St. John's, Newfoundland

St. John's, Newfoundland, July 30—"The Dominion of Canada has witnessed during the recent session of the Federal Parliament such a spectacle of the subversion of a great national movement to party ends as, it is hoped will,, for the honor of the country, never be repeated," declared Lt.-Col. Scott, of Walkerton, at the opening session of the Grand Lodge this morning.

"The result has been to humiliate theC anadian people for thet ime being in the eyes of the home authorities, and to entirely disarrange the plans of the Admiralty, which has already anticipated the completion of its negotiations and had allocated Canada's expected contribution to the fleet. I am glad to observe that the Provincial Grand Lodges took care to express their warm approval of the Government's proposals, and that the supporters of the resolutions were not confined to brethern who ordinarily support its general policy. In my judgment, a stupid political blunder has been made in this regard, which for the credit of Canada, it is hoped will, at the earliest opportunity be rectified by those responsible for it. In all this our Newfoundland brethren are not directly interested, but I feel quite sure that in the common bond of Imperialism which cements us, they sympathize with and endorse the attitude of their Canadian brethren in this matter."

Ulster and Home Rule.

Referring to the Home Rule Bill, the Grand Master continued: "Our friends in Ireland prefer being ruled from Westminster rather than from Rome, and in their choice they have the whole-hearted support and sympathy of every loyal British subject under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge. I recommend that a suitable expression of the sentiments of the brethren present be spread upon our records and forwarded to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ulster and to the Right Hon. Sir Edward Carson, the valiant leader of the Irish Unionist party and the defender of the rights of the loyalists of Ireland.

"There is no doubt that everywhere there is evidence of an awakening interest in the work of the association on the part of the Protestant public"

THE CANADIAN HOME MARKET BECOMES A GREAT CONSUMER

Two Millions in Butter Imported Last Year to Meet Demand In Canada

(Special to The Times.)

Ottawa, July 30.—The Liberals last election were crying for wider markets for the farmers of Canada, ignoring the fact that the best market of all is the home market, which the farmers of the Dominion to-day are unable to supply. This home market they would have handed over to the Americans to get in exchange a market which is already over-supplied.

Bringing in Butter.

Just how great is the Canadian home market is shown by the fact that last year the Dominion imported over $2,000,000 worth of butter, most of it from New Zealand and for the first time in sixty years exported no butter to Great Britain. Last year also we purchased half a million dollars' worth of eggs from abroad, principally from the United States, which we imported beef and mutton from New Zealand and Australia.

Home Market Grows.

Statistics show that the cause of this decline in exports and increase in imports is due not to smaller production on the part of the agriculturists of Canada, but to the remarkable growth of the home market of the Dominion. Dairy Commissioner Ruddick states that there has been as much increase in milk production, taking Canada as a whole, during the past decade as there was during any other similar period in the history of the industry.

Increased Consumption

Mr. Ruddick states: "In one way or another Canadians are consuming between thirty and forty million dollars' worth a year more of dairy products than they did ten years ago. Let me give you an illustration of this increase. During the period when the creameries in Alberta and Saskatchewan were operated by the Dominion Government, it was a part of my duty to find a market for the butter produced therein. In 1903 the total output of creamery butter in these Provinces was less than three quarters of a million pounds. At that time there was no butter being shipped to the Western Provinces from Eastern Canada, and yet we found it necessary to export over 100,000 pounds to Great Britain to avoid a serious glut in the British Columbian and Prairie markets.

West Wants More.

Now contrast that state of affairs with the past year. In the first place, Alberta and Saskatchewan produced about 4 million pounds of creamery butter in 1912; at least 200,000 boxes or 11,200,000 pounds were shipped from Ontario and Quebec to points west of the Great Lakes; 1,000,000 boxes or 5,600,000 pounds will be imported from New Zealand (April, 1912, to March, 1913) making a total of 20,000,000 pounds which met all requirements in 1903-4. These figures refer to creamery butter only, but there has also been a very large increase in the output of dairy butter in the Western Provinces most of which is consumed locally. I have no statistics for Manitoba, but the conditions in that Province do not differ greatly from those in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Now, when we consider that the population east of the Lakes has increased very nearly as much during this period as it has in the Western Provinces, we get some idea of why our exports have fallen off."

A GASOLINE LAUNCH RAN BADLY AMUCK

Yesterday afternoon as a launch belonging to Mr. Baker of this city, was passing by Crawford's Grove, the man in charge of the machinery seems to have lost control of his motive power. The launch sped along as though his Satanic Majesty, in festive humor was in control. The launch ran into a canoe containing three occupants. The frail craft was overturned and the occupants thrown into the wet waters of the Otonabee. The three were rescued safely.

BUILDS AN ARK TO ESCAPE DELUGE

Panama, July 30.—Word has arrived here from Penonome, a town in the interior of the republic, that Segundo Sanchez, a native of that section, has proclaimed himself the Messiah. He has predicted the destruction of the world by a deluge in a short time, and some of his 80 adherents are engaged in building an ark while others are busy collecting in pairs, animals of all species found in their region. His followers also have armed themselves, and in view of this fact the Panama government is taking steps to avert possible trouble by them.

PREMIER BORDEN'S HEALTH REGAINED

A Week of Golf in New Brunswick Has Made New Man of Him.

St. Andrew's, N.B., July 30.—Premier Borden, who came here a week ago with health somewhat impaired, will leave for Ottawa to-morrow feeling almost as good as new. He had been doing very little except playing golf in the morning and resting in the afternoon. This program has helped him greatly during his stay in this country. He has found time to visit St. Stephens and St. George. He motored to the former place yesterday afternoon. By his request there will be no party demonstration before leaving. He will spend a fortnight at the Chateau and will then go to Toronto for a further short rest.

BLOOD AND MILLIONS POURED LIKE WATER

The Balkan Wars Tremendous Loss of Life and Heavy Monetary Drain.

London, July 30.—The Balkan wars beginning when the allies attacked Turkey, and continuing when they disagreed among themselves, causing almost ceaseless fighting since last October, have cost the belligerents a total of more than 350,000 lives and a billion and a quarter dollars, according to estimates by correspondents in the field.

U. S. FORESTS MADE TO PAY

Washington, July 30.—The government is beginning to make the national forests pay for the money which has been expended in conserving them. During the fiscal year just closed, the receipts from the forests, according to figures just prepared, amounted to almost $2,500,000, the business having surpassed that of any previous year.

The appropriation for forest service work during the year was about $5,500,000. In addition to the receipts mentioned, however, contracts totalling $4,000,000 were entered into for the sale of timber to be cut either at once or in later years. Where large bodies of timber are involved, these sale contracts permit the cuting to extend over a number of years. Thirty-five per cent. of the years' gross receipts, or more than $800,000, according to law, goes to the benefit of the states in which the forests are situated for schools and roads.

DUCHESS OF ROXBURGHE

King George and Queen Mary of England have accepted the invitation of the Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe to spend a short time at their country home, Floors Castle, in Kelso, Roxburgheshire, on the Scottish border. This is considered a social triumph for the Duchess, who was formerly Miss May Goelet of New York. The visit of the royal family will take place in the fall.

RIFLE RANGE IS NOW ABSOLUTELY SAFE

A statement to the effect that the regulations are not being carried out on the rifle range is absolutely denied on incontrovertible authority. The signal man is in such a position that he can see in every direction for a long distance and when anyone is approaching the targets are run out of sight until anyone on the road has passed by.

The precaution renders the rifle range absolutely safe, as, when the targets are out of sight, there is no shooting.

The Department is, however, prepared to put up gates if necessary, but Col. Clegg states that everything at the present time is perfectly safe and satisfactory.

THOUGHT HE WAS DEAD BUT IS STILL ALIVE

Yesterday afternoon a driver of Mr. T. Mitchell, the gravel contractor seems to have gone through the valley of the shadow of death (in his mind) but still lives. This driver had dallied too long on the dock of intemperance, unloading schooners. He fell off the waggon and removed a portion of his features on the hard roadway. The team was stopped at an East City Hotel and the driver carried in. At first it seemed hard work to convince him that he had not passed to the nether shore. However, an application of bay rum externally and promises of future treatment of his department of the interior convinced him that only a few feet of sticking plaster and a night's sleep would restore him to his former self.

"PRIVATE NICHOLAS" ON MARCH GETS THRILLS

London, July 30.—Emperor Nicholas of Russia, fully accoutred as a private, recently made a seven mile march in order to gain personal experience of service as a common soldier according to the Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent.

The Emperor was attired as a rifleman, with usual rolled overcoat, pouches with 120 rounds of ammunition, trenching spade, ration bag, etc., altogether weighing three-quarters of a hundred weight, exclusive of the rifle. Thus equipped with all the outfit of an infantry man, the Emperor marched up hill and down dale for seven miles giving the salute of a private soldier to the officers whom he met on the way. Everyone was apparently ignorant of his identity until the next day when the Emperor entered himself, according to the regulations, on the regimental roll as "Private Nicholas Romanoff, married of the arthodox faith, coming from Tsarskoe-Selo."

One of the most amusing numbers on the big list of sports at the Printers' Picnic on Saturday, is the pie-eating contest. A full half hour of savage amusement in this event alone. Come and see the boys get on the outside of a juicy huckleberry pie.

PRESENTATION TO RETIRING SUPERINTENDENT

Last night at the Y.W.C.A. the house girls tendered a farewell reception to Mrs. W. J. Read, the efficient superintendent, who is leaving this most commendable local institution, which has flourished most exceedingly under her regime, after four years' faithful service. The evening was spent most enjoyably in an informal manner, at the close of which Mrs. Read was presented with an address and a handsome club bag, as a token of the high esteem in which she has been held. Mrs. Read departs on Friday for her new field of usefulness at the Cottage Hospital, Pembroke.

TENDERS FOR STREET PAVING TO BE INVITED NEXT WEEK

Engineer Parsons to Submit His Estimates at Monday Night's Council Meeting--Board of Works In Session

The City's Board of Works met last evening, Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also in attendance, Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen McIntyre, Johnston, Gordon, Anderson and Engineer Parsons.

The City Engineer reported the appointment of Mr. Wm. Ball as a corporation foreman.

Walks to Be Built.

The City Engineer recommended the construction of a number of sections of concrete sidewalks petitioned for. The list includes 400 feet of walk on the continuation of Weller street, westward past the south facing of the new West Ward school, on the north side, and a walk on the west side of Monaghan Road past the east facing of the school, from Weller to Elm streets. This recommendation was adopted.

Can Expropriate for Sewers.

The City Solicitor reported that the city has the right to expropriate (even in adjacent townships) whatever land is necessary for sewerage purposes. This means that sewerage connection with the DeLaval premises via North Monaghan is permissal by law.

Street Paving.

The Engineer will have the plans and estimates for street paving ready for Monday night's Council meeting, after which tenders for the work will be invited

IMPERIAL GARRISON MUST BE WITHDRAWN FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Manchester Guardian Declared That Colony Should Raise Its Own Defence--Lord Gladstone is Roundly Scored by British Newspapers for "His Inexcusable Blunder."--Policy of Panic, Power, Bullets, Bungling

London, July 30—Agitation in British labor circles against the employment of Imperial troops during the Rand strike grows daily in volume, and has been embittered by the arrival by mail of details of fighting this week from Johannesburg. The publication of the Governor-General's defence by the Government last night as a blue book report has added fuel to the flames.

The Daily Citizen describes Lord Gladstone's action as a policy of panic and powder, bullets and bungling. It reserves special denunciation for arming the members of the Rand Club by the British Military authorities, accusing the members of perpetrating an utterly unprovoked massacre among harmless on.lookers.

Says Leaders Blundered Inexcusably.

The Daily News declares that those who controlled the troops and police blundered inexcusably in most tragic fashion.

It is felt here that Lord Gladstone lost agreat opportunity of displaying the supreme qualities of leadership. His notorious feebleness in critical moments displayed during his Home Secretaryship has now brought about a critical Imperial situation. His position is made more difficult because he has the confidence of neither side.

Must Withdraw Imperial Troops.

The Manchester Guardian, while holding that perhaps no one has the right to blame Gladstone for his failure to raise to heights of great opportunity, declares that a really great Governor might have redeemed the original mistake by assuming control of events. It urges as a lesson that South Africa must raise her own defence forces and do without the aid of Imperial troops. The Imperial garrison at South Africa must be withdrawn.

UNION JACK, "OLD GLORY," UNITE "DAY OFF" TO CELEBRATE PEACE

John Bull and Uncle Sam Clasped Hands in Hearty Spirit of Good Will as Celebrating is Under Way

Fort Erie, Ont., July 30.—Buffalo and its little adjacent civic sisters on the Canadian side of the river, made to-day a holiday and made of the holiday a rousing big celebration of the fact that peace has now existed for one hundred years between Canada and the United States.

In weather of a most uncomfortable warmth, Uncle Sam and John Bull clasped hands across the boundary and swore eternal friendship, with a side view to let no opportunity go by of securing the proposed peace memorial bridge for this point.

In fact the bridge looms large throughout the celebration.

The proposition calls for a fine structure about a mile long, spanning the river from Fort Erie's business section to the foot of Main street in Buffalo and citizens of both these cities have a thousand good reasons why it should be built by the Governments at Ottawa and Washington or by those at Toronto and Albany.

The two Niagara Falls cities stand aloof from this argument, having an idea that the peace bridge should join their collection of bridges and they were the only places in the vicinity which did not fall in line with Buffalo and Fort Erie in proclaiming to-day a civic holiday. The bridge would cost anywhere over $9,000,000.

BASEBALL

The Petes were defeated at London yesterday before a fairly large crowd of fans. The day was declared a public holiday, and the Boosters were out in large numbers. Steeling in the box for the Petes, pitched good ball and the boys worked hard, but the Londoners took the game by the score of 4—1.

The game between the Quaker Oats and Types on Saturday at the Printers' Picnic, promises to be a good one. The boys are rounding into shape and this game with the large list of sports will keep the excursionists busy. Come down the river and join in the fun. Stoney Lake leaves George street wharf at 1.30.

POVERTY SERMON PLEASES JOHN D.

Cleveland, July 30.—"Some of the world's richest men are the poorest and some of the poorest are the richest," the Rev. Carter Helm Jones, a new minister from Louisville, Ky., said this morning in his sermon. In the congregation was the world's richest man, John D. Rockefeller, who, after services, sought out the young preacher and congratulated him heartily. Then Mr. Rockefeller went outside and stood in a pouring rain while he helped a number of friends into his automobile. Many umbrellas were thrust over him, but he dodged out from under all of them insisting upon getting his new straw hat wet and his carefully pressed clothes damp.

When his friends had all climbed into the automobile, its owner took his place on the front seat beside the chauffeur. Dr. Jones had declared that earthly riches did not amount to much.

"Things that are material and can be seen as merely temporal," he said. "But spiritual riches are eternal."

Mr. Rockefeller showed by a nod of his head that he agreed thoroughly

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY FOR WRINKLED FACES

(From Popular Toilettes)

Thousands of women are spending fortunes in their frantic efforts to remove the signs of premature age from their faces. When in this state of mind a woman will spend almost any amount of money on worthless wrinkle removers, of which there are many.

If these women only knew it, the most effective remedy imaginable is a simple, harmless face wash which can be made up at home in less than a minute. They have only to get an ounce of powdered [illegible] and half a pint of witch hazel at the drug store and mix the two. Apply this daily as a refreshing lotion. The effect is almost [illegible]. Even after the first treatment a marked improvement is noticed and the face has a [illegible] feeling that is most pleasing.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 25c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 186 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

THE LAW OF QUALITY IS AS SURE AS the law of gravity. Gravity keeps both our feet on the ground. Quality informs your judgment when you are on the "Ground Floor" in the matter of value. Martin-Senour's Paint is the Ground Floor of paint value. It makes good every time. It flows freely, has great covering capacity, shows a beautiful finish, and wears like iron. It will more than meet your expectations in quality, efficiency and durability. Campbell & Best, 33 Hunter St., next to post office.

LIGHT CELLAR SHELVES

This Simple Arrangement Easy For Electric Light Users

Getting a jar of preserves from the shelf in the dark cellar storeroom is a racking ordeal. It is frequently impossible to see the label on the jar at a far corner when the light is fixed at the other end of the shelves. A bright young man of an ingenious nature found a way to make the electric light travel to any portion of the shelves.

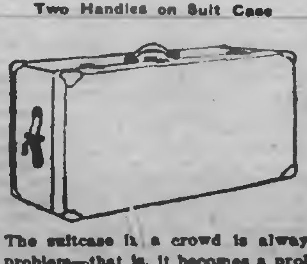
Two Handles on Suit Case



The suitcase in a crowd is always a problem—that is, it becomes a problem if a little attachment is not made for handling it that eliminates the difficulty. The trouble is caused by the size of the case and the way it projects in front of and behind the person carrying it.

Just attach a handle to the end, like that on a trunk, and when in a crowd carry the case by this end handle. There are no projections then.

Cost of the Durbar

The Indian Accounts and Estimates for the current year, show that the cost of the Royal visit to India, as at present estimated, was $5,000,000.

In addition to this amount, the Royal boons, announced at the Durbar, involved, besides a recurring grant of $1,666,500 for popular education, a sum of $3,000,000. Of this $2,500,000 was accounted for by the bonus of half a month's pay granted to the Army and to certain Civil employees.

AUNT HANNAH'S ONE HOBBY

Old Lady, Restricted All Her Life, Meant to Use Her Money as She Liked.

After being poor all her life, Aunt Hannah had come into property. It was not much from some people's standpoint, only $1,000, but from Aunt Hannah's standpoint it was a fortune. Considering previous deprivations, she held her head pretty level. Her only extravagance was telegrams. She sent half a dozen of them every day—great, long telegrams running to as high as 100 words. Their cost began to make inroads even on $1,000. A prospective heir felt constrained to remonstrate against the needless expense.

"If you must telegraph to all those people," he said, "you ought to try to keep it down to ten words."

Aunt Hannah displayed the first real emotion of years.

"Ten words!" she retorted. "That is just what I will not do. All my life I have been restricted to ten word telegrams. I have never sent many, for people as poor as I have always been have nobody to telegraph to nor nothing to telegraph about, but whenever I did telegraph I had to do it in ten words. The meanness of it was awful. I ached to add just two or three words, but I couldn't afford it. I envied the rich their telegrams. I often read them in the newspapers, those in divorce suits and breach-of-promise cases in particular. Telegrams as long as a letter those people sent. I'd have been willing to figure in a lawsuit just to send one of them. I am rich now, middling, so I telegraph. Don't argue that it's silly. Maybe it is, but it is harmless."

Exquisite Draperies

The model of the illustration is by Doucet, who with Mme. Paquin was the first to introduce draperies. It is of white brocade with velvet chrysanthemums in those queer colorings of burnt orange and tawney bronse that you sometimes see in the natural flower. The material is so exquisitely beautiful that there are no other garnitures than a lace tucker and sleeves over which there is a drapery of the brocade.

This "tucker," which looks like a waist or chemise drawn up about the low neck with a string has leaped into popularity since it was first used by doucet.

Notice the pleats at the high waistline. This is a feature of many of the new gowns. This dress was worn at an opening at the Vaudeville theater, Paris, by one of the most popular of French actresses.

Tired of Hangman's Job

Arthur Ellis, Canada's executioner, declared after he hanged an Italian named Battista in the Montreal jail yard, that there is not a living in his job and that he is going to quit it unless the Dominion Government restores the retainer of $750 a year allowed Ratcliffe.

Ellis receives only the fees paid him by Sheriffs, and out of eight executions he received less than $600.

The Strength of Ice.

Experiments by French army officers have shown that ice an inch and three-fifths thick will bear the weight of a man; four and three-quarter inch ice light artillery, and eleven and one half inch ice the heaviest weights the transportation of an army requires.

AN ECHO OF RECIPROCITY.

The argument that the defeat of reciprocity in Canada had nothing to do with the determination of Governor Foss, of Massachusetts, to establish a branch factory of the Sturtevant company in Canada, is not worth the paper that it is written on. It is claimed that, because the articles this company manufacturers were not included in the free list under the proposed reciprocity could have nothing to do with his determination to manufacture in Canada instead of selling from the United States.

Mr. Foss stated in language which could not be mistaken that the victory of the anti-reciprocity forces in Canada had everything to do with his establishing a factory on this side of the line. The fact rests, not upon whether his particular products were on the reciprocal list or not, but on the state of mind induced in him by the events which happened. Nor is it difficult to understand his point of view. He would naturally argue to himself that the Canadian people had determined upon complete and absolute fiscal independence, and that there was no hope in the long run to do a satisfactory and profitable trade in Canada with a base of manufacture in a foreign country.

Many manufacturers in the United States regarded the reciprocity pact as the thin edge of the economic wedge, which would be gradually driven in until the Canadian market was wide open for their products. This idea was frequently expressed in the speeches and wtitings of prominent men and the manufacturers no doubt thought that they could better afford to wait for the completion of the process than to invest money in plants situated within the boundary lines of Canada. They received a somewhat rude awakening when Canada rejected the pact, and the far-seeing among them has been well advised to change their policy in view of Canada's settled determination in favor of fiscal independence. That is what Governor Foss evidently meant when he said that it was Canadian public policy as now adopted which had caused his action.

Such an industry means a large investment of capital in Canada. It means transportation of the products of the factory on Canadian railways, also a pay-roll, with its advantages to merchants and all others, distributed in Canada instead of the United States. It also adds to the home market of our agricultural producers. Its most important bearing, however, is this, that it indicates a process which shows tnat for her own development, Canada's footsteps are set in the right path, and that the policy now adopted is being justified by events as emphatically as it was justifiable by reason.

No More Asthma
A Cure Discovered
That Really Does Cure

Thousands Testify to the Lasting Benefit Derived by This Marvelous Preparation.

The country is simply wild over the wonderful cures of chronic asthma that are being made every day by Catarrhozone. It is a scientific surprise, a perfect marvel the way it brings old chronics back to health. You will say so yourself after you have used it once, say so after the very first time. Ever since people first began to have asthma, Catarrhozone is certainly the best remedy discovered.

Creighton E. Thompson, well known in Calgary, writes:—"Nothing too strong can be said for Catarrhozone. I suffered four years from asthma in a way that would beggar description. I went through everything that man could suffer. I was told of Catarrhozone by a clerk in Findlay's drug store and purchased a dollar package. It was worth hundreds to me in a week, and I place a priceless value on the benefit I have since derived. I strongly urge every sufferer to use Catarrhozone for Asthma, Bronchitis and Catarrh.

The one-dollar package last two months; small size, 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Canada.

No Standard of Value

That science which professors and learned men term economics, is responsible for many highly curious and surprising phenomena, one of which is, that different countries, alike highly prosperous and with all they want, may yet have vastly different prices for different articles and commodities. How this happens never mind—sufficient that it is so. Another principle of economics, which really is almost instinctive with everybody, is, all other things being equal, to buy in the cheapest market.

GOSPEL OF THE BOY GIVE HIM A CHANCE

Inspiring Talk of Jacob A. Riis a Warm Friend of the Boys Everywhere

Jacob A. Riis, the well known philanthropic worker, New York, gave an address in Toronto which might well be defined as "The Gospel of Boy."

"A boy is a steam boiler with steam always up," he said. "He has a safety-valve. You can sit on the safety-valve if you like, but if you do you are an awful fool. Gangs are formed because there are no playgrounds. The pregnant hours of a boy's life day are from 7 till 9. If you know what your boy does within those hours your boy is safe. We are rehabilitating the whole of our democracy. The young seek bad pleasure because the good ones have been denied them. Don't put a policeman in charge of the boys games. The worst of all is to leave nobody in charge of them. The boy in the playground is on sound ground. Play is the normal occupation of the child, which gives him the best grip upon character. You learn by doing. I would go into the saloon and get drunk and stay drunk rather than live in the old style of tenement. "The boys' club is better a hundred times than the policeman's club." "When you put stripes upon a boy of sixteen you kill a citizen." "When you grow ideals in the slums you have the slum on the hip." "A boy can't be both good and bad at the same time."

The greatest thing in the world was to give the boy a chance, for it is impossible to make a whole man out of half a boy. Give them a chance, and they will generally do for themselves. Further, he mentioned that, in providing these playgrounds, especially those along the water, which he thought to be extra good, wholesome trysting places were made for the young couples who otherwise met only at the dance halls or on the street. He also asked that people should not get the idea that immigrant children were not as good as those born in this country.

Mr. Riis thus described himself: "Forty-three years ago a young man, an immigrant, was walking homeless in New York. His only companion was a poor black-and-tan dog which followed him everywhere and was his only friend. At night when he lay down to sleep a policeman would come along and stick his hand in his ribs and with rough voice bid him 'move on.' One October night it was so cold that unless he could find selter in some place he would freeze to death. The only place left was the police station, and there he went and implored for a night's rest. He had to leave his dog outside. In a foul room, amid toughs, thieves and bums, with vermin crawling all over the place, he lay down and tried to sleep. He slept for a short time and awoke with a start. He knew something had happened. He felt for his mother's locket which was around his neck, and it was gone. He tried to get the Police Inspector to do something for him, but the only satisfaction he got there was the query, 'Where did you get it?' Something broke loose within that boy and he told the Inspector what he thought of the whole place, and the Inspector ordered the doorman to put him out. He was pushed out, and there on the doorstep was his little dog, which had waited all night for him. The dog sprang at the doorman and fastened his teeth in his calf. With a shriek of pain he seized the dog, and, whirling it above his head, dashed it to the ground. What did the boy do? Well, I will not tell you what he did. I was that boy."

A FAMOUS PLAYTHING

Children's Toy Worth $2,500—Japanese Belief About Dolls

What is the most famous toy in history? We would give the palm not to any elaborate mechanical contrivance or lifelike doll, but to the simple, bright stone that in 1867 a Dutch farmer found some Boer children using as a plaything.

For the farmer sent the stone to the Cape for examination and the result was the discovery of the diamond fields of South Africa. And the child's plaything found its way to the Paris Exhibition, where it sold for £500.

According to a Japanese belief, dolls sometimes come alive, acquiring a soul in process of being played with by successive generations of children. Food is provided for them and they are treated with great care, lest neglect should bring trouble upon the household. One pretty story tells how a childless husband and wife borrowed a doll that had gained a soul, fed and clothed it, and deservedly prospered thereafter.

All this is in utter contrast with the unpleasant theory of Varro about dolls. He held that the dolls given to little Romans at Christmas—that is to say, at the Saturnalia—represented original sacrifices of human beings to the infernal god.—London Chronicle.

Washing Painted Wood

The easiest and quickest way of cleaning paint is to have two pails of water, one cold, to which a tablespoonful of ammonia has been added, and one hot, with the addition of a little ammonia and soap powder. With a soft flannel wash the paint with the soapy water, then rinse with the cold water, using wash leather instead of the flannel, and wring the leather fairly dry. Paint washed like this dries with a nice polish, which no amount of drying with cloths and using hot water alone will impart.

RACE OF PYGMIES FOUND IN PAPUA

A New Tribe Which is Here Described as the Most Primitive Yet Encountered

Under the title "Pygmies and the Papuans," by A. F. Wollaston, the report is presented of the expedition that was sent out by the British Ornithologists' Union to explore the interior of Dutch New Guinea. The report is of considerable general interest on account of the new race of pygmies discovered, the most primitive yet encountered, their civilization being in most respects lower than that of the Bushmen, although they appear to have some sort of instinctive morality that is not possessed by other primitive tribes that might be mentioned. For instance, the explorers found the men to be extremely modest. They were greatly embarrassed when asked to remove the curious bags they carried upon their backs, though they were otherwise destitute of clothing. They seemed to think it an impropriety to disrobe themselves of these bags in the presence of white men, and when they were induced to take them off they invariably retired to the forest to do so, and then bashfully returned to the white men. They are, apparently, an inoffensive race, and there was no evidence of the bloodthirsty characteristics that distinguished certain of the Papuans.

Men 4 Feet 6 Inches Tall

The expedition took measurements of about forty adult men, most of them in the prime of life. Their average height was found to be 4 feet 9 inches, some of them being less than 4 feet 6 inches, and the average being made up probably by the inclusion of a few half-breeds, the product of a union of Papuans and pygmies. The explorers emphasize the fact that they did not look like stunted men who might have been bigger, but like miniature men. They are cleanly built and active, with well-made legs which were in contrast to the thin-shanked Papuans. This feature is explained by the fact that they dwell in the hills and hillmen as a rule have well-shaped, muscular legs. The color of their skin is paler than that of the Papuans, some of them being almost yellow, but since they were one and all indescribably dirty it was difficult to be certain what their natural color was, a black oily mixture that they smeared over themselves making observations on this point fruitless. The hair is short, woolly and black, but some of them mix a sort of lime or mud in it to give a lighter appearance, though Mr. Wollaston is of opinion that he saw some genuine brown hair among the men.

Roaming the Mountains

Oddly enough the men grow bald at a comparatively early age, although most of them wear no covering upon their heads at all. The nose of the pygmy is straight and very wide at the nostrils, and the upper lip of many is very long and curiously convex. The eyes, too, are noticeably large and round, giving the pygmies a somewhat melancholy and dog-like look. The ornaments are few and simple, and tattooing appears to be unknown among them, though they followed the custom of piercing the ears and nostrils, and in the slits carried bits of polished bone and other curious trinkets. These pygmies dwell in no regular villages, which may explain the fact that they have escaped the observation of explorers until the present time, but wander among the hills, subsisting on roots, herbs and such animals as they can snare or kill with their bows. Their huts are remarkably well constructed of palm leaf fans, and the pygmies occupy them in family groups. The only metal tool or instrument they use is a small wedge-shaped piece of iron, one inch by two inches, inserted into a wooden handle. This they use as an axe, and the explorers say that with no other implement they have cleared many acres of dense forest, and have even felled trees of twelve or fifteen feet in circumference after the toil of many weeks.

Tribes Without Religion

They are fire makers, and by friction of a piece of rattan and tinder they can produce a blaze in a few seconds. They are wonderfully expert in this task, and seemed to think the matches of the explorers a small improvement on their crude methods. The Pygmies are on friendly terms with the Papuans of the lower country, and frequently visit them for the purposes of barter. They grow tobacco in the hills, and the Papuans do not, so they are welcomed when they come down with a store of the bitter weed, which they smoke in the form of cigarettes. If they have any religion at all, the explorers were unable to discover it, but of course the absence of a satisfactory medium of conversation would prevent the exchange of ideas on abstract subjects. The Papuans seem to be little better off, for they have no religion either, and the idols they carve are treated with contempt or derision.

A WISE MAN'S BRAIN IN IMBECILE'S HEAD

Remarkable Story of Wizard Doctor's Operation to Restore His Son's Mental Balance

In London, England, there is said to live a man with a stolen brain. In his head is the brain of an intellectual giant; his own has returned to dust along with the body of the man whose brain was stolen. If it be true, then the greatest surgical triumph of all ages has been wrought. The brain of a genius can have immortal life on earth. When death impends an operation can remove his brain and in its place put that of an ignorant man, while at the same time the brain of the wise man is transferred to the other's head.

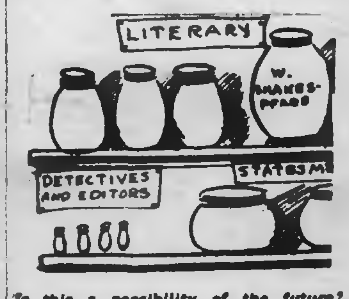
Thus without years of study and experimentation the erstwhile ignorant man starts then and there at the very point of wisdom the first man had reached, and thus future substitutions may pass along that brain to future generations, it growing wiser as the snow ball grows bigger by going on and on.

Several years ago Joseph Warschawski—there is no doubt as to the correctness of the name—a youth of humble origin, but of brilliant intellectual attainments, mysteriously disappeared from London. His father, a furrier, alarmed at his son's long absence, communicated with the police. They were unable to learn anything of the missing young man.

Four years ago Joseph Warschawski was found quite by accident in a wretched East Side tenement in New York. He was then a semi-imbecile, unable to tell what had happened to him. But he could not have arrived in New York in that condition, as he would have been rejected as an undesirable alien. Shortly afterwards a famous surgeon whose remarkable operations from time to time astonished humanity, died. Among his papers was found one labelled "The Case of Joseph Warschawski."

In the document, the surgeon confessed that he had, while in London, heard of the brilliant intellectual attainments of a poor young Polish Jew. He made the acquaintance of the young man, and invited him to some rooms he was occupying near St. Thomas' Hospital. There he administered a potion causing the youth to lose all knowledge of his own identity. He then took passage for himself and his victim by the next boat to New York.

The doctor was a widower with one son, stricken with brain trouble and rapidly approaching imbecility. A few days after the doctor's arrival he performed an extraordinary operation. The imbecile son and Warschawski were placed under anaesthetics. The brilliant brain of Joseph Warschawski was transferred to the head of the doctor's son and the diseased brain of the doctor's son was transferred to the head of Joseph Warschawski.



Is this a possibility of the future?

Both recovered. The doctor's son rose from his bed a genius and Joseph Warschawski was turned out into the streets a partial imbecile.

The doctor's son, says the report, became an eminent novelist and dramatist. Two of his plays were produced with great success in London. He declares, however, that there is no truth in the story of his father's astounding operation.

Chicago, July 30.—Ty. Cobb has tied Joe Jackson for the lead among the American League batters. Unofficial figures for this week gave the Cleveland slugger and the star Detroit man an average of 400 each, Jackson for 80 games and Cobb for 66. Dan Murphy of the Athletics is third with 390; Speaker of Boston, fourth with 380; Caldwell, New York fifth with 364, and Blanding, of Cleveland, sixth with 359.

Chicago, July 30.—President Murphy, of the Cubs, announced to-day that he had purchased Pitcher Earl Moore, the former Philadelphia twirler. Moore was sold to St. Louis, but would not report to Manager Huggins.

McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, says: The Pirates had a chance to nose right up into the pennant race last week. They realized this at the time and so did I. If they had taken four straight games from the Giants, they would have been in a position to make the going for the rest of the distance tough for any club. But they didn't. The Giants, including pitchers and fielders and all, were going well in that series as they have in the last two years.

The boys deserve great credit for their showing, because Pittsburgh came into New York after a very successful trip, confident of winning and in the best form the club has been in this season. Perhaps by boosting my team, some readers think it is handing myself a backhanded boost. For example, somebody recently told me a story of a war correspondent in the late bitterness between Russia and Japan. A Jap general was making observations in an exposed position. He just missed being "beaned" by several shots.

"Better come in from there, general," said the correspondent. "It's dangerous work."

"And you, too, had better come down behind the fortifications yourself and stop sketching there," retorted the general. Of course, the correspondent gets some of the glory in the story.

Clarke put Wagner into the games in the hope of stopping the Giants. Honus played great ball in the field, but he did not show his old batting ability. Matty fooled him for a third strike on a side-arm curve which Mathewson seldom uses. Wagner was looking for a fast ball. He did not reach far enough out.

"That fellow Mathewson watches the batter's feet," said somebody on the Pittsburgh bench to Wagner when he came back, naturally pretty sore after fanning out.

"Yes, and he watched the whites of your eyes, too," answered the Big Dutchman.

BOWLING

The Canadian team, or that part of it which is not visiting the continent sail for home on Wednesday. They have done well, and perhaps it would be good for them to see to it that Pte. Hawkins, the Kings prizeman, travels on the same boat. Then they may be assured of a civic reception.

—Good Shots—

Both Hawkins and the Canadian bowlers have proven that being several "shots" up means a winner, and it is very gratifying to Toronto that the Queen City has not only the King's prizewinner, but also the champion bowlers of Canada.

From all reports it would seem that the visiting bowlers are anxious to see the shores of Canada. Not being high livers at home the surfeit of banquets, including wines and fancy dishes and the absolute lack of "ice with their liquid refreshment" has had a bad effect on the stomachs of these frugal representatives of the bowling game, with the result that they are suffering from indigestion and liver complaints, and in consequence are grouchy and irritable.

TENNIS.

Thomas C. Bundy, of San Francisco, one of the national doubles lawn tennis champions, has wired George Wright of this city that he intends to defend his title with Mr. E. McLoughlin in the national championship at Newport next month.

Bundy's first impulse was to default on account of the pressure of business, but he has arranged matters so that he will be able to leave the Pacific coast at least a month. Bundy will shortly start from the far West, and states that he intends to play in the tournament at Southampton, and it is expected that McLoughlin will have returned from England about that time.

FISHERIES OF CANADA

Dominion Has Most Extensive Fisheries in the World—Commercial Food Fishes

Canada possesses the most extensive fisheries in the world. The waters in and around the Dominion contain the principal commercial food fishes in greater abundance than the waters of any other part of the world. The fertility of Canadian waters is shown by the fact that apart from salmon all the lobsters, herring, mackerel and sardines, nearly all the haddock, and many of the cod, hake and pollock landed in Canada are taken from within our territorial waters. The coast line of the Atlantic provinces, from the Bay of Fundy to the Straits of Belle Isle, without taking into account the lesser bays and indentations measures over 5,000 miles; and along this great stretch are to be found innumerable natural harbors and coves in many of which valuable fish are taken in considerable quantities with little effort.

On the Pacific coast, the province of British Colombia, owing to its immense number of islands, bays and fiords, which form safe and easily accessible harbors, has a sea-washed shore of 7,000 miles. Along this shore and within the limits of the territorial waters, there are fish and mammals in greater abundance, probably, than anywhere else in the whole world.

In addition to this salt-water fishing area, we have in our numerous lakes no less than 220,000 square miles of fresh water, abundantly stocked with many species of excellent food fishes. In this connection, it may be pointed out that the area of the distinctly Canadian waters of what are known as the Great Lakes—Superior, Huron, Erie and Ontario—forms only one-fifth part of the total area of the larger fresh-water lakes of Canada.

The total marketed value of all kinds of fish, fish products and marine animals taken by Canadian fishermen in both the sea and inland fisheries, during the last fiscal year amounted to $24,667,872.

Monuments to Mark Twain.

Mark Twain is to have two monuments in Missouri, one at his birthplace in Florida, the other in Riverview Park, in Hannibal, both erected by the state. He deserves them both, but is not the inscription proposed for the Florida memorial a little too despondent? "He cheered and comforted a tired world." But is it a tired world? The fashion nowadays is to praise literature in the terms of Sancho Panza's blessing on him who invented sleep, but is as dubious a compliment as Pope's tribute to an industrious contemporary writer, "Sleepless himself, to give his readers sleep." It is not only the exhausted who gets good from Mark Twain; he is one of the favorite authors of young people.

Novel Cure for Pleurisy

An extraordinary new cure for pleurisy is at present finding favor among French medical men. The treatment consists of re-injecting diseased matter into the patient immediately after it has been withdrawn.

The cure was originally and successfully tried by Dr. Gilbert at Geneva as far back as 1900. Prof. Chantemesse and Dr. Coyreoux have now devoted a volume to the study of the treatment. By some authorities the "cure" is deemed dangerous.

Rich Young Man's Scheme to Force Girl to Marry Him Fails.

BY H. M. EGBERT.

(Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman.)

Cephas Merritt was dead—Merritt, the rich, eccentric, philanthropic old merchant of Grand boulevard, whose name had been a synonym for integrity in Martinsville for forty years. And the big store and the bank and the innumerable pieces of real estate that he had owned here and there in the state capital had fallen to his miserly nephew, Hamilton Hall.

Hamilton spent five days with his lawyer, and at the end of that period discovered that one-fourth of Cephas' tenants had been living rent free for years. For much of the property was in the poorer part of the city and Cephas had never turned a poor tenant out of doors in his life.

But not all of Cephas' tenants had been poor. One of them, Miss Sidonia Travers, occupied the old Travers mansion on Hurland Heights, which had come to her on the death of her father twenty years previously. When Hall read this name he whistled; and when the lawyer told him that she, too, lived rent free, he whistled again.

"You see, it's this way, Mr. Hall," said the lawyer, "Miss Sidonia believes that the property is hers. She's got only a tiny income of six dollars a week outside it, and if she lost it she'd be practically a beggar—she and her niece, Mary Travers."

"Never mind about Mary; go on," said Hamilton Hall, wetting his lips.

"Well, sir, the property isn't hers at all. The title's faulty. It belonged to Mr. Merritt. But he was an old friend of hers—they say he was once her suitor."

"Then I have the right to it?" exclaimed Hamilton eagerly.

His lawyer looked him up and down. He knew what was passing through his mind. He knew the story of Hall's unsuccessful wooing of Mary Travers and his hatred for Vincent Blaine, her fiance. When her aunt died Mary was to marry Blaine. Till then she would not leave her. And the lovers had been engaged five years.

"No, Miss Mary, It's Mine."

"Better leave her alone, Mr. Hall," said the old lawyer. In his heart smouldered a contemptuous hatred for the man.

"What is the value of Travers house?" asked Hamilton.

"Easily twelve thousand dollars, in its present state," the lawyer answered. And, anticipating the next question, he continued, "At a fair rental it should bring a thousand dollars."

"Then she owes me twenty thousand dollars," thought Hall. But what he said was: "My uncle must have been mad."

Mary Travers was prettier than ever, in Hall's eyes. When he saw her enter the old-fashioned drawing room a flame of jealousy of Blaine burned in his heart.

"Sit down, Miss Travers," he said. "I have something to say to you. You know, of course, that my uncle is dead?"

"Yes," answered Mary. "He was a good man and an old friend of my aunt's. I am sorry, Mr. Hall."

"Well, that's more than I am, by long odds," Hall answered. "Don't you know that I've fallen heir to everything he had? Yes, and I find that I'm worth a cool eight hundred and fifty thousand at the lowest estimate. Now, Mary, I want you to be sensible. Be my wife. Don't be infatuated by that man Blaine. He's a good, honest toiler, no doubt, but he'll never be anything."

"Mr. Hall," said Mary, rising, "I cannot hear any more."

"What, you won't marry me now?"

"Never!" she cried angrily, confronting him with blazing eyes. "I hate and despise you."

"Then why don't you marry Blaine?" sneered Hamilton Hall. And, as she did not reply, he continued:

"I tell you why. You're waiting until your aunt dies so as to get her property. But it isn't hers—it's mine. My uncle owned it all the time, for the conveyance was faulty. The title is fraudulent. And if you don't marry me—why, badly as I'd like to let you stay, out she goes, and you, Miss Mary, unless I get that twenty thousand dollars of rent that's in arrears."

His vulgarity of mind had produced a similar infirmity of speech. Now he stopped, half frightened; he had never dared address Mary in such tones before. But he had produced exactly the effect that he anticipated. Her gentle nature, unused to such language, was terrified—almost cowed.

"This house is not my aunt's?" she cried.

"No, Miss Mary, it's mine," Hall answered. "But if you'll throw Blaine over and marry me I'll settle it on Miss Travers for life." He advanced closer. For once in his life his passion for her carried him off his feet. "Come, be sensible," he pleaded, and pulled her to him and caught her in his arms. "Give me a kiss and then I'll make you love me. I—"

Vincent Blaine was at the door. He had entered the house quietly and now, seeing the sudden light in Mary's eyes, hearing the cry suddenly suppressed into a low appeal, Hall turned, to see Blaine advancing upon him with clenched fists.

"What's the matter with you?" Hall shouted. "Don't you lay a finger on me. I've as much right to go courting as you have." He caught up a chair and placed himself in an attitude of defense.

Blaine did not strike him, for Hall was a much smaller man. Instead, he quietly wrenched the chair from his grasp and, taking his shoulders in a firm grasp, shook him backward and forward till the man's head wagged foolishly upon his shoulders. Then he released him and sent him spinning across the room. All the while he did not utter a word.

Hamilton Hall fell down, rose up, and edged toward the door. There he halted. He shook his fist, began stammering and suddenly, inarticulate with fury, turned and hurried out of the room.

"There goes Travers House," murmured Mary, as she nestled into her lover's arms.

"What do you mean?" asked Blaine, grimly. And Mary told him.

"Vincent, dear," she said presently, "we have a hard fight before us. Whether he has the power or not to take our home away, he has money enough to make things hard for us. Vincent," she added, softly, "do you remember saying that you would not marry me and come to live here because it was your task to make a home for me? And as I couldn't leave my aunt that has meant an indefinite separation. But now that we must fight shoulder to shoulder—help me out, Vincent."

He pressed her in his arms. "When?" he asked, kissing her.

"Next month," she whispered back.

But long before the date set for their marriage arrived Hamilton Hall had begun his legal battle.

"We're at the end, Mary," said Blaine, despairingly. "We can't get a judge to grant a stay. The case is scheduled for next Tuesday, and we've no answer to make. We'd better pack."

"That means a death sentence to Aunt Sidonia," answered Mary, weeping.

"By the way, did I tell you I've got a new lawyer?" asked Blaine presently. "He used to be a partner of old Fingall—the man who acted for Mr. Merritt so many years. He wants us to attend a conference the day before the trial, to be held in his offices. He seems to have a card up his sleeve. I'll call for you on Monday at nine."

Blaine called for Mary and took her to the lawyer's office in a cab. There they met Hall with his attorney, and the five seated themselves around the table. Blaine's lawyer, a lank New Englander named Robertson, who spoke with a nasal drawl and fidgetted unendingly with his papers, made his proposal.

"We offer you," he said with tantalizing slowness, studying his papers intently, "five hundred—er—no, one thousand dollars a year rental upon the property."

Hall laughed derisively. "And how about the twenty thousand due?" he asked.

"That isn't good in law, sir," Robertson answered.

"But it's my house," laughed Hall. "Well, anyway, I wouldn't rent it for five thousand, arrears or not. The fact is, I'm going to have it redecorated and turn it into a home for superannuated old maids of good family."

"That's going a little far, Mr. Hall," drawled Robertson.

"It's my client's house," interrupted the opposing lawyer fiercely. "Now it's no good talking. We came to this conference as a matter of professional curiosity on my part and Christian charity on my client's. Is that your offer—one thousand a year?"

Robertson nodded. "We'll give you that," he said.

"Then the meeting is ended," cried the other. "Mr. Hall, we are wasting time. Tomorrow you'll have your house again if we have to bundle the present occupants into the street."

"Hum! That's your last word?" drawled Robertson.

"It is."

"How about squatters' rights, Mr. Snaith?"

"What's that?"

"I find," said Mr. Robertson, fumbling with his papers, "that Miss Travers has occupied the premises unmolested for—er—twenty years, four months, and nineteen days. You are aware, of course, that under the common law, as amended in this state, that gives her indisputable ownership."

"But she thought it was her house," yelled the other.

"A great blunder," answered Mr. Robertson. "We confess unreservedly that it was not. She was a squatter—just a plain squatter on abandoned land. But I guess she'll squat there for a good many years longer, gentlemen."

A Pauper's Holiday Trip

A Strabane workhouse inmate named O'Brien, recently transferred from Glasgow, appearing before the guardians to ask for a private subscription to enable him to return to that city, said he had a sore leg when he arrived, but it was better now. O'Brien added: "To tell you the truth, I just came over here for a holiday, and for the good of the old Irish air; that is all. I could go back to-night if only I could get my fare."

The clerk said that it had been ascertained that O'Brien came home from the South African war worth $3,000, and that he soon spent the money. The application was refused.

Agonies of Gall Stones
SANOL is the only Reliable and Rapid Cure for this Painful and Dangerous Disease
There are hundreds of sufferers from Gall Stones who will be glad to know of the great results being derived from the use of SANOL; the remedy that is safe, sure and remarkably rapid in its action. It removes the necessity of an operation; relief comes promptly, the stones being dissolved or passed off in the stool without danger to the patient and without pain.
We have many testimonials from people who have thus been cured. We are able to give name and addresses of numbers of these, and will gladly do so to all who enquire.
The following from the letter of a well-known Toronto gentleman:
"Replying to your letters, I followed your instructions and purchased two bottles of SANOL, you might send me as much of the mixture as I need. If I can, in any way, help the sale of SANOL, and by doing so help some other unfortunate, I will be only too pleased to do so, as I consider it the best remedy made."

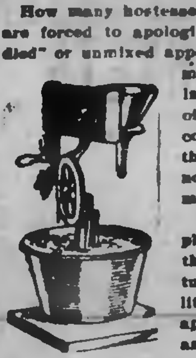
MAYONNAISE MIXER

Here's a Hint to Housewives Who Want the Best Results

How many hostesses are there who are forced to apologise for the "curdled" or unmixed appearance of their mayonnaise dressing because the oil and the other constituents of the dressing have not been properly mixed?



Yet it is a simple matter to have the proper mixture attained if a little mechanical appliance that anyone can secure is used. All that is necessary is a bracket to which an egg beater can be screwed with a shelf far enough under it to hold the bowl in which the dressing is to be mixed and permit the egg beater to reach the bottom of the bowl.

There is a ring on the opposite side of the bracket to which the egg beater is affixed large enough to hold an ordinary funnel. The oil is placed in the funnel and a cork is placed in the small end to regulat the flow to a drop at a time. The other constituents of the dressing are placed in the bowl and the handle of the egg beater is turned. The oil will drop into the dressing in just the proportion desired and the proper mixture is attained. A hammer, a few nails, a piece or two of wood, screws and rugs are all that is needed.

WHO ARE THE MANCHUS?

A Glance at the Born Blue Bloods of China

The Manchus are—or were—the upper crust of Chinese society. They however, are the born blue bloods. Such Chinese aristocracy as there is is the aristocracy of learning and official standing. There is nothing to prevent a Chinese peasant from becoming even a viceroy if he has the ability and the luck, but that is as far as he can go. All the folks of the royal family are Manchus. The Manchus came down from the north in 1644, at the invitation of the Chinese rulers, to quell a rebellion in China. They quelled it all right. Now that they have outlived their welcome several centuries, it remains to be seen whether or not they can quell another. The Manchus were originally a very different people from the Chinese. They were warlike, while the Chinese were peaceful. Several centuries of association and intermingling of blood, however, has had its effect on the Manchus. They have adopted, in large measure, the manners and customs of the Chinese, and not a little of their temperament. They still maintain their physical characteristics, however. The Manchus were the original queue wearers. When they took the reins of Chinese government they forced the Chinese, on pain of death, to grow queues. Latterly, however, the queues have been discarded.

Not All Equal There

A great sensation was recently caused in racing circles in the South Africa Rand by the action of the Johannesburg Turf Club in accepting any entry for the summer meeting from a native. The native is a well-known Basuto chief named N'Tsieng whose horse, Mow, was nominated for several races, but, says a Johannesburg paper, "it is felt by many members of the club that a precedent will be created which may lead to very great difficulties in the future. Hitherto the policy of the turf club has been extremely strict, colored trainers for horses running under their rules being "barred," also colored jockeys. Natives and Indians have been allowed to run horses in Natal and at the Cape, but this practice has been "taboo" in the Transvaal, and it is felt that a great mistake has been made in departing from the policy enforced for so many years. Moreover, it is pointed out that whilst the nomination of a native has been accepted the turf club will not allow a white woman who owns horses to enter them at their meetings. A number of members of the turf have openly declared their intention of resigning if the new policy is continued."

FOSSIL BONES

Those Found Near Calgary Believed to be 3,000,000 Years Old

Fossil bones which J. L. Wagner, a farmer in the Canadian Northwest, discovered in the Red Deer River canyons near Calgary four years ago and which he casually reported on a later visit to the American Museum of Natural History, New York, are on exhibition for the first time at the museum as an almost complete skeleton of a crested dinosaur, a reptile 32 feet long and 16 feet high. It is placarded as probably 3,000,000 years old, the reptile having existed when the Canadian Northwest had a sub-tropical climate. This particular species of the reptile has hitherto been unknown and it has been scientifically named the Saurolophus Osborni.

Shot for Wild Animal

Thinking some wild animal was trying to get into his cabin a laborer on the G.T.P. near Edmonton, fired through the wooden door from his bed and the bullet struck Carl Strackenburg, his "bunkie," who was just returning from a fishing trip. The wound was not a serious one.

Horse Bit off Finger

While poking grass through a crack in the barn, the five-year-old daughter of James L. Seburn, a farmer living near St. Catharines, had her index finger completely bitten off by a horse.

Linen Shirt Bag

For a man, make a bag to hold two or three clean shirts in a suit-case when travelling. Gray linen is best, shaped like a long envelope with a flap on the end says Mother's Magazine. Make it just large enough to allow the shirts to fit in snugly. Bind the bag with satin ribbon a shade darker than the linen and fasten the flap by a button. Embroider initials on flap in white or gray.

MAKE DEATH EASIER

Maeterlinck Thinks That Doctors Needlessly Prolong Life

In a remarkable book on death, Maurice Maeterlinck attacks medical science for its efforts to prolong the life of a person doomed to death.

"All our knowledge," he says, "only renders the death of human beings more painful than that of animals, who know nothing. Doctors say in the present state of science that there is never a certainty of death, with a few exceptions. Not to maintain life until the last limits, even at the price of insupportable agony, is perhaps to kill. The present idea is that the worst tortures are not in vain if a partial existence is prolonged a few days. To cheat death one hour is regarded as worth a life of pain."

M. Maeterlinck adds that the doctors, however, are coming to agreement on the advisability, when there is no longer a chance of saving life, of softening pain in the last moments.

"It is not death," he says, "that attacks life, but life that outrageously resists death. Perhaps one day medical science will allow death to come surely and silently when life's course is run. When the doctor and patient know what they ought to know there will be no physical or metaphysical reason why the coming of death shall not be as comforting as sleep."

M. Maeterlinck says it is surprising that death, which ought to be the most perfect and luminous of ideas, since it is the thing most inevitable, should be most kept in the background because of the world's groveling fear thereof.

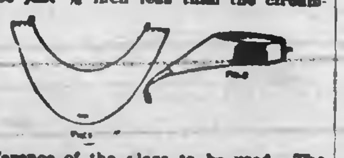
"All the terrible agony we impute to the last fatal moment," he says, "does not naturally belong to death. This supreme suffering is lengthened in proportion to the advance of science. All doctors believe that it is their first duty to prolong as far as possible the most atrocious convulsions of the death agony. Who, at a deathbed, has not wished to throw himself at the doctor's feet, and demand mercy for the dying, without daring to do so. The doctors are so convinced of their duty that pity and reason are blinded in fulfilment of the highest and most revered law of the human conscience."

GOGGLES FOR DRIVERS

Easily and Cheaply Made For Use on the Road

Goggles are mighty useful things to have when one does much driving, automobiling or riding on motorcycles. They are expensive when the right sort are bought—but the right kind are not costly if made at home.

Two pieces of heavy leather—just a bit lighter than sole leather—form the basis of a pair. Each piece should be cut the shape shown in the sketch (Fig. 1). The line from A to B should be just ¼ inch less than the circumference of the glass to be used. The glass, properly shaped, can be purchased cheaply from any optician.



A notch is cut in the leather on a line with the line A to B to receive the glass, and the ends at A and B are then sewed togther with the glass caught in the notch so as to be shaped when finished, as in Figure 2.

The two pieces are fastened together with a thong or a piece of wire after being fitted to the eye. The head piece to hold the goggles in place is made of silk elastic.

The Ideal Husband

Through the Young Women's Christian Associations, Kansas college girls have enjoyed a symposium on the elements that go to make the model husband. They conclude that he needn't be "handsome," but must be good. The average of physical proportions favored is: Height, 5 feet, 11 inches; chest, 40 inches; waist, 30 inches; weight, 159 pounds. What is included in "goodness," as the Kansas college girls see it, is not smoking or drinking, not sneering at religion, not being impolite, and not being addicted to flattery. Also "he must not recognize a different standard for men and women."

MILK AND MUSIC

Piano Keys and Similar Objects Products of the Dairy

It is a little-known fact that the most [illegible] music at the present day [illegible] produced by playing on milk. The supply of ivory nowadays does not to a great extent, meet the demand. Strange as it may sound, skim milk forms a [illegible]. It is used for making the keyboards of pianos, and in appearance the hardened substance is hardly distinguishable from ivory. What is more, it is much less expensive, and its durability nearly double.

Syrolit, as the skim-milk ivory is named, is a practically new invention but at the present time thousands of gallons of separated milk are daily transformed into one of the most useful materials of modern invention. The milk is not mixed with any other substance, but, after being purified, it is compressed, so that all the moisture is extracted, and the substance becomes hard and dry.

Practically in every part of the globe this product is now used. It is turned into umbrella handles, buttons, photograph frames, etc. The comb-making industry especially appreciates its worth, as it can be made to look like horn. Its non-inflammability is another of its assets.

What is Murder?

Sneed, the Texas ranchman, after threatening to kill the Boyces, father and son, hunted them up one after the other, and discharged the full contents of his weapon into their bodies on each occasion. Yet the jury declared him not guilty of murder. A definition of murder, in the Texas sense, would be a valuable rider to the veridct.—Edmonton Journal

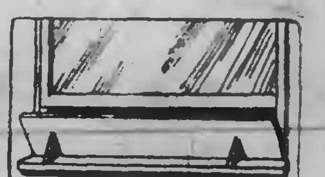
FRESH AI ; NO DRAFT

Simple Contrivance to Secure Proper Ventilation of a Room

Doctors are always urging better ventilation, and few of them give very good advice as to how to get it. They want the windows in a room to be open sufficiently to admit plenty of fresh air, but they do not very often tell how this can be accomplished without permitting the cold blasts to freeze the occupants of the room.



A deflecting board is the proper thing, and it can be made in half an hour and at an expenditure of only a few cents. Two triangular pieces of wood are nailed to a board that is as wide as the window. The triangular pieces are large enough to serve as a stand for the board. The window can be opened until the lower edge of the sash is but a few inches lower than the top of the board.

The board is set on the window sill, and there is no direct current of air from the window, as the board deflects the cold blast.

LIST OF LITERARY SHRINES

These of America by no Means New, When One Calls to Mind the Famous Names.

The editor and his caller, each returning from a different part of the world, were on the subject of literary shrines.

"What would be generally regarded as the ten literary shrines of America?" queried the former.

Well—they began to enumerate them and to jot the names down on a piece of paper, idly—well, there are the Hawthorne and Emerson houses in Concord, the Lowell and Longfellow houses in Cambridge, Poe's cottage in Fordham, Cooper's palace, Otsego Hall at Cooperstown, Bryant's modest residence east of the Berkshires at Cummington, the Ticknor house in Boston—this, principally by reason of its noted visitors, and chief among them Thackeray-Whitman's home in Camden, Irving's at Sunnyside, and—but that makes ten already, without counting Drake's grave in the little burying ground at Hunt's Point, N. Y., which, judging by the letters that appeared with such frequency in the metropolitan papers for decades concerning the disrepair into which the memorial erected above it had fallen, would seem to be one of the most important of all.

Well, that's eleven, anyway, and probably two or three more ought to be added, either in place of some of those already accepted provisionally, or to swell the total to an irreducible minimum of, say, fifteen. We note that there is not one from the south on the list, and we are looking to our southern friends to make good this omission in letters that will flood the editorial desk by each mail every day for a week or so after the publication of this number. Surely the south must have at least one shrine—a purely literary shrine, that is, and not merely a composite literary and political shrine like Monticello, to which we demur in advance. And the west, too—but there the shrines, while ripening rapidly (we suspect that there will be an active Riley shrine some day at Indianapolis, for example) are a little green as yet to be picked for our present purposes.—From the Bookman.

Bread-and-Butter Studies.

The complaint that colleges are moving too rapidly away from the old learning is one very frequently heard in our day. Many people have attributed this drift to the fact that undergraduates are permitted to map out their own courses of study, and to do this under the influence of a delusion that only the so-termed "practical" subjects are apt to prove of any service to them in after life. Hence the classes in accounting, or in industrial chemistry, or in political science are large enough to tax the capacity of college lecture rooms, while professors of Greek or Sanskrit discourse to half-empty benches on the beauties of the "Odyssey" and the aphorisms of the "Rig-Veda."

But the experience of the university extension courses which have been offered in Boston during the last three or four years seems to prove that the superior magnetism of the so-called bread-and-butter studies is just as pronounced in the outer world as it is within the college gates.—Boston Herald.

Human Nature

If all that hate would love us and all our loves were true,
The stars that swing above us would brighten in the blue;
If cruel words were kisses and every scowl a smile,
A better world than this would hardly be worth while.

If purses would untighten to meet a brother's need,
The load we bear would lighten above
the grave of greed,
If those who whine would whistle and those who languish, laugh,
The rose would rout the thistle, the grain outran the chaff.

If hearts were only jolly, if grieving were forgot,
And tears and melancholy were things that now are not—
Then Love would kneel to duty and all the world would seem.
A bridal bower of beauty, a dream within a dream.

The Isolated Continent

A Romance of the Future

By
Guido von Horvath
and Dean Hoard

Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman in the United States and Great Britain.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—For fifty years the continent of North America had been isolated from the rest of the world by the use of Z-rays, a wonderful invention of Hannibal Prudent. The invention had saved the country from foreign invasion, and the continent had been united under one government, with Prudent as president. For half a century peace and prosperity had reigned. The story opens with President Prudent critically ill. His death is hastened by the receipt of a message from Count von Werdenstein of Germany that he has at last succeeded in penetrating the rays. Dying he warns his daughter Astra that this means a foreign invasion. He tells her to hurry to the Island of Cirvne, but dies before he can tell the location of the place.

CHAPTER III—Napoleon Edison calls on Astra, informs her that he was a pupil of her father's, and promises to help her. He gives her a ring made of a newly discovered substance which, he says, will solve the problem of flying.

CHAPTER IV—Chevalier di Leon appears in Europe. He notes that preparations have been completed for an invasion of America. He calls on von Werdenstein and offers him the secret of making gold.

Papers from Berlin and England were in the reading-room and he was informed of the doings of the world.

On the 5th of February the chancellor strode into the reading-room where the chevalier was comfortably reading a novel by the English writer, Sir Rider Haggard, that had been published about 1920.

"What a pleasant surprise, your excellency!" bowed the chevalier with a broad smile.

The chancellor was somewhat taken back; he had expected a different reception.

"You appear contented here!"

"Considering the circumstances, I am."

"I have a few words to say to you, and I will say them plainly."

"The plainer the better, your honor!"

"The fact that you are an American is proved beyond a doubt. What are you doing here and how did you come here?"

The answer came as a flash, but calm and sarcastic:

"I am listening to you, your excellency, and as to my coming, I did not come of my own accord; I was carried." A devilish little smile twinkled in the gray eyes of the chevalier.

The chancellor was offended; the young man dared to play with him, the iron handed master.

"Your jokes are out of place; you are a clever man, but I will have to ask my question again. Will you answer it?"

"I refuse!"

Their eyes clashed like the cold steel of two swords.

"Chevalier di Leon, you are not taking your situation seriously. What is your liberty worth to you?"

"It is very valuable, your excellency; however, it has no price, as I know that everything comes to him who waits."

"Then you are not willing to consider any offer I may make?"

"Your honor, as a prisoner, I am not in a position to listen to any offer; the time will come when we will stand face to face again, both free and uninfluenced by circumstances; then I will consider things seriously. By this I don't mean to say that my imprisonment influences me in any way."

The Count von Werdenstein paced the room impatiently. Suddenly he turned to the quietly sitting man.

"I Will Be There at 10, Your Excellency."

"Chevalier, I certainly admire your courage. I must admit my defeat." He offered his hand to the chevalier and turned to leave the room saying: "Until we meet again, chevalier!"

When the chancellor returned to Berlin he called for the Countess Rosiny and asked her to attend a private audience as soon as possible. She hurried to the chancellor's private office.

"My dear countess, I requested your presence urgently, as I desire to make you a gift that I am sure you will be glad to accept."

The countess looked questioningly at her dictator.

"You have asked me several times what happened to the Chevalier di Leon, your gallant knight and dancer, and I have found him for you; more than that, I will turn him over to you for safe keeping."

The countess' beautiful face became, for a fleeting moment, sad, then her serenity returned.

"I am counting on your clever work. The chevalier is a man whose mission and means are obscure and I must know more about him. You are the only one in the service who will be able to obtain this information for me. To show you how much I trust you and your ability, I give you carte blanche—you may do as you please. If you should find it necessary, you may even elope with him. Here is a special order and passport, also an extended account upon all the state banks."

"I see; but what is it that you want to know?"

"Everything, my dear countess; but especially the situation across the Atlantic."

"I think I know what my duties are, and will start for Helgoland tomorrow. When shall I report progress?"

"When your mission is at an end."

The Countess Rosiny picked up the documents, looked them over and placed them in her handbag.

The punctilious chancellor escorted her to his office door and bade her goodby, wishing her good fortune. When the door closed behind the departing countess the chancellor rubbed his hands with satisfaction. "I am glad she took the commission so calmly. Now, my dear chevalier, if you can withstand those violet eyes you are not an ordinary mortal but a saint."

The countess' beautiful face was set and determined; she had not spoken, but storm was raging in her heart.

Three days later the captain told his prisoner that a new guest was expected; that she was a lady of the court, charged with conspiracy against the government.

The chevalier laughed. "I should not be surprised to find an old acquaintance in the fair conspirator."

The captain's eyes grew round and his honest face expressed surprise, but he made no comment.

The following morning Countess Rosiny arrived. The apartment adjoining that of the chevalier was given her and the prisoners met in the presence of Captain Euler at the breakfast table.

The greeting that Chevalier di Leon gave was quite a surprise to the countess; he acted courteously, but gave not the least sign that he had ever met her before. When the breakfast was over he retired to the reading-room, where the countess followed him, without the captain.

"You don't seem to recognize me, chevalier!"

He glanced around cautiously, and when he saw they were alone he whispered: "I thought it might be disagreeable for you, countess, but now that we are alone, I greet you with all my heart."

"What brought you here, chevalier?"

Chevalier di Leon laughed and shrugged his shoulders. "I think it is a caprice of the Count von Werdenstein; he wants to extend all the hospitality he possibly can. Look at those masterfully constructed windows that give you air and light, without permitting you to see even the sky. Is that not the limit of forethought?"

The countess recognized bitter feeling in the chevalier's heart, and casting down her beautiful eyes, she sighed: "From now on you will have a companion in captivity. I do not want to compliment you, but it was quite a pleasant surprise to find you here, chevalier."

"You are more than kind," was all he said.

The days passed more quickly. Many a man would have envied the prison in which the chevalier was filling time seemingly in perfect contentment.

When the month of February was gone he felt a longing for the free air and his thoughts began to concentrate upon an attempt to make a strike for liberty. He examined all the devices that were arranged to prevent escape from the prison.

The Countess Rosiny noticed the change that had come over the chevalier and one evening she began to talk about the moon and stars, saying that spring was at the door. The chevalier listened to the sweet voice of the woman who sat opposite to him quietly.

"Tell me, chevalier, are you of stone? Have you no human feelings whatever?"

"I certainly have, countess; indeed, I am well endowed in that respect."

"Haven't you felt happier since I came to share your solitude?"

He looked at her with those bold, penetrating gray eyes for a long time.

"Countess, I admire you, and you are the pleasantest comrade that I ever had, but I am troubled. The continuous indoor life is beginning to tell on me. I am used to much exercise in the open air, and I have many things that I am worried about."

A few days later Captain Euler told the prisoners that they would be allowed to spend the evenings on the roof of the building.

The countess watched Chevalier di Leon's face very closely when the captain told them this and saw the gleam of real pleasure in his eyes.

That evening they were taken to the roof of the building; to be accurate, to a section of the roof which was surrounded by a high wall, so high that it prevented them from seeing the courtyard beneath, or anything but the stars and the pale face of the full moon.

It was springtime.

"Don't you think this would be an ideal place to send up fire rockets?" He looked toward the stars; his eyes wandered over the dark blue firmament restlessly.

"You are playing with fire all the time," remarked the countess, as she moved nearer to the chevalier.

"Have you ever heard of a case where people were married in a prison?" she continued.

"No, I never have."

"Chevalier, will you tell me one thing—frankly, honestly?" Her voice was tender and soft.

"Anything you ask, countess."

"Are you engaged to be married?"

"I am not." The firmness of his voice was enough to assure the countess that he told the truth.

"Are you in love?"

"In love?" he repeated thoughtfully. "I don't know; all I know is that I have an image, a saint enshrined in my heart, of whom I think, for whose welfare I am fighting and suffering. If that is love, then I am in love."

The countess sighed, a sob broke from her heaving bosom and she let her shoulder lean heavily against him; she buried her face in his shoulder and the tears trickled down her soft cheeks as she sighed:

"I am so very, very unhappy."

The chevalier bent his head over her and his eyes became dark for a second; then he folded her in his arms and their lips met in a kiss.

The spell was short; the next moment the countess stood up and the chevalier picked her up and placed her on the bench again, as if she were a little child; then he turned and ran down the stairs to his prison.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Fireworks.

Every evening after that, except when it stormed, the prisoners went up on the roof. These evenings were the pleasantest part of the days.

During the day the chevalier read the daily papers and magazines with great interest. He found plenty of engrossing news there, especially the preparations of the confederated navy and army. One article, very well written by one of the chief engineers, particularly attracted his attention. That article described the Z ray and its destroyer. The supply station of destruction was Madeira, from which place heavy cables were laid to reach the 30th longitudinal meridian, along which the Z ray ran. The heaviest current of electricity was conducted by this tremendous cable to three specially built boats. The Sampsonian vibrating rays were generated on these boats. Each ray made 3,000,000 vibrations a second and all were directed in a harmonious line toward the Z ray belt. In time the wall of isolation would fall down under the immense force playing against it, and the invasion of America would follow.

After a long study the chevalier placed the magazine on the table and muttered: "The time for action is nearing."

One evening at the dinner table the chevalier asked Captain Euler if he could have some material for pyrotechnical displays in order to lessen the monotony of their existence.

The kind captain furnished everything he asked for. The countess offered her services and they worked almost all afternoon the next day getting the fireworks ready. Di Leon seemed to be an expert; he soon had a large Japanese wheel, several turning stars and also a number of long sky rockets ready.

When evening came they excitedly prepared for the grand fireworks. The sky was clear and the moon had not yet risen. Chevalier di Leon arranged the different pieces, and when the captain came up he fired the first air runner. The long rocket went high up in the air, whirring and whistling, and then, with a puff, broke into thousands of red sparks. Another puff brought white and the third brought blue.

The next was the Japanese sun: this was fastened to the center of the roof. It circled and sparkled for a long time.

The chevalier was deeply interested in his projectiles and, as the countess assisted him, Captain Euler had to play the part of audience. There was a larger audience outside their inclosure, but that was another world.

When all the set pieces were used the chevalier looked up in the sky, seemingly searching for something; at last his hand went into his pocket and, bringing out an object not unlike a Browning pistol, he said: "And now, ladies and gentlemen, I will show you something new in the pyrotechnical art."

He elevated his arm. After a few twirlings and twistings of the instrument a click was heard and then came the whizzing sound of a bullet.

"Now watch right above us."

Five minutes later, at an immense height, a flash occurred. Directly after the flash a spiral light began to descend, slowly; then, after several minutes, an explosion followed that put an end to the dropping spiral of fire and above them a small white cloud puff slowly fell downward.

"That was a beauty!" commented Captain Euler.

"Have you any more?" inquired the countess.

"I am sorry, madam, but this is the last for tonight," answered Chevalier di Leon, with eyes turned steadily toward the southeast. They all sat down, and Captain Euler and the countess started a conversation in which the chevalier refused to take part; he was watching the sky and the stars. It was much later than usual when he returned to his gilt cage, but he was satisfied at last; he had seen a star that winked at him familiarly.

The next day the countess asked if they were to have fireworks again, but the chevalier thought it would lose its charm if they had the displays too often. He retired to his room that evening, complaining of a slight headache.

"Shall I call the post doctor?" asked Captain Euler, but the chevalier declined.

When in his sleeping-room he looked over the contents of his small baggage and selected a number of articles that he packed into one bundle. Then he left the room.

The reading-room was the one that was connected with the outer world by the stairway that ran to the roof. The chevalier stepped quickly to the door leading to the corridor and listened; he could hear the sentry walking up and down. He saw with satisfaction that the door could be locked on the inside with key and bolts; then he examined the door that led to the roof. It was a heavy door, that could be locked only from the inside. He silently crept up the stairs and peered into the inclosure; under one of the plants, in the shade, was the countess reading. There were a number of heavy objects with which the door could be barricaded.

He quietly descended, without being seen by the countess, and inspected her room. Apparently finding everything to his satisfaction, he picked up a book from the table and joined the countess.

Chevalier di Leon Arranged the Different Pieces.

"Are you feeling better, my dear chevalier?"

"I thank you, countess, yes. And how are you? Does not this imprisonment tell on your nerves?"

She sighed. "Chevalier, I think it does. If I were in a dark dungeon it could hurt me more; but a prison is a prison, and gilt bars are hateful."

"Why are you here?"

She smiled sadly. "You ask me why I am here as if you did not know my mission."

"Your mission—then you are not a prisoner?"

"I am a prisoner just as long as you are one, chevalier. My fate binds me to you. Why should I hesitate to tell you?" She looked around, and then in a whisper she continued: "I am in the service of the international police, chevalier, and I was sent to you to get your secret." Great tears rolled down her cheeks. "Chevalier, please don't interrupt me; I want you to know all. The chancellor wants to know your mission in Europe, from where you come and the secret of gold." She was now openly sobbing.

Neither spoke for some time; at last the chevalier turned to the countess: "It is just possible that I am making the greatest mistake of my life, but—what is the difference—you have been frank with me, and I will be frank with you."

She lifted her face quickly.

The chevalier thought for a second. "Would you like to get rid of all that belongs to the past? Would you come with me?"

She looked at him with such unutterable longing that he felt irresistibly drawn toward her; he actually started toward the fascinating woman with arms extended. Then his saner nature reminded him of all that would result from letting their friendship merge into a love affair, and he stopped.

A wave of rage swept over her when she saw his hesitation and decision, but she whispered softly: "I shall go with you."

"Now we are becoming real conspirators; be prepared so that at a moment's notice you can leave."

"Where will you take me?"

"Wherever my stars lead!" was his enigmatical answer, as he left the roof and went to his room to sleep.

Night came again, the captain left them alone at 9:30, saying that he had some writing to do.

Chevalier di Leon watched the sky, which was somewhat cloudy; there was a strong wind that drove the ragged wanderers to and fro.

The winking star he had observed several times before was stationed in the eastern sky.

MEAT ON THE FARM

More Important That Animals be Healthy Than Extremely Fat

There are a few essential points that should be observed in selecting animals to butcher on the farm. The first consideration should be given to the matter of health in the animals to be used for food. No matter how fat an animal may be nor how perfect its form, if it is not in perfect health the best quality of meat cannot be obtained. If the animal is suffering from fever or from any serious derangement of the system the flesh will not be wholesome food. Flesh from animals that have been ill before slaughter is not likely to cure well, and is very difficult to keep after curing. Bruises, broken limbs or like accidents all have the same effect on meat as illness, and unless the animal can be dressed immediately after such accidents, it is best not to use the meat for food. This would be true especially if there has been a rise in temperature of two or more degrees. Such a rise in temperature just previous to slaughter is likely to result in stringy, gluey meat, and create a tendency to sour in curing. Animals that are in poor flesh will not yield first-class meat. While the texture may not be bad in such meat it is essential that a reasonable amount of fat be present to give juiciness and flavor to the flesh. The presence of large amounts of fat is not essential and, in fact, it is often wasteful. It is far more important that the animal be in good health than that it be extremely fat.—Andrew Boss.

BAD FLAVORS IN BUTTER

English Writer's Hint as to Avoidance of Turnip Taint

A good way to prevent the taint of swedes or turnips appearing in butter is to scald the cream a couple of days before churning. This is done by putting the cream vessel into a furnace of boiling water, and allowing it to remain there until the cream reaches a temperature of 170 degrees Fahrenheit. The cream must be frequently stirred during the process, or the sides and top will be many degrees warmer than the interior. When the cream is removed from the furnace, it should be passed through a strainer, and then be put in a place where dust and dirt cannot get in, for scalded cream does not strain easily after it gets cool. But it is a mistake to give everything to the cows which comes out of a root field, as many do. Roots which have been forced too fast by abundant dressings of artificial manure are often decaying when they are brought into the cow shed, and food of this kind is not suitable for milch cows. Decayed leaves, too, are sure to taint the butter worse than wholesome roots alone. But if sound swedes alone are given in moderate quantities, the milk supply will be maintained, and if the cream be scalded as above directed, there need be no fear of taint.—Staffs, in Farm and Home, England.

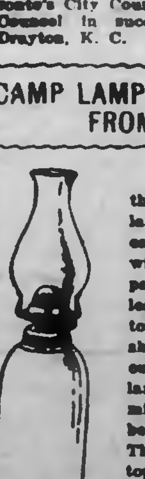
CAMP LAMP MADE FROM FRUIT JAR



A fruit jar makes the finest sort of a lamp for the hunting camp, if the hunter will make a few preparations before he leaves home. The top of the fruit jar should have a hole cut through it just large enough to permit a lamp burner to be screwed into it. This can be an extra top and another top used on the jar when it is packed. It can be packed with the oil in it, if desired. An ordinary wick and chimney complete the lamp.

Grass for a Queen

An amusing story is told of the ten-year-old son and heir of Lord Lurgan. As a small child he was extremely devoted to soldiers. Once at a garden party at Buckingham palace he spent his time picking daisies and giving them to the bandsmen. The Royal hostess, Queen Alexandra, asked if he had a daisy for her. But her majesty not being a soldier, the child replied: "No; grass for you." and thrust in her white-gloved hand a small bunch of grass, to her Majesty's intense amusement.

Linoleum Substitute

Any old carpet may be used as a substitute for linoleum. First mend the rents or very thin spots, then tack carefully to the floor. Make a cooked starch of wheat flour and apply with a brush or broom. Let dry, then apply two coats of paint. If painted once or twice a year it will last indefinitely.

Is Your Back Full of Aches All Day Long?

THAT STAB-LIKE PAIN IN THE BACK IS SURE INDICATION OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Mrs. Anna Rodrigues writes as follows from her home in Valencia:—"For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs become bloated and shaky, I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut."

No greater medicine exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills for the cure of indigestion, constipation, flatulence liver, bladder and kidney trouble. Refuse substitutes. 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Holbrook Case Partly Settled.

The case of Holbrook, vs. the Children's Aid Society has been settled. Magistrate Edmison having made an order to have the child in question become a ward of the Children's Aid Society. The case arose primarily through a complaint that the little Holbrook girl was being neglected by her mother. In the investigation that followed it was discovered that the little girl would not reside, with her mother, because she claimed she was living with a man who was not her husband. The little girl was then brought to the Children's Shelter, but her mother commenced an action in County Police Court to have her daughter returned to her. It is understood that the case of the little boy has not been settled yet.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Mr. John Beavis.

John Beavis, highly respected and life-long resident of Asphodel, died at his home in Asphodel, Tuesday afternoon. Three weeks ago he was taken ill with Bright's disease. He leaves a widow, six sons and two daughters.

The funeral will be held this afternoon to Trent Valley cemetery.

Mrs. John Scott.

The death occurred on Tuesday of Effie Larner, wife of Mr. John Scott Cavan, in her 44th year. Her husband is in the west and the funeral will be delayed pending his arrival.

Mrs. J. Z. Rogers.

General and deep regret was expressed yesterday, when it became known that Margaret Achsah Burnet, relict of the late Col. J. Z. Rogers, had passed away at the family residence.

The late Mrs. Rogers, who was in her 63rd year, was born in Cobourg and she was married in the year 1875 her husband predeceasing her March 11th 1909.

During her long residence in Peterborough Mrs. Rogers won a host of friends. In religion she was an Anglican, and a member of St. Luke's church.

She is survived by one daughter, Miss Mary Rogers, and one son, Mr. Claude H. Rogers.

The funeral will be held from the late residence, 135 Hunter street east, this afternoon to St. Luke's church and the Little Lake cemetery

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars nad testimonials.

CITY IN PARAGRAPH

SUNLIGHT AND SHADOW ON THE DIAL OF A CITY LIFE.

Mrs. P. Downham has returned to Peterborough after a seven months' visit with friends in the west.

The hot spell of the past week has resulted in a number of prostrations of varying seriousness in the city and vicinity.

Nathan Chard and Ed. McNutt, convicted of being intoxicated at Norwood, in a local option municipality, were each fined $20, with $9.44 costs.

Sanitary Inspector Spence's action in bringing atest case before Magistrate Dumble to decide whether or not small milk vendors should have a license seems to have had the desired effect.

Another appointment has been made by City Engineer Parsons—that of Wm. Ball as foreman on the general construction work. Mr. Ball has a gang of men at work in East City.

HOW TO INDUCE SLEEP

Many Different Schemes Suggested For Victims of Insomnia

A sufferer from insomnia retails a number of counsels he has received, of which the first comes from the poet M. Leconte, who says:

"Open your window wide. Lie with your head as low as possible and you will sleep like a post."

Another very well known man writes:

"Accustom yourself to take an hour or two's rest in a deck chair after every meal. Take down from your shelves some old-fashioned novel of which you have an affectionate remembrance as one of the joys of your youth, and read it while you are in your deck chair. The more you are wearied by it the better you will sleep. The secret of a good night is not to tire yourself out in the evening, but to idle away the time, to get comfortably bored until the time comes for going to bed. The more your brain is dulled the better night you will have.

"An important point, though a difficult one, is to avoid any dread of insomnia. Personally I derive benefit, though it may have just the opposite effect on another person, from calculating the multiples of 2 or 3 as far as I can go; thus 2—4—8—16—32, etc. Or else I count elephants; one elephant and one elephant make two elephants, two elephants and one elephant make three elephants; three elephants and one elephant, etc.

"Finally take no meat in the evening. For lunch eat nothing but fruit, stewed for preference, and for dinner a vegetable soup, vermicelli, ashed potatoes, and one or two biscuits.

"If this does not do the trick, as a last heroic remedy put a damp napkin around your head at night covered with a piece of oilskin and tied on with a bandage. Sleep should come in ten minutes. But I look upon this device as calculated in the long run to impede the natural action of the organs of the body."

MET FOUR COUGARS

Near Creston recently a pedestrian met four cougars on the trail. A local paper suggests that the Provincial Government increase the bounty on these animals so that it would be an incentive to hunters to get after these pests, who are fast depleting the deer and other game in the vicinity.

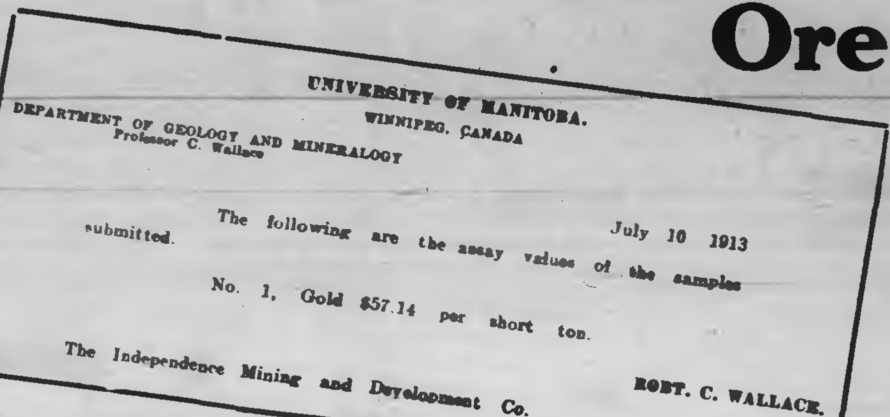
Boy Drowned at Lindsay

Lindsay Post: The Post was informed this morning by a Government official that the government dredge which has been operating on the Scugog river, would be moved to another section of the Trent Canal waters in two or three weeks' time. The money voted for improvements to the waters in this section has all been expended.

Dredge Leaves Lindsay

Lindsay Post: The Scugog river claimed its first victim of the season on Monday afternoon when little Joseph Yorke, the son of Joseph Yorke, went to his death in four feet of water. The little lad's father, in company with John Weldon were unloading a car of lumber for the Gull River Lumber Co. on the G.T. R. siding. The boy strolled down to the river shore and was playing on a platform over the water. Mr. J. Dixon who came up the river in his launch and noticed the youth sounding the depth of the river with a stick. How the boy went to his death is a mystery. His father found his hat on the shore and immediately raised an alarm. The men in Carew's mill responded, aiding in the search. A few minutes afterwards the poor little lad's body was brought to the surface.

Amazing Gain in Independence Ore



UNIVERSITY OF MANITOBA.
WINNIPEG, CANADA
DEPARTMENT OF GEOLOGY AND MINERALOGY
Professor C. Wallace

July 10 1913

The following are the assay values of the samples submitted.

No. 1, Gold $57.14 per short ton.

The Independence Mining and Development Co.

ROBT. C. WALLACE.

Value Steadily Increasing as Shaft Descends

Directors Decide to Construct a Stamp Mill This Fall

When "The Independence" Mine shaft reached the sixty-five foot level, a cutting was taken clear across the vein and the value of this ore is shown on the report assay reproduced above.

This is more than double the average value obtained at the shallower levels and proves conclusively that the vein of gold in this mine is becoming steadily richer as the shaft descends.

The prospects of this mine are now so bright that the Directors have decided to put in a small two-stamp mill this fall, and mill the high-grade ore now being mined. A two-stamped mill will handle from seven to eight tons per day at the cost of mining and milling of $4.00 per ton or a total overhead cost of about $6.00 per ton.

Working ore on the grade of the present sample, the mine will therefore produce at from the rate of $375 to $425 per day, which will more than pay the cost of all further development on this one claim.

Until further notice we continue to offer from the allotment of 100,000 treasury stock, offered to cover cost of development work, shares Par Value $1.00 at 40c.

YANKEE CORPORAL SHOOTS A MEXICAN, HIT BUT LIVES

Attempted to Cross International Line Fully Armed And Mounted

El Paso, Texas, Adg. 1.—Corporal Smith, of Troop A, Second Cavalry U. S. A., shot Ismael Monteros, a soldier of Col. Toribo Ortegas' command, said to be his personal servant, at Tornillo Ford, on the Ria Grande, yestetday as Monteras was attempting to cross the international boundary fully armed and on horseback, according to reports received by Gen. H. L. Scott to-day.

The corporal's bullet cut a furrow in Monteros's scalp and felled him from his mount. The Mexican has been attended by the army surgeon at Fabens, and is being held a prisoner, together with five other Mexicans and three wagonloads of provisions. They were attempting to cross to Ortegas camp.

Dr. L. B. Rashbaum, surgeon-major in Ortegas' camp, promptly came here with a message from Ortega to the commanding officer of the United States troops, in which the constitutionalist commander says he much regrets the incident, and hopes to be exempt from responsibility inasmuch as he has repeatedly instructed his men not to attempt to cross the river under arms.

Monteros is said to have drawn his pistol on the American soldier.

WAR SCARES READY MADE; GERMAN OFFICERS ON TRIAL

Four Court-Martialed Following Sensational Disclosures Made in Parliament in April--Civilians Before Criminal Court in Near Future

Berlin, July 31.—The sensational disclosures of corruption in the German army made by Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the socialist Deputy, in the Imperial Parliament on April 18, came up to-day to try the military officers charged with accepting bribes for information for arms and ammunition.

Widespread interest was aroused in the trial. Four officers of the ordnance department were brought before the judges. They were Lieutenants Tilian, Hinst, Hoge and Schleuter, to whom was entrusted the supervision of many of the ammunition and arms contracts at various arsenals and factories throughout Germany. Chief Clerk Pfeffer and two non-commissioned officers of the ordnance corps also were in the prisoner's enclosure.

ORGANIZED "WAR SCARES."

It has been charged by Dr. Liebknecht that not only were corruption and bribery on the part of the ammunition campanies prevalent but that there was an organized scheme for raising war scares and thus causing the Government to spend more money on armaments.

The civilian offenders, who include the alleged briber on behalf of the ordnance companies and also the directors of these concerns, according to an official intimation will come before an ordinary criminal court for trial at a later date.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT IS MADE BY SIR DONALD TO SAVE LIFE

Toronto Millionaire Rushes Wounded Broker 350 Miles Through Night in Special Train at 59 Miles an Hour Who Had Been Shot and Beaten on the Head

Winnipeg, July 31.—Sir Donald Mann to-night brought into Winnipeg on his private car the body of a murdered man, that of H. E. Whelhams, realty broker and insurance agent, of Verigin, Sask., who was shot and beaten over the head in that town at an early hour yesterday. James Z. Walters, general merchant, aged 32, has been arrested.

Whelhams was formerly a telegraph operator,. and Walters was recently a J.P., but his commission had been taken from him a few days ago. He had become insolvent in his business.

When Whelham's condition was discovered help was summoned and doctors after laboring over him for some time, decided to send him to Winnipeg, 300 miles away.

The injured man was taken to Kamsack, Sask., on the Canadian Northern line, by auto, in an hour, and reached there an hour before Sir Donald's special train was due. Hearing of the case, Sir Donald offered to take him to Winnipeg, and he was placed in Sir Donald's special car. The train averaged 59 miles an hour into this city, but Whelhams died just before reaching here at 7.30 last evening. An inquest is to be held at Kamsack, to which point the body is to be sent. Walters has been arrested by Mounted Police and his friends are stating he was temporarily insane.

At yesterday's police court, Thos. Halpin pleaded guilty to having been drunk "for the first time in three years."—$2 with 10 days to liquidate. A young blacklister, named Kennedy, who pleaded guilty to having been under the influence of liquor and remanded, said he met Mr. Robert Strain on Hunter street. Strain asked if he, the defendant, was "dry." Strain, took a dollar bill and brought back three bottles of ale. He and Strain drank the ale. Strain had been on the prohi. bited list. The defendant's story as told at Wednesday's Court, was that he had found his booze.

AUTO BANDIT GETS LIFE TERM.

Chicago, July 31.—Robert Webb, the auto bandit, who was found guilty some time ago by a jury of the murder of Detective Peter Hart, was sentenced to life imprisonment to-day by Judge Kersten, after a motion for a new trial had been overruled.

The game between the Quaker Oats and Typos on Saturday at the Printers' Picnic, promises to be a good one. The boys are rounding into shape and this game with the large list of sports will keep the excursionists busy. Come down the river and join in the fun. GOODWOOD TENT FIRED BY WOMEN?

Luncheon Place Burned While Races Are On—Suffragettes are Suspected.

New York, July 31.—A London cable this afternoon says: Suffragettes were suspected to-day when the luncheon tent adjoining the big grandstand at the Goodwood race track was burned. The Goodwood races, now on, are the last of the season's fashionable turf events, and King George and Queen Mary have been attending.

The tent and all its contents were burned in a rather mysterious manner to-day, and the Scotland Yard detectives guarding the place blamed the militants for the blaze.

LOCAL ART ASSN IS TO GIVE PRIZES

MANITOBA CENSORSHIP

Of Moving Picture Films to Be Accepted for Western Cities.

Toronto, July 31.—In order to save both the Provinces and moving picture operators unnecessary expense, the Ontario Government has allowed the use of the Manitoba-censored film in Fort William, Port Arthur and the towns to the west of that point. Instead of the regular fee of 50c per film, the new regulation orders the payment of $100 a week in advance by the Western communities to the Provincial Treasury of Ontario.

Inspector Newman states that the standard of censorship in the two Provinces is on a par, and reports a vast improvement in moving picture conditions in Ontario since the coming into effect of th new regulations At present there are some 312 theatres in the Province, 72 films being used per week in Fort William and Port Arthur.

AUGUST 1 IN HISTORY.

1625.—The first Parliament of Charles I., of England, on account of the plague, met at Oxford.

1772.—The revolution was effected in Sweden by the army, and dissimilation of the crown.

1864.—Union and Confederate armies, under a flag of truce, engaged in the burial of the dead who fell in a terrific engagement before Petersburg, Va.

1904.—The United States government directed Minister Bowen to protest against the seizure of asphalt properties by the Venezuelan government.

1904.—Sortie of Russian torpedo from Port Arthur.

1912.—Japan mourns death of the Mikado.

OHIO'S "BLUE-SKY" LAW.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 1.—The Greenlund liquor license law signed by Gov. Cox to become effective to-day, inaugurates state control of liquor licenses. Besides providing strict regulations of the liquor business, the law by reason of its constitutional requirements, limiting saloons to one for each 500 population, puts at least 2,000 saloons in the state out of business.

BISLEY TEAM MAN HAS ENGLISH BRIDE

London, July 31.—Members of the Canadian Bisley team were due for a surprise from one of their number yesterday before the Virginian sailed, when Sidney Brown, of Edmonton, entered an interesting stage in life's tournament by taking unto himself a bride.

He was married in Liverpool, and her name was Miss Hilda Arnold Dawbell. Canadians were numerous and congratulatory, members of the bowling team being unexpected but not unwelcome guests. Mr. and Mrs. Brown were given a rousing "send-off" by the team mates.

WORLD TRAVELLER JOHN MILNE, DIES

Complete Seismic Survey of Globe For British Association of Scientists.

Newport, Isle of Wight, Eng., July 31.—Professor John Milne, the eminent seismologist, died here to-day, aged 63.

He was well known all over the world as he had made extensive travels in Newfoundland, America, Australia, China, Japan the Southern Seas and Europe. For 20 years he was employed by the Japanese government, for which he established a train of nearly 1000 earthquake recording stations. He also completed a seismic survey of the world for the British Association.

THEY ROB SUMMER HOTEL AND TWO MEN GET $2,500

Masked Bandits Enter Hotel Brant, Near Hamilton, Over Awed Clerk With Gun and Took What Safe Contained--Jewelry of Guests Among Loot

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 1.—A sensational robbery occurred at the Hotel Brant, a summer hotel, on the beach, five miles from here, during the early hours of to-day.

While the night clerk was at his post, two masked men entered the front door of the hotel, which was left open owing to the extreme heat They ordered him, at the point of a gun, to hold up his hands. After he had submitted, the safe was rifled, and $2,500 in cash taken, as well as some valuable jewelry belonging to guests.

The clerk was found about six o'clock by the night-watchman. His arms were tied behind his back and he was gagged.

He was not able to give any description of the men, but thinks he could identify them if they are apprehended. The city and Provincial police are working on the case, but refuse to say what their suspicions are.

WANTS WOMEN TO JOIN REGULAR ARMY

Paris, Aug. 1.—Mme. Dieulafoy, one of the leading suffragists of France, wants women admitted to the army. She has offered to supply them to the government upon short notice. She has told M. Etienne, the Minister of War as much. In spite of obstacles Mme. Dieulafoy made her way to the office of M. Etienne and forced an interview with him. She looked like a young soldier, indeed, dressed as she was in men's clothes, and few of the attendants suspected that it was Madame Dieulafoy, whose privilege it is to wear male attire.

M. Etienne received her very kindly, listened to her proposal and then and there referred the matter to a special committee of technical experts, with a recommendation that they should instantly study the matter and report on it without delay.

CANAL DISPUTE NOW HELD CAUSE OF BRITISH ACTION

Refusal to Participate in Pacific Exposition Hard Blow to States

London, July 31.—Great Britain has decided against participation in the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in 1915. Notification of this determination of the British Government was conveyed officially to Washington early this week, the despatch merely stating that Great Britain was not in a position to participate in the San Francisco Exposition. No reasons were given.

Both the British Foreign Offices and the United States Ambassador here decline to discuss the matter or to reveal the cause of this reversal of the announcement made some time back that Great Britain had decided in principle to participate in the exposition.

It has been mooted for some time, however, that the dispute in regard to the Panama Canal tolls might possibly lead to this result, and the present notification of non-participation is attributed to that cause.

Making the auto mashers punishment fit the crime, why not puncture the tires or confiscate the spark plug and thus deprive him of wings.

GOOD DUCK SHOOTING

Lindsay, July 31.—People who have traveled up and down Lake Scugog have noticed that wild ducks are are more plentiful this season than usual, and that the young birds are large and plump, almost ready to shoot. They are also very tame.

A veteran Nimrod suggests that camping parties should always include one militant suffragette—to start the fires.

THE CANCER CONGRESS.

Brussels, Aug. 1.—Distinguished physicians from all parts of the world are here attending the third International Cancer Congress which opened to-day. Experts declare that cancer, next to tuberculosis, is the greatest cause of death, and, unlike tuberculosis, it shows a constantly increasing death rate. Recent advances in the treatment of the disease will be discussed fully. Following the congress the delegates will go to London to attend the International Medical Congress, which

SEVEN WERE KILLED WHEN RACER RAN INTO A POST

Motorcycle Accident Causes Injury to Dozen More Who Have Chance

Cincinnati, July 31.—The list of dead as the result of the motorcycle accident at the Ludlow (Ky.) lagoon motordrome meet, when the gasoline tank on the racing machine of Olin Johnson exploded and scattered the burning fluid over the spectators was increased to seven early this afternoon. The revised list of dead follows:

Olin Johnson, Salt Lake City, motorcycle racer.

Wm. Davis, aged 5 years, Ludlow, Ky.

Henry Andrews, aged 15 years, Cincinnati.

Mrs. Wm. Michaels, aged 30 years, Ludlow.

Miss Ethel Buchtman, aged 20 years, Covington, Ky.

James Carter, aged 30 years, Cincinnati.

Wm. Patterson, aged 39 years, Cincinnati.

Several others of the score or more who were burned when the burning oil was thrown over them, or injured in the panic that followed the accident, are in a critical condition, and are not expected to live.

Cincinnati, July 31.—Two are dead six will die, according to attending physicians, one other is probabl yfatally burned and eleven others are seriously injured as the result of a motorcycle accident at the Lagoon Motordrome across the river from this city last night.

Olin Johnson, of Salt Lake City, captain of the Cincinnati team which was contesting at the motordrome, for some reason that will probably remain unknown, drove his cycle to the extreme top of the circular track crashed into an electric light pole, broke it off and the contact of the live wire with his machine, exploded the gasoline tank, throwing the burning fluid over a score of spectators.

Five-Year-Old Boy Killed.

Johnson paid the penalty with his life, while Wm. Davis, aged 5 years, is likewise dead as the result of the accident.

That a large number of others who cannot be located were burned, is almost a certainty, as several drug stores in the vicinity of the place were kept busy for an hour after the accident dressing the burns of those who escaped without serious injury.

MIMICO EX-INMATE GIVEN THREE YEARS

Fifteen Year Old "Bad Man" Has a Black Record—Chum Draws a Term.

St. Catharines, Ont., July 31.—John Rollison, the 15 year old lad, who escaped from Mimico Industrial trial School last year, was sentenced by Judge Carman this morning to three years in the Penitentiary for shop-breaking. The lad had a very black record for one so young. His companion, Fred Barr, was given a similar time in the Industrial School The lads were found in a butcher shop at an early morning hour three weeks ago.

REV. GEORGE JACKSON'S DUTY TO BRETHERN HE LEFT BEHIND

Leading Organ of the English Free Church, Which Had Defended His Orthodoxy, Comments on Former Toronto Pastor

London, Aug. 1.—The British Weekly, leading argan of the English Free Churches, while approving the action of the Wesleyan conference in supporting Rev. George Jackson, says:

"We are not altogether in sympathy with Professor Jackson's recent action. We took some little part in defending him when his orthodoxy was called into question by many Canadian Methadists, but we do not feel that Professor Jackson was wise or considerate in terminating his Canadian ministry as he did. He knew very well that he caused much anxiety, even misery, to many of his brethren, and though his preaching pulled him through he was bound to respect their feelings. His parting message to Canada ought to have been of quite a different kind."

GIBSONS CASE BEFORE MINISTER

The Minister of Justice who has been asked to grant a new trial to Charles Gibson jr., convicted of the murder of Joseph Rosenthal, wants more evidence.

T. H. Lennox K.C. brought this message from Ottawa when he returned to Toronto this morning following a conference at the capital, Gibson's reprieve expires on October 9th, but the material desired by the Minister will go to Ottawa in August, and the Ministers decision ought to be received about September 1st.

BRANTFORD TEAM GET A GOOD TROUNCING BY PETES

Lill Walked Two Men in Two Innings--Replaced by Claremont, Who Was Hit Hard by the Petes--Visitors Played Ragged Ball

The Brantford team met the Petes yesterday at Riverside Park, and got the best trouncing of the season. They played ragged ball from start to finish and the fans were treated to a little spiel by Umps Davis to the bargain. Mr. Davis, in his good natured way made the announcements to the spectators in a few funny remarks, which tickled the fair fans till they really had to smile.

During the whole game only six of the visitors reached base and none got beyond second. Lill started the twirling (?) for the Brants, and in the first two innings walked eight men. In the third innings, with the score of 6—0, Claremont replaced Lill and although he put up much better ball, the Petes went to him right, and run after run was tallied for the Petes.

It was in the seventh innings that the fans were startled, when Catcher McNeal stole home. Yes, McNeal. He just sneaked away up, and when the pill was lingering between Coose and Claremont, Mc made a brilliant dash and the pill raced him to the plate, but Coose dropped it on the ground, no doubt thinking it would be a shame to put Mc out after he had got up enough nerve to try and steal home.

The boys to a man were air tight and some very brilliant playing was put up. Joe Byrne was back again in his place, his finger having improved and Joe was there with the goods. One line drive to Joe was brought down in good shape and Joe's finger got another smash, but he held the pill tight. Everyone of the boys played good ball.

Tracey did the twirling, and had the visitors under his control all through.

Fox, swatted a line drive over the first bag, in the 4th innings, and while Ivers was digging the mist out of his eyes the fox had crossed the plate for a home run, and Mr. Ivers had to go into the river for the pill.

The Petes had 15 hits, while the visitors got 5.

Lamond in the left garden for the visitors played an excellent game, getting everything that came his way, and he was kept busy.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are so-called Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 9c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaparilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store. We make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 385 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

PHONES FOR DEAF MUTES

Light Takes The Place of Sound in This New Device For Dumb

How can a deaf mute use a telephone? This question had long puzzled William C. Shaw, a deaf mute, who works in the experimental laboratory of the General Electric Company at Lynn, Mass., and he set himself to the task of solving it. The result is a practical apparatus by means of which deaf mutes can converse with each other or with normal persons at any distance.

Mr. Shaw has exhibited his deaf mute telephone at several technical schools, but it has been received with most enthusiasm at schools for those afflicted as he is.

Instead of sound, light has to be used as the means of communication so "telephone" is scarcely the correct word to apply to this invention. It consists of three essential parts—the sender, the indicator and the receiver, with the electric wires that connect them. The sender is a typewriter. The indicator stands on the table in front of the sender. It consists of a frame about six inches square, in which are mounted thirty-six two-candle power electric lamps, each marked with a letter or figure.

The receiver is a large reproduction of the indicator, being about three feet square and having upon it 3[illegible] eight candle-power electric lamps, marked with letters and numbers to correspond with those of the indicator.

Th pressing of a key on the typewriter closes an electric circuit which lights on the indicator and on the receiver the lamps bearing the letter of that key. The receiver may be situated in another house. Beside it is a call lamp.

Now, suppose two persons, A and B, desire to talk over the phone. A on his keyboard in his house presses the call button on his typewriter keyboard. This causes the call light in B's house to glow and attracts B's attention. B replies that he is there by pressing the call button on his typewriter and lighting the call lamp in A's house. Then A sends his message, ticking it out upon his typewriter just as he would if writing a letter. The touching of each letter by key is followed instantly by the lighting of the corresponding lettered lamp on B's receiver.

The lamps remain lighted only while the key is pressed down; they go out the instant it is released.

It takes a little practice to follow a message that is sent quickly, but after a short time a man can receive as rapidly as one can operate the keys. Of course the opparatus works both ways sending and receiving being done in either direction.

In its present form this deaf mute telephone requires a wire for each of the thirty-six keys, but as there are cables containing that number of insulated wires this is no great obstacle.

Mr. Shaw was born in 186[illegible], and became deaf and dumb as a result of spinal meningitis at the age of five. He has been married twice, and has by his first wife a boy of twelve who hears and talks perfectly. His second wife is also a deaf mute. His father, a sea captain, took him all over the world in a vain effort to have him cured. He is an old friend of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone.

Changed Her Mind

Miss Dorothy Opperman, of Atlanta, who married to win a wager, decided, after five hours of wedded life, to sue for a divorce because she and her husband "were not true affinities."

OPIUM MARKET UPSET

Drug Used for Medicinal Purposes Comes From Turkey

It will seem strange to most people that the opium market was upset by the trouble in the Balkans. It is medicinal opium that is affected. For its supply of medicinal opium, as distinct from opium used for smoking, the world is mainly dependent upon Turkey. The Chinese and Indian varieties are not suitable for the manufacture of morphine.

Opium is in fact one of the most important products of Asia Minor, Smyrna being the main producing district. The price of Turkish opium, as a result of the war, rose to something like twice the normal price. Opium and its derivaties (morphine and codeine) are among the drugs on which medicine is most dependent.

"Grannie" and Her Pension

A familiar figure in Kirkcaldy, Scotland, passed away in Mrs. [illegible] ("Grannie"), who was known to the whole burgh. She was a staunch Radical, and a political admirer of Mr. Gladstone, and, later, of Mr. Lloyd George. A good story is told of "Grannie" when she first went for her old age pension. She received her $1.25, but this did not come up to her expectations, and she said to the postmaster, "That's no' nearly awe; I've ten years' arrears tae get." It took the postmaster some time to get her convinced that the Government did not pay back debts.

DIAMOND STUDDED HEELS

The picture shows the novelty introduced in New York by Mrs. Charles H. Anthony, of Muncie, Ind. She was frank enough to give as her reason for having the heels of her shoes set with sparkling gems that she "wanted to lead; anyone can follow, but one who is first is winner."

SACRIFICE THEIR EYESIGHT

After Seeing Mahomet's Grave Fanatics Destroy Their Eyesight.

"See Mecca and die" is the Mohammedan pilgrim's motto as he journeys towards the tomb of Mahomet, thus signifying that life holds no further interest for him. When he reaches the goal of his ambition, and gazes upon the last resting-place of his prophet, be often changes his motto to "See Mecca, and see no more," and this precept he literally fulfils. Strange scenes may be observed at Mecca, where devout Moslems, after beholding their prophet's tomb, destroy their sight by gazing at white hot bricks, so that they shall never see any further earthly sight. The hot bricks scorch up the eyes and render the men quite sightless.

MR. WILL CROOKS

Labor Orator on Duty to Nation Wife, and Home

Mr. Will Crooks, M.P., speaking in England, gave utterance to the following original aphorisms among others

Some people's conception of manhood is that a man should be master in his own house. But I say that a man should never be master in his own house. Marriage is a partnership, and don't you forget it.

The man who thinks that the "I don't-care-for-anyone attitude is the manly attitude will live long enough to realise that no one carse for him

There are no clever people nowadays, except those between the age of eighteen and twenty-four. They know absolutely everything they do

The foundation of the British Empire exist in the homes of the toilers of the nation, and you and I are bound to try to make those homes reasonably and sensibly happy.

"What a fool I should look," says the average husband when told that he should behave as well towards his wife after marriage as before it "Why, it would look as if I was courting." My answer to him is: My dear chap, you could never look a bigger fool than you did when you were courting.

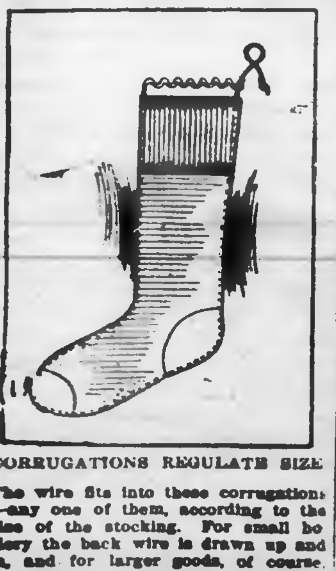
So long as the ordinary man sublets his responsibilities so long will the present deplorable state of things continue to exist.

I want you to leave off apologising for being working man. Let the people who don't work do the apologising.

STOCKING STRETCHER

Wire Frame Can be Adjusted for Stocking of Any Size

An ingenious device is the stocking dryer and stretcher designed by a New York man and displayed here. As will be noted at first glance, it consists of a wire frame of the general shape of a leg and foot. What may not be seen at once, however, is the fact that this frame can be adjusted so that it will fill hosiery of any size. Across the top the wire is bent into a series of corrugations, and the top o



CORRUGATIONS REGULATE SIZE

The wire fits into these corrugations—any one of them, according to the size of the stocking. For small hosiery the back wire is drawn up and in, and for larger goods, of course, is allowed to go out and down. Thus any pair of stockings can be dried and stretched on this frame as if the apparatus were made for that pair alone.

SKILLED WORKMEN SCARCE

Owing to the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient number of skilled workmen at Winnipeg, the contractors who are building the Grand Trunk Pacific through the Rocky Mountains west of Edmonton, have been forced to employ a number of American laborers from Minneapolis and adjacent centres of the United States.

THE CARE OF SEALERS

Advice to Housekeepers for Preserving—Jars Should be Air-Tight

Here are some preserving hints that are excellent advice for the young housekeeper:

The first step is to examine the glass jars. Be sure they are perfect and absolutely clean. Next, test by putting a little water in each, adjusting the rubber, screwing down the top and inverting the jar. If the jar does not leak, be sure to keep it with its own cover; not every perfect cover will fit every perfect jar. If a jar leaks, try another cover, or possibly it may need two rubbers. The rubbers should be new each season and should be boiled at least 20 minutes before using, that they may not flavor the fruit. When a jar has been fitted to a cover so that it stands the test it should be heated very hot, either in the oven or in boiling water, to sterilize it. Remember that fermentation is of germ origin; if there are no germs inside the jar when it is sealed, and if it is sealed air-tight, none can enter afterward.

Blinding Headaches From Catarrahal Irritation Now Quickly Cured

The New Inhaler Breathing Treatment Does Away With All This Sort of Thing.

"A stuffy cold in the head, or an old fashioned attack of Catarrh are simply ancient history to me nowadays," writes S. Nathan Smith, from Cornwall, Ont. "I used to have the worst kind of building headaches. They were torture to me on damp days when my catarrh was bad. I would still perhaps be suffering but for the fact that I saw a friend inhaling Catarrhozone with apparent pleasure, and I got the dollar outfit in the Windsor Hotel Pharmacy in Montreal. I could scarcely believe the way Catarrhozone cleared out my head. It let me breathe easier than I had breathed for five years. Catarrhozone has cleared away every vestige of Catarrh from my system. My breath used to be rank—now it is sweet. My digestion was constantly disordered, but since the catarrh is cured I have no stomach trouble. I am a perfectly well man, and Catarrhozone did it all."

For speakers and singers and persons troubled with an irritable throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh or la grippe, Catarrhozone is of inestimable value.

The inhaler can be carried in your pocket and may be used at any time or in any place.

Large size, guaranteed, and sufficient for 2 months' use, costs $1; smaller size 50c.; sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

TO INVADE MEXICO

Once more it seems likely that the United States will invade Mexico. This invasion in the first instance will be along the old historic route to the City of Mexico, via Vera Cruz. The hard fighting would then have come in the northern states of Mexico, for which a second army will be hurried across the Rio Grande.

The j ob before the United States will prove more difficult than the invasion of Mexico in 1845. Then a large part of the Mexican Republic, now the State of Texas, was in sympathy with the invasers. To occuoy Mexico to-day would require an army of 500,000 men. No wonder the European powers agree in urging Uncle Sam to take up the White Man's burden.

IS IT NUDE OR NAKED?

Quite a little dust has been kicked up over the question Chether Paul Chabas's picture, "September Morn," is obscene or not. It presents to us a young girl standing in the water, with no clothing except the morning haze. Many have denounced the picture as indescent. Artists are equally emphatic in their declaration that whoever objects to seeing the girl in the altogether is a prude and all sorts of other undesirable things.

It may set both parties right to get the matter clearly in mind. All quarrels arise from a failure to agree first to definitions. It is a case of the two knights fighting over the colot of a shiels red on one side and blue on the other. And in the particular subject at issue it all depends upon whether the young female is Nude or Undressed.

A nude person is one who goes unclothed from preference and only wears garments for warmth's sake. An undressed person is one who always wear clothes, loves them, and expresses herself or himself by him, and who is surprised garmentless. The Venus de Milo in the Louvre is nude. Lady Godiva as she rode the streets of Coventry was all undressed. The Greeks were nude; moderns in a Turkish bath are naked.

Modern civilized conventional human beings can never be nude because clothes are a part of their religion. What they call morality has nothing unusually to do with any ethical force or virtue of self-expression, but is merely conformity to custom. Such people can never be nude; when they take off their clothes they are naked—and naughty.

It is not so bad as it used to be. In a proceeding generation nothing had legs but pianos and tables; ladies had limbs; and the whole region from the collar to the waistlines was known as the stomach, for the simple old English term belly was for some inscrutable reason believed to be indelicate. There is even a legend of a young preacher who announced to his flock that he was about to discourse upon "Jonah, who, as you all know, spent three days in the whale's—um—hm—that is to say, three days in the whale's—hm—society."

The painting of Chabas, says Dr. Frank Crane, is not of something naked, the girl is not undressed. She never had any clothes on in her life. She is not thinking clothes. She has stepped dryad-like out of the woods where she lives with other bodied-fancies, with thought-beings that never wore anything but beauty. She is nude. And she is as pure as the deity-fingers that made bodies, and purer than the human fingers that fix and button up clothes. She never wore anything, never will wear anything. If she put anything on she would be indecent.

So it's all as you take it.

A HABIT TO CULTIVATE

Devote Much Time to Mental and Physical Exertion

Discontent and disease of mind and body are frequently due to an aimless, half filled life! The reason for this is very much more rational and natural than might at first be supposed. The proper state of mind is activity. The proper state of the muscles is activity. A mind with much leisure easily becomes dissatisfied. A body not properly exercised loses its full powers, becomes flabby and susceptible to disease germs. So the best policy of the individual who would live long and well is to practice the habit of "busyness." If you haven't regular work to do make some duty yours to perform. And this should be a daily mental duty, as well as a merely physical one. The individual who is not systematically busy a share of every day soon finds time to cultivate an ache or pain; to let the sunshine of life slip by unnoticed and to make mountains out of mole-hills of trouble. This condition gets the body and the mind into a non-resistant state and paves the way for disease to take possession. Cultivate the "busyness" habit. It can be nurtured and perfected just as the laziness habit grows.

LITTLE GERMAN "TRUST BUSTER"

Piling nickles into fortunes is the business of Carl Laemmle, the president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. He is about 45 years old and about 5 feet tall. A few years ago he was a poor German boy without money or friends in a strange country. To-day he is one of the most important men in the moving picture business. Incidentally he is the man who broke the "film trust" by organizing the small independent companies who objected to the heavy charges levied on them by the monopolists in the moving picture business. Laemmle, of course, got the presidency of the new concern as he was the originator of the idea.

MAKE A GHOST

Your Own If You Use Your own Name —Try It

Want to see what your "ghost" looks like? That's easy!

Take a sheet of writing paper and fold it. Then write your name in ink along the crease. Use plenty of ink. Fold the paper again quickly, while the ink is wet, and rub thoroughly, so the ink spreads. You can make two different ghosts by writing your name on one paper just above the crease on another right over the crease, half above and half below it. And no two ghosts will be exactly alike. Every time you write you'll get a different one. Get your friends to try it, too, and exchange ghosts with them. The queer shapes different names make are very amusing

WOMEN AS M.P.'S

Sweden Decides to Allow Them to sit in Parliament

Women are being offered in Sweden what they are fighting and rioting for in England. In the speech from the Throne, which was delivered by the King of Sweden in the Riksdag it was stated that "the Government regards it as right and in the interest of the State to demand the right to vote and eligibility for election for both men and women under like conditions, and a Bill providing for this will be introduced in the Riksdag."

DRYING WET SHOES

Get After the Inside First and it is Easy

In wet weather the matter of drying out water-logged shoes is as much of a problem as it ever was. The great trouble is to get the shoes dry inside. It's easy enough to put them in the oven of the kitchen stove and dry them outside, but that doesn't help much. The dampness still remains within. However, there are easy ways to dry them inside for the ingenious housewife. A drier for shoes that will do the work is made from a piece of tin pipe and an old wash basin or baking pan. A hole is cut in the bottom of the pan to receive the pipe and the pipe is firmly fastened in the hole with solder. The pipe should have an elbow or turn in the end away from the pan and should be about a foot long. Put the shoe on the open end of the pipe as you would put it on a last and stand the pan on the stove. It will readily be seen that the heat from the stove goes up the pipe and into the shoe, drying it out thoroughly and quickly.

NO SPLASHING

Simple Device to be Attached to Pail in Everyday Use

A partly filled bucket has a habit of splashing when more liquid is poured into it, and many a good, clean floor has been soiled in this way. An easy way to prevent it is to attach two or more strips of metal to the top of the bucket in a sloping position similar to a window shutter. Clips may be used to attach the strips and it will be found that any liquid can be poured into the bucket by pouring it on the strips and there will be no splashing.

SPORTING NEWS

THE OAR.

St. Catharines, Ont., Aug. 1.—The entry list of the Canadian Henley to be held here to-day and to-morrow is the largest in the history of the big rowing feature. Prominent among the entrants are the Toronto Dons and the Argonauts, Winnipeg has also sent a large delegation, while Ottawa will be strong contenders. Detroit, Milwaukee, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Buffalo have also sent their crack scullers. The Detroit club, which made such an excellent showing at Philadelphia on July 4 is one of the favorites in the betting.

CRICKET.

New York, Aug. 1.—The cricket lovers and cricket players of the country have a chance to see the famous unconquered 1913 All-Australian Cricket Eleven play against an All-New York Eleven to-Australian Cricket Eleven play against an All-New York Eleven today and to-morrow, in a cricket match on the grounds of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, at Livingston, Staten Island.

The game will be the first test cricket match played in the Metropolitan District. Test matches are played at the end of the cricket season in England, all the English colonies sending their representative teams to engage in the matches.

Emery amd Mayne are the only members of last year's team who have returned with the visitors. Austin Austin Diamond is the new captain ; he is an electrical engineer connected with the overhead construction work of the Public Works Department at Sydney, Australia. Other members of the team consist of C. G. MacCartney, W. Bardsley, L. A. Cody, A. A. Maily, P. S. Arnott, H. L. Collins of New South Wales, J. N. Crawford, G. C. Campbell and G. S. Down of South Australia.

This is the best all around combination All-Australian cricket team which has visited this country since 1882, because any cricket team which includes Bardsley, MacCartney, Crawford, Emery and Mayne must be considered as a star team ; in fact, the select all-Australian team. Bardsley is the greatest left hand batsman of the time and MacCartney is considered one of the best bats in Australia, scarcely second to the great Victor Trumper.

Thf American team is composed of picked players from the Veterans' Cricket Association and clubs about New York. Much secrecy has been maintained regarding the names of the American players, and they will not be known until they enter the grounds.

RING.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 1.—French Vaise, of Renton, Canadian lightweight champion, and Joe Bayley, the former titleholders, meet here tonight in a return engagement. The boys boys will go 15 rounds, at 133 pounds. Both are in the pink of condition.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 1.—Sam Landford and Joe Jeannette have been matched to box twenty rounds in Los Angeles on Sept. 29. Langford, accompanied by his wife and baby, his manager, Joe Woodman, and Jack Read, the Australian lightweight, leave here to-day for the East. Langford wants to visit his relatives, whom he has not been for several years before starting to train for the Jeannette bout.

BASEBALL.

Joe Jackson of the Cleveland Naps and only rival of Ty Cobb was shunted toward a professional career as a player by a burst of southern temper when 17 years old. As a member of the Greenville (S. C.) Grangers, who won 30 straight games in one season, Jackson was playing against a college nine in his home town when, in sliding to second base, he was spiked in the muscles of the leg above the knee by a gentlemanly collegian.

Joe thought the act was premeditated on the part of the higher education fellow. So he proceeded to take off his own show and apply the spiked footwear to sundry and divers portions of his opponent's person.

This little pleasantry, however, resulted in Joe being put under bonds to keep the peace and brought unfriendly criticism from friends of the collegian. Therefore Joe decided to leave Greenville, temporarily, at least, for the career of a ball player.

The experience gained on independent nines in 1905 and 1906 paved paved the way for his entrance into the big leagues, although he returned to the meat shop the latter part of 1906 and during 1907.

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—George Brickley, brother of Charles Brickley, the wonderful Harvard halfback, is expected here today and will at once don an Athletic uniform. Brickley is expected to be given a chance in Mack's outfield at an early date. He is said to be a good fielder and a slugger.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—President Murphy, of the Chicago Nationals, has asked for a special meeting of the National Commission to consider charges that local gamblers receive inside information on the lineup of the Cubs. He wrote Monday to President Garry Hermann, of the Commission, stating that an immediate investigation should be made.

"I do not understand how anyone connected with the team could be in league with the gamblers, because even I do not know who is going to pitch until the game is about to start," said Murphy, "but it seems there is a leak somewhere."

GOLF.

New York, Aug. 1.—Jerome D. Travers is preparing for the quest of another national amateur gold championship by putting in practically the whole summer on the links. He has shown his form at Powelton, where in addition to winning the medal in record figures, he took the chief prize as well as at the Antlers Club, near Troy, where he set a new record for the nine-hole course by going around in 36, and at Bellport, where ge set the record at 68, three strokes better than Oswald Kirkby was able to do.

He evidently plans to keep up his practice throughout the five weeks intervening before the championship is started at Garden City. Travers considers that it will only be by top notch play that the American title can be kept from going abroad again, and he looks to Abe Mitchell, runner up in the British amateur championship last year, as one of the most dangerous competitors.

TAKING JIM BACK

How a Discredited Husband Was Shipped Back to Wife in Goods Box.

By H. M. EGBERT.

Abigail Smale entered the express office at Norbury, which was kept by Mrs. James Searles, her finger on her lip, her free hand pointed down the road.

"He's coming, Jane," she whispered mysteriously.

Mrs. Searles looked up wearily from her delivery book. "Who?" she asked tersely.

"That worthless husband of yours," responded the other tartly. "He's been gone three days now on one of his regular sprees with that Joe Turner and their worthless friends. Jane, promise me you'll not take him back. Show your dignity."

Jane Searles sighed and folded her hands in resignation.

"Abigail," she said, "Heaven knows he's been a good man to me, when he's been sober. But when his friends get hold of him and get him to drinking he's somebody else. I don't know what to do."

Abigail Smale stood up. "Jane," she said firmly, "last time he came home you told him if he ever another drop of liquor passed his lips you'd cast him off for good. Here you are with a prosperous business and a worthless, drunken husband that contributes nothing to your support. Why should you endure him any longer, staggering round the house and putting you to shame before decent folks? Jane, if you're weak-kneed and spineless enough to take him back again you'll lose all your friends."

"I guess you're right, Abigail," responded Jane Searles meekly.

"Good! Good!" exclaimed the other heartily. "And as I see him coming up the path now and don't want to be contaminated by his presence, I'll say good-bye."

Jane Searles look after her thoughtfull; "I wonder just why you're so set against Jim, Abigail," she said "I wonder if it's true that you and he were sweethearts once. Or is it just love for me?"

"My dear!" said a thick voice behind her. Jane Searles turned. Her husband stood on the threshold, regarding her with a mixture of anxiety and affectionate benignness. "My dear, I've come home to the fold," he murmured with an ingratiating smile.

Jane Searles went up to him.

"Jim," she said, "I've been a good wife to you for nearly ten years, and I've worked and slaved for you, and I've stood for a good deal, but it's over now. I told you if you went off again to drink you couldn't come home. This home is mine, and I've paid every penny that's been put into it. Now take yourself off!"

"Jane! Dear Jane!" murmured Mr. Searles uncertainly. But he withdrew hastily as the slammed door grazed his nose, and, looking back ruefully at this unexpected phenomenon, he decided that it was not a propitious moment to renew the attack, and limped back down the road in the direction of his crony's, Joe Turner.

"What, back again?" shouted the latter, looking up from his forge. Though a hard drinker, Joe never neglected his work. He was an old bachelor, a life-long friend of Jim's, and of his wife's too, until Jane had begun to attribute her husband's occasional debauches to Joe. As a matter of fact the blacksmith had done much to restrain his friend from excesses.

"Wife won't have me," murmured Jim Searles disconsolately, taking a seat beside the fire.

"I guessed not," shouted Joe. "I warned ye, Jim. You've got a grand wife and you've spoiled her temperament by the excessive use of ardent spirits. Now you'll have to go without her."

"But it's breaking my heart, Joe," muttered the other. "Help me."

"I'll help ye," roared the blacksmith, advancing upon the other with a red-hot horseshoe gripped between a pair of tongs. "Get out of my sight, you drunken profligate. I've drunk with ye and I've made merry with ye, but I won't break your wife's home or break her heart either, Jim."

Jim Searles tumbled off his chair and grovelled at his friend's feet.

"Joe, help me out this once," he begged. "I've had my lesson. Square me with her and I'll never touch liquor again. Jane's so cursedly conscientious," he added, seeing his friend set down the horseshoe again. "It's because she said she wouldn't take me back that she's bent on keeping her word. Can't you help me, Joe?"

Joe Turner pushed his friend into the little room at the back of the forge.

"You lie down there and take a nap," he said. "I'll see what can be be done for you."

Jim Searles awoke that evening to find Joe Turner toasting bacon over the fire. The table had been laid for two and a caldron of soup hissed on the coals.

"How d'you feel, Jim?" asked the blacksmith, coming back with the bacon. "Pretty bad, hey? Have some beer?"

"Not for me, Joe," said Jim Searles, and the other gave him a violent clap on the back.

"Good for you, Jim," he shouted. "Now I can go ahead with a good conscience. Well, I've been up to your wife's, Jim, there's nothing doing there. She won't take you."

Jim's face fell several inches. The other resumed.

"But, Jim, I guess she loves you, only she can't find a way to go back on her word. So we've got to use stratagems—see? If you can't go in at the front door you've got to go in the back."

"But she slammed the back door in my face," frowned Jim.

"Now take it easy," his friend counselled him. "Tomorrow morning we'll find a way." And with this Jim Searles was forced to be content.

The sound of hammering awakened him the next morning. Slipping on his clothes, he went into the smithy, to find Joe Turner putting the last nails into a huge packing case which stood on his cart, the horse being already harnessed. On one corner was a label bearing the words:

"ABIGAIL SMALE, Express Office, Norbury. To be kept till called for."

"What's that for, Joe?" inquired Jim in amazement.

"That's for you, me boy," answered the blacksmith. "Hop in."

"But you aren't going to send me to Abigail?" groaned Jim. "She wouldn't take me. Send me to Mrs Searles."

"Now see here, you thundering old fool," shouted the blacksmith. "Suppose I send you to your wife and she refuses you—what then? You're put out on the sidewalk. Whereas if Abby Smale don't take you in you'll have to stay three months at the express office. See?"

"Help me in, Joe," cried Jim, climbing into the wagon with alacrity, and a minute later the blacksmith was nailing on the slats of the lid. A few minutes later the cart drew up at the door of the express office.

"Package for Miss Smale, Mrs. Searles," called Joe.

"All right; take it into the office, Mr. Turner," answered the lady, and Joe, with many gruntings and heavings and bangings which called forth smothered ejaculations from his freight, carried the package into a dark corner.

"Now you keep still until the proper time comes, Jim," he exhorted, and, re-entering his cart, whipped up the horse and drove away.

As soon as he was gone Mrs. Searles went over to the case and looked at the label. She tried to lift it, but it was too heavy for her. Her husband, within, crouching like a frog, with fingers gripping the slats, hardly dared breathe.

"That looks like Joe Turner's writing," he heard his wife say. "Full of old iron, I guess. Some trick of Joe's. He never did like Abby, and I guess I don't either, after the way she tried to set me against Jim."

Jim heard her sob as she turned away. His heart leaped up. His wife cared for him! If she would trust him again he would never touch another drop of liquor in all his days.

"I was going to say that there's a package come for you, Abigail," she said.

"For me?" exclaimed Miss Smale in surprise. "Where is it Jane? What, that big case? I wonder who can have sent it. I wonder what's in it. Oh!"

Jim Searles's head emerging grotesquely, like that of a jack-in-the-box, for once completely discomposed Miss Smale. She had no words to say. As for his wife—Jim dared not look at her.

"Good morning, ma'am," shouted Jim briskly. "I'm the filthy drunkard that's been sent to you. I hope you have good accomodations for me, ma'am."

"Oh, this is too much!" gasped Abigail. "How dare you! Jane, you knew he was here. You set him on to do this."

"Indeed, Abigail—"

"I'll never come here again," cried the irate spinster, stalking to the door. "This is a poor return for all my kindness to you."

"Yes, but you've got to take me or pay freight charges!" Jim shouted after her; but she was already out of the house and hurrying into the street. Jim turned to his wife to find her shaking with laughter.

Jim spoke up like a man. "Jane, dear," he said, "I've had my lesson. God help me, I'll never touch the stuff again. Won't you give me a chance?"

"I—I'd like to, Jim," murmured his wife. "But how can I take you? You belong to Abby Smale now. You're—you're—Oh, Jim, you're just freight," she sobbed.

Jim Searles got out of his box and placed his arm round his wife's waist.

"Jenny, I'm going to work tomorrow," he said. "Will you try me out once more—if Abigail don't claim me?"

"Yes," whispered his wife, raising her lips to his. "And I tell you what I'll do, Jim," she added. "If Abigail doesn't claim you within three months I'll put you up to auction and buy you in myself—if you make good."

Everyone—especially every woman—should read the directions with every box.

Deceived by Appearances.

John Melpolder, superintendent of the boys' club, is very fond of walking. Melpolder was camping recently north of Broad Ripple and decided to walk to Indianapolis. The roads were dusty and the sun beat down unrelentingly. When Melpolder reached Broad Ripple he had covered ten or twelve miles and looked like a tramp. Coming to a fork in the road, and not being sure of the correct route, Melpolder approached two girls and a young man sitting in the shade.

"Can you tell me how to get to Indianapolis?" he asked. The correct road was pointed out and as he started to plod on one of the girls said:

"Why you are not going to walk, are you?"

"Why, yes," said the pedestrian, "I thought I would."

The young man fumbled in his pocket. "Here," he said, fishing out a dime, "you better ride the street car in. You can catch it about a square up the road."

Then each girl handed him a coin. Melpolder thanked them kindy for their proferred assistance, but declined the offer, saying that he preferred to walk. When he started on they looked after him in open-eyed astonishment.—Indianapolis News.

A NOVEL GARTER

Here's the newest thing in garters, tie clasps, sleeve holders or what not. A patent was recently granted on this little twist of silver wire that makes the place of a pin or a rubber band in half a dozen different ways. It can also be used by the shopper to hold up her skirt.

Bladder and Kidney Troubles

Are caused by poisoning impurities which clog the Kidneys ; intense pain is the result and sleepless nights follow. The patient becomes annoyed with sharp pains shooting through the back and up the spine. These pains often so violent and acute that the victim suffers the greatest agony and is driven almost to despair. The refuse and sediment which settled in the Kidneys must be removed in order to procure relief.

SANOL, the Kidney Cure, is the only reliable remedy which has a combined effect of acting on the kidneys, and restoring them to their natural condition, and removing Kidney, Bladder and Gall Stones by dissolving same. It cleanses and purifies the system, strengthens and invigorates the Kidneys, and encourages proper filtration. It relieves the pain and gives streath and energy to the body. Price $1.50 per bottle.

REGISTRATION CARD TO PREVENT LOAFING

With the object of preventing or at least checking the spread of idleness and loafing a plan has been suggested by Rev. Father Minehan of Toronto, to have a registration system. Father Minehan's plan would require every man over eighteen years of age to have a card similar to the card of identification nearly always issued by accident insurance companies to those they insure, setting forth the holder's name, address, employment, and the place where he works.

This, Father Minehan thinks, would prevent loafing, and with that obviate a large proportion of crime, as the bulk of it is committed by loafers who "do nothing but hang around and sponge on other people." If this plan were carried out, a policeman finding a man loafing in a park could demand to see his card of registration, and if the man could not produce it he would be liable to arrest as a vagrant. If he claimed to come from some other place, he would be required to show what his business was here.

"This method prevails, I believe," said Father Minehan, "in some European countries."

PERILS OF JAVELIN

Are you a javelin thrower? If so, quit it if you desire to play baseball. Armando Marsans, the sensational Cuban player of the Cincinnati Reds, tells of an Indian in Cuba who was the greatest ball player of the island. "I give you my word that the greatest ball player I ever looked upon was an Indian named Canella," said Marsans. "He came out a few years go, and at once became the marvel of Eastern Cuba. He was a pitcher and a star on the slab, but he was also a batsman, a lightning base-runner and a clever outfielder. An influential Cuban manager succeeded in making an American magnate understand Canella was no negro, and all was arranged for his try-out in the coming spring. And then came the news that Canella's arm was gone! Going home for a visit, Canella saw the young men of his tribe practising throwing the javelin. Picking up a slender spear, he hurled it with all his might— and something went snap! crack! in his right arm as he let go the javelin. Since then he has not been able to throw a ball from the pitching slab as far as the catcher."

THE FOOL WITH THE GUN

Hunters of the old school never mistook and shot and killed their companions and friends for wild animals. In the old days hunters were so careful in the woods that they didn't even kill their dogs; in the days when dogs were used to chase deer and bay bears it would have broken the old hunter's heart to have killed one of his dogs. Hunters of the old school were careful to get the game in the clear before they fired.

They did not shoot at sounds and shaking bushes. They never mistook a man or a dog for an animal of the woods.

Wild animals do not as a rule make any noise while moving about in the woods; they move silently and slyly; it is a defensive trait with them. The elephant's tread is lighter than a man's. A man may scent a cougar but he cannot hear him. The deer is noisy only when he is startled. Bears of ponderous build will as a rule sneak through the woods and make less noise than a man would make on a heavy carpet. The limbs and muscles of wild animals are not rigid; they are supple. A fox can caper over a hill covered with dry, crisp leaves and make less noise than the average man would make on a dirt road.

The frequency of "accidental" hunting murders has kept many a man out of the woods who would like to live another year. The popularity of deer and moose hunting has made it a most deadly pastime, seemingly.

The black powder cartridge was and is to-day deadly enough in the hands of the men who can mistake a canvas coat for a deer's hide. In such hands the smokeless, small bore rifle would not be more deadly. So whether the careless hunter kills a man with one bullet or another, it makes but little difference as long as the man is killed.—Rod and Gun.

AMATEUR STANDARDS

Should Canadian Authorities Not Rule Out Certain Contestants?

Canada has the strictest ruling on amateur standard of any in the world. In fact it is so strict that the Olympic people, to avoid trouble for themselves, adopted the Canadian rule, which was quite a compliment to our authorities. But in spite of the fact that our athletics are held with such an iron hand, the powers that be do not exert any severity when accepting entries from the United States for any of our Canadian meets. They take without question the status of the men as put forward by the American bodies and yearly see our men discouraged by defeat from men who practically do nothing but follow athletics as a means of getting an easy livelihood. Our men are practically untrained, there are no facilities provided for proper practice and if a hard working athlete who needs every dollar he can earn to make ends meet, accepts anything in the nature of an honorarium, he is at once relegated to the pro. class. Each year raw untrained men, without coaching are pitted against men who are carefully handled and coached throughout the spring, summer, fall and winter and then the cry goes up that our Canadian athletes are of no account. This impression is fostered by the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union which looks to the attraction of American athletes to swell the gate receipts, provide amusements for spectators and forget that their primary duty is to strengthen amateurism and foster Canadian athletics. It is well known that the men who carry the colors of American clubs to victory are not of the wealthy class and the mere fact that these men do nothing but compete and train all year seems strong enough to place them under suspicion and in Canada would mean suspension. To do what these athletes do, would mean the existence of a private income of no small dimensions, but evidently the United States authorities are complacent when athletes are winning points for the big clubs—Winnipeg Free Press.

HANDY BLACKING BRUSH

Has Reservoir Attachment Which Supplies Blacking to Brush.

An ingenious blacking brush has been patented by an Illinois man. There are two brushes in the one implement and they are fastened on braces extending from a stock. One of these is to supply the blacking and is quite small. The other is much larger and is for polishing. Fastened along the side of the stock is a reservoir consisting of a large tube like those that contain paints or tooth paste. From this reservoir a small feed tube leads into the small brush and keeps it continually supplied with blacking—which the reservoir contains. If it is liquid blacking it will drip into the brush as needed and if it is paste it can be squeezed out by pressing the fountain tube. The implement, therefore, contains in itself the source of supply, the means to apply and the means to put the polishing touches on either the stove or the boot, accordingly as it is used.

EVERYTHING IN ONE TOOL.

VALUE OF SPICES

Cinnamon a Good Preservative, Ginger the Very Opposite

Experiments conducted with a view to determining the preservative value of various spices and condiments seem to establish the fact that certain spices have a marked preservative effect on foods.

Cinnamon, for instance, is found to be a more powerful enemy of ferments than benzoic acid and at the same time quite harmless. Other condiments that are useful as preservatives are cloves and mustard, with nutmeg and allspice effective in somewhat less degree.

On the other hand such drastic condiments as ginger, black pepper and cayenne pepper do not hinder the growth of germs.

Thus it appears that cinnamon, cloves, mustard, nutmeg and allspice may be used with good advantage in seasoning foods, since they are not only palatable, but also exert a good effect on the food itself. Ginger and pepper, on the other hand, may well be avoided, since they do not exert any good effects on the food and are irritating to the stomach.

A Tax on Cats.

Of the many German municipalities which have long threatened to levy a tax on cats, Munich is first to carry the threat into effect. The revenue of Bavaria's capital will be augmented by five marks annualy upon each cat within the walls of the city. In future poor puss must wear a collar with a meal check and number, similar to those worn by dogs, or she will fall a prey to specially-organized cat catchers. The new measure, it is stated, is in defence of singing birds and also in the interest of hygiene and the citizen's nocturnal repose.

New Illumination.

A New York hospital is experimenting with illuminating the floors of rooms from beneath with electric lamps set under glass and backed by reflectors.

Native Mechanics.

A school for the instruction of native mechanics employed on the national railways will be established by the Chilean government.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at the office of any Local Agent of Dominion Lands (not sub-agent), on certain conditions.

Duties.—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required in every case, except when residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside of his homestead. Price $3 per acre. Duties—Six months residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and 50 acres extra cultivation. The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land after report by Homestead Inspector on application for patent.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price, $3 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

PALACE FOR ALFONSO

The People of Santander Have Gone to Enormous Expense

A new palace on the isle of Magdalena, at Santander, built at an enormous cost, subscriptions having been made by rich and poor alike, will shortly be occupied by King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, to whom the people of Santander have given the palace as a gift. The furnishings, the cost of which has been defrayed by the city, are of a sumptuous character. The new royal residence is approached by a bridge from the mainland, and has only one entrance. The King and Queen are greatly charmed with the palace and have thanked the people of Santander for their generosity. Henceforth the royal family will spend the summer months at the new palace and at the Miramar Palace at San Sebastian. Upon leaving Madrid the Court will first go to Santander.

HOTELS FOR WOMEN

Splendid Scheme of Cheap Housing for London's Working Women

Women's hotels, as they are called, are becoming more numerous in London, where they are helping somewhat to solve the problem of housing the underpaid woman. The rent of a cubicle in the hostel is 84 cents a week, which rent must always be paid in advance. A reference is required with each intending resident from some responsible person, and the matron writes for the reference before the would-be resident takes up her abode at the hostel.

All meals supplied are good, plentiful and cheap. The restaurant is open to outsiders, and the girls from neighboring factories and workshops are frequent visitors. For breakfast it is possible to get either a rasher of bacon, a kipper or bloater, some jam or marmalade, bread and butter and a cup of tea for 7 or 8 cents. Dinner offers a wide variety of choice. Roast mutton or beef, Irish stew, potato pie, two and often three vegetables, and a good dinner need not cost more than 12 cents. Then tea will cost about 6 cents and supper about the same, so that for 22 cents a day a girl can live, not indeed luxuriously, but cheaply and wholesomely. Baths are provided at the hostel at 2 cents each, and residents can either do their own laundry or pay to have it done.

HIT BY BALL BAT; BARKS LIKE DOG

Fred. Saunders, of Shamokin, Pa., was brought to the Philadelphia Hospital to be cured of a nervous trouble that for twenty-seven years caused him to bark and yelp like a dog, and paw the ground with his feet. "Fritz" Saunders, as he is known in Shamokin, was stricken with the terrible affliction when only seven years old. Like most boys he had a mania for baseball. One day when Jack Stivitts, once a famous pitcher, was playing in a game at Ashland, Pa., the bat slipped from Stivitts' hand, it struck Saunders over the left eye, knocking him unconscious. When he came to, several minutes later, Saunders started to barking and yelping like a dog and speaking in a convulsive manner. He has never recovered. He is free from the malady only when asleep. Efforts to treat him have failed. It is thought the blow caused a blood clot over the nerve centre.

Two Lives for a Dog

How two women lost their lives in an attempt to save a collie dog from drowning was related at the inquest at Rhos-on-Sea, Wales, on Elizabeth Gaskill, aged fifty-four, and Jennie Robinson, twenty, both of Kendal, Westmoreland. The collie, a magnificent dog, disliked the water, but they induced it to enter at a time of exceptionally high tide. Seeing that it was in danger they ran to some steps leading from the promenade to the beach, and were submerged by a great wave. The backwash carried them out to sea. Constable Paul Roberts and Scoutmaster Butler were nearly drowned in a gallant attempt at rescue.

ST. SOPHIA THE GOAL

For four and a half centuries the great shrine of the Greek Church—St. Sophia of Constantinople—has been profaned by the Moslem. In all that time the Greek and the Slav have prayed and prepared for the day when the city of Constantine and the shrine of Eastern Christendom would once more be restored to their rightful owners. A Bulgarian, discussing the feeling of veneration inspired by the Church of St. Sophia, said: "There were many Christians in many cities before her day, but Constantinople, by reason of Constantine's attitude toward Christianity, may well be called the first Christian city of the world. Here were originated and promulgated her first great creeds. And is it not tragic that to-day she should be the greatest Moslem city of Europe and almost of the world? That the greatest church erected in all the Eastern world to the honor of Christ, still called St. Sophia, should be the pride of Mohammed's followers among all their splendid mosques?"

Maxims for Newly-Weds

Begin well and end better.

If you give and take, no heart will break.

Confession of a fault makes half amends.

Silence is often the golden key of happiness.

Trust in Providence, but keep the kettle boiling.

Make no display of the sacrifices you make for each other.

Never deceive; confidence once lost can never be wholly regained.

Don't both be angry at the same time; it takes two to make a quarrel.

An angry speech never with anger meet.

Bitterness dies before a temper sweet.

Avoid "touchiness," and cultivate cheerfully the give-and-take spirit.

Always remember it is better to hear the laughter of children than to see an orderly room.

The Isolated Continent

A Romance of the Future

By
Guido von Horvath
and Dean Hoard

Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman in the United States and Great Britain.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—For fifty years the continent of North America had been isolated from the rest of the world by the use of Z-rays, a wonderful invention of Hannibal Prudent. The invention had saved the country from foreign invasion, and the continent had been united under one government, with Prudent as president. For half a century peace and prosperity had reigned. The story opens with President Prudent critically ill. His death is hastened by the receipt of a message from Count von Werdenstein of Germany that he has at last succeeded in penetrating the rays. Dying he warns his daughter Astra that this means a foreign invasion. He tells her to hurry to the Island of Ciryne, but dies before he can tell the location of the place.

CHAPTER III—Napoleon Edison calls on Astra, informs her that he was a pupil of her father's, and promises to help her. He gives her a ring made of a newly discovered substance which, he says, will solve the problem of flying.

CHAPTER IV—Chevalier di Leon appears in Europe. He notes that preparations have been completed for an invasion of America. He calls on von Werdenstein and offers him the secret of making gold.

CHAPTER V—He demands in return absolute disarmament and peace. The chevalier is suspected of being an American. He is seized at night and carried off in an aeroplane.

CHAPTER VI—Astra is inaugurated as president. She receives a message from Edison, whose long silence has worried her, that he has been a prisoner for two months on the island of Helgoland and has just escaped. He announces that the confederated fleet of Europe has sailed for America. He promises to call on her the following night.

CHAPTER VII—Countess Rosiny, a spy, becomes a prisoner in hope of securing Edison's secret. She falls in love with him.

CHAPTER VIII—She agrees to join him in an attempt to escape. By the use of fireworks he summons a curious flying machine which resembles a monster eagle. He escapes and sends his message to Astra.

Neither of the prisoners talked; both seemed to be fully occupied with their thoughts. Suddenly di Leon turned to the dreaming countess: "Are you willing to leave with me tonight, in half an hour?"

"But how absurd that is, chevalier!"

"Do you trust me implicitely?"

"I do!"

"Then go to your room and get all the things that you need to take along ready. Will half an hour be enough?"

"I will be ready."

He led the countess down to her room, and from that moment the chevalier became energy itself. First of all, he locked the door of the reading-room, then ran into his own room, picked up his bundle of belongings and hastily placed it on the roof. He arranged several heavy obects around the trapdoor leading to the reading-room and then sent a rocket from his signal gun toward the winking star.

The light that followed was taken as a warning by the superstitious soldiers on duty below; the red and white stripes of the American flag high up in the air, and the silvery stars on the blue background completed the flag that was causing so much annoyance to Europe.

The red star above twinkled reassuringly and a second later the roof of the prison was flooded with a strong light. The chevalier ran down and knocked at the countess' door. "Are you ready?"

"I am," she replied and appeared with a small suitcase in her hand.

Just as they opened the door leading to the roof, a secret door in the wall, that had escaped the chevalier's scrutiny, opened and Captain Euler stepped into the room.

"To the roof, countess," the chevalier whispered in the ear of the woman and he stepped before the captain. Back of the captain, through the half-open door, he could see several soldiers.

"Your recent fireworks have aroused some suspicion, chevalier."

"I am sorry, captain, but I cannot stop to explain things to you just now; I am in a hurry."

"In a hurry?"

"Yes, my dear captain. I have just time enough to thank you for your kind hospitality, and to bid you farewell!"

The captain stepped forward, but before he could touch the chevalier there was a flash that blinded all. By the time the captain had recovered enough to shout: "To the devil with your jokes!" the chevalier was gone.

Captain Euler ran to the roof door, only to find it barricaded; it took some time for them to force the door, and when they reached the roof and played their searchlight over the whole space, not a soul was to be found.

An hour later Astra received her message from Napoleon Edison.

The following morning early risers in Berlin were treated to a novel sight. High above the city, a white-headed, tremendously large eagle appeared; it circled above the town for a while, then turned suddenly toward the west and disappeared with a rapidity that was astounding.

The learned Professor Kipfelheimer, a noted zoologist who was one of the first to see it, was certain that the bird was a genuine American eagle.

CHAPTER IX.

In the Master's Workshop.

The following day was a long one for Astra; hope, joy and the expectation of seeing the man who was able to do so much made her restless.

Shortly before noon a report came from the Z ray generating station advising that a peculiar vibration seemed to be forcing the rays backward. Orders were given to establish the new Z zone, also to watch for further disturbances and, after a lapse of six hours, to remove the first line of resistance, leaving the new Z ray to meet the invaders.

Astra was happy indeed when she descended to the library to await Napoleon's arrival. As the hands of the chronometer pointed to ten, she listened intently. The main door was opened just as the clock gave forth its tinkling warning. A moment later Napoleon Edison was admitted to the library and Astra hurried toward him with welcoming hands.

She saw at a glance that his healthy bronze complexion was gone and that he was thinner. She also noted the unfamiliar clothes he was wearing.

"I am so glad that you have come at last!" were her first words.

"I have longed to come, Miss Prudent, but I was detained in a prison, where I had everything but liberty."

"Please be seated; you must be weary after your long trip." She led him to a chair and took a seat opposite. "There has not been a day, since your visit here, that I have not longed for some news from you. And you, all the time, were in prison."

Edison said: "I crossed the isolator in my aerodromone, ascending thousands of feet to get over. My assistant engineer, Santos Duprel, was with me; we landed on the deserted Zugspitze, in Germany. I alone descended on skiis to Partenkirchen, where I purchased European clothes. Duprel and I were in constant communication with each other until my imprisonment, which came so quickly that I had no chance to advise him. I had the honor, before I was confined, to meet his majesty, the Emperor of Germany, the Prince of Wales and, above all, the Count von Werdenstein, who is the real ruler of Europe.

"Are your plans for our defense formulated?" Astra asked.

"I will, with your permission, tell them in a more detailed manner at the workshop. I hope you will accompany me there as soon as you can."

"I am ready to go at any time; only you know I cannot leave the capital for a long period. Besides, I must lay a decided plan of action before the continental congress meets, day after tomorrow. Where is your plant?"

He looked at her in surprise, but all he could see in her face was frank expectation, and in a measured voice he said:

"On the island of Ciryne."

"Ciryniith!" whispered Astra.

"At last you have spoken the word!" said Napoleon eagerly. "The word I have been expecting to hear you say."

Astra looked at Napoleon questioningly; evidently there was something back of this that she was supposed to know. Napoleon read her thoughts.

"Miss Prudent, I will enlighten you. When I discovered the element of which your ring is made I came to your father. He was a friend and teacher. When your father realized the value of my discovery and saw the far-reaching possibilities of this wonderful metal he gave me full instructions, and I based my further experiments on them.

"His prophetic soul foresaw the events that are now upon us, and he was anxious to know the results of my experiments. Three days before his death I received a letter from him. I had just returned from the trial trip of my aerodromone. I was intoxicated with my success. The American Eagle, my first aerodromone, was a marvel, but I will come to that later. I hurried to the capital as soon as I read your father's letter, but was too late! How happy he would have been to know that I had won, that no nation can destroy the work of his lifetime." Napoleon's voice softened to a whisper. "But his last letter told me that you would be instructed to go to the Island of Ciryne and that, when I met you, you would greet me with the word you have just spoken, 'Ciryniith,' the name I have given to this element."

Astra's eyes filled with tears. The memory of the last hour of her father returned to her in its smallest detail, and then she told Napoleon how the dying man had tried to tell her everything, but that the shock caused by the message from Count von Werdenstein had killed him before he could do so, though with his last strength he had written, in shaking letters, the word: "Ciryniith."

"I cannot tell what he said about you," finished Astra, smiling at Napoleon through her tears. "All I can say is that I am very happy today, for you have come."

Her expressive eyes told even more, and Napoleon Edison felt that he was amply rewarded for the services he had rendered, not for the girl he loved, but for the country they both loved.

"I have one favor to ask, your excellency!"

"Whatever it is, I will grant it in advance."

"The Countess Rosiny, whom I have mentioned, and who played a part in the plot, is homeless in our continent. She is in the waiting-room. I brought her with me, thinking you would not let her go without trying to aid her. Under your care, I feel sure she will regain all that is good in her nature and lose all that is bad."

"She is welcome," Astra said, simply, and started to summon an attendant, but Napoleon interrupted her.

"Astra, permit me! Before you call her, I wish we could make arrangements for your visit to my island."

"How long does it take to make the trip?"

Edison smiled. "The word 'distance' is stricken from the American dictionary. I will place you on the island within three hours."

"Where is your island?"

"Where the 124 degree W. of Greenwich and the 34 degree N. meet."

"In the Pacific Ocean! Wonderful! Could we go tomorrow?"

"Yes, but I think it would be best to travel at night, as I wish to keep the existence of the American Eagle a secret for a while."

"That is wise. Let us start at eleven tomorrow evening."

Napoleon bowed, and so the matter was settled.

The Countess Rositta Rosiny was led into the room.

Astra embraced the countess kindly. "Welcome to our continent, my dear countess."

Countess Rosiny sobbed. Her heart seemed touched by the kind reception given her by the representative of the greatest republic! But though Napoleon Edison was a scientist, inventor and a discoverer, he could not see into the heart of the weak; beautiful woman. Had he known what was going on within it, he would have acted differently.

Astra invited the countess to stay with her in the Crystal Palace. It was almost midnight when Napoleon left, assuring Astra that he would call for her at eleven the next evening.

At the time appointed he was at the door with a powerful automobile. Astra refused to sit in the tonneau of the machine, so Napoleon assisted her to the seat beside him at the wheel and she let her hand rest lightly on his arm. The big machine ran evenly out of town, into the suburbs, and turned into a big garden that was a natural forest. The large mansion was deserted, but a garage showed signs of life. A broad stream of light spread out into the quiet summer night from one window. The sound of Napoleon's horn must have been familiar to the occupant of the building, as the large door was pushed open in time to let the large car enter.

Napoleon stopped the car and assisted the President down. Then taking the arm of a man who opened the door, he said:

"Excellency, allow me to present Mr Santos Duprel, my best and trusted comrade."

The short man bowed with reverence.

"Is everything ready?" asked Napoleon. The little man nodded.

Napoleon opened a door and led his guest through it; Santos locked the door of the garage and followed them. The room they entered opened skyward. A shimmering object, entirely filling the place, gleamed in the star light. Napoleon led the President up a few steps, into a small space that was inclosed, but with something that was perfectly transparent, and asked her to sit down on a couch.

"Will you kindly wait here for a few moments?" he asked, and he went further forward. Astra's eyes became used to the dim light; she saw Napoleon stop before some complicated mechanism and a steering wheel. Santos came and closed the door through which they had entered the car. Electric sparks flew from something at the front.

"Are you ready?" asked Santos.

"Ready!" was Napoleon's reply as he turned a lever. The machine started upward and two huge wings that Astra had not noticed before, began to beat the air. She had not experienced the slightest shock, yet she realized that they were going up with great velocity. The machine was practically noiseless, the only sound being a whistling murmur caused by the beating wings.

The coolness was perceptible and Astra wrapped her cloak more closely about her. Napoleon gave a twist to the wheel, and with a small light studied his map and the compass.

Santos now took the wheel and Napoleon sat down opposite the President. He pointed out the different places as they rushed over them—Frankfort, Louisville, St. Louis, Wichita, Ashland, Santa Fe, Prescott and Los Angeles—then came the ocean. Astra sat silent. She had a great mind and her appreciative qualities were far above the average.

"The greenish light that you see just before us is the island of Ciryne," said Napoleon.

A few minutes later the aerodromone settled down in a very large hangar, but as the place was dark Astra could not see the machine and its outer appearance. Napoleon helped her out and, showing her his watch, convinced her that they had made the trip in three hours; it was eleven o'clock, according to Pacific time.

"As rapidly as the earth revolves," remarked Astra.

Napoleon led Astra into a large, square building in the center of the group. A peculiar odor greeted her nostrils as she entered. It was not disagreeable, but reminded her of some oppressive tropical flower. She followed Napoleon into the private laboratory.

Hours passed while Napoleon told the President everything, and the dawn was breaking as he led her out into the air. He led her to the hangar again and, turning all the electric lights on, he showed her all the aerodromones. "Six in all, and with these I can fight against the world and win."

Before Astra could reply, he said: "And now, your excellency, I would like to introduce you to the queen of this little colony."

Astra felt faint, but followed Napoleon as if in a dream.

They went to the nearest cottage. In the doorway stood a beautiful matron waiting to receive them.

"Mother," said Napoleon, "let me introduce you to her excellency, the President of the United Republics."

Astra stepped forward and before Mrs. Edison could utter a word she embraced and kissed her, then, bowing her head on the matron's bosom, she wept tears of joy.

Neither spoke. They seemed to understand each other.

CHAPTER X.

Between Z Rays.

The general of the confederated European army and navy had arrived on the scene of action. The first line of resistance was down, and he believed the American continent ready for occupancy. In his official aeroplane he had hurried to take command.

Shortly after his arrivel the scouting cruiser, Beelzebub, ran into the second line of Z rays and so reported by wireless to the admiral's ship. The man of war shook his fist toward the west: "You will not escape me, nevertheless!" He was angry and gave hurried orders to lay the necessary cables and move the engineering boats forward.

He had hardly finished his orders when another message came that was trifling, yet it annoyed him. The cruising aeroplanes sent word that a tremendous American eagle was approaching from the west. Many remembered that the eagle had been seen above Berlin; many of the seamen predicted disaster. Others laughed and did not take the news seriously.

The Count von Werdenstein stood on the bridge of the flagship Empress Brigitta. His powerful glass eagerly sought the western horizon, searching the sky for that eagle.

"Welcome to Our Continent, My Dear Countess."

The strange air craft crept nearer, headed directly for the flagship. The count saw that the under portion of the body was transparent, and that a single man was in it.

When the air craft arrived about two hundred feet above the flagship the red, white and blue flag with the stars was unfurled, and the craft stopped its flight, resting easily on the air, lazily moving its wings.

Was it the wonderful performance which had thrilled the seamen, or was it an intended cheer? Nobody knows but all those who could see the eagle shouted a huzza. Only one man bit his lips nervously, the Count von Werdenstein.

The American flag saluted the cheering men, then a white flag of truce appeared beside it.

"I bring the greetings of the people of the American continent, and want to communicate with the commander in chief," came a clear, strong voice to the ears of the men on the flagship.

The generalissimus waved his hand toward the eagle. "If you will ascend the observation tower we can converse comfortably," added the voice to him.

The great chancellor went toward the elevator that carried him up to the tower, and the eagle descended until it was on a level with the top of the tower. Opening a side window, the bird man leaned out and saluted the count.

"Here we meet, face to face, your excellency!"

"The Chevalier di Leon!"

"The chevalier is no more, your honor; I am Napoleon Edison."

"Mr. Edison, you are worthy of your names, both of them."

"Thank you, sir!" humbly.

"I presume you have come to renew your offer."

"The time of offering is gone, your excellency." Napoleon's voice was cold and cutting. The count was surprised.

"I have come to your excellency to deliver the message from the United American Republics."

"Yes? I am listening."

"The navy of the European confederacy entered American waters with apparent warlike intention and destroyed the first isolation line. The United Republics took note of this unlawful action and hence give you warning that unless the navy under your personal command is removed from these waters immediately, the United Republics of America will cut you off from your resources and make prisoners of all the vessels that linger in the zone where they are at present.

"Twelve hours are given for retreat!"

The Count von Werdenstein lost his temper on hearing these words and took them for a personal insult.

"Can I see the papers that make you the bearer of such an impudent message?"

Napoleon moved the wheel a trifle and the bird slid toward the count, who took the sealed package from his hand. He broke it open and read:

"The bearer, Mr. Napoleon Edison, is the all-powerful representative of the President of the U. R. of A.
(Signed) ASTRA PRUDENT,
(Seal) President.

The count smiled and said while folding the paper: "Tell to those who sent you that I, Count von Werdenstein, commander in chief of the navies and armies of the European confederacy, will break down all the resistance that may be before me, and will land and occupy the countries that you call the United Republics of America. The warning that you give me will not be considered, neither will your actions be feared. I am headed for the American continent and I will land."

"This is your final answer, your excellency?"

"It is."

"Please listen to me for a moment, not as a courier and representative, but as man to man.

FACILITIES FOR WHEAT

The New Hudson Bay Route Is Selected to Revolutionize Transportation

"Is the Hudson Bay route feasible for general communication with Europe?" This question was addressed to a member of the firm that will build docks at Fort Churchill. He replied: "Certainly! I believe it is open nine months in the year to suitable ships. Only three boats have been lost, so far as is known, in navigating the straits. The ony risk is that of encountering ice from Baffin Bay, but engineering may overcome that difficulty once it is seriously faced. At present there are millions of bushels of wheat held up in Canada owing to the congestion on the St. Lawrence. Anything of this kind will be obviated by the development of the new scheme."

An experienced projector possessing an intimate knowledge of the northern Canadian Provinces, also interviewed upon the scheme, stated that it promised the development of the whole of Northern Canada. "It will create such a boom," he added, "that the Dominion Government won't know where they are. There are thousands of miles of country practically unexplored yet abounding in natural wealth. My friends who have traversed the Peace River state that nugget gold is in abundance, whilst I myself know that the Indians get their coal upon the surface. If I am not mistaken, Fort Churchill may eventually prove the eastern terminal of a line penetrating right into the heart of Athabasca and the richest grain country in the dominion."

THE WOOLLEN INDUSTRY

Its Expansion Desirable in the Interests of the Whole Country

It is significant to note that the sheep industry has dwindled rapidly since the introduction of the British preference which has resulted in closing a large number of woollen mills in different parts of the country. A partial solution would be to revise the tariff on woollen goods.

Dealing with the sheep industry, the Globe in a recent issue said:

"Expansion of the woollen industry and sheep-raising industry in Canada is desirable in the interests of the whole country. There is a sure and constant market for wool, because there is nothing to adequately take its place. To every nation that has taken the industry seriously it has proved highly profitable, one of the best paying for the amount of work involved. Canada has natural conditions adapted to the raising of the finest mutton and wool, as the meagre attempts of our pioneers have proved, and we have proved, and we have plenty of waste land. As products of sheep there are not only wool and mutton but tallow as well."

CARRIED IN KNAPSACKS

Four Soldiers Can Handle Complete New Wireless Telegraphy Outfit

The British War Office has appointed a committee to consider the application of the recent remarkable developments in wireless telegraphy to the needs of the army. The Chairman of the committee is Sir Henry Norman, the author and traveller. A complete wireless installation which can be carried in the knapsacks of four men is the latest development of radio-telegraphy adopted by the British army. A "knapsack station" has a range of about ten miles. It is carried in knapsacks strapped on the backs of soldiers, four men each carrying a load of twenty pounds. The mast is about thirty feet in height, of extremely light though rigid construction, being made chiefly of aluminum in tube form.

Dog Duty in Ireland

The number of dogs registered in Ireland in 1911 totalled 521,898. The dog licence duty received amounted to $360,945—$22,575 from the towns and $338,370 from country districts.

THE SALMON PACK

The pack of all kinds of salmon in British Columbia for the season of 1911 it is said, fell not far short of seven hundred and fifty thousand cases. The total pack of sockeye on the Fraser River, it was estimated, approximately three hundred and sixty-five thousand cases.

Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

If Troubled With Head-Fullness, Ringing Noises, Specks Before the Eyes, the Stomach is at Fault.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away, and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleaning remedy I would still be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy, and healthy, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

A celebration is to be held at Whitby on Monday when Civic Holiday will be observed, and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has accepted an invitation to give an address, along with other prominent speakers from Toronto and other places.

A $90,000 DANCE.

Newport, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish's "Mother Goose" ball at The Crossways to-night, estimated to cost over $90,000. Hostess will be Mother Goose. Mrs. Robert Goelet will lead live lamb, impersonating "Mary."

Up for 13th Time.

William Lavery, who has been fined 12 times for being drunk, faced the magistrate again charged with having been drunk. Lavery is not 21 years old. He was fined $5.15. Another charge of trespassing on the C.P.R. tracks and pleaded guilty—$4.60.

Norwood Armouries.

Norwood Register: The brick work on the armouries is steadily going ahead. The walls which are being constructed of solid red brick, are now several feet in height and the frames of the doors and windows of the first storey have been put in place. The work so far gives promise of a very fine building.

An Esteemed Contemporary's.

An E.E.C. of recent date, presented a sympathetic obituary notice of a gentleman, who, "though born in another city, lived the greater part of his life in the city." Now the Times cannot see why a gentleman "though born in another city" should be debarred the privilege of living in Peterborough.

Saturday's Football.

To-morrow, the second game in the semi-final of the Midland League between the Nomads and the C.G.E. shop will be played. The game last Saturday was a tie 3—3, so this game will be hotly contested as both teams are out to win. The winners will play off with Pickering for the championship.

Where Local Immigrants Go.

Since the opening of the immigration season here this spring, 275 immigrants arrived in Peterborough and have secured employment through the office of the local immigration agent, Mr. Finch Miller. About 90 per cent. were men, of whom about 80 per cent. obtained positions on farms in the surrounding country.

Brantford Imitates Sec'y Bryan.

Brantford must be following the example set by Secretary of State Bryan in his 16 to 1 platform, unfortunately Brantford struck the platform at 16 to nil.

Forbidden Fruit.

A lady living on Stewart street owns a garden, and incidentally, a husband. A neighbor's hens have been playing upon the garden lately and she found where two of the hens had laid eggs in a corner of the garden. She said to her husband: "Well, I have found some of those hens are laying in our garden and I am going to keep the eggs." The hubby replied, "Why, my dear, that would be dishonest." The lady replied, "Well, I don't care. You know you are fond of fresh eggs for breakfast, too. I think after all, it would punish those hens to keep their eggs."

Five New Orange Lodges.

Yesterday Mr. McCartney, organizer for Eastern Ontario for the Orange Association paid The Times a friendly visit. Mr. McCartney says that the order is rapidly growing in strength everywhere, Protestants feeling the necessity for organizing. In his district five new lodges have been formed and an application in for a charter for a sixth. These are situated as follows: Prince Edward County, 3; Hastings County 1; Peterborough City 1, and Lindsay 1, the latter having elected Dr. Wood their first Worthy Master.

Exhibition Directors Live Wires.

A meeting of the directors of the Industrial Exhibition was held in the City Council Chamber. There were present Mr. J. H. Garbutt, president; and Messrs. R. M. Glover, Cox, Hooper, Wise, Moore, Duffus, Ball, Baptie, Storey and Secretary F. J. A. Hall. The Industrial Exhibition is to be held this year on September 11th, 12th and 13th, and last night the directors continued in their efforts to complete every detail of the preparations. The subject of fire works came in for considerable discussion and, as in every other branch of the Exhibition, the directors decided to take a step forward and arrange for the most elaborate display of fire works ever given at a local exhibition.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

JAPAN'S WAR LOSS

The Japanese are not fond of giving away information, and the report of the casualties sustained in the war with Russia has been delayed till it can be of no service to their late opponents. The figures were made public only recently. It is now learned that the Japanese casualties in round numbers included 40,000 killed and [illegible] wounded, of which 70,000 occurred at Mukden alone and 44,000 at Port Arthur. The infantry lost just ten times as many in proportion as the artillery. This may account for the idea now prevalent in the Japanese army that the artillery did not adequately support the infantry and that they should have pressed forward closer to the enemy and taken their share of the bullets.

WHERE THE CATS GO

Skins Are Sold in London Market Extensively.

The fur of the domestic cat is much bought on the London market; into what it turns after manipulation probably is a trade secret. According to a report furnished by J. M. Mussen, trade commissioner at Leeds, to the weekly report of the department of trade and commerce, no fewer than 120,452 cat skins were purchased in one year. Many of these skins came from North America. In point of number musquash skins led, over five million of them being bought. Only 1,223 silver fox skins were sold, the supply being stationary. The number of beaver skins sold was neary 61,000. Prices were high this year, and Mr. Mussen notes that there was a strong demand for skunk, the price of which advanced 20 per cent.; wolverine skins doubled in value.

WATCH THE NUMBERS

Novel Device Shows Plainly Speed of Motorist

Speed indicators for automobiles have been invented without number during the past few years, but the newest kind is a speedometer that not only shows the speed to the driver of the machine, but to the people on the street, as well. A portion of the windshield on the machine is ruled off into squares, and each square marked with a figure, indicating the number of miles per hour. Each square is a compartment and is equipped with an electric light. Under the hand-needle of an especially prepared speedometer, electrical contacts are placed, connecting with the various figures. As the car gathers speed, the needle moves around the face of the speedometer over the contacts which cause the lights to flash. The device has been patented and is said to give good service, as it settles all controversy as to speed, since the only figure that is visible is the figure showing the actual speed of the car. The device is not believed to be very useful for work in daylight, but it will work satisfactorily at night.

DETECTED BY CIGARETTE SMOKE

A Case Which Smatters of Sherlock Holmes Fiction

Something in real life that might have been taken from Sherlock Holmes' fiction has amused the Kingston (England) magistrates, who, however, grew stern enough to sentence Tom Taylor, their prisoner, to three months' hard labor. He had stolen from Surbiton a set of Maundy money, a quantity of cigarettes, and other articles, belonging to Mr. John Long, a well-known publisher. Detective Cooke, who arrested Taylor on the Queen's riverside promenade in the dead of night, said that while he was walking along by the river with Detective Faux he detected the aroma of a cigarette. He recognized the scent as that of samples given him to try from a box which formed part of the stolen property. So he just followed the scent, and came upon the smoker. In reply to the charge, Taylor, on whom nearly all the stolen articles were found, said, "It's quite right; I broke in about half-past two this morning."

Amazing Gain in Independence Ore

The following are the assay values of the samples submitted.

No. 1, Gold $57.14 per short ton.

The Independence Mining and Development Co.

ROBT. C. WALLACE.

Value Steadily Increasing as Shaft Descends

Directors Decide to Construct a Stamp Mill This Fall

When "The Independence" Mine shaft reached the sixty-five foot level, a cutting was taken clear across the vein and the value of this ore is shown on the report assay reproduced above.

This is more than double the average value obtained at the shallower levels and proves conclusively that the vein of gold in this mine is becoming steadily richer as the shaft descends.

The prospects of this mine are now so bright that the Directors have decided to put in a small two-stamp mill this fall, and mill the high-grade ore now being mined. A two-stamped mill will handle from seven to eight tons per day at the cost of mining and milling of $4.00 per ton or a total overhead cost of about $6.00 per ton.

Working ore on the grade of the present sample, the mine will therefore produce at from the rate of $375 to $425 per day, which will more than pay the cost of all further development on this one claim.

Until further notice we continue to offer from the allotment of 100,000 treasury stock, offered to cover cost of development work, shares Par Value $1.00 at 40c.

Red Hair is Disappearing

Red hair, the real thing, not the Titian tinted, is disappearing, and there are comparatively few persons to-day who possess it. Dye has probably something to do with its departure.

Red-haired persons need never feel any misgivings. On the contrary they ought to feel proud when they remember that Sylla, Cato, Columbus, Sir Philip Sidney, Bayard, Wolfe, Oliver Cromwell and Ben Jonson all possessed red hair, while even Shakespeare inclined that way. Swinburne was very proud of his red hair.

The curious thing is that Anglo-Saxons ought not to be dark haired, according to a census made recently. Dorsetshire contains more red-haired persons than any other county.

But even in Dorsetshire the number of men and women with red hair is decreasing. There are still quite a lot of men and women with light hair, but a woman with the proper shade of red hair (her own) is very rare. Most people to-day have darkish hair.

AFTER RECEIVING AN AFFRONT REGIMENT TROD ON OLD GLORY

Girl Waved American Flag in Front of Bugler Who Then Tramped on It--Officers Had Man Discharged--Fellow Members of Youth Threaten to Resign So He Was Reinstated

Saskatoon, Aug. 1.—Militia men of this city are in a ferment to-day over a flag incident which graced the parade of 105th Fusiliers last night and the general attitude around the armouries to-day is that of waiting for something to drop.

When the parade was passing down Second avenue, the main thoroughfare of the city, a young girl in a passing automobile waved an American flag in front of one of the members of the bugle band of the regiment. The man broke ranks and snatching the flag, broke the staff in two and trampled it under his feet, the majority of the regiment passing over it also.

Fired, Then Reinstated.

The young man was instantly taken from the ranks and at the conclusion of the parade was court-martialled and discharged from the regiment The rest of the members of the bugle band, the majority of whom are young men, were waiting outside the armouries and as soon as they heard the decision they went inside and told one of the officers that they were handing in their clothes and would resign permanently from the regiment if this decision were allowed to stand.

They stated that the flag was waved right in the face of the bugler in question.

Officers of the regiment held a consultation and the man was later reinstated.

Signal For Patriotic Display.

Owing to the fact that the bugle band were to take a prominent part in the big parade in honor of six hundred delegates of the real estate board to-day, the officers, it is said, decided that they were forced to reinstate the man. The second decision was a signal for a jingoistic orgie which lasted until late. Members of the regiment in uniform marched through the streets near the armouries with the Union Jack at their heads singing "God Save the King," and "Rule Britannia."

MR. CHURCHILL HAS NOW SEA PLANES FOR SERVICE

"Reds" and "Blues" Again on Manoeuvres Off the North Sea Coast--First Lord Out To Watch Events

London, Aug. 1.—A state of war again exists to-day in the North Sea, "reds" and "blues" having resumed active operations.

Mr. Churchill, with Admiral Jellicoe, in the Thunderer, is watching the evolutions of the enemy. An interesting feature of this phase is the fact that the "reds" have seaplanes and a number of naval flying officers for aerial scouting. It is understood that during the next few days the general scheme originally drawn up by the admiralty will be again put in operation, but the invading transports now have only crews aboard.

Wireless stations along the coast again were put on a war footing to-day and steps will be taken to create conditions resembling as nearly as possible those of actual warfare.

BRITAINS GREATEST WAR VESSEL BUILDING

London, Aug. 2.—The new battleship Queen Elizabeth, to be launched at Portsmouth dockyard in October will be England's finest warship.

It is not yet known who will perform the ceremony, but some competition is anticipated for the honor of naming the finest warship yet built.

Not the least important of the new features in her design will be 15-inch gun. The Queen Elizabeth will be the first British warship to mount this formidable weapon.

Considerations of national expediency make it inadvisable that the number she will carry or the strength of her secondary armament should be disclosed at present. She will, however, be far and away the most powerfully armed man-of-war, and one of the fastest.

LOCAL DETECTIVE IS CAPTURED BY WOMEN

A gentleman living on Edinburg street has a wife and also a small orchard. The boys, whilst not old enough to appreciate the beauty of this Edinburg lady fully understand the good qualities of the apples. The worthy couple complained to the police that their orchard was being robbed. Last night "the twain" went down town after notifying the neighbours to watch for marranders. At 11 o'clock five different neighbours saw in the dim light, a man sneaking around the orchard. They formed a posse and rounded up the offender. They captured him bodily and threatened to telephone the police. Just then one of the local detectives flashed his badge and was allowed to depart.

GIRL TALKED TO LORD, SHE SAYS

Scared by Firecracker, Luella Cameron Enters 10 Days' Trance

Uniontown, Pa., Aug. 1.—Strange tales of being to heaven, having crossed the River Jordan and talked with Christ were told today by Luella Cameron, 15, daughter of Ellis Cameron, a wealthy coke man who was awakened from a trance of 10 days by the Rev. Israel Hess, a Mennonite divine.

"I did not want to return to earth," said the girl, "but I talked with the Lord, and he told me to go back. I then decided to return.

"The only person I talked to while in heaven was Christ. He and I had long talks, but he told me not to speak to anyone else in heaven and I did not. 'I crossed the river Jordon alone and Christ was waiting for me on the golden shore. It is beautiful. I want to go back there."

The girl, who is a devout member of the Mennonite Church, went into the trance July 16. She was sleeping in her room when a firecracker was exploded just outside her window. She awakened suddenly and swooned away. From that time she was unconscious. At one time however, last week, she said a few words to the Rev. Hess.

From the time young woman went into the trance until she was awakened Dr. W. McLeod has been attending her. He was able to do nothing, and when she was awakened he said it was the most remarkable thing of the kind he ever heard of. Milk broth and water were given the girl, but she lost 10 pounds during her sleep.

The awakening came when the Rev. Mr. Hess and Miss Emily Riffle sat by the girl's bedside and held her hands. Hess told her if she did not come out of the trance she would be sent to a hospital and she awakened. Until to-day the girl's eyesight and hearing were impared, but are now perfect.

RACE IN AUTO TO GET WANTED MAN

Must Answer Montreal Charge of Assault on Little Girl—In Court to-day.

Montreal, Aug. 1.—Racing 51 miles in an automobile from Plattsburg, N.Y., to a point in the Mountains near Sable Forks. Detective Walsh and Lieut. Belaco, of Montreal, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Tiern, of Plattsburg, effected the arrest of Armand Marechal. He is wanted here to answer to a charge of having assaulted eight-year-old Floride Denis in the bush near her home in Notre Dame de Grace, a week ago last Sunday. Marechal, who was brought here will be arraigned to-day.

GUAGE READINGS SETTLE DAMAGES

The Old Plan of Settling Claims for Drowned Lands Abolished

For years the plan adopted by the Government for the settlement of claims for what is known as "drowned lands," will be no longer in force. The Minister of Railways has adopted a new plan by which a guage will be fixed, so that any raise in the water levels will be recorded and damages arising therefrom more easily ascertained. This, of course, will apply more particularly to those lands which have been affected by the construction of new dams.

Mr. Burnham, M.P., who has taken a deep interest in this matter, received the following letter from the Hon. Mr. Cochrane, which speaks for itself:

Ottawa, July 31, 1913.

Dear Mr. Burnham:—

I have yours of July 19th re Joseph Clark, of South Monaghan. This is not a matter for Valuator Wilkins at all but is a question of guage readings to see whether the water is now being held higher than it was at the time that Clark and the Department reached a settlement. Am getting a report from our Engineers. Yours very truly, (Sgd.) F. COCHRANE.

BUFFALO BILL'S SHOW UNDER ATTACHMENT

Service Made on Gordon W. Lillie at Trenton by Marshal

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 1.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed to-day in the United States court against Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Pawnee Bill's Great Far East shows. Service in the proceedings was made by Deputy United States Marshal Woodbury B. Snowden upon Gordon W. Lillie, president of the company here. The concern is a New Jersey corporations with its principal office in this city. Samuel D. Oliphant of Trenton was named referee and he appointed D. Clinton Cook receiver.

Mr. Cook will go to Denver, Col., file ancillary proceedings and take possession of the entire aggregation, which is now in that city.

BENSFORT WINS THE GOLD WATCH

Miss V. Emberson Obtains Prize Offered by Mr. J. H. Burnham M. P.

A pleasing function was held on Thursday evening at the town hall, Bensfort. It is generally known that Mr. J. H. Burnham has offered gold watches, as prizes to children of the city and townships of this county, to be awarded to their respective highest marked candidate at the Entrance examination. There are five schools in the township of South Monaghan, and this year the school at Bensfort distinguished itself by having one of its pupils, Miss V. Emberson, win the watch for the second time in that township.

A very pleasing musical program was presented, during which Mr. Burnham presented the prize to Miss Emberson. Mr. G. C. Wainwright, manager of the local Bank of Ottawa, made a very interesting address. The reeve also gave a very charming address.

After congratulating the meeting on the meeting on the large attendance which showed the interest of the people in education, Mr. Burnham went on to say that during the brief space of a man's occupancy of a public position, it is manifestly one of his many duties to do all he can to help in the education of the rising generation. Therefore, he decided last year to give a gold watch for entrance pupils from the city and the same for the country. He found, however, that outlying rural schools stood very little chance to win the prizes, and, as they were the ones he desired chiefly to reach, it became necessary to give a watch for each township. He knew of nothing, he said, quite so pleasant as travelling about on this errand, and hoped the custom would not readily die out. It already showed signs of proving beneficial, and, according to The Globe, of July 16, it is absolutely necessary for the people to bestir themselves with regard to their schools. The Globe, in its leading editorial of that date, issued the following warning under the significant heading of "The Weakness of the Public School"—"At a recent high school entrance examination in Toronto the candidates from the Roman Catholic Separate Schools secured a considerably higher percentage of marks than the candidates from the public schools obtained. This is not the first time such an incident has occurred. • • • Toronto is not the only city in which this has taken place this year, however, and it may not be amiss for the public inspectors, principals and 4th class teacher of Toronto to look carefully into the educational situation to ascertain whether they are working at any removable disadvantage. • • • " Surely such a warning as this ought to set the people and representatives thinking hard. Just so soon as the public schools lose their pre-eminence the best pupils of all persuasions will desert them and go to the Separate schools, and that will very soon mean that, having proved a failure, the people will lose the control of popular education and it will necessarily be placed in the hands of those who succeed in giving the best education—and the defeat of the public school will mean the defeat of a vast number of other things. The people need, therefore, a distinct and an immediate revival of their interest in their schools if what

GIRL PUTS DUMMY IN BED AND FLEES

Washington, Aug. 1.—In some summer resort in Connecticut or New York are two happy young elopers. The bride's parents, now in California, have telegraphed their parental forgiveness.

The bride was formerly Miss Lochraine Lee, the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lee. The latter, about three weeks ago, had completed packing their household belongings, preparatory to leaving for California. They intended to take their daughter with them.

While her parents were paying farewell visits to friends on the eve of their departure, Miss Lee stayed at home, packed her suit case, and, arranging a "dummy" in her bed, boarded a train for New York. When her parents returned they looked in their daughter's room and, seeing a form on the bed, retired. In the morning they found a note from Miss Lee saying she had gone to New York to marry the man of her choice.

Miss Lee had had several long-distance telephone conversations with her sweetheart, Sidney Witherington, and the details were arranged. He met his fiance at the train and they were married without delay.

SHEARER BROTHERS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Joseph and Edward Shearer were yesterday charged in the police court with having on July 31st, broken into the shop of David Manley, of North Monaghan and stealing a quantity of cigarettes and $5 in silver. silver. Joseph, who is known to the police, elected to be tried by a jury. Mr. Wood, County Crown Attorney, was present. David Manley, first witness, said his grocery store, two blocks from the city limits, said he locked up his store at night. At 5.30 next morning, he found that his till had been robbed of $5—five cent pieces, and about $1.50 of copper coin, the latter containing three American cents. He described several of the 5-cent pieces, which he identified in court. He found the door locked all right. He missed some postage stamps and some Gold Crest cigarettes. He lost about $5 worth of goods, of which about $2.25 worth was produced in court. He saw the prisoners at his shop at 9 a.m. Joseph asked "What happened at your store last night?" There had been no chance of any report of the robbery having got out of his shop. Iola, a sister of the Shearers', came in to get a can of pork and beans and paid for it with 2 five cent pieces.

Joseph Shearer asked witness "Why do you blame me for the robbery?"

Detective Newhall told of the work he had done on the case. He saw the younger Shearer get a canoe from Hickey's boat livery at the end of the street car line. He paddled down nearly to the street railway wharf where he took in his brother Joe.

About seven o'clock he saw Edward pay for the canoe with twelve 5-cent pieces. He then arrested the two brothers. Searching Joe, Detective Newhall found the five cent piece with the nick in it, and another nickel in his vest pocket. He found also a package of sweet Caporal and Gold Crest Cigarettes. In Eddie's pocket he found a five cent piece and some cigarettes.

The two were committed for trial. Their little brother Gerald, seven years of age, on the same charge, was remanded to the Children's Shelter.

EX-PRESIDENT CASTRO LANDS IN VENEZUELA, HAS BIG ARMY

Efforts to Regain Lost Status Worries Present Holder of Reins

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 1.—In consequence of the outbreak of the revolution in Venezuela and the invasion of the country by forces under the leadership of former President Ciriano Castro, the Federal Council has constitutionally authorized President Juan Vincente Gomez to assume dictatorial powers until the movement is crushed.

President Gomez on Wednesday night sent the following telegram to the Governors of all the Venezuela States:

By Craze For Power.

"General Ciriano Castro, impelled by ambition and the craze for power, has provoked a revolution in this republic by ordering his partisans to arm themselves against the constitutional government.

"Already rebel forces in several localities have disturbed the public order.

"It is necessary for you to be alert and act rapidly and energetically in assisting the Government to crush the rebels.

"The peace of the country, which conscientious Venezuelans are obliged to nourish, cannot be left at the mercy of adventurers who possess no idea of decorum.

"I trust you will fulfil your duty."

The Governors in their replies promised unqualified support of the Government. Some of them requested the dispatch of additional arms and ammunition.

SLAYS HER HUSBAND AND KILLS HERSELF

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 1.—After tying her husband securely in bed, where he lay asleep here early to-day, Mrs. Avelina Rodriguez, a young Cuban woman, fired four bullets from a pistol into his head and body, killing him instantly.

She then untied the dead body, stretched herself beside it, and fired the remaining bullet into her own heart. The police found the pair dead beside each other, the pistol grasped in Mrs. Rodriguez's hand.

Evidence gathered by the police indicates that the couple had had frequent quarrels.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE IN PRISON CELL WITH WIRE

Russian Pole Adapted Local Conditions to Answer All Earthly Purposes

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 1.—A Russian Pole, believed from letters found in his pockets, to be S. Najcheresyk, took his own life in the police cells at police headquarters to-day.

His lifeless body was found suspended from a telephone wire by Sergeant Welch, who arrested the man as a disorderly.

It was immediately cut down and Dr. F. Wilson was summoned, but the man was quite dead.

The man was arrested about 10.30 last night near the Clifton Hotel, where he was acting in a manner not quite rational. On the way to the cells the man broke away from the officer and was only caught after quite a foot race through the streets.

Early this morning Welch says he went down and looked at the man, who was locked up in the large cell room, and found him apparently asleep. He was lying on the bench with his face towards the wall.

At 6.15 Welch went down again. This time the man was apparently standing up looking out of the window. The officer says he spoke to him a couple of times, but got no response. He looked closer and found that he had made a noose of the telephone wire leading into the office of Tax Collector Gunn, wrapped it around his neck, tied it to the steam pipes and then stepped off the bench. His toes were just resting on the floor.

TO KEEP SKIN IN FINE CONDITION IN SUMMER

(From The Family Physician.)

It would be much better for the skin if little cream, powder or rouge were used during the heated term. Mixed with prespiration, dust and grime, these things are anything but beautifying. Ordinary mercolized wax will do more for the complexion and without giving an oily, shiny, streaked, spotted or pasty appearance. It is the ideal application for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clean, but daily removes particles of scarf skin which have been soiled by dirt or weather. By constantly keeping the complexion clear, white and satiny, it does more toward perpetuating a youthful countenance than any of the arts or artifices commonly employed. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drugstore, will completely renovate the worst complexion. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling, or to overcome such condition, there's nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel.

OIL FOR GERMAN NAVY TRUST HAS COMPETITION

Bavarian Company Starts to Navigate Danube--Will Ship Oil by Freight and Fight Rockerfeller Agents

New York, Aug. 8.—A Berlin cable says: A society for the navigation of the Danube, under the name of the Bavarian Lloyd, and with an initial capital of $100,000 has been formed under the auspices of the Bavarian Government.

Its purpose is the development of freight traffic on the Danube and the facilitation of import into Germany of oil from the Roumanian fields, in order to create competition with the Standard Oil Trust in the German markets.

"S.O." Has Hold on Rumania.

Berlin, Aug. 1.—According to the Hamburger Nachrichten, the Standard Oil Company has acquired a twenty-year lease on property of 2,000 acres and other important land concessions in Roumania.

BRANTFORD PLAYS ANOTHER LOOSE AND RAGGED GAME

The Petes defeated Brantford at Riverside Park again yesterday, and although the game was a listless one many good plays were pulled off.

Quite a number of the fair fans were in attendance and the regulars as usual were perched on the rail.

Coose opened the twirling for the visitors and the Petes pounded him out of the box in three innings, when he was replaced by Lill, who did about as well yesterday as he did the day before. The boys just pounded him when they wished, and although only a few errors crept into the game, the hitting of the visitors was of a poor class.

With five runs to the good Bodding was replaced by Sterling, who finished the game in [illegible]

The excitement of [illegible] in Thursday's game proved too much for Catcher McNeal, and he was on the bench yesterday, Mc being in poor health. Chapedelaine did the work behind the bat and was full of life.

Manager Davie Rowan slipped one over on the Brants yesterday when he stole home, while Pitcher Lill was delivering the ball over the plate. It was a close shave, but Davie took a high dive and Lamond dropped the pill in the dust. Umpe Davis could be heard smiling, all over the lot, but there really was nothing to laugh at. The [illegible] of the visitors would [illegible] take an epileptic fit.

NUGENT'S SARSAPARILLA—PRICE FOR large bottle, 100 full doses, 50c. and well worth it, too. It's better to take no medicine at all than to depend upon cheap concoctions that are compounded to sell at low price and a big profit just because there is a large demand for certain remedies at certain seasons of the year. There are socalled Sarsaparillas offered to us to sell to our customers at 75c a bottle that would bring us a larger profit than Nugent's Sarsaparilla sold at 50c. Nugent's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, arouses the torpid liver, drives out all impurities, cleanses and tones up the system, and helps Nature throw off the dullness that comes from indoor life of winter. It arouses energy, brightens the eye, clears the brain, gives lightness to the movements. Nugent's Sarsaprilla is not the only thing you will find in this drug store, we make a specialty of Nugent's Remedies. Nugent Drug Co., 395 George St., directly opposite Crossman's store.

WANTS BRAIN TRUST IN SCIENTIFIC WORLD

German Scientist Would Apply Modern Business Methods to Conserve Energy of the Savants

Herr Professor Wilhelm Ostwald, the famous chemist of Leipzig, wants to do in the realm of science what has been done in industry, and he is asking his fellow scientists to help regulate and standardize their output.

Professor Ostwald thinks science has been unearthing more useful facts than the average man's brain can comfortably store. Discovery has piled upon discovery in such rapid succession that he believes the people are suffering from mental indigestion brought on by a too liberal diet of knowledge.

"At the present day a great deal is being done by science," writes the professor. "Indeed, at times it almost appears as if too much were being done, for it has become practically impossible for an individual scientist to follow the total production of science in his own field.

"It will easily be seen that modern method is attended with great waste of energy. In chemistry every paper published is abstracted independently at least ten times, the result of lack of organization. What I have said from personal knowledge in chemical science is seen in other sciences.

PROFESSOR OSTWALD

"Now it happens at the present time, in the field of finance, a process is going on which may be regarded as a model for the organization of science and intellectual work.

"The recognition of the fact that competitive struggle is the most energy-destroying and impractical of all methods is gaining stronger foothold. In place of bitter competitive strife among related industries and commercial undertakings, we see everywhere going on the process of combination for joint collaboration and rational distribution.

"The process which we thus see going on in the world of economics must necessarily, therefore, unfold itself in the field of intellectual labor.

"The need has become urgent that the total work be so organised and brought into harmonious union that no energy is wasted."

Which is about all the need for a 'BRAIN TRUST" Professor Ostwald thinks is necessary to show. He believes the organization should so fix it that the scientists throughout the world will be placed in a position to know what other men are doing over the same route. He admits, however, that the highest creative productions will still have to be left to what he calls the "individual highly gifted heads."

A step has been made in the direction of the new trust through the establishment in Munich, Bavaria, of an institution called Die Brücke (The Bridge), which plans to follow the work of science everywhere in the world and publish books and pamphlets setting forth what is going on.

Mean Thing.

They (of course were girls) were talking (of course in the nicest manner possible) about a third girl—a mutual friend.

"Yes," remarked one of them, "she quarreled with Jack, and returned all his presents."

"Oh, really? And I suppose he very naturally returned hers?"

"Every one of them," replied the other. "Why, he even went so far as to send her half a dozen boxes of face powder, with a note explaining that since he first met her he must have taken that much home on his coat."—London Opinion.

That Boy Again.

"Why, your hair is black, Mrs. Wopson."

"Of course it is, Johnny. Did you think it was some other color?"

"Yessum, 'cause I heard my father tell my mother that when Mr. Wopson stayed out late you got red-headed."

The more inquiries one makes the more one is convinced that western farming offers great opportunities to the young woman, says a writer in the Toronto Globe. Not far from Edmonton a young lady took a quarter section—one hundred and sixty acres—and is making a remarkable annual income raising thoroughbred chickens. All of the section is in use, either for scientifically planned houses and large runways or for the raising of food for the fowls.

For anyone to whom this work appeals there is a great opportunity for specialization in different breeds. The preparation necessary for such an enterprise would probably include a short course at one of the agricultural colleges. The more funds at one's disposal the larger the start would be, and the greater the immediate returns.

Either the girl herself, or an assistant whom she would need if the work were done on a fairly large scale should be able to shoot, since several of the small prairie animals, which are otherwise objectionable, frequently play havoc in a chicken house.

Awarded to professional men, 25.
Awarded to women and girls, 31.

A large number of the awards made to wage workers is admittedly traceable to the fact that they are engaged in perilous occupations, where the opportunities for the manifestation of the heroic spirit are the most numerous.

Still the figures show that when heroism calls the man with the overalls is prompt to respond.

For a Sound Sleep

If you want to sleep peacefully, says a physician, and to avoid disturbing dreams, observe the following rules.

Keep the window open or otherwise thoroughly ventilate the room.

Secure as much freedom as possible from discordant noises.

Retire neither hungry nor too full

Do not use a pillow that strains the neck.

Have bedclothes as light as possible with sufficient warmth.

Avoid cold feet.

Do not bury the head under the blankets.

If these measures fail, take a warm footbath, and drink a glass of hot milk or water or a cup of weak tea when going to bed. "Hot water inside and outside often work a miracle in cases of this kind."

Chase the Rats.

Rats and mice will leave premises in which chloride of lime is used as a disinfectant.

Grass Stains.

Ships in the Suez.

No ship is allowed to pass through the Suez Canal without a searchlight a specialized type.

HAVE a bottle waiting for you.

After the day's work, enjoy O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager. It will take all the tiredness away.

O'Keefe's Pilsener Lager
"The Light Beer in The Light Bottle"

is concentrated vigor and refreshment. It is the ideal food-tonic, strength-giver and reviver.

Keep it in the house.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Senator George W. Ross is over 70 years of age, and says he feels like thirty. Probably he means 30 cents — ever since the defeat of the Navy Bill.

When the new hydro power comes into effect it is hoped that the "alternating" current will drive the street cars and power plant satisfactorily as of old. If not the recording angel ma hear a good deal of alternating language.

The "Ladrier March" has made its appearance. The idea of the author, no doubt, is to be in readiness when the Borden crowd take a back seat, and the Liberals make a forward movement on the pie counter.

Fifty women and girls, some of them mere children, perished in a fire in a Binghampton, N. Y. factory. All these lives were snuffed out in a few minutes, the news dispatch says. A heinous crime rests upon the conscience of some one.

The suffragettes are playing the mischief with "the stately homes of England." No empty house of any pretensions seems to be safe in these days of feminine class-conscious incendiarism. Seems to be a good thing for the hen-pecked isle that its climate is very moist.

THE MINISTER OF MILITIA.

The thorough and practical manner in which the affairs of the Militia and Defence Department are carried out is seen in the recent action of the present Militia and Defence Minister in retiring the Superintendent of the Quebec arsenal on account of defects in the ammunition manufactured there. Reports had been received by the Minister that accidents were happening in different parts of the country owing to defective ammunition. It must be pointed out that the ammunition referred to had been manufactured under the Liberal administration.

A Commission was appointed to inquire into the manufacture of the ammunition, and it was discovered that 12,800,000 rounds of ammunition, worth $400,000 would have to be destroyed. The main defects were cartridge cases badly made and the prevalence of back firing, thus endangering the lives of the soldiers using the ammunition. The Minister took quick action and those responsible for the defects were removed.

Col Sam Hughes has become known as the "soldier's minister." He is the friend of the soldiers irrespective of politics or creed. He has brought order into a department where before there was chaos and the country has confidence in his administration because he has the courage of his convictions. The Liberal party says that too much money is being spent on the militia, but the present Minister has shown that every cent is spent for the good of the militia which he has brought in the space of two years to a high state of efficiency.

Cured My Cough In One Night

Relieved Me of a Throat Weakness That Resisted Every Treatment.

"SUFFERERS, FOLLOW MY PLAN"

"After being loaded down with a chronic hacking cough for months, you can imagine my joy at finding even a relief from it," writes Mrs. O. A. Tooker, of Monson, Mass., U.S.A. "I was troubled with an irritable throat weakness and asthma that simply defied every medicine I ever used. I was discouraged until a friend recommended Catarrhozone so strongly that I bought a dollar outfit from my druggist. I breathed in the helping fumes of Catarrhozone very deeply—used the inhaler five minutes every hour. After the first day I was better, and next morning my cough was gone. My asthma is cured, my throat weakness is gone, and I am well. For two years indeed, with the aid of Catarrhozone, I have kept perfectly well. I have also used Dr. Hamilton's Pills for constipation with grand results, and consider your remedies have done wonders for me."

Thousands of wonderful cures are reported every year. Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it, and is certainly most efficient for colds, bronchitis, throat trouble, asthma and catarrh. The two months' treatment (large size), price $1.00, is guaranteed, smaller size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

LOCAL AUTOMOBILES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Some of the local automobile owners and drivers of such cars are seemingly regardless if anything but their own selfish ends. It is generally known that some of these joy riders, who for fear of the police, manage to keep their speed within legal limits in the centre of the city, but in outlying streets speed at a dangerous rate. What I do kick about particularly is the way in which some of these men drive out of yards and alleyways, where they are hidden from pedestrians until they emerge on the pavement. I saw two cases yesterday, where autos came from such alleys and in neither case was a horn sounded to warn people. One old man was almost run over on Brock street. The police should make a serious example of anyone committing such an offense.

COMING TO CANADA

Loose Methods of Racing Across Border Sending Horses Northward

The American thoroughbred industry seems to have been shot to pieces. There are statistics that in the states of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, where the thoroughbred formerly flourished, there are not enough thoroughbred race horses left to make it worth talking about. And this state of affairs has been brought about entirely by the loose methods of conducting race track meetings and the consequent strenuous reform measures. There is no immediate indication that the thoroughbred will amount to anything very much in the near future in the United States. What horses of the breeding classes there are left are gradually finding their way to Canada. They find their way into the hands of Canadian owners and their progeny will be raced as Canadian breds. And chances are, that by the time the racing laws of the United States have been remodelled the Americans will have to look to Canada for their horses, and much good money for the Canadian owner should be the result.

HIGH CHAIR ATTACHMENT

Horseshoe-shaped Receptacle Holds Toys or Things

A busy woman has designed an attachment for high chairs that seems to be a convenient article. It will hold the baby's toys or other articles or catch the things that happen to roll off his tray. A horseshoe shaped frame of double construction is removably attached to this frame, being in the form of a strip of fabric with shirred edges which slip over the frame and slide around until the infant is surrounded with a deep trough of yielding material. Breakable objects that fall or are pushed off the tray are caught in this basket, without injury and baby can have his playthings in the receptacle as well as on a smooth and tricky surface.
